The usual committees were appointed and the convention took a recess in the afternoon to participate in the public memorial exercises.

The Thursday's session was a hot one from the opening to the close. Quite a contest was held over the adoption of the platform, and much enthusiasm was manifested over the nomination of the candidates. As we have not space for the entire proceedings in detail we content ourselves with publishing the platform and a biographical sketch of Gen. Fisk. The portrait is made from a photo which we obtained from the General's brother, W. V. Fisk Esq., of Clinton.

THE PLATFORM.

The Prohibition party, in national convention assembled, acknowledging the Almighty God as the source of all power in government, do hereby declare:

1. That the manufacture, importation, exportation, transportation and sale of alcoholic beverages shall be made public crimes and punished as such.

2. That such prohibition must be secured through amendments of our national and state constitutions, enforced by adequate laws adequately supported by administrative authority; and to this end the organization of the Prohibition party is imperatively demanded in state and nation.

2. That any form of license taxation or regulation of the liquor traffic is contrary to good government; that any party which supports regulation license or tax enters into an alliance with such traffic and becomes the actual foe of the state's welfare, and that we arraign the Republican and Democratic parties for their persistent attitude in favor of the licensed iniquity, whereby they oppose the demand of the people for prohibition, and through open complicity with the liquor traffic defeat the enforcement of law.

4 For the immediate abolition of the internal revenue system, whereby our national government is deriving support from our greatest national vice.

5. That an adequate public revenue being necessary, it may properly be raised by import duties and by an equitable assessment upon the property and the legitimate business of the country; but import duties should be so reduced that no surplus shall be accumulated in the treasury, and that the burdens of taxation shall be removed from foods, clothing and other comforts and necessaries of life.

6. That civil service appointments for all civil offices chiefly clerical in their duties should be based upon moral, intellectual and physical qualifications, and not upon party service or party necessity.

7. That the right of suffrage rests on no mere circumstance of race, color, sex or nationality, and that where, from any cause, it has been held from citizens who are mentally and morally qualified for the exercise of an intelligent ballot, it should be restored by the people through the legislatures of the several states, on such educational basis as they may deem wise.

8. For the abolition of polygamy and for [illegible] governing marriage and divorce.

9. For prohibiting all combinations of capital to control and to increase the cost of products for popular consumption.

10. For the preservation and defense of the Sabbath as a civil institution without oppressing any who religiously observe the same on any other day than the first day of the week. That arbitration is the Christian, wise and economic method of settling national differences, and the same method should, by judicious legislation, be applied to the settlement of disputes between large bodies of employes and employers; that the abolition of the saloon would remove the burdens, moral, physical, pecuniary and social, which now oppress labor, and rob it of its earnings, and would prove to be the wise and successful way of promoting labor reform, and we invite labor and capital to unite with us for the accomplishment thereof. That monopoly in land is a wrong to the people, and the public lands should be reserved to actual settlers, and that men and women should receive equal wages for equal work.

11. That our immigration laws should be so enforced as to prevent the introduction into our country of all convicts, inmates of dependent institutions and of other physically incapacitated for self-support, and that no person should have the ballot in any state who is not a citizen of the United States.

Recognizing and declaring that prohibition of the liquor traffic had become the dominant issue in national politics, we invite to full party fellowship all those who, for this one dominant issue, are with us agreed, in the full belief that this party can and will remove sectional differences, promote national unity and insure the best welfare of our native land.

GEN. CLINTON B. FISK.

General Clinton B. Fisk, the nominee for President, has for many years, been known in every part of the Union as a soldier, as a promoter of education, especially of the freedmen, as a prominent laymen in ecclesiastical work and as an advocate of prohibition.

He was born at York, Livingston county, New York, about fifty-five years ago. In his infancy his father emigrated to Michigan. He was prepared, paying in part his own expenses during his preparatory course, to enter the University of Michigan, but bad health forced him, from his studies into commercial pursuits.

After a successful career as merchant, miller and banker in Michigan he removed to St. Louis in 1859. Early in the war he became colonel of the Thirty-third Missouri Infantry in the Union army. He was promoted to Brigadier-General in 1862; to Brevet Major General of Volunteers in 1865, and after the end of the war he was Assistant Commissioner under General Howard in the management of the Freedmen's Bureau in Kentucky and Tennessee. General Grant appointed him president of Indian Commissioners, a position which he filled with great ability.

General Fisk is president of the Board of Trustees of Fisk University, for colored students, at Nashville, a trustee of Dickinson College, Pennsylvania, of Drew Theological Seminary and Pennington Semifiary, New Jersey, and of Albion College, Michigan.

He is a trustee of the American Missionary Association; he is also a member of the Book Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and he has done Methodism conspicuous service in his work toward a reunion of the Northern and Southern branches of the church. He is wealthy, and is interested largely in the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad, in connection with which he has for a number of years held official positions.

For many years General Fisk has been prominently connected with the Prohibition movement, and in 1886 was the nominee of that party for Governor of New Jersey, polling 19,500 votes, the largest number ever cast for a Prohibition candidate in that State.

THE AMERICAN POTTERY DISTRICT.

Its Centre a City with a Large English Population.

Trenton is a very English town; the most English town in the country, except, perhaps, East Liverpool, Ohio. Inclosing it, and about to be included in it by act of Legislature, is [illegible] of about 50,000, of whom 10,000 are English.

The Irish in Trenton are few compared with the English, and even the Germans are less numerous than the people who claim England as the birthplace of either themselves or their parents.

English immigrants began going to Trenton forty years ago, but it is only within the last five years that they have become so prominent a factor in the life of the city. They founded the pottery business there, and for many years all the pottery employees and most of the manufacturers themselves were of English birth.

Now, however, the increase in the business has been even greater than the English immigration, and the young sons and daughters of American-born parents are learning the trade, and working in the shops beside the sons and daughters of English-born parents, and beside the newer arrivals from England. But the proporton of English in the business is still at least five or six to one.

SCORING THE SPIRITUALISTS

"The Foulest and Worst of all Impositions."

Of all impositions, of all frauds, of all gross deceits and villainous humbugs practiced in the world, those by Spiritualistic mediums are the foulest and worst.

The bunco steerer, the confidence man, the green-goods merchant and the monte sharp only rob their customers of money by false pretense; while these swindlers, playing upon the hopes and fears of weak flesh, trifling with the grief of the widow and the stricken mother, and employing as their agent the agony of every anguished heart whose treasure is in the grave, not only extort money by vile trickery, but often drive their deluded victims from health and wealth into poverty and illness, and finally rob them of their reason and drive them to the madhouse.

This is not exaggeration, but simple fact.

Our wise legislators have provided means for the punishment of other swindlers, but these miscreants are allowed to practice under the protection of the law. Again and again they have been exposed, again and again the whole fabric of spiritualistic manifestation has been shown to be deception and trickery; homes have been ruined, fortunes lost, evils innumerable wrought in families upon which the curse of credulity has fallen, and still not one step taken towards the protection of the community from the gang of charlatans invading it.—New York World.

Lovers' Names.

If your lover's name is Harry,
'Twon't be long before you marry.
If he's the man on whom you're gone,
You'll run no risk to trust in John.
If Richard is your sweetheart's name,
He'll likely bring you wealth and fame.
Should you wed a man named Charley,
Expect a temper sharp and snarly.
If one all patient you expect,
Joseph's the name you must select.
There is no other name can rank
For loving loyalty like Frank.
To homely bliss if you incline,
To some sweet William take a shine.
If you seek the fond and true,
Albert is the name for you.
Don't expect a steady head
If your fancy runs to Ned.
If unruffled life you'd know,
Pick out faithful, honest Joe.

HE CHANGED THE SUBJECT.

As in Connubial Disputes Generally, the Wife the Victor.

Wife—"What is the matter now, dear?"

W.—"Are they interesting?"

H.—"Interesting! They are absolutely sickening. Hear this: 'My dear ducky!' 'My lovey dovey!' Ha! ha! ha!"

W. (demurely)—"It does sound rather foolish, doesn't it?"

H. (with a burst of laughter)—"Foolish? Idiotic you mean. It's the worst rot imaginable. To think that any man in his senses could write such stuff as this: 'I send you a million kisses my goosie poosie, sweety peety?' ha! ha! ha!

H.—"Suppose he did. Is that any excuse for writing such rot?"

W.—"Yes, it should be. Here are some letters I found to-day when looking over my old relics—relics of courtship. They are very foolish, but very precious to me I assure you. They are your own letters. One of them begins: 'My ownest own preciousest little ducky darling, my——'"

H. (hastily)—"By the way, my love, I saw a very handsome bonnet in the window of Mrs. Fussandfeather to-day. If you will come out with me to-morrow and take a look at it—well, if it suits you, you can have it."

W. (sweetly)—"Thank you, dearest. Shall I read you this letter?"

H.—"No, I have an engagement. Some other time I will hear it."

FIRST AMERICAN PERIODICAL.

It Was Edited by Benjamin Franklin and Was Not a Success.

The first periodical of any importance which appeared in America, and the earliest to be devoted chiefly to literature, was the famous old General Magazine and Historical Chronicle, established in 1741 at Philadelphia and edited by Benjamin Franklin.

Up to this time the few clumsily made and crudely printed journals published were devoted almost exclusively to the discussion of the political situation of the day, at home and in the motherland.

Franklin, with his keen business sense and love for letters, saw a new field opened to the periodical as a vehicle for the dissemination of the latest thought bearing upon belles lettres and the sciences, and he resolved to be the first to break the new ground. The Chronicle was suspended within a year of its birth.

A Rosebud Immortal.

We stood in a garden at morning,
A garden all golden and green,
The leaves in the wind sang together,
Her laughter made music between.
She was robed in the white of the lilies,
Her eyes, like the heavens, were blue,
And around her in sweetness unfolded
[illegible]

I prayed for a bud and she gave it
[illegible]
I caught and I kissed her white fingers,
There trembled a tear in her eye.
Then the gardener, ancient and wrinkled,
Came clipping the boxwood and yew,
And she went, and a cloud drifted over,
And the sparkle died out of the dew.

My locks [illegible] glimmer with silver
My life is darkened by love,
For, still in the robes of the lilies,
She sings with the angels above.
In a book in my bare little attic
Laid in with a leaflet of rue,
Is a rosebud that never unfolded
For lack of the sunlight and dew.

That is all; she is dead like the rosebud
And my love for her never was told,
But my dream of the glory of heaven
Is of her at the gateway of gold.
She stands with her feet in the blossoms,
And waiteth to welcome me through,
And give me a rosebud immortal,
Starred over with diamonds of dew.

GERMANY'S MIGHTY CHANCELLOR.

The Domestic Life of Prince Bismarck—A Kind Master.

Prince Bismarck goes to bed usually at 2 o'clock in the morning, and gets up at noon. In his bedroom a light is kept burning all the night, numbers of messages, often requiring his personal attention, being brought in during the night.

In consideration of the late hours kept by the Prince, supper is served late in the evening, and seldom finished before midnight. Besides the Princess Bismarck, Count and Countess Rantzau partake of almost every meal, regularly leaving the palace at 10:45 p. m., when a second-class cab always takes them home.

Bismarck's birthday is always a great feast and holiday for the servants of the house. In the kitchen a barrel of wine is provided by Princess Bismarck, two bands are in attendance, and the servants' families appear on the scene. The Prince comes down, talks with the guests, and distributes sweets among the children.

The pleasant relations between master and servant are also evident from the fact that the Princess always gives six Easter eggs to each of the servants.

The domestic police of the Prince consists of a sergeant and eight constables. If the Prince is away from home, four constables go with him and four remain at the house, and all of them are entitled to arrest any suspicious person, be i at Berlin, at Friedrichsruhe, or at Varzin.

It was at Varzin where Bismarck's large dog, Sultan, was poisoned. The Princess declared at the time that she would make provision for life for any one who could point out the prisoner. Sultan was more intelligent than Tyras, but Tyras is the more faithful of the two, and will take food out of the hand of any member of Prince Bismarck's family, but never from a servant, as one of the footmen has learned to his regret.

It is well known that at Berlin the Chancellor is rarely seen, and only some of the inhabitants of the Vor Scrape have the privilege of seeing him sometimes walking in his grounds.

WHERE MARRYING ISN'T EASY.

Ever marry anybody in Louisiana? No. Well, marriage is a mighty serious matter in that Commonwealth, and the young man who contemplates a matrimonial incursion into the Pelican State cannot be too careful. I know whereof I speak, having been married there once myself.

In the first place a license costs $2.50, and before a minister is allowed to officiate you must n6t only present your marriage license, but are required to give bond and security in the sum of $2,500 for the proper maintenance of your prospective bride during married life.

Imagine the dilemma of a stranger who arrives in the night, knows nobody except his girl, and wants to get married at early candlelight and take the next train. Imagine his embarrassment, I say, when he finds that he is compelled to go out among a lot of strangers, who have all been apprised beforehand of the nature of his expedition, and are more or less jealous of him, and make a $2,500 bond before the ceremony can proceed.

It is worrisome, I can tell you, but it is the law, and you must either comply or return home alone. No spirited youth will allow himself to be baffled on the brink of the nuptial altar, and, of course, he complies, even if he has to ask the Sheriff and Town Marshal to go on his bond.—Newnan Herald.

Too Young To Marry.

The several hundred people who were invited to a wedding to take place at Greenpoint, near Brooklyn, N. Y., recently, were informed by telegraph to stay away.

It leaked out that the intended bride, who is only 18 years old and lives with her grandfather, issued the invitations solely upon her own authority.

When her grandfather heard of the approaching nuptials he promptly put a stop to all preparations and informed the invited guests that the ceremony had been postponed. Then he sent for the young fellow who had hoped to be bridegroom, a boy of 19, and talked him into compliance.

In speaking of the matter the old gentleman said:

"Herbert is a good enough boy, and I am perfectly willing he should marry Lillie, but not now. He is a clerk in a coffee house and earns very little money. Besides, he is only a baby yet and will have to wait several years before he is fit to become a husband."

The "Rod" Changes Hands.

After all, it is perhaps better that the child should be a little spoiled rather than it should be unjustly punished. The latter sometimes makes a very unhappy memory to carry about with one. A gentleman said a short time ago:

"I shall never forget, though I have wished a thousand times that I could, how I punished little Mamie for continually pronouncing a word wrong—as I thought wilfully—after I had tried hard to make her say it correctly. She was quiet for a few minutes after I had punished her, and then she looked up with a quivering lip and said:

"'Papa, you will have to whip me again; I can't say it.'

"You can imagine just how I felt, and how I kept on remembering the look on her face and the tone of the sad, little voice."

JUDAS ISCARIOT.

The Probable Origin of His Name—Some Legends About Him.

There is no doubt or ambiguity with regard to the earliest part of Judas Iscariot's name. Judas is merely the Greek or Hellenistic form of the Hebrew "Judah," familiar to everybody. But "Iscariot" is, as it has always been, a puzzle.

The name has a dozen interpretations of the word have been suggested by philologists, but no one of them is in all respects satisfactory. The most seeming of their number is that the word is a condensed or corrupted form of the two Hebrew words, "Ish Kerioth," meaning "the man of Kerioth," Kerioth being a village in Southern Palestine, where perhaps Judas or his family had their origin.

The name, however, is of no consequence for our present purpose; and we have remarked it only to show the mystery attaching to the man in every phase of his surroundings.

With regard to his birth, legend and myth are as copious as is conjecture with regard to his name. Here are two of them, for which we are immediately indebted to Moncure Conway:

In the apocryphal "Gospel of the Infancy," it is related that a demoniacal boy, brought to the child Jesus, strikes him, whereupon Jesus weeps, and Satan comes out of the boy in the shape of a furious dog. This boy was Judas.

According to another legend, Judas' mother had a dream before his birth that her son would murder his father and sell his God. To avert this, the child was sunk in the sea, but was cast on shore. He was adopted by a king and queen, who had a son, whom Judas slew. He fled to Judea, became the page of Pilate, and, after the predestined murder of his father, learned from his mother her dream. In terror and contrition Judas hears of a prophet who forgives sins; when he throws himself at his feet, Jesus, recognizing his predestined betrayer, accepts him as a disciple, and intrusts him with the purse so that Judas' avarice might be excited and the plan of salvation not fail. Judas thus became heir apparent to the infernal throne, and in mural pictures of Eastern churches he appears seated on the knees of a majestic Satan.—New Orleans States.

Little Voices from the South.

"Who discovered America?" asked a teacher of a class of very young pupils.

This startling information was instantly vouchsafed:

"Christopher Columbus, and he was born in a boot," from which it will be seen that the small scholar had been noticing the shape of Italy on the map.

The same class had a lesson in the "First Reader," telling the memorable story of the cherry tree and hatchet. Closing the books the teacher asked:

"What did George Washington's father say when he found his favorite tree cut down?" In her excitement the same child who told of the boot rose from her seat, brandished her right arm menacingly, and exclaimed:

"Who cut down my cherry tree? I means to whip him, I don't care who it was! Because," she added, as she took her seat, "I'll bet that's what he did say, don't you, Miss ——?"

Two small boys, aged seven, were heard, on their return from Sunday school, discussing the story of the fall of man. One spoke of the great sorrow of our first parents upon being driven from the gates of Paradise by the angel who guarded them.

"But, Bob," remonstrated the other, "why in the world didn't they jump over the fence?"—N. Y. World.

Faith Illustrated.

A business man on the Hudson had his children down with the scarlet fever, and one of the little ones was put in quarantine apart from the rest. It was a mild type of fever, and the grandfather used to go upstairs and sit with the child.

The little girl one day took her grandfather to a corner of the room, and showed him some alphabet bricks arranged to spell out:

"I want you to get me a box of paints."

Next day he brought the paints from town, but left them in his overcoat pocket when he went up to see his little girl. She didn't say anything, but she took him to the corner again, and he read:

"I thank you, grandpa, for the box of paints."

She had faith in him.—Dwight L. Moody.

The Tennessee Way.

A smart-stepping citizen of Tennessee was in New York to see about raising money for a proposed railroad line down in his country, and when asked to explain, he said:

"There's no explanation about it. This is to be a railroad 200 miles long."

"But about the company?"

"Oh, that's been organized and all the officers elected."

"What's the capital?"

"Fifty million dollars."

"How much stock has been taken?"

"About $300 worth."

"What! only $300 worth?"

"That's all, mister, and if you fellers down here will only pitch in and gobble up the rest of it, we'll go ahead and make things hum."

Dog Story from Kentucky.

The Louisville Courier-Journal tells that a dog of the city fell into a catch basin, the top being off. A crowd, attracted by his loud yelps, soon gathered around the basin, but, no one having a rope, the dog was allowed to remain in the basin quite a while.

Presently a man came up with a rope and lowered it into the basin, the dog quickly catching it with his teeth. The man pulled the dog up slowly till he very nearly reached the top of the basin, when, on account of weakness, the animal fell back to the bottom. The man again lowered the rope, and when it reached the animal he tucked it under his fore legs and also caught it in his teeth. He was then slowly pulled to the top by the man.

The Gray Hair Puller.

Possibly the most unique method of earning a living known is that adopted by a big, rosy 20-year old blonde, who finds engagements with women just lamenting their first gray hairs, to weed out, so to speak, those obnoxious reminders of advancing years. The gray hair puller is gentle in her methods of treatment and makes periodic visits at intervals of a few weeks, spending from half an hour to two or three hours, letting down the hair, combing it out and spying for tell-tale silver threads.

She carries an innocent looking little reticule which contains various glycerine and rose water preparations for a healing application when the work has been done.

THE CONFEDERATE GOLD DOLLAR.

A Negro Boy's Discovery of a Coin Said To Be Worth $650.

A few days ago a negro boy was standing near a trash pile, and was engaged in running his toes through the debris. He noticed something bright and yellow, and when he picked it up found it to be a very small, yellow coin. At first he thought it was copper, but as he lingered at his native sense told him it was too heavy for copper, so he at once conjectured that it was made of gold.

He had some business with Frank Walker, and while in his office showed him the piece of money. He asked the lawyer how much he would give him for it. The attorney, after eyeing it closely, thought it was a gold dollar, and as he was particularly anxious to get such a coin to wear on his watch chain, he offered the boy a dollar for it, which he gleefully accepted.

Mr. Walker gave the coin a careful examination, and became convinced that he had paid too much for it. He was in Colonel's Redwine's office, and took the coin out and exhibited it to the great financier. "What will you give me for it?" he asked. "I'll give you a dollar," was the reply. "And I'll give you a dollar and a quarter," interrupted a man who had come in to renew a note. "Done," exclaimed Mr. Walker. "Here's your money," was the quick answer. The buyer left the office with his coin, and the lawyer thought he had made a good bargain.

Hurrying off to a man that buys coins, the purchaser exhibited the piece. The dealer scrutinized it closely and said: "What will you take for it?" "What will you give?" After a little consideration the dealer said: "Will you take $25 for it?" The answer was: "No, but I'll take $30 for it." "It's a go; here's your money," and the happy man walked out of the office.

The coin which figured in these transactions is a Confederate gold dollar. A gentleman was talking yesterday to a reporter, and he said: "The worst sold man of the four was he who sold the coin for $30. If it be true that it is, as represented, a genuine Confederate gold dollar, it is worth $650. I am told that there are only six of those coins in existence. They are the only ones which were coined. They are worth $650 each."

The reporter came away convinced that of all the men who figured in this affair the gentleman who gave this wonderful information was the worst sold of any.—Atlanta Constitution.

AIDS TO THE UNLETTERED.

Formerly all the streets in Merida were distinguished in a manner peculiar to Yucatan, by images of birds or beasts set up at the corners, and many still retain the ancient sign; for example, the street upon which we are living is called La Calle del Flamingo, because of a huge red flamingo painted on the corner house.

Another is known as the street of the Elephant, and the representation of it is an exaggerated animal, with curved trunk and a body as big as a barrel.

There is the street of the Old Woman, and on its corner is the caricature of an aged female, with huge spectacles astride her nose.

The street of the Two Faces has a double-faced human head; and there are others equally striking.

The reason for this kindergarten sort of momenclature was because when the streets were named the great mass of inhabitants were Indians who could not read, and therefore printed signs would have been no use to them, but the picture of a bull, a flamingo or an elephant they could not mistake.

Something for Bilious People.

Napoleon had a strange theory about his bile. There is no personal defect that a man cannot get himself to be vain of for one reason or another.

"Don't you know," said he to the Comte de Segur, "that every man that's worth anything is bilious? 'Tis the hidden fire. By the help of its excitement I see clearly in difficult junctures. It wins me my battles!"

Ready for the Job.

A young fellow strolled into a newspaper office in a Western city and laying down a clipping from a "want column" in which a druggist advertised for a "pharmacist," said:

"Git me a blace like dot und I gif you a thaler."

"Have you had any experience as a pharmacist?" queried the astute clerk at the "ad" window.

"Ogsberiunce?" said the young fellow, opening wide his blue Teuton eyes. "I shoult say so. I vas porn on a farm, und I vork on von in Dakota dis tree years, und know it all."

Muzzle the Goats.

The cosmopolitan taste for food which characterizes the North American goat has often been chronicled in song and story.

A dispatch from Argentine, Mo., tells of his greatest achievement while bent upon satisfaction for his appetite. Entering one of the public buildings in Argentine during the stilly night he ate up all the town records and the city ordinances.

"Mad as Wet Hens."

A woman in Georgia sat up late in the night recently to see a pail of ice water she had hung above the door overturn on her husband when he returned from the "club." She got tired and went to bed. In the morning she forgot all about the pail until she opened the door to admit her mother.

The two ladies are still as mad as wet hens, and a divorce suit is talked of.

They are coming to think that the mischief of practical joking can hardly be exaggerated.

A Leap Year Incident.

"I've something, George, to say," she said—

"All right, Nell, start and say it—"

"I'd rather, George, you'd speak instead—"

Your sister trapped me, Nell, to-day,
And so, henceforth, I've naught to say."

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

WOLVERINE QUILL DRIVERS.

[illegible] ANNUAL SESSION OF THE STATE PRESS ASSOCIATION HELD AT DETROIT LAST WEEK.

Four Days of Business and Buncombe, Feasting and Fun—Detroit's Generous Hospitality. Synopsis of the Business Done and the Festivities Enjoyed.

The editors of Michigan have come to regard the anniversary meeting of the State Press Association as the most fitting time in the season to take their annual outing. At these meetings they can combine business with pleasure, can meet their bretheren of the quill in a social way, and compare notes in regard to their methods of conducting that machine, so omnipotent for good or evil—the city and rural press. Commenced on a humble scale, the meetings of the association for the first few years were very slimly attended. Gradually however, the interest and attendance increased and for the past five or six years the sessions have abounded in good things, not only in a business but also in a social point of view.

The twenty-first annual session held at Detroit last week eclipsed all its predecessors. But few papers in the state were unrepresented. The Southern tier, the Central section, the salt valley of the Northeast, the lumber districts of the North and West, and even the Lake Superior annex all poured their delegations into the City of the Straits.

Having decided to "take in" the show, we resolved not to curtail it an hour, although a four days' absence from home involved the sacrafice of both Decoration Day and the circus. Accordingly we brushed up our new tile, packed our grip-sack with an extra collar and neck-tie, a quarter section of ginger bread and a bottle of perfumery, and taking sister Loana along for company, boarded the Lake Shore train last Tuesday morning for Detroit.

We arrived in the city about eleven o'clock A. M. alighted at the Woodward Ave. crossing and took the street cars to Hancock Ave. where we stopped for dinner at Mr. F. C. Stoepel's. After a sumptuous noon repast we proceeded "down town," found the Light Guard Armory, registered our name, procured an official badge, and prepared to enjoy the exercises.

We arranged our program with two objects in view—to take in all the sessions of the convention, and to visit as many as possible of the old Tecumseh residents now living in Detroit. And to obviate the mixing of business with personal calls, we will divide our report into two chapters, like a continued story, and give the proceedings of the association first.

Shortly after one o'clock the Armory hall began to overflow with members of the craft. Every minute almost, for an hour before the opening, some editor arrived, sometimes alone but generally with a lady or two on his arm, and each man's eye seemed to sparkle with the determination to fight it out on that line if it took all summer.

At 2:30 o'clock President M. E. Brown and Secretary E. J. Kelly took the platform and Mayor John Pridgeon, of Detroit, delivered the welcoming address. It was brief and gracefully delivered. He said:

As Mayor of Detroit I extend you a cordial greeting and hearty welcome to our city, assured that in this I am as fully in accord with the wishes and sentiments of our citizens as in any duty I shall perform during my term of office. The newspapers to us have become almost as great a want as our daily bread. They are as absolutely necessary to the transaction of business as are light houses to the commerce of our great lakes. In the press of Michigan the people have the benefit derived from energetic, enterprising and intelligent management, and I congratulate you that there is substantial evidence of its appreciation.

Competent committees have been appointed to carry into effect the courteous intention of our citizens and afford you such opportunity as the time at your disposal will permit to see what is of interest in our city.

Now, gentlemen, I wish that your business meeting shall be satisfactory and profitable, and that you and those who came with you will have a thoroughly enjoyable visit.

Mrs. Geo. W. Scripps, the press representative of the W. C. T. U. was then introduced and gave a brief discription of the temperance work of that organization. She spoke substantially as follows:

GENTLEMEN—It gives me great pleasure to appear before you to-day, not only because of the respect in which I hold your craft, but because I claim a distant relationship to the fraternity, my husband having "wielded the quill" for over thirty years. I have the honor to represent before you the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Michigan. This organization is auxiliary to the national, and that to the World's Women's Christian Temperance Union, which is now the largest and best organized body of Christian women the world has ever known. In Michigan we represent about 8,000 of the mothers and daughters of this grand State, with 1,000 honorary members. The object of this organization is the purification and protection of the home from the saloon; in other words, the utter and thorough extinction of the liquor traffic. It seeks to accomplish this by educational, preventive and legislative means. It seeks to reach every class and order of society, and for this purpose has over forty different departments of work [illegible] and in working order.

One of the most potent of educational influences we recognize to be the daily and weekly newspaper. No home so humble that it is not cheered by its visits; no heart so forsaken that it is not influenced by the emanations from your "sanctums." The Women's Christian Temperance Union appreciates this medium, and is seeking more and more to make use of it, and for this purpose has a regularly organized department. In the name of these earnest workers I wish to thank you most heartily for the courtesy and kindness you have extended to us in this work, and to express the hope that this kindness and courtesy may continue and increase, and that the voice of the press of Michigan may go out over all this broad land and speak in no uncertain tone for God and home and humanity.

We wish also to thank you for the action taken by your Committee of Arrangements in excluding intoxicating liquors from your bill of fare at your banquet and lunch. The eyes of the women note all these matters and we are glad you have taken this action.

Gen. R. A. Alger, Col. Fred Farnsworth, and John H. Harmon were elected honorary members of the association by a rising vote.

The President appointed committees on place of holding next meeting, on resolutions, on new business, and on memorials.

The session then adjourned until Wednesday morning and the guests took carriages for a drive about the city. The disposition of over 200 visitors in carriages was no small task, but all were duly provided for in time, under the supervision of Gen. Geo. S. Wormer and his assistants. Theo. Quinby, a member of the Free Press staff, happened to take a seat in the back to which we were assigned and we found him a most agreeable companion. The drive occupied fully two hours. Jefferson, Woodward, Cass, Fort and other principal streets were traversed. Detroit is a beautiful city at any season of the year, but just now she wears her holiday attire. Her wide avenues lined with mammoth shade trees on either side, the Campus Martius, the Soldier's Monument, the City Hall, and the most magnificent river in America, all attract the admiration of the visitor. Detroit is emphatically a city of homes. It has but few grand mansions, but it contains a larger proportion of beautiful residences occupied by the owners, than any city in America, except perhaps Philadelphia. The peculiar arrangement of the streets forms many open areas of irregular shape, all of which are planted to shade trees and utilized as parks. The residence streets and parks present an enchanting appearance at this season of the year.

At five o'clock the company halted at the House of Correction and made a tour of inspection. Some of the ladies seemed a little embarrassed at their surroundings, but the editors themselves were entirely at home. It is wonderful how easily and naturally the average editor accommodates himself to any new situation. After the inspection, the crowd passed across the street to Capt. Nicholson's residence, where all were invited "to make themselves at home and take possession of the ranch." Tables were spread in nearly every room on the ground floor and loaded with fruits, ice cream, cakes, ices etc., and a lunch was served, which might almost be termed a banquet. One enthusiastic quill driver suggested that Capt. Nicholson ought to be nominated for President. When all had eaten their fill they adjourned to the spacious lawn west of the mansion and Charley Hampton, of Petoskey, returned thanks to Capt. Nicholson for his royal hospitality, to which the latter responded in his usual humorous and genial style. The company then entered their carriages and returned to Armory Hall.

In the evening a reception was tendered to the visitors by Gen. and Mrs. R. A. Alger, at their hospitable mansion. They were assisted by Richard Stors Willis, Wm. C. Maybury and others. A light lunch was served in the dining hall, at which lemonade was the strongest drink. The exterior of the General's residence is very unassuming and contrasts strongly with the elegance and munificence of the interior furnishings. The evening was delightfully spent in studying the paintings, books and statuary which transform the parlors into artist's bowers. That great painting the "Last Hours of Mozart" was placed in the back reception parlor, behind shaded gas jets on the ceiling, which brought out the strong features of the painting. The company departed at a late hour, more than pleased with Gen. Alger's hospitable entertainment. Thus closed the first day's festivities.

WEDNESDAY'S SESSION.

Wednesday morning opened with a cool bracing air which rendered a morning stroll along the streets very pleasant and healthful, and the members were rather tarty about assembling. About nine o'clock the clans began to gather. Several new comers had arrived the night before. These paid their dues, affixed their names to the register and procured the necessary badges. After these preliminaries were completed President Brown rapped the convention to order [illegible] gave a short historical resume of the association and then presented a few points on needed legislation. It was well received. Mr. Brown is editor of the Battle Creek Moon and is one of the rising men in his profession in this state.

Perry F. Powers of the Cadillac News then read a paper on "City and Country Journalism." It was an exhaustive essay on that topic and was one of the best papers presented during the entire session.

J. C. Bontecou, of the Petoskey Record, was next on the program for a paper entitled "What a Just Libel Law Should Be." As he was absent, the paper was read by Charley Hampton, of the Petoskey Independent.

The essay was a strong presentation of the subject and quite a lengthy discussion followed, after which a resolution was passed to appoint a committee of seven on libel legislation. The following committee was named, Charles S. Hampton, of the Petoskey Independent; Col. L. M. Sellers, of the Cedar Springs Clipper; J. C. Bontecou, of the Petoskey Record; W. E. Quinby, of the Detroit Free Press; James H. Stone, of the Detroit Tribune; W. H. Brearley, of the Detroit Evening Journal; and John McVicar, of the Detroit Evening News.

A resolution was passed to compile a history of the organization; also to revise the By-Laws so as to elect an annual historian.

President Brown named the following committee to supervise the historical compilation; W. I. Davenny, Joseph Greusel, W. H. Brearley, William Stocking, Don. C. Henderson and W. W. Woolmough.

The Convention then adjourned until Thursday morning.

The afternoon program was of the picnic order. Promptly at two o'clock the visitors gathered at the foot of Woodward Ave., and took passage on the steamer Sappho for a boat ride around Belle Isle. Schremser's Detroit orchestra was on board and gave some of their delightful music during the afternoon. The only ticket of admission required was the badge of the association. The first halt was made at the water works. Here a systematic tour was entered upon. The crowd entered the building in a body, climbed the stairs and watched the big wheels go round. Two ponderous corliss engines were working two gigantic pumps. Upon re-embarking the steamer took its course around Belle Isle through the Canadian channel and halted at the Island dock. The visitors then alighted and spent an hour strolling about the park during which they witnessed a fine dress parade by the 4th Reg. M. S. T. Belle Isle is now owned by the city and will be fitted up for a public park. Much work has already been done at the south end. The purchase of the island by the city was a masterly stroke of good sense. In twenty years' time with a moderate annual outlay, Detroit will have one of the grandest parks in this country. The guests again took the steamer and after a delightful ride down the river, arrived at the city in time for supper. In the evening there was a meeting of the Sanhedrim at the Lafayette Ave. Consistory, where the initiated and the novitiates indulged in a little goat equestrianism, and——and——well, guess.

THURSDAY'S SESSION.

Shortly after nine A. M. President Brown rapped the members to order in Armory Hall. The first paper was read by J. E. Beal, of the Ann Arbor Courier, entitled "College Graduates vs. Practical Printers as Editors." The essay was one of much merit and a lively discussion ensued on the topic.

H. Potts, of the Grand Haven Journal, the Bill Nye of the Convention, gave a short talk on Pi which brought down the house.

Harry Stitt, of the Lansing Journal, then read a paper on "Plate Matter." It contained many good points on that subject which country editors could heed with profit.

The Memorial Committee and Committee on Resolutions submitted their reports, which were adopted.

Grand Rapids was selected as the next place of meeting and the election of officers followed with this result.

Treasurer—L. M. Sellers, of the Cedar Springs Clipper.

An Executive Committee and delegates to the National Editors' Convention were chosen and the business of the association was declared closed.

TRIP TO STAR ISLAND.

The excursion to St. Clair flats and Star Island capped the climax of the festivities. At 3 o'clock P. M. the steamer Greyhound left its dock at the foot of Griswold street with at least 500 visitors on board and after a delightful trip of two hours, halted at the Star Island dock [illegible] coming more popular each season. An hour was consumed in strolling about the lawn and around the Hotel and at six the guests were invited to the banquet hall. An elaborate menu was served comprising all the substantials and delicacies of the season. A merrier and hungrier lot of quill drivers we never saw before. Schremser's orchestra furnished delightful music during the evening. Five full courses were served and many baskets of fragments were gathered up at the close of the feast. Toasts and responses followed. Gen. Alger introduced this part of the program with a few happy remarks which were loudly cheered.

"I hardly know how to start in," he said. "I see on the program that I am down for introductory remarks. I will therefore introduce myself as an editor—two days old. I never before knew what a big thing it was to be an editor. An editor—or combination of editors—can do great things. They can spread war and famine—that is, we can—all over the continent of Europe in a day. We can do something more than that. We can raise up ambitious political candidates and roast them at our pleasure. (Long continued and vociferous cheers.) An editor is a big thing. I don't see now why I didn't have one in my family before. I believe the pleasures of the last few days will result in good to both Detroit and the State. We delight to welcome you. I have the honor to introduce as your toastmaster the Hon. A. G. Boynton."

The regular toasts were then given, which were interspersed with music by the orchestra.

1. Michigan, Our Beautiful Peninsula—T. S. Applegate, of Adrian.
2. The Outlook—W. P. Nesbitt, of Big Rapids.
3. Our Guests—Maj. Levi T. Griffin, of Detroit.
4. The Crops—Arch. McMillan, of Bay City.
5. The City of Detroit—C. F. Leidy, of Detroit.
6. Our Water excursions. Their beauties, triumphs and delights—Geo. F. Lewis, of Saginaw.

Hon. A. G. Boynton filled the position of toast master in a very pleasing manner.

The fifth toast was interrupted by the tooting of the steam whistle, and the crowd hurried to the boat, and the program was finished in the cabin of the Greyhound. At the conclusion of Mr. Lewis's toast, calls were made for Bishop Harris who was one of the guests on board and he responded briefly.

"I hoped you would be spared this speech of mine," began Bishop Harris. "There is one thing, though, which I might mention, knowing the usual habit of scattering acquired by the average audience when anybody begins to speak, those having this affair in charge took us all to Star Island, where we couldn't get away. I never knew a man so interrupted by the blowing of steam whistles as was Mr. Leidy during the portion of his address which was delivered at the Star Island House. We all pitied him very much. There must have been a dozen whistles blown. Now, out here, I feel safer. If a whistle was to be blown upon me, I would stop, but——"

Just then the whistle of the boat was blown vigorously, and amid roars of laughter Bishop Harris dropped into a seat and refused to conclude his address.

Impromptu remarks were made by several persons present. A colored quartette gave a few songs and the orchestra furnished some fine music. The Greyhound reached the city about midnight. Most of the excursionists left for home on Friday morning, but those who remained, to the number, of about 100, took a free ride to Orchard Lake in the morning, and a street car ride to Senator Palmer's farm in the afternoon.

Among former acquaintances we met were Will Stoutenburgh, who runs the Marlette Leader, and Frank Baxter, the editor of the Battle Creek Call. C. F. Field, of the News, was present the last three days and took in the trip to Orchard Lake.

The session from first to last was a grand meeting. Detroit's hospitality was unbounded, the committees were untiring in their efforts to promote the enjoyment of their visitors, and not the slightest accident occurred to mar the proceedings. Their 21st reunion will be set down as a red letter day by the knights of the quill in Michigan.

We spent the entire day of Friday in hunting up and calling upon old Tecumseh friends. But as this report has already reached the limit of our available space, we shall defer the chapter of "personal mention" until next week.

THE GREATEST DISCOVERY

Of the nineteenth century, can truly be said of Papillon (extract of flax) Skin Cure. Thousands testify to its wonderful curative powers in seemingly hopeless cases of Eczema, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas and every kind of skin disease. Mr. O. P. Algier, of Hartford, Ohio, tried everything he heard of or saw recommended and suffered five years with Eczema until he found Papillon Skin Cure, which cured him. Large bottles only $1.00.

For sick headache, Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup is miraculous in its cures, regulating to a healthy condition the stomach and digestive organs.

Everything is handy as can be and if business continues as well as it has, another room will be fitted up.

Prof. E. A. Wilson has been engaged to succeed Prof. Hammond as Superintendent of the Tecumseh public schools at a salary of $1,000. Prof. Wilson graduated from our high school in the class of '75, entered the Normal school the same year, classical course, from which he graduated in 1878. In the fall of '78 he engaged to superintend the public schools of Mt. Pleasant, continuing three years. From thence he went to the public schools of Vassar where he remained five years placing the Vassar schools on the list of those whose graduates are admitted to the University on diploma. He has just closed his first year's work at Petoskey. The friends of education in Tecumseh may with confidence look forward to the maintenance of the high standard already attained for the public schools under his management.

At its last meeting Friday evening, the Tecumseh Base Ball association decided to rent grounds in Bills' race track, and a diamond is being fixed up as rapidly as possible for the summer campaign. A game between the Norvell and Deerfield clubs is booked for the 18th and the Tecumsehs will play the winning club. About $35 has been paid into the treasury, which will give the boys a good start, and if the proper encouragement is given them there will be lively times on the diamond this summer.

On Saturday and Sunday of this week, June 9 and 10, Gilmore's famous band will open the season for the Park Theatre at Presque Isle, the beautiful resort in Lake Erie, six miles below Toledo, O. The features will embrace the great Boston Jubilee of '69 and '72, and the anvil chorus will be given in its entirety. A brigade of ten anvils and a battery of six cannons, manufactured especially for these occasions will be used, and will be fired by electricity in exact time with the music, through wires connecting with keys on the stage. These grand Jubilees, of which there will be four in all—will be given in the large elegant Theatre at Presque Isle Park. For the Gilmore Jubilees the C. J. M. road will give a cheap excursion to the park Sunday. No one should miss this opportunity to hear the great Gilmore Jubilee Festival. Five steamboats will on these days be in readiness to transport people from Toledo to the Island and return.

BAPTISTS IN SESSION.

The annual meeting of the Lenawee Baptist Association convened at the church in this village, Tuesday morning last, with a large attendance. The session lasted two days and much important business to that society was transacted. The association comprises all the churches of that denomination in this and Monroe county, and visiting delegates arrived on all trains Tuesday. Nearly every church in the district was represented by several delegates and interesting reports on the condition of the society represented were read giving valuable statistics. The following brethren were also present; Rev. S. M. Stimson of Terre Haute, Ind., Dist. Sec'y. of Missionary Union; Rev. L. H. Trowbridge of the Christian Herald, Detroit; Rev. A. E. Mather of Battle Creek, Agt. of Aged Minister's Home, and Rev. and Mrs. J. Fisher of Mooreville. About 70 delegates were present.

The morning session was opened with devotional exercises, after which a committee on nomination was selected; also an enrollment committee. The opening sermon was delivered by J. S. Holmes of Adrian, after which the committee on program reported. The nominating committee reported the following which was adopted:

Moderator—Rev. F. Adkins.
Clerk—T. S. Worden.
Treas.—G. B. Bennett.

The next business was the reading of letters from different churches. Tecumseh was the first called upon and reported seven delegates to represent the church. The society has had eight additions during the year, three by baptism and five by letter. Diminutions—13 by letter, 4 deaths. Present membership 219. The total expense incured during the year was $2,062.59. The S. S. has 27 officers and teachers and 140 scholars.

Medina sent four delegates. Additions—By letter, 4; dimunitions, 4 by letter, 2 deaths; membership 77; church expenses $685.

The meeting then adjourned to the dinner served in the lecture room by the ladies of the church.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

After devotional exercises, the moderator announced the following committees:

Missionary Com.—C. Quick, J. G. Bennett.
Resolutions—Holmes, Coddington, Rice.
Next meeting—Wooden, Margeson, Willetts.
Obituaries—Monroe, Quick, Whitmore.
Associational S. S. Officers—Cole, North, Gale.
Education—Hudson, Davies, Wilcox.

The reading of letters was taken up. Adrian reported one death, 23 additions; present membership, 500. Sunday school scholars, 525.

Clayton—3 delegates, 1 death, 3 additions, membership 43.

Dundee—Have had no pastor since Nov. last. Rev. J. Roberts is new occupying the pulpit. Additions 4, excluded, one; 34 members, 12 teachers and officers in the S. S., with membership of 105 scholars.

Hudson has enlarged its church and had been from Sept. to Jan. without preaching, but now have a regular pastor. Sent 10 delegates. Have had 5 additions, 4 deaths; present membership 190; 18 teachers and officers and 203 scholars in S. S.

Monroe—Five delegates were present. Three deaths have occured during the year They have had 6 additions and 7 diminutions; 58 members. The S. S. shows an attendance of 55.

Morenci—Four delegates looked after the interests of this society. They reported 3 additions and one death. Present membership 71. In the S. S. 14 teachers and officers with 112 scholars.

The Second Church of Rome was represented by 4 delegates. Have had 3 additions, one death and a total membership of 61; 70 scholars are in the S. S. and 19 officers and teachers.

Rollin—Seven delegates, 19 additions, diminutions 7, present membership 111; 22 teachers and officers in the S. S. and 215 scholars.

Weston—Six delegates; additions 31, dimmutions, 20; present membership 117; 150 scholars in the Sunday School.

Rev. Dr. Mather was then introduced and made an appeal to the association for a more liberal support to the home for aged ministers. He said no contribution had come to the work from this district. The Ministers Aid Society was organized two and one half years ago and are engaged in building a home for aged ministers, incapable of active duties. Aged ministers should have a liberal pension from the funds of the church. We have on our list 40 persons whom we are helping from the treasury inadquately.

A resolution was passed favoring the taking of a collection during the next month for the home.

Rev. S. M. Stimson of Terre Haute, Ind., urged the general rising up of the churches in the mission work. The fields are open and Christianity is wanted. At the conclusion of his address the Woman's Missionary Society convened under the direction of Mrs. Jas. Heck. The minutes of the semi-annual meeting were read from [illegible] adjourned.

TUESDAY EVENING.

The missionary meeting was opened by an address of welcome by Mrs. Hamilton and response by Mrs. Knapp, who concluded by introducing the speaker of the evening, Rev. A. S. Hobert of Toledo. Mr. Hobert took his text from the 2d. chapter of Ephesians, commencing at the 11th verse and delivered a strong sermon which was listened to with much interest. He referred to the condition of the Ephesians when Paul went among them as a missionary. They were then without Christ and worshipped the goddess Diana.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

The committee on Associated Missions reported through their chairman C. Quick. The Dundee parsonage is still in debt and is rented, as there is no minister and the money is applied on the debt. A committee was appointed to look after the matter.

The Foreign Missions committee reported missionaries in nearly all foreign countries. Out of 18 churches in this association seven contributed $365,33, the other six gave nothing. Home missions was reported on by Rev. John Shepbard, who gave some pertinent remarks on the same. Rev. Adkins reported on State Missions. The Publication Society reported the business of that concern as being reasonably successful during the past year, and amounted in the aggregate from all sources to $43,809,17.

The temperance committee reported through chairman A. P. Coddington, and created considerable discussion. The paper should be read in full to be appreciated. Below is a portion: A little over a year ago an amendment to the state constitution prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating drink was submitted to the people. You all know how the business men regardless of party prayed and worked for the success in that contest, how that noble organization, the W. C. T. U. and others, worked and prayed. What was the result of that contest? The cause of righteousness and humanity was in the majority but was beaten by fraud under partisan control of the rum power. Later on what was known as the local option law passed. Our county together with 36 others, could not be overthrown by fraud or trickery. Again either through the duplicity of the legislature, or a mere technicality, all our hopes were blasted and work done and the expense borne was wasted; the saloon doors were thrown open and the clearly expressed wish of the people defied. We believe the time has come for the people to lay aside all differences and be fully united together in harmony. The greatest enemy of the church and curse of our nation, is intemperance. You may attempt to license it, the curse with all its evil catalogue of crimes and its blighting influences remain. The responsibility rests not only with the church but with each individual christian. Let us join hands in one solid phalanx against the cause.

Bros. Holmes and Quick objected to centuring the Supreme Court. Mr. Coddington said it was not intended as a reflection on that body or the legislature.

The report was referred to three to revise it and make it ready for publication in the minutes.

Bro. Holmes reported for the committee on resolutions in which they gave thanks to the Tecumseh church and pledged themselves to fight against the liquor traffic.

The committee on revising, the constitution reported several changes in the present one, and also recommended taking steps toward incorporating the body under the state laws. The report was adopted and the meeting adjourned.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

Sunday school work was down as the first on the program. The Superintendent made his report after which the question of different modes of instruction was discussed by Bros. Rupert, VanAuken, Hamilton, Cole and others. "Where is the supply of teachers to be found?" was discussed by Bros. Davies, Wilcox and Ayres.

The nominating committee then announced the following for ensuing year:

Moderator—F. Adkins.
Trustees—W. T. Wilcox, C. Quick, A. P. Coddington, G. B. Bennett, T. S. Wooden. T. S. Wooden was elected clerk and G. B. Bennett, treasurer.

The committee on Christian and Ministerial education reported that there was ample provision made for secular education but none for Christian education only through the Christian constituency. The importance of christian education is sadly overlooked or neglected in this association. Only four churches contributed to this work last year. The committee recommended sending their children to denominational colleges and seminaries.

Committee on place of meeting reported in favor of holding the next meeting on Tuesday before the first Wednesday in June, 1889 at the church of Medina. Rev. F. Adkins will preach the sermon. Adopted.

church of Rome to see why they were not represented at this meeting.

The treasurer made his report as follows: Received in general fund $7,20, for the minutes, $33,44; from different churches for the conventional fund, $3,78. He had paid out $7,20.

Resolutions were offered and passed thanking the Tecumseh people for their hospitality, after which the meeting adjourned.

OBITUARY.

At his home in Raisin, June 1st., 1888, Warren J. Holdridge. Aged 49 years and 10 months.

The deceased was born in Raisin, Lenawee county, Mich. Aug. 1st. 1838, and with the exception of a few years during which he resided in Jackson Co., he spent his days on his father's old farm where he was born and reared. During a residence of almost 50 years he became thoroughly identified with the neighborhood, the township and the county in which he lived, and his kind and genial disposition made for him a host of friends wherever he was known. On the first day of summer, when all nature was dressed in living green, and everything showed signs of life and vigor, the sad news went from house to house that he was dead. The angel of death in his rapid flight snatched him quickly from our midst. We thought he could not be spared from his family and the society in which he moved. A few days ago he was here, apparently strong and in the full vigor of manhood. To-day it is whispered with trembling lips from one to another, he is gone. The master has taken him away from his earthly home where the sweetest joys were mixed with sorrow and pain, and placed him in a better home beyond the river, a blessed home, where there is no darkness, but where the dawn will be the beginning of an endless day. A. R.

Card of Thanks

To those friends who kindly lent their aid and sympathy in our recent bereavement, we tender our heartfelt thanks.

MR. & MRS. JEHIEL DAVIDSON.

We wish to publicly express our gratitude to the many friends who assisted us in the sickness and death of a loved husband and father.

MRS. JAS. LANNING & CHILDREN.

The Lake Ridge letter, two obituaries and much other copy arrived too late for insertion this week. We had an extra rush at the eleventh hour this forenoon.

The item printed last week in regard to the injury inflicted on Fred Manley by Mrs. DeWolf's horse was not strictly accurate. The boy probably did not see the horse and stepped back under his feet. No blame should be attached to anyone. It was purely an accident.

—Call at Richart's wagon shop and look at the hay and animal rack made by him; strong and durable as easily handled and of more practical use than any other rack made. Be sure and see before buying.

—C. A. Slayton has the agency for the McCormick light steel binder again, and has a sample set up, which he invites the farmers to examine. It has the simplest knot tyer of all binders, seven pieces doing the work of forty-six.

—Photographs—The undersigned has opened a new gallery in Clinton and wishes to state to his friends of Tecumseh and vicinity, that he is prepared to do as fine photo work as any other gallery in Michigan. Call in and see samples and be convinced.

Yours Respectfully,
GEO. S. GIBSON.

—For photographs give Gibson, at Clinton a trial. He guarantees satisfaction in all his work, and will treat one and all alike. Gallery over Bush & Waldron's store, Clinton, Mich.

—The H. McClure Co. have another car load of those splendid Montreal potatoes.

—The H. McClure Co. have choice, mealy potatoes. Cold storage has kept them fresh and free from sprouts.

—Lessons on Piano or Organ given by Miss Carrie Keysor for 35cts per lesson. Residence, corner of Maiden Lane and Cummins St.

—It will pay you to call on M. P. Brown at his well known place of business and examine thoroughly the celebrated Chicago Jewel Vapor Stoves, for which he is agent. 72,000 are already in use and their economy of fuel, and easy adjustment to all kinds of cooking, makes them a general favorite.

—ATTENTION: Do you know that slate roofs are cheaper than shingle? Before covering your roofs, old, or new, consult Coryell & Williams, Ridgeway, Mich. Twenty years experience in manufacturing and laying enables them to give you a first class roof at lowest figures.

"Hustle in Some Corned Beef and Cabbage."

A tall old man, with a rather vacant look and a hesitating air, ventured slowly into the dining hall of a large up-town hotel the other evening in New York. It was the usual dinner hour, and the long room was filled with guests. The old man [illegible] a helpless effort to see the back of his neck, he beckoned to the head waiter. That functionary hastened up, and the old man said:

The waiter inspected the venerable guest critically for a moment, and then assured him that all was in order.

"Necktie all right?"

"Yes, sir."

"Collar button show?"

"Not at all, sir."

"No spots on my coat?"

"Not a spot."

"The general effect is pretty slick, is it?"

"Very, sir."

"Well, you see, waiter," said the old man confidentially, "I came down to breakfast one day last week without any collar, and my son James was very angry; so yesterday when I came into lunch with my necktie under my left ear, he said if anything like that happened again, he would have my meals served up-stairs. Do you know my son James, waiter?"

"Yes, sir."

"Is he at dinner, now?"

"No, sir; he finished about ten minutes ago."

"Are you sure?"

"Perfectly, sir."

"Well, then, waiter," said the old man in relieved tones, "if you are certain of it, you tell the man at our table to hustle in some corned beef and cabbage, and not play any of his French business on me, or I'll break his neck."—Northern Budget.

THE SARCASTIC YOUNG MAN.

An Incident of Life in a Flat—Nocturnal Revelry.

The occupants of a flat on the second floor had given a party. All the evening and late into the night there was a tramping about with singing and laughter and noise that made the occupants of the flats all the way up to the skylights roll around in their beds and pound vainly on the walls for peace.

About 2 a. m. the departures began, and the noise redoubled with the farewells of the guests, while over the stairway on the fourth floor leaned a sleepless, wild-eyed young man in a flowered bath-robe and little else, listening to the good-byes below.

At length one guest alone remained and he was in the hall.

"I want to thank you, Mrs. Damper," he said effusively, "for the delightful evening I have had, and now I really must go."

"Don't do it, don't do it," came loudly down from the fourth-story landing. "It's nonsense to go so early as this. Come upstairs and take breakfast with me. If you will keep your mouth shut for two hours I'll give you a square meal and an overcoat."

A ZULU BABY'S TREATMENT.

The Mistake of Being Born Among the Zulus Demonstrated.

When a Zulu child is first born it is of a light hue, and does not get the darker tint of the parents for some years.

As soon as it enters the world the "medicine man" is sent for, and contrary to the custom of the civilized "medical man," he takes no notice whatever of the mother, but devoting himself entirely to the child makes a number of small gashes in various parts of the poor infant's body, into which he rubs medicine and goes on his way rejoicing, returning next day to make the incisions deeper and rub more medicine into them. This second operation being performed the child is washed and dried by being moved around in the smoke of a wood fire, eventually being daubed all over with a red paint, which is renewed as fast as it wears off for a period of several months.

The child is not allowed any natural food until the visits of the "medicine man" are ended (this formality often causing serious consequences to the offspring), and a few days afterwards the mother will be seen about her work as usual, with the little one strapped to her.—Drake's Magazine.

Unique Jewelry.

A seal ring with a watch set in room of the seal is the latest thing out in jewelry. The timekeeper is a marvel of delicate workmanship, and really a triumph of the jeweler's art. It is a trifle larger than the ordinary cameo or signet for ladies' wear, but not large enough to be clumsy or to look out of place on a delicate hand.

The first watch of this description worn in America is credited to Miss A. Scoville, a grand-daughter of Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher, to whom it was lately sent from Paris, and it is said to be a reliable guide to the hours.

A niece of Secretary Bayard has a watch daintily set as a brooch, and watches on the flaps of the big pocket-books now used by women are not uncommon. Fanny Davenport has one of this description which is thickly set with emeralds and rubies, making probably the costliest pocketbook in existence. Watches set in the sticks of umbrellas and parasols are an English fad, and perhaps half a dozen of them have been seen here.

Easily Understood.

Mrs. Penn—"William, I read an advertisement in one of the papers stating that for a dollar in stamps, the advertiser would send by return mail a sure way to get rid of rats in the house."

Mr. Penn—"Well?"

Mrs. Penn—"I sent a dollar in stamps, William, and received an answer."

Mr. Penn—"What was it?"

Mrs. Penn—"William, the cheat told me to move."—Philadelphia Call.

Bound To Have His Bath.

Ferdinand de Lesseps, the great engineer, has always been extremely fond of taking cold baths, and a story is told of him which shows that he never forgot his ablutions, even when on a visit.

One winter morning, while he was staying with some friends in the country, the servant went to call him at 7 o'clock. He found the bed empty, and, after a search about the grounds, the old gentleman was discovered bathing in a pond, where he had been obliged to break the ice so as to get into the water.

The Reason Why.

A Boston woman who used to spend $75 per year for kid gloves now gets along with three pairs.

Her husband bought her a diamond ring.

The Manner in Which the Orientals Perform the Practice.

Tattooing will show well upon the plump, fair-skinned lad before us, and the Professor evidently thinks he is a subject to take pains with, as he sits carefully mixing his ink in a joint of bamboo and preparing his weapon.

This is a heavy and needle-like [illegible] weighted at the top with a little ornamental figure, and at the other end has a hollow point divided by two cross slits into four fine pricks.

The Professor examines the "business end" critically, and, having satisfied himself that it is sharp enough, tucks up his patsoe and squats at Pho Myin's side. Selecting a spot on the thigh, he places both feet on it a few inches apart, and, stretching the skin tight, draws the outline of the first figure—a tiger rampant—with an inky splinter of bamboo.

This is soon done, and relieving himself of a large mouthful of betelnut, the Professor settles down to work in earnest. Leaning forward through his widely-parted knees he balances the brass style daintily, and clasping it with the finger and thumb of the right hand, makes a "bridge" of the left, which he rests on the surface between his feet.

After sliding the instrument through his fingers once or twice, as if to take aim, he makes a start and pricks away steadily with a light, firm touch that is wonderfully quick and true. In less than five minutes the tiger with its surrounding border is finished, and the artist removes his feet from the distended skin and washes off the superfluous ink to see how his work has come out.

Moung Saik exchanges a remark with his wife, and the tattooer resumes his working position to draw the outline of the next figure. The boy, stupefied with opium, lies insensible to the pain, while one figure after another gradually appears on his skin.

Deep as the points of the style sink they draw but little blood, but the limb swells in a manner that would alarm any one who did not know it would return to its normal size in a day or two. Fever sometimes intervenes, and in that case the patient waits for a time before the work of illustration is resumed, so it often extends over a period of a week or ten days, during which the inconvenience suffered is considerable.

Without the aid of opium the process would be a much longer one. I found that I could not endure the application of the style for more than 30 consecutive seconds without flinching so much as to interfere with the operator's movements, for the skin is pricked over so closely that it becomes too tender to sustain their repetition.

The figures that compose them vary little, consisting, as a rule, of tigers, "nagas" (dragons), and "beloos" (devils). Each one is surrounded with a border of sentences, generally illegible, invoking good luck upon the owner of the skin whereon they are inscribed.

The waist and knees are neatly finished off with a tasteful edging of point or scroll pattern; these sensitive parts of the body are the last to be done, and tattooers have told me that the pain caused frequently arouses the patient from his torpor.—Cornhill Magazine.

Greatly Excited.

Not a few of the citizens of Tecumseh have recently become greatly excited over the astounding facts, that several of their friends who had been pronounced by their physicians as incurable and beyond all hope—suffering with dreaded monster Consumption—have been completely cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, the only remedy that does positively cure all throat and lung diseases, Coughs, Colds, Asthma and Bronchitis.

Smyptoms of Heart Disease

Diseased hearts are as common as diseased lungs, kidneys or stomach, but far less understood. The symptoms are shortness of breath, when sweeping, etc., oppression in the chest, faint, weak or hungry spells, dreaming, pain or tenderness in the side, swelling feet, dropsy, etc. The unnatural circulation of the blood in the lungs, stomach, kidneys, liver and brain causes other symptoms. The only reliable remedy for the heart yet discovered is Dr. Mile's New Cure. Try it and be convinced. Sold by Baker & Hall.

GIRLS AND MOTHERS: READ THIS!

I wish to tell you of the case of a girl 16 years old, who had been sick with suppression two years. Her father had paid over $300 for doctor's bills, still she was failing. She had the worst countenance that I have ever seen, a kind of greenish yellow she was emaciated had constant bowel trouble, and had to take morphine every night in order to sleep at all. All who saw her thought she would die. Her parents said they had done all they could. I repeatedly urged them to try Zoa-Phora, but they were strongly prejudiced against "nostrums." Finally the mother said, "We must do something, and this is as likely to help her as anything." She and I persuaded the father to let the girl try it. As a result, in four months her functions were established and regular, and in six months she was the picture of health—a living wonder to all who had known her.

I could describe 20 other cases, not as wonderful as this, but still very remarkable cures.

Prohibition

Or the LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

By Rev. S. M. VERNON, D.D.

The most active and aggressive period ever known in temperance work renders timely the appearance of this crisp, original and vigorous volume. It is a book quite out of the beaten track, newsy and piquant, bristling with telling points, brief, clear, sprightly, candid, earnest, convincing, fair, dispassionate, full of ringing facts and bright with sterling truths.

It popularizes the burning question of "Prohibition," brings it down to every home and conscience, marshals its many startling facts in new and surprising forms, clarifies and invigorates its logic, paints in vivid and impressive hues the monster whose daily victims but increase its hunger, and the poison of whose breath blights whatever it touches. W[illegible] Samuel W. Temple mortgaged to Addison Hardenburg, all that parcel of land situate in the village of Tecumseh, in the county of Lenawee and state of Michigan, described as follows, to wit: Beginning at a point in the east line of Pearl street ten (10) rods north of the north line of Shawnee street, running thence eastwardly parallel with and ten (10) rods distant from said North line of Shawnee street about ten (10) rods to the Railway Depot Grounds; thence northward on west line of said [illegible] as a Hog [illegible] said land of Heesen Brothers and Nyland two (2) rods more or less to land conveyed by said Samuel W. Temple and wife, Hettie A., to Edwin Wood; thence south on east line of said land 33 feet to aforesaid conveyed to said Wood two and one-half (2½) rods to the southeast corner thereof; thence west on south line of said parcel of land so as aforesaid conveyed to said Wood eight (8) rods to the east line of Pearl street aforesaid; thence south on east line of said Pearl street to place of beginning, with all the appurtenances thereto belonging or in anywise appertaining or thereupon situated, including the machinery in and about the buildings thereon, or to be hereafter annexed to the same or any part thereof, to secure the payment of $253.06 in five years from the date thereof with interest to be paid annually at the rate of ten per cent. per annum for the first three years, and for the remaining two years interest to be paid annually at the rate of nine per cent. per annum, which mortgage was on the 11th day of October, 1883, duly recorded in office of Register of Deeds for said county of Lenawee in Liber 93 of mortgages on page 339 and 340. And whereas said mortgage contains a provision that in event any default shall be made in the payment of said interest, or any part thereof at the time therein specified, and shall remain in arrears for the space of sixty days the aforesaid principal sum with all arrearages of interest thereon shall at the option of said mortgagee, his executors, administrators and assigns, become due and payable. And whereas default has been made in the payment of interest on said mortgage to the amount of $510 66-100 and upwards and the same having remained unpaid and in arrears for a space of more than sixty days, and the undersigned, administratrix, hereby elects to declare and does hereby declare the whole amount due, both principal and interest, amounting at the date of this notice to the sum of $3180.82 100, and no proceedings having been commenced at law or in equity for the recovery of said sum or any part thereof. And whereas the undersigned administratrix has been compelled to pay the further sum of $98.37-100 for insurance premiums to protect her interest as such administratrix in the mortgaged premises.

Notice is therefore hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and by virtue of the statutes of the State of Michigan in such case made and provided, for the purpose of realizing the moneys so due and owing on said mortgage, and the interest thereon from and after the date of this notice, said insurance premiums and interest thereon, as provided in said mortgage, and the cost and expense of this foreclosure, and the attorney fee provided by law, the said above described lands and premises will be sold at public vendue to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House in the city of Adrian in said County of Lenawee (that being the place where the circuit court for said county of Lenawee is holden) on Saturday, the 26th day of May, A.D. 1888, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day.

MORTGAGE SALE.

BY a certain indenture of mortgage bearing date the 7th day of January, A. D., 1887, executed by Hiram Smith of Madison township county of Lenawee, and State of Michigan, to Frank N. Chamberlin of the same place and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Lenawee county, State of Michigan, on the 8th day of January, A. D., 1887, in Liber 117 of Mortgages, on page 379, the said Smith mortgaged to said Chamberlin all that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the city of Adrian, county of Lenawee and State of Michigan, described as follows, to wit: Lot number thirty-three (33) and the west one-half of lot number thirty-four (34) on the plat of James Berry's subdivision of the Comstock homestead in the city of Adrian, as per the recorded plat thereof, excepting and reserving an alley eight (8) feet in width from off the west side of lot thirty-three (33) to be used in common with owner of premises next west of the premises herein conveyed for their mutual benefit and to be kept open forever as they or either may desire. Default has been made in the condition of said mortgage, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative. There is now claimed to be due and unpaid on said mortgage the sum of Four Hundred and Thirty-Seven 35-100 dollars ($437.35), and no suit or proceedings at law or in chancery have been instituted to collect the same or any part thereof. Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale, and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgaged premises will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder on the 4th day of August, A. D. 1888 at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day at the east front door of the Court House of said county in the city of Adrian, (that being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said county of Lenawee), to satisfy the amount then due together with all legal costs and charges of this foreclosure.

Dated May 7, 1888.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

On reading and filing the petition of Elwin Howell, administrator upon said estate, alleging among other things that the funeral expenses of said deceased and the expenses of administration thereof have been fully paid, that said estate is insolvent and praying for the allowance of his final account and that a dividend of the residue of said estate remaining in his hands may be made under the order of this court among the creditors of said deceased, and that he may be discharged and his bond cancelled, and for such other order and decree as to this court shall seem proper.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 18th day of June next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks, previous to said day of hearing.

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

"Every spring and fall I take a number of bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and am greatly benefited."—Mrs. James H. Eastman, Stoneham, Mass.

"I have taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla with great benefit to my general health."—Miss Thirza L. Crerar, Palmyra, Md.

"My daughter, twelve years of age, has suffered for the past year from General Debility.

A few weeks since, we began to give her Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Her health has greatly improved."—Mrs. Harriet H. Battles, South Chelmsford, Mass.

"About a year ago I began using Ayer's Sarsaparilla as a remedy for debility and neuralgia resulting from malarial exposure in the army. I was in a very bad condition, but six bottles of the Sarsaparilla, with occasional doses of Ayer's Pills, have greatly improved my health. I am now able to work, and feel that I cannot say too much for your excellent remedies."—F. A. Pinkham, South Molancus, Me.

"My daughter, sixteen years old, is using Ayer's Sarsaparilla with good effect."—Rev. S. J. Graham, United Brethren Church, Buckhannon, W. Va.

"I suffered from

with some back and headaches, and have been much benefited by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I am now 89 years of age, and am satisfied that my present health and prolonged life are due to the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla."—Lucy Moffitt, Killingly, Conn.

Mrs. Ann H. Farnsworth, a lady 79 years old, So. Woodstock, Vt., writes: "After several weeks' suffering from nervous prostration, I procured a bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and before I had taken half of it my usual health returned."

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON FOR JUNE 10th, 1888.

JESUS RISEN.—MATT. XXVIII, 1—15.

[illegible] of the possession of seven demons. (Luke VIII, 3.) She was a pure woman always and a true lover of Christ.—"The other Mary."—Mother of James the less and Joses. Mark adds Salome and Luke adds Jonana to the list, neither indicating that there were many others.—"An earthquake."—Matthew alone of the evangelists makes mention of this supernatural and visible rolling away of the stone. Amid all the wonders of those few days, no wonder the disciples were confused and individual experiences and observation did not harmonize one with another. Who can understand the dynamics of the death and resurrection of Christ, or what friend even can analyze with microscopic minuteness the victory of life over death?—'His appearance.'—His face.—"The angel answered."—He saw the terror and perplexity these phenomena produced upon the women and that they had no idea their Lord had risen, so he addressed them lovingly, and joyously told them the glad news.—"He goeth before you into Galilee."—Matthew does not mention the Judaean appearances. It is hard to harmonize these divergent accounts of Christ's appearances. Probably each mentioned what seemed to him as the most important appearances after the resurrection.—"Until this day."—Until the writing of the gospel thirty or forty years after.

Instruction.—What does the resurrection teach first and finally? Immortality. That is the central truth which it has absolutely revealed to groping men. Philosophy does not convince the soul of that grand truth. It approaches gallantly enough the door that leads thereto; but then it mystifies. Science gives us many analogies, 'tis true, but can give no final demonstration of what man most craves to know. The fact that Christ did actually conquer death is the only incontrovertible proof of what every heart prays to be assured of.

Yet there are many other helpful and vital lessons that can be drawn from the fact of the resurrection. One of these is the moral power to conquer sin that Christ through his victory has bequeathed to his disciples. This power is potential and can be brought to maturity only by a long and persistent struggle. We cannot do it alone. Christ will not do it alone for us. Together we can do all things, and as we fight angels will cheer us to victory.

It is about the last thing most of us would want to do, namely, to get up before sunrise in order to show our love for the Master. If we were more eager to meet our Lord to commune with him and to do his biddling, would we not follow the sublime example of the two Marys?

The earthquake preceded the appearance of the angels and the happiest news in the world. Often it is so with us; the disaster, the despair may precede the unveiling of the loving face of the Master. If it does not seem to do so, is it not because we open not our stupefied ears to hear the voice and our blinded eyes to see the vision?

Angels are perhaps ministering to us in our troubles more than we suspect. The other world is not so far off. The Kingdom of God may be within us, and God himself is nearer to us than we can know. So no fear need come to him who loves Jesus and tries to seek him.

Truth bottled up, no matter how important it may be, is useless. It must be circulated, tested and lived in order to save men. The great truth of life in Jesus that we may have must be quickly imparted to others lest we weary of its lazy hosts it flies to more congenial hearts.

Bad men often unconsciously bear their witness to the truth. It is not the most valuable testimony. The best testimony of Christ comes from himself and his truest followers.

A great injury has been done to the memory of Mary Magdalene, by the report hastily taken up that she was a woman of bad character. Tell no bad tales about another unless you positively know them to be true, and perhaps not even then.

What an utter failure was the counsel of the Jews to discredit the resurrection of Christ! It worked for a brief time, but Christendom is now the proof that falsehood cannot curb the truth.

The Gospel of Jesus Christ is founded on his resurrection. Paul said that if Christ were not risen their faith was vain. The resurrection was the great proof of the truth of all that Christ claimed to be. It is the seal of Christianity as well as the ground of our hope in our own future life.

The vocal organs are strengthened by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Clergymen, lawyers, singers, actors, and public speakers find this preparation the most effective remedy for irritation and weakness of the throat and lungs, and for all affections of the vocal organs.

A CURIOUS BEECHER AUTOGRAPH.

The Great Preacher's School Days—His Friendship for a Young Greek.

Perhaps one of the most interesting of the autographs which were disposed of with Henry Ward Beecher's library was [illegible] New York at the lively [illegible] [illegible] It seems curiously enough to have escaped the attention of the cataloguer, and therefore the accustomed asterisk was not set against the title of the book containing it. This book was No. 1837 of the catalogue, and was an old edition of "Locke's Essay on the Human Understanding," in two volumes.

It was overlooked, undoubtedly, or credited to some other person because it was written, "H. C. Beecher."

This circumstance led Dr. Holbrook to wonder who the H. C. Beecher could be, and then to inquire of Col. W. C. Beecher about the odd signature. To the doctor's letter Col. Beecher sent a most interesting reply, from which I am permitted to quote below:

During Mr. Beecher's life at Mt. Pleasant Academy, while preparing for college, he became deeply attached to one of his schoolmates, a young Greek named Constantine Fontabacchi, and the two entered into a pledge of brotherhood, interchanging names.

For a long time thereafter my father signed himself H. C. (Constantine) Beecher. It was, doubtless, during this same period that he entered his name in the copy of Locke, that you bought with his assumed middle name.

As a further proof of his devotion he gave to me for my middle name, "Constantine."

Yours, very truly, W. C. BEECHER.

To Dr. M. L. Holbrook.

The style and legibility of this eccentric autograph are not greatly different from those qualities as exhibited in Mr. Beecher's ordinary signature; though the writing perhaps is a little plainer and more round. Written in his teens when he had not got weary of making his sign manual, it evidently should be differenced this way. For the reason, too, in addition to the foregoing history that it gives his autograph in academic days, it will assuredly possess always a very peculiar interest. JOEL BENTON.

Trousers and Skirts.

All the dudish trousers this spring are striped and nearly all have dark brown stripes, either wide or narrow, on light brown backgrounds.

The newest wrinkle with those who have money to indulge in fads is for very young ladies to wear skirts of precisely the same pattern as the trousers of the man they fancy most. It is already a common sight on the uptown avenues in New York to see young couples uniformly dressed, the girls very often having jackets that match with the overcoats of their companions.

A queer circumstance grew out of this idea in a fashionable school close by Central Park. A young man who knows half the skirts in the school, and is very popular, appeared in very striking trousers a week ago, and this week, it is said, the skirts of five of the girls are of the same material.

An Unlearned Naturalist.

At almost any hour of the day three or four wonder-eyed people may be seen hanging over the railing that guards the basement of the library building on the Broadway side and gazing on the monstrous bones of the mastodon and other extinct creatures that may be dimly seen through the windows of the natural science rooms.

"An' is it a horse they're after havin' in there?" asked one yesterday.

"A horse! an' did you ivver see a horse before wid fate like a piano?" answered the other, and thereupon they entered on a lively dispute as to the genius of the beast.—Buffalo Courier.

He Practiced.

The minister called one day and was shown into the parlor, where Johnny undertook to entertain him until his mother should appear. But soon stubbing his toe against a sharp corner of furniture, little Johnny, who was only three years old, gave vent to a string of swear-words.

"Oh, oh!" cried the minister, shocked. "Where do you learn to use such dreadful words?"

"Well, I'll tell you," said Johnny confidentially; "you see, I hear pa swearing at ma, and then I go and practice on Bridget."—Boston Globe.

Wanted "Furnalias."

Mrs. Riche (in fur store to salesman)—"I want to look at a pair of furnalias."

Salesman (doubtfully)—"I don't think I know what you mean, Madame."

Mrs. Riche—"One of my friends has bought a pair of horses and a sleigh, and she said she got the paraphernalias to go with it, and I want a pair, too."

Salesman (reddening)—"We are all out of them to-day, Madame."—Journal of Fabrics.

A Voice from Afar.

A Peoria correspondent of a Cincinnati paper says that while he was in the army in 1863 he awoke one morning on hearing his name called by his sister's voice.

No one else heard the sound, and the occurrence passed from his mind until a few days later, when he received a letter from home stating that his sister had died on the very day he was so strangely awakened.

Worth Remembering.

Onions are invigorating and prophylactic beyond description. Further, I challenge the medical fraternity or any mother to point out a place where children have died, from diphtheria or scarlatina anginosa, etc., where onions were freely used.—Scientific American.

He Inspired Hope.

In Queen Anne's reign, Lord Bateman married three wives, all of whom were his servants. A beggar-woman meeting him one day in the street, made him a very low courtesy.

"Ah God bless you," said she, "and send you a long life. If you do but live long enough, we shall all be ladies in time."

Philosophy of the Kitchen.

Little Dot—"I don't like to help wipe dishes."

Omaha Mamma—"Why not, pet?"

"If I learn how to do such things just right, I'll grow up into a servant girl, won't I?"

"No, dear. If you learn how to do anything just right you'll never be a servant girl."—Omaha World.

Ivory from Potatoes.

Much of the so-called ivory now in use is simply potato. A good, sound potato, washed in diluted sulphuric acid, then boiled in the same solution, and then slowly dried, is all ready to be turned into buttons, poker chips, and innumerable other things that ivory was used for once upon a time.

ALUM BAKING POWDERS.

Declared Adulterated Food and their Sale Illegal.

The result of a trial just concluded at Canton, N. Y., before Judge Kellogg, will have a salutary effect in [illegible] the sale of adulterated [illegible] of one class of [illegible] Akerill were arrested for selling a adulterated baking powder in violation of the State food adulteration act. The indictment was for both selling baking powders that were inferior, adulterated and injurious to health by reason of being made from alum, and for selling them under pretense that they were a wholesome, cream of tartar baking powder. A stubborn defence was made, the claim being set up that baking powders were not articles of food and that the powder the defendants were selling, which was known as Gillett's, was a standard article of trade, and that alum baking powders inferior to it, like Davis' and others, were being sold by other dealers in the same town without complaint. The Court held that baking powders were articles of food within the meaning of the law, and the jury found the defendants guilty upon all the charges. The case has attracted much attention from being the first brought under the State Food Adulteration Act against dealers in alum baking powders. The result of the trial is to class such baking powders as adulterated articles of food and to make their sale illegal. There are many alum baking powders put up in cans, under some name or brand, in addition to those sold in bulk, the sale of all of which cautious dealers will probably be unwilling to continue.

WHAT THEY DID WHEN YOUNG.

Humble Beginnings of Some of Our Eminent Men.

Senator Vance was a hotel clerk.

Judge Kelley, father of the House, was a jeweler.

Leland Stanford was a country lawyer in Wisconsin.

Senator Dawes was a school teacher and country editor.

Senator Sawyer "bought his time" when 18 years old and ran a saw mill.

Justice Bradley taught a district school every Winter from his sixteenth to his twenty-first year.

President Cleveland compiled the "American Herd Book," and received $50 for the service.

Samuel J. Randall, whom nobody supposes to have had a war record, was a private in a company of cavalry.

Senator Sabin, with his trousers tucked in his boots, used to stand on the streets of Springfield, Mass., all day to sell cordwood that he had chopped and hauled 12 miles.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

If You Want to Know.

Why you continue to suffer from various "ills that flesh is heir to," why your complaints remain obstinate in spite of efforts to cure by home doctors and patent medicines, you should consult a specialist in chronic disease. Dr. Foote, 120 Lexington Ave., New York, has made a special study of them for thirty years; and he made be able to give you some points worth knowing. It will only cost you paper and postage to state your case, and get the opinion of a physician of large experience. Dr. Foote is the author of "Plain Home Talk and Medical Common Sense," of which the Rev. A. H. Bryant has written: "I am positively charmed with it. I have not met before with such a useful and valuable book as this of yours."

The great popularity of Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic is due to its efficiency, agreeableness and pleasant action. It promptly and thoroughly cures colds, fevers, dyspepsia, costiveness, bad breath, piles, pimples, low spirits, sick and nervous headache, ague, malaria, scrofula, rheumatism, salt rheum and all stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Fifty cents of Dr. Geo. Ferguson. It cleanses and tones up the clogged and feverish system. Acceptable to the most delicate stomach. Harmless, prompt and thorough in its action.

Purify Your Blood.

Bodily and mental health depend upon a healthy condition of the blood. The blood particularly in the spring and summer months, becomes clogged with impurities, which poison it and generate disease. A harmless blood purifier is necessary to restore a healthy tone. The best purifier and tonic known is Swift's Specific (S. S. S.). Of its wonderful purifying and tonic powers we give a few testimonials:

Mr. Wm. A. Stebold, with George P. Rowell & Co., 10 Spruce Street, New York, writes: "I feel it my duty, for the benefit of others who may be afflicted as I was, to write you this letter, which you can use in any way you choose. I suffered great pain from boils, all over my neck; I could not turn my head without acute pain. After trying all the usual remedies, and finding no relief, I used one bottle S. S. S., and very soon I was entirely relieved of my 'Job's Comforters.' Now not a sign of my affliction can be seen."

Mr. M. S. Hamlin, Winston, N. C., writes: "I use it every spring. It always builds me up, giving me appetite and digestion, and enables me to stand the hot summer days. On using it I soon become strong of body and easy of mind."

Mr. C. E. Mitchell, West 23d St. Ferry, New York, writes: "I reached 116 pounds when I began taking your medicine, and now I weigh 152 pounds. I would not be without S. S. S. for several times its weight in gold."

Nervous Diseases.

There are more nervous than blood diseases. Thus, a weakness of the nerves of the brain causes headache, fits, dizziness, sleeplessness, etc.; a weakness of the nerves of the stomach causes dyspepsia, pain, wind, etc.; of the lungs, makes "weak lungs;" of the liver produces biliousness, constipation, etc.; of the womb induces irregularities, sterility, pains, etc.; of the sexual organs, impotency, etc. For all weaknesses Dr. Miles' Restorative, Nervine surpasses all other remedies. A BEAUTIFUL RESORT.

Presque Isle Park was opened as a Summer Resort on the 15th of June, 1887. It caught the fancy of pleasure seekers and excursionists from the start and at once became extremely popular. Its success was even greater than was anticipated.

In view of the immense success of last season, the management have put forth extra endeavors for the season of 1888 in making Presque Isle Park more attractive than ever before. Many improvements have been made which will add to the comfort and pleasure of the thousands who will visit the Island this season. There has been an entire change in the general management of the Park, as well as all departments connected with it. A feature which will prove particularly noticeable this year will be the additional facilities for handling the large number of people who visit the park daily. The large and elegant Steamers Saginaw and Evening Star which ply half hourly between Toledo and the Island, have been completely overhauled and refitted, and such improvements made as will greatly increase their speed.

THE BATHING BEACH

A number of fine bathing houses have been erected on the bay shore, on the east side of the Island. The beautiful sandy beach makes it particularly attractive to those who love to disport themselves in the surf.

THE PARK OPERA HOUSE.

The large, roomy and always cool theatre, which is one of the chief attractions at Presque Isle Park, will this season be under the exclusive management of Mr. George W. Bills, who for twelve years so successfully managed Wheeler's Opera House Toledo. It is not Mr. Bills' policy to run one attraction the entire season as was done last year. Mr. Bills has secured for the Opera House some of the finest attractions in the amusement field. For the Grand Opening on Saturday and Sunday, June 9 & 10, he announces that wonderful aggregation of artists known throughout the world as Gilmore's Famous Band. This celebrated organization is now on an extended tour, playing in the principal cities only. The Band comprises 65 artists with 14 soloists, who travel in their own special train of four cars.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

I. T. Bush spent Saturday with friends in Detroit.

W. C. Sharp called on friends in the village Saturday.

Charlie Burnette has the measles.

Miss Jennie McClure was the guest of W. P. Cadmus and family Sunday.

A. R. Arner is braking on the C., J & M. at present, having received a telegram one day last week for the position.

Mesdames Rappleye, Pocklington and Gove attended the flower mission at Adrian Saturday, in the interest of the W. C. T. U.

G. P. Waring spent the fore part of last week at Hillsdale, in the interest of prohibition.

Our nine played the Petersburgh club on the grounds here Saturday afternoon last, resulting in a victory for the home nine by a score of 12 to 4.

H. J. Williams and J. D. Arner came home to stay over Sunday.

Cecil Clark, an old pioneer of Ridgeway township, after several weeks' sickness, died at his home near Britton on Wednesday of last week. He was 91 years of age. The funeral services took place at the house Friday, and the remains were interred in Ridgeway cemetery.

The exercises for children's day passed off very nicely. The audience room was decorated with evergreens, ferns, house plants, etc. On each side of the pulpit were pyramids of evergreens and flowers. The alter was filled with plants, ferns and vases of flowers. In front of the desk was a fine cross of evergreens and snow balls and suspended from the ceiling was a beautiful bell of arbor vitæ and roses. Directly above the organist, floating in the air, was a Japanese balloon. The walls were decorated with pictures and mottoes. A number of bird cages with their inmates were swinging in front of the choir, whose voices mingled in song with the choir. The attendance in the evening was very large and the exercises were a success in every respect. The temperance selection was a grand ex poise. The marching was first-class, giving much credit to those giving the class the necessary drill.

Mrs. Irene Baker, of Mt. Carmel, Ill., and Sophronia Faulk, of Edgewood, Ill., called on friends in the village Wednesday.

EDITOR HERALD: For the benefit of your regular correspondent at this place, for whom I entertain a very friendly regard, allow a little space. As president of the library association I assumed the responsibility to change the hour of meeting of the board of directors, and requested Mr. Arner to announce through the HERALD that the next monthly meeting would be held at 10 o'clock a. m. on the first Monday in June. The swinging of the ox-gad to which he refers was not meant for his shoulders at all. The minister knew full well that brother DeWitt would not make such an announcement without being requested to do so by some other person, and it is perfectly natural upon a little reflection for any one to understand that brother Benton knew who that other person was. But the patient ox will always meekly submit to the whims and caprices of his driver. The hour of meeting of the library board of directors will hereafter be at 7 o'clock p. m. and on the first Monday of each month as heretofore.

D. W. LOREE.

LAKE RIDGE LACONICS.

Road work and sheep washing is now in order. A few have commenced shearing.

Wheat and oats short and backward; will be a light crop; grass light; a cold, backward season, with delayed rains.

J. W. Baker and wife started for Fort Scott, Kansas, the 5th inst. Report says to attend the marriage of their son, Dr. H. D. Baker. They will be gone three or four weeks.

Uncle Eb. and Claud Harmon have been visiting at Quadilla, Mich., the past week.

Fred Morrell's new barn is well under way.

G. V. Osgood has been building over 100 rods of slat and wire fence.

A. Easlick over 150 rods of barbed wire fence.

Morris Harrington is on the sick list.

Mrs. Mary Jane Stewart is quite indisposed.

Last Saturday was a big day at Macon Grange, fourth degree work in the forenoon and children's day in the afternoon. Fifteen candidates and over sixty children were present. A regular fourth degree dinner was served at 1 o'clock to over 200 people. Rev. Benton, of Ridgeway, made the speech to the children.

The air was full of rumors last Monday that burglars had been in the neighborhood Sunday night, from A. Harrington losing his pocket book containing $60, which he claims was in his pocket the night before. During the day report was circulated that burglars had entered the house of C. V. Skinner, from heel marks found on the window sill, and the outside door being unlocked from the inside and left open. In the meantime Geo. Bobean, who lives just north of Harrington's store, in starting to his work at A. Easlick's on Monday morning, found a pocket book in front of the store, all tattered and torn, with money strewn over the ground, which he gathered up and held during the day for further developments. On returning home at night he divulged his find and restored the same to Mr. H., who had been in quite a sweat during the day. All of which created quite a hubbub, but quiet is again restored.

A spirited game of ball between the hotel nine and a Milan team resulted in a score of 4 to 16 in favor of Milan.

The Milan races last Saturday resulted in Charley Harmon, of Lake Ridge, taking first and Rube Westfall second in the three-minute race. In the farmers' race Hiscock, of Milan, took first and Fred Stimpson, of Saline, second.

Will Stewart writes from Sturgis, Dakota, that he is about to start on a trip through Indian Territory and Texas as book-keeper for Star, Bullock & Co., horse merchants, at $65 per month and expenses.

Our local telegraph line has been working poorly the past few weeks, from being obstructed by trees, limbs and juvenile operators. At a meeting Saturday evening a committee was elected to look the matter up and "fix things."

ONSTED ODDS.

John Lee has reshingled his hay and grain barn.

The frame of Moses Butterfield's new house looms upward.

The township board has purchased two Victor road machines, and visions of good roads loom up in our citizens' minds.

Mrs. Ed. Taylor has been on the sick list a few days.

Harry Wood moved back to Geneva the first of the week.

Over fourteen dollars were taken in at the ice cream supper at the church last week, under the auspices of Mrs. Peter Maxwell's Sunday-school class.

Harry Wood closed his contract with the school board in teaching a year's school, last Friday. The school was a success, and he goes from here well recommended.

School closed in district No. 5, North Rome, last Friday.

Oats are improving these days.

FRALNKIN FACTS.

Will Osborne is on the sick list.

Mrs. Will Witheral has been under the doctor's care with neuralgia in the head. She is improving, and has been entertaining much more agreeable company in the person of a cousin, Miss Knapp, of Hillsdale.

While driving home from Tecumseh last Thursday with a load of land plaster Wm. Dunn met with an accident that nearly proved fatal. His wagon being full of barrels, he was obliged to place his seat on top of them. When passing Mr. Haines' he met some cattle, and turning to look behind him, placed his hand on the back of the seat, when it immediately capsized and threw him to the ground, where he struck on his head and shoulder. Although suffering intensely he was able to drive home. Upon arriving home he went into a severe chill. He had sweat so freely that his clothes were saturated. Vomiting followed the chill, tinged with blood, which he thinks must have come from his head. Mr. Dunn is an uncommonly plucky man, and notwithstanding the fact that his neck is stiff, and he is lame and bruised all over, he still keeps about, determined not to give up work.

Mrs. James Allen is confined to the house, but happily not to her bed, by poor health.

Two or three light showers gladdened the heart of the Franklinite last Saturday, but they were insufficient for much permanent benefit.

Miss Jennie Osborn, who has been so dangerously sick with measles, is slowly improving.

CLINTON CLIPPINGS.

Geo. Field was in town over night Monday.

Spencer Case, of Manchester, ex-postal clerk, was in town one day recently.

Mrs. C. W. Johnston and Mina, visited her friends here this week.

Mrs. Fane Smith went to Detroit Friday for a short visit with friends.

Richard Slinger is home from Indiana for a short visit as the factory where he worked shut down for a while.

Mrs. J. C. Burroughs received word that her brother at Englewood, Ill. had a stroke of paralysis. She left Tuesday noon to assist in caring for him.

W. V. Wimple, of Tecumseh, visited his daughter Ellen over Sunday.

Mrs. Alice Blackman Winger went to Jackson Wednesday noon to visit friends. She will also attend the Baptist convention in session there.

Mrs. Geo. W. Lewis, of South Bend Ind., is visiting her father, Wm. Spencer.

According to agreement our Ball Club met the Horton club at Brooklyn, Wednesday. Judging from the score the game must have been exciting and interesting. On account of rain it was called at the end of the 7th inning, the score standing 3 to 2 in favor of Clinton.

The game of Base Ball at Sand Lake Friday, between the Norvell club and our boys was a complete surprise to all who witnessed it. Instead of being close as was expected the score stood 20 to 2 in favor of Clinton. The Norvell boys did not take kindly to Sinclair's delivery and got but few balls out of the diamond, while our boys had their eyes on the ball and batted both Cole and Boocher hard.

E. W. Frenze and wife, visited L. A. Dudley's family at Battle Creek this week.

Mrs. H. R. Williams returned home the last of the week, and the Reverend arrived Wednesday noon.

Miss Clarence Graham, of Manchester, visited her aunt, Mrs. Morey, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ashley, of Norvell, visited at Del Ordiway's a few days.

The employees of the Woolen Mill were made happy Monday—It was pay day.

The school board held a meeting Monday and we understand all the teachers were re-engaged.

A number from here went to Tecumseh Sunday morning to take in the excursion to Presque Isle over the M. & O. road. They generally had a serious time, several of them being left and not getting home till Monday noon. The boys say they enjoyed their boat ride etc. All in all it was a sad comment on Sunday excursions.

Mrs. Eva Blythe and children of Manchester, visited friends here over Sunday. Her mother, Mrs. E. Smalley, returned home with her Tuesday noon.

Mrs. Kate Field and children were at her people's several days the past week.

Saturday was a gala day with a large number of our young people. The young ladies of the H. P. C. Society took their gentlemen friends out to Wampler's Lake to spend the day. Although they were out in two hard rain storms and thoroughly drenched it did not seem to detract from their enjoyment.

John H. Perry left suddenly the last of the week for York, Nebraska, summonded by the death of a brother there.

Mrs. Mary Lancaster surprised her friends at Albion, Saturday, by walking in upon them unexpectedly. She, Jennie and Frank, returned home Wednesday afternoon.

D. E. Haggart's school in the Clarke Payne district, closed last Friday, and the scholars presented David with a very fine gold pen.

Mrs. Bell Dearborn Snyder of Hillsdale, was in town Monday.

In a letter received from Ed. Coffin to his father, he says he arrived at Aberden, Washington Territory, May 26th.

Rec.—Belle Hause.
Reading—Miss Marion Bruce.
Rec.—Frankie Muir.
Music—Quartette.
Reading—Otilla Conklin.
Rec.—Claude Larzelere.
Rec.—Blanche Middlebrook.
Address—Mrs. A. W. Stalker.

The Baptist Social at J. Watson's Tuesday afternoon, was a grand success. There was a great crowd as it was a fine day. Mr. Watson's people have the social every year about this time. Receipts nearly $27.

Our base ballists must have had on their batting clothes last Friday at Sand Lake, where they played the Norvell club, for they batted both Cole and Boocher hard making 22 base hits while the Norvell had but few hits off of Sinclair. The score stood 20 to 2 in favor of Clinton.

Geo. Belding took the 4 horse load out to the Lake Saturday. He has a fine conveyance now for taking large parties out as it has springs and side seats, extra long, so that there is plenty of room.

The decorators are at work on Masonic Hall and it is expected the work will soon be completed.

Louis Bennett is no longer with Thos. Roper. He has left town.

Rev. A. W. Stalker and wife went to Ann Arbor Monday to attend the wedding of Mrs. Stalker's brother, which occurred Tuesday.

Leb. Pomeroy, of Fayette, Ohio, spent Sunday here. His mother returned with him for a weeks visit.

The Children's day services at the M. E. church were quite elaborate and nicely rendered. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers, Magnolia leaves and Florida moss. The two last being sent from Wildwood, Florida, by S. A. Stevens, a friend of A. C. Hanchinson.

Geo. Vantrieson drove into Jackson Co. Friday on a visit to relatives, taking his mother with him, leaving her at his brother's. He returned Tuesday afternoon.

Through little more than 18 years of age of age at the time of his death, the deceased had been for more than four years in the employ of Mr. Clark Carlson and a member of his family. During that time by his faithful discharge of all the duties assigned him, and by his tireless devotion to his employer's interest which he seemed to consider identical with his own, he had won for himself a high place in the respect and esteem of all those about him and the affectionate regard of those with whom he was more intimately associated. He was a boy of unswerving truthfulness, good principles and strict integrity.

When he knew that his last hours had come he obeyed the summons of his Master without a murmur, and with the same cheerful alacrity that had always characterized him, said he was ready and glad to go to what he termed "the happy land." After disposing of his worldly effects and bidding adieu to his friends, he requested that the shutters be thrown open, that the sun might shine on him once more, and a few hours later quietly breathed his last.

The remains were conveyed to his home, and the funeral was held on Sunday at the M. E. church of Ridgeway, the pastor, Rev. W. H. Benton, officiating.

Mr. Lanning was a native of Sussex Co. New Jersey. He was born Oct. 10th, 1810. After a short sojourn in the State of New York he came to Michigan in 1832, and was therefore one of the early pioneers of this region. He ended his days on the same spot, four miles from Tecumseh at which he first settled. He was a kind husband and father, an esteemed neighbor and an honest man. He leaves a wife and quite a large family of children and grand children to mourn his loss.

The best on earth can truly be said of Grigg's Glycerine Salve, which is a sure, safe and speedy cure for cuts, bruises, scalds, burns, wounds and all other sores. TECUMSEH, THURSDAY JUNE 14

CLEVELAND AND THURMAN.

The Democracy of the Union, assembled in National Convention at St. Louis last week, have spoken, and the unanimity of their action has no precedent in our political annals.

The nomination of President Cleveland has been a foregone conclusion since his ringing tariff reform message was given to the country last December. The heart of the Democratic masses has been with him from the day of his inauguration. His unflinching integrity, his Jacksonian firmness, his official honesty, his indomitable industry, his masterly executive talents, and his unfaltering devotion to the rights of the people, have endeared him not only to the rank and file of his own party, but to the sober-minded, thinking men of all parties throughout the land. The politicians of his party have never taken kindly to Cleveland, because they could not control him. The monopolists of all parties see but little to admire in his official acts. But the people spoke, through their delegates in tones that could not be misunderstood and the convention heeded the call. As Dan Dougherty said in his grand presentation speech, The convention did not choose a candidate; they simply named the candidate whom the people had already chosen. Cleveland has been tried and has not been found wanting. He has redeemed every pledge made at his inauguration, he has been faithful to every trust committed to his charge, and the people reply, "Well done, good and faithful servant." Dougherty's nomination speech was a master piece of convention oratory. It will rank with the celebrated speeches of Ingersoll nominating Blaine in 1876 and of Conkling presenting Grant in 1880, but it surpassed both of them in his statesmanlike grasp of the situation, and in the eloquence inspired by an unanimous convention. He did not talk to a divided convention. The orator and the audience were an inspiration to each other. "There is no pilfering. There are no jobs under this administration. Public office is a public trust. Integrity stands guard at every post of our vast empire. His fidelity in the past inspires faith in the future. He is not a hope. He is a realization. I give you a name entwined with victory, Grover Cleveland of New York." The scene that followed beggars all discription. It was absolutely without a parellel in the history of political assemblages. For twenty-four minutes, one continuous shout shook the rafters of the largest auditorium in America, and the President's nomination followed, by acclamation, without a solitary vote against it, and with no other name even suggested to the convention.

The selection of Allen G. Thurman for second place is the strongest and wisest that could have been made. For half a century he has fought in the ranks of the Democracy, and has been justly regarded, since the days of the war, as one of the very ablest leaders of the party. He will rank, in history, as the peer of Douglas and Tilden, of Seward, Chase and Lincoln. In a party point of view, as a matter of political wisdom, his nomination seems almost an inspiration. It happily supplements that of Cleveland. He is a statesman of national reputation, qualified in every respect for the first place. He is well read in the classics of both ancient and modern tongues. He is a great lover of the French dramatists, whom he delights to read in the original. His legal attainments, his sturdy political courage, his rare good sense, his twelve years experience in the United States Senate will constitute him a model presiding officer over that august body. Cleveland represents the younger progressive element in the party, the class of leaders who are coming to the front; Thurman represents the "old guard," the men who for thirty years have battled for popular rights and constitutional law, through evil as well as good report, in adversity the same as in prosperity. Cleveland's tariff reform message will be the war cry, and Thurman's red bandanna will be the gonfalon of the campaign.

What a ticket! Cleveland, the second Andrew Jackson of the Democracy, and Thurman, the American Gladstone, harnessed together. Great Scott, what a ticket! Either name alone would be a harbinger of victory. The two united will be invincible.

GRAND MEETING OF THE UNTERRIFIED AT ST. LOUIS LAST WEEEK.

The Largest Political Gathering Ever Held in America—A Ringing Platform and a Magnificent Ticket.

The Democratic National Convention held at St. Louis last week, in attendance, in enthusiasm, in the unanimity of its action, surpassed the record of all similar gatherings in this country.

The meetings were held in the new exposition building, a convention hall having been fitted up in the northern nave capable of seating 15,000 people. The acoustic properties were so excellent that almost every speaker could be distinctly heard by the entire assemblage. The convention was called to order on Tuesday and held a brief session, at which a temporary organization was affected and the various standing committees were appointed. Ex Gov. White of California was elected temporary chairman. Wednesday's session lasted about three hours. Patrick A. Collins, the eloquent Irishman of Massachusetts was chosen Permanent Chairman and gave the convention a masterly address which stamped him as a statesman much above the average. Dan Dougherty's wonderful speech followed and then the unparrelled scene which culminated in the nomination of Cleveland by acclamation. On Thursday the platform was reported and unanimously adopted, and Thurman, the "Old Roman" was chosen for second place, amid another scene of cheering only surpassed by that of the previous day.

Most of our readers will have read a detailed report of the proceedings of the convention before this paper reaches them, and hence we content ourselves with reproducing the platform. We shall indulge in some comments thereon, and shall give biographical sketches of the candidates at some convenient time in the future.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

ALLEN G. THURMAN.

THE PLATFORM.

The Democratic party of the United States, in national convention assembled, renews the pledge of its fidelity to Democratic faith and reaffirms the platform adopted by its representatives in the convention of 1884 and indorses the views expressed by President Cleveland in his last earnest message to congress as the correct interpretation of the platform upon the question of tariff reduction; and also indorses the efforts of our Democratic representatives in congress to secure a reduction of excessive taxation.

Chief among its principles of party faith are the maintainance of an indissoluble union of free and indestructible states now about to enter upon its second century of unexampled progress and renown, devotion to a plan of government regulated by a written constitution strictly specifying every granted power and expressly reserving to the states or people the entire ungranted residue of power; the encouragement of a jealous popular vigilance, directed to all who have been chosen for brief terms to enact and execute the law, and are charged with the duty of preserving peace, insuring equality and establishing justice.

The Democratic party welcome an exacting scrutiny of the administration of the executive power, which four years ago was committed to its trusts in the election of Grover Cleveland president of the United States. It challenges the most searching inquiry concerning its fidelity and devotion to the pledges which then invited the suffrages of the people. During a most critical period of our financial affairs resulting from over taxation, the anomalous condition of our currency and a public debt unmatured, it has by the adoption of a conservative course not only averted a disaster, but has greatly promoted the prosperity of our people.

Our party has reversed the improvident and unwise policy of the Republican party touching the public domain, and has reclaimed from corporations and syndicates, alien and [illegible] nearly 100,000,000 acres of valuable land [illegible] our citizens.

While carefully guarding the intent of the principle of justice and equity, it has paid out more for pensions and bounties to the soldiers and sailors of the republic than was ever paid before during an equal period.

It has adopted and consistently pursued a firm and prudent foreign policy, preserving peace with all nations, while scrupulously maintaining all the rights and interests of our own government and people at home and abroad.

The exclusion from our shores of Chinese laborers has been effectually secured under the provision of a treaty, the operation of which has been postponed by the action of a Republican majority in the senate.

In every branch and department of the goverment under Democratic control the rights and the welfare of all the people have been guarded and defended; every public interest has been protected and the equality of all our citizens before the law without regard to race or color has been steadfastly maintained.

Upon its record thus exhibited and upon the pledge of a continuance to the people of the benefits of Democracy the party invokes a renewal of popular trust by the re-election of a chief magistrate who has been faithful, able and prudent. We invoke, in addition to that trust, the transfer also to the Democracy of the entire legislative power.

The Republican party controlling the senate and resisting in both houses of congress a reformation of unjust and unequal tax laws, which have outlasted the necessities of war and are undermining the abundance of a long peace, deny to the people equality before the law and the fairness and the justice which are their right. Then the cry of American labor for a better share in the rewards of industry is stifled with false pretenses, enterprise is fettered and bound down to home markets; capital is discouraged with doubt, and unequal, unjust laws can neither be properly amended or repealed.

The Democratic party will continue with all the power confided to it, the struggle to reform these laws, in accordance with the pledges of its last platform, and indorsed at the ballot box by the suffrages of the people. Of all the industrious freemen of our land, the immense majority, including every tiller of the soil, gain no advantage from excessive tax laws, but the price of nearly everything they buy is increased by the favoritism of an unequal system of tax legislation. All unnecessary taxation is unjust taxation. It is repugnant to the creed of Democracy that by such taxation the cost of the necessaries of life should be unjustifiably increased to all our people. Judged by Democratic principles the interests of the people are betrayed when, by unnecessary taxation, trusts and combinations are permitted to exist, which, while unduly enriching the few that combine rob the body of our citizens by depriving them of the benefits of natural competition. Every Democratic rule of governmental action is violated, when through unnecessary taxation a vast sum of money far beyond the needs of an economical administration is drawn from the people and the channels of trade, and accumulated as a demoralizing surplus in the national treasury. The money now lying idle in the federal treasury, resulting from superfluous taxation, amounts to more than $125,000,000, and the surplus collected is reaching the sum of more than $60,000,000 annually. Debauched by this immense temptation, the remedy of the Republican party is to meet and exhaust by extravagant appropriations and expenses, whether constitutional or not the accumulation of extravagant taxation. The Democratic policy is to enforce frugality in public expenses and abolish unnecessary taxation. Our established domestic industries and enterprises should not and need not be endangered by the reduction and correction of the burdens of taxation. On the contrary, a fair and careful revision of our tax laws, with due allowance for the difference between the wages of American and foreign labor must promote and encourage every branch of such industries and enterprises, by giving them assurance of an extended market and steady, continuous operations. In the interests of American labor, which should in no event be neglected, the revision of our tax laws contemplated by the Democratic party should promote the advantage of such labor by cheapening the cost necessaries of life in the home of every workingman, and at the same time securing to him steady and remunerative employment.

Upon this question of tariff reform so closely concerning every phase of our national life, and upon every question involved in the problem of good government, the Democratic party submits its principles and professions to the intelligent suffrages of the American people.

Mr. Scott, of Pennsylvania, under instructions from the committee on resolutions offered the following:

Resolved, That this convention hereby indorses and recommends the early passage of the bill for the reduction of the revenue now pending in the house of representatives.

The resolution was adopted amid loud applause.

Mr. Lehman, of Iowa, offered and the convention adopted a resolution declaring for the admission of Washington, Dakota, Montana and New Mexico into the union.

On motion of Abbett of New Jersey, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That we express our cordial sympathy with the struggling people of all nations in their efforts to secure for themselves the inestimable blessing of self government and civil and religious liberty; and we especially declare our sympathy with the efforts of those noble patriots who, like Gladstone and Parnell, have conducted their peaceful, and grand contest for home rule in Ireland.

June seems to be taking things very coolly this year.

THE SHORT PERSON.

Various Vicissitudes which Inevitably Come to the Man of Few Inches.

The short man has suffered much at the hands of the writers of fiction. He is never allotted the part of the hero, though there is no valid reason why he should not be. Search through all the fiction you [illegible] all tall, every one of them, no matter [illegible] tawny. This is what you read:

"His tall presence overshadowed and protected her as the pine of the Appenines does the strayed or bewildered lamb," or "His form, far above the middle height, appeared before her in the moonlight and she knew that, whatever else happened, that she was his forever and ever."

It is only a realistic writer who condescends to have the hero of the "average height," and even he is apt to forget himself and make his hero grow, after he is long past twenty one, into a "towering form."

There is a special brand of humanity kept on tap for heroes, all of them men who would have delighted the heart of Frederick the Great, who is quite welcome to them for all we care. On the other hand, the writer, when he has an unsympathetic character to portray nearly always makes him short.

Look at the "rascally attorney"; he is always made an "undersized" man, though there is no reason why he should be. And the writer, forsooth, never makes his really respectable villain—the man who does the bold murders, the kidnappings and the big forgeries—particularly short; only those of his villains are short who are mean and contemptible curs. This is distinctly unfair.

It is hardly necessary to add that the same writer when he wants a butt for the exercise of his wit, or for his other characters to play tricks upon, takes a short man for the purpose. It is always a short man who is fool enough to fall in love with the heroine, without the ghost of a chance, and who is cut out if not kicked out, directly the hero appears; his blasted hopes are made to look ridiculous, and after a humorous attempt at suicide he is relegated for consolation to brandy and soda.—Liverpool Courier.

A CONGREGATION IMPRISONED.

Some years ago the pastor of a church in a rural district of Missouri shepherded a flock some members of which were in the habit of leaving the house while he was yet in the middle of a discourse. This was an eyesore to the visiting incumbent, and when one day a reverend brother volunteered to preach for him he felt called upon to speak of the annoyance.

"Oh, I'll stop that," was the reply. "I'll warrant you that no one leaves until I'm done."

Accordingly, when he arose to speak he introduced his sermon with the following:

"My friends, before I begin my sermon I wish to make a few not irrelevant remarks. You all know that a vessel when full is full, and that to continue to pour into it is folly. Some vessels are capable of holding a great deal, while others, again, are easily filled. So it is with men's heads, and it is possible that some of yours may become full before I'm through. If so, I want you to feel at perfect liberty to leave."

"Do you know," said a young man afterwards, "I had a team of restless young horses outside, but I wouldn't have gone out to look after them for $100!"

RAISE YOUR OWN FROGS.

The Way To Make Money by Farming the Delicious Croaker.

Any man who has a pond on his farm can try the experiment of raising his own frogs. First, let him buy, say, six pairs of fine New Jersey breeders and dump them into the water. With these for a starter you may select a quantity of domestic bactracean, and then you will have the nucleus of a fortune. Don't interfere with your water investment for a year any more than to keep your growing stock well supplied with food. They require an abundance, but as they are not very dainty in their taste the expense account will be light. For a young farm two barrels a day of hotel scraps will keep the frogs in splendid shape, so that at the end of twelve months you can begin marketing all you can fish out at the same price as spring chickens. Give me the time, and I will wager that the end of two years I will be living on an income of $5,000, and my frogs will pay all expenses.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Origin of Foolscap.

Everybody knows what foolscap paper is, but we doubt whether one in a hundred of those who use it can tell why it is so called.

When Oliver Cromwell became Protector of England he caused the stamp of the "Caps of Liberty" to be placed upon the paper used by the Government.

Soon after the restoration of Charles II., when he had occasion to use some paper for dispatches, some of this Government paper was brought to him; and on being told he said:

"Take it away; I'll have nothing to do with a fool's cap."

Thus originated the term "foolscap," which has since been given to a size of writing paper usually about 16x13 inches.

Philosophical Housemaid.

"No," said the housemaid, "I don't apologize to a man when I throw a bucket of water down the front steps to wash 'em, and he comes along and gets drenched. I've tried apologizing, but I've found there's nothing you can say to a man in that case will satisfy him."—Scranton Truth.

"These Three Are One."

"Who is that lady dressed in black, mamma?" askell Bobby, as he sat with his mother on a ferryboat.

"That is a Sister of Charity, my boy," replied his mother.

Bobby pondered deeply for a moment and then he said, "Which is she, mamma, Faith or Hope?"—Harper's Bazar.

A Child's Pretty Conceit.

The little child was walking in the woods one summer evening when the softest of evening breezes were waving the foliage:

"Hark, mamma! Listen to the trees breathing," she said.

Try It, Girls.

American girls can learn to do almost anything, but we have never seen one who could whistle Gottschalk's "Last Hope," while a cross-eyed man was looking at her.—Springfield Union.

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH!

The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, printed from good readable type on good paper, and many of them handsomely illustrated. They are without exception the cheapest books ever published in any land or language, and furnish to the masses of the people an opportunity to secure the best literature of the day at the most trifling expense. In any other series these great works would cost many times the price at which they are here offered. Each one is complete in itself:

Wonders of the World, Natural and Occult. Contains descriptions and illustrations of the most wonderful works of nature and of man. Very interesting and instructive.
"A Pleasure Excursion," and Other Sketches. By "Josiah Allen's Wife." A collection of irresistibly funny sketches by the most popular humorous writer of the day.
The Aunt Keziah Papers, by Clara Augusta, author of "The Rugg Documents." A most ridiculously funny book—in every way equal to "Widow Bedott."
Christmas Stories, by Charles Dickens. Contains a number of the most charming Christmas stories ever written by the greatest writer who ever lived. Each one is complete.
Popular Recitations and Dialogues, humorous, dramatic and pathetic, including all the latest, best and most popular.

The Absence of Little Wesley.

Since little Wesley went, the place seems all so strange and still—
The cat's asleep in the cradle, and the dog don't bark at all
Whenever the wind creaks the door, or the whippersnapper will Frolic and romp and clatter as he used to, of late, with the noise,
When I on'y rickollect him as the best o' little boys!
I wisht a hundred times a day 'at he'd come trompin' in,
And all the noise he ever made was twic't as loud ag'in!
It 'u'd seem like some soft music played on some fine instrument,
Longside o' this lond lonsomeness, sence little Wesley went!
Of course the clock ain't sick no longer than it use to do;
Yit now they 's a time it jears like it 'u'd bu'st itself in two!
And, let a rooster, sudden! like crow some'ers clost around,
And seems 's ef mighty nigh it 'u'd lift me off the ground!
And same with all the cattle when they bawl around the bars,
In the red o' early morning, or the dusk and dew and stars,
When the neighbors' boys 'at passes never stop, but jest go on,
A-whistlin' kind o' to theirse'v's—since little Wesley's gone!
And then, o' nights when mother's settin' up uncommon late,
A-bilin' pears or somepin, and I set and smoke and wait,
Sel the moon out through the winder don't look bigger 'n a dime,
And things keeps gittin stiller—stiller—stiller all the time—
I've ketched mys'f a-wishin' like—as I clum on the stair
To wind the clock, as I hev done for more'n fifty year—
A-wishin' 'at the time had come for us to go to bed
With our last prayers and our last tears, since little Wesley's dead!

"DAVID COPPERFIELD."

The Originals of Some Characters in This Celebrated Story.

Dickens considered "David Copperfield" as the best of his books, and the reason for his preference may be looked for in the fact that it is to a great extent autobiographic. The author has himself declared that many of the incidents in David's career are identical with those experienced by himself, so that, up to a certain point, he may be considered as the prototype of the hero of the story.

To a certain extent, also, Mr. Micawber was a portrait of the author's father, who, like him, was remarkable for rhetorical exuberance, a peculiarity which found frequent and always agreeable expression in many of the novelist's letters, written long before "Copperfield" was thought of.

"No one," says his biographer, "could know the elder Dickens without secretly liking him the better for those flourishes of speech, which adapted themselves so readily to his gloom as well as to his cheerfulness, that it was difficult not to fancy they had helped him considerably in both, and had rendered more tolerable to him, if also more possible, the shade and sunshine of his checkered life. . . .

"It delighted Dickens to remember that it was of one of his connections his father wrote a celebrated sentence:

"'And I must express my tendency to believe that his longevity is (to say the least of it) extremely problematical.'"

There also existed in the personal appearance of Micawber a resemblance to that of his prototype. A friend and neighbor of Mr. John Dickens describes him as "a chatty, pleasant companion, possessing a varied fund of anecdote, and a genuine vein of humor.

"He was a well-built man, rather stout, of very active habits, a little pompous, and very proud (as well he might be) of his talented son. He dressed well, and wore a goodly bunch of seals suspended across his waistcoat from his watch chain."

STEEL PENS.

The Invention That Speedily Superseded "the Gray Goose Quill."

The earliest notice of steel pens that I have met with is by Wordsworth.

In 1806 he and his family were occupying the house at Coleorton during the absence of Sir George and Lady Beaumont, and in the month of December the poet wrote to the latter what he calls "the longest letter I ever wrote in my life," and with reason, as it fills eighteen pages. He begins:

"My Dear Lady Beaumont: There's penmanship for you! I shall not be able to keep it up to the end in this style, notwithstanding I have the advantage of writing with one of your steel pens, with which Miss Hutchinson has just furnished me."

The next mention that I have noted is by Dr. Kitchiner, in 1824, when speaking of a friend above 60, he says:

"This strain of the eye, and occasion for spectacles of a high magnifying power, is particularly found in mending pens, so that he has a sufficient number of pens to prevent the necessity of mending any of them until he has finished writing."

To this there is appended a note:

"To those who find the mending of pens rather a difficult job, I recommend the occasional use of a steel pen, especially when they wish to write very small and neatly."—"The Economy of the Eyes," London, 1824, p. 55.

The steel pen seems to have been still a rarity at that time, and my own schoolboy experience tends to show that it was. From about 1824 to 1834 I do not remember the use of steel pens in school, and in the earlier years 1825 to 1830 I have a distinct recollection of our using quills.—Notes and Queries.

How Law Is Made.

It was in a Boston private school of fashionable repute, and the class of young ladies who had been studying the history and the Constitution of the United States were under examination.

"How is law made?" said the instructor.

"Oh, said a tailor-made damsel cheerfully, "the Senate has to ratify it, and then the President has to veto it!"—Boston Beacon.

Rough on the Tramp.

Emaciated tramp (to business man)—"I'm a survivor of the Mexican war, an' I want you to help me a little, Cap'n."

"Get out o' this!"

"Look here, Cap'n! what have you got against a survivor of the Mexican war?"

"All I've got against you is that you survived."—Harper's Weekly.

Weedy.

Augustus Popinjay (to his country cousin, who is on a visit to the family)—"Do you object to the weed, Bella?"

Bella—"No, but pa does. He's at 'em with the hoe early and late."—Burlington Free Press.

"KISS ME, MAMMA."

A Mother's Mistake and the Price She Paid for It.

The child was so sensitive, so like that breath and shuts its heart from the light.

The only beauties she possessed were an exceedingly transparent skin and the most mournful, large blue eyes.

I had been trained by a very stern, strict, conscientious mother, but I was a hardy plant, rebounding after every shock, misfortune could not daunt, though discipline tamed me. I fancied, alas! that I must go through the same routine with this delicate creature; as one day when she had displeased me exceedingly by repeating an offense, I was determined to punish her severely. I was very serious all day, and upon sending her to her little couch I said:

"Now, my daughter, to punish you, and show you how very, very naughty you have been, I shall not kiss you to-night."

She stood looking at me, a mournful personified, with her mournful eyes wide open—I suppose she had forgotten her misconduct till then, and I left her with big tears dropping down her cheeks and her little red lips quivering.

Presently I was sent for. "Oh, mamma, you will kiss me; I can't go to sleep if you don't!" she sobbed, every tone of her voice trembling; and she held out her little hands.

Now came the struggle between love and what I falsely termed duty. My heart said give her the kiss of peace; my stern nature urged me to persist in my correction that I might impress the fault upon her mind. That was the way I had been trained, till I was a most submissive child; and I remembered how I had often thanked my mother since for her straightforward course.

I knelt by the bedside. "Mother can't kiss you, Ellen," I whispered, though every word choked me. Her hand touched mine; it was very hot, but I attributed it to her excitement. She turned her little grieving face to the wall. I blamed myself as the fragile form shook with self-suppressed sobs, and crying, "Mother hopes little Ellen will learn to mind her after this," left the room for the night. Alas! in my desire to be severe I forgot to be forgiving.

It must have been twelve o'clock when I was awakened by my nurse. Apprehensive, I ran eagerly to the child's chamber; I had had a fearful dream.

Ellen did not know me. She was sitting up, crimson from forehead to throat; her eyes so bright that I almost drew back aghast at their glances.

From that night a raging fever drank up her life, and what think you was the incessant plea that poured into my anguished heart?

"Oh, kiss me, mamma, do kiss me; I can't go to sleep! You'll kiss your little Ellen, mamma, won't you? I can't go to sleep. I won't be naughty if you'll only kiss me! Oh, kiss me, dear mamma, I can't go to sleep."

Holy little angel! she did go to sleep one gray morning, and she never woke again, never. Her hand was locked in mine and all my veins grew icy with its gradual chill. Faintly the light faded out of the beautiful eyes; whiter and whiter grew the tremulous lips. She never knew me; but with her last breath she whispered, "I will be good, mamma, if only you'll kiss me."

Kiss her! God knows how passionate, but unavailing, were my kisses upon her cheek and lips after that fatal night. God knows how wild were my prayers that she might know, if but only once, that I kissed her. God knows how I would have yielded up my very life could I have asked forgiveness of that sweet child.

Well, grief is unavailing now! She lies in her little tomb; there is a marble urn at her head and a rosebush at her feet; there grow sweet summer flowers; there waves the gentle grass; there birds sing their matins and vespers; there the blue sky smiles down to-day and there lies buried the freshness of my heart.—Ladies' Home Journal.

THE ART OF CONVERSATION.

A Comprehensive Description of What Constitutes Its Perfect Exemplification.

The young woman who talks merely to say words and who dwells on a topic only for an instant and hurries on to another, about as a humming bird flits from flower to flower, has no conception of art in conversation.

"I never know what I'm going to talk about," says one girl, and another remarks incredulously, "I don't see how anybody can know what the subjects of conversation are to be, nor how any one can plan a conversation beforehand."

In the more perfect conversation the speaker must have a sweet tone of voice, absence of local accent and an absence of tricks and catch words. There must be either general or special knowledge and mental quickness, modesty, simplicity, unselfishness, sympathy and tact.

Then there is a consideration of the persons with whom you are conversing—whether one, a few or many, whether equals, superiors or inferiors, whether older, younger, or of the same age; whether men or women; and whether a relation, a friend or some less degree of acquaintance.

Then there is the variety of subjects, serious and trivial subjects, and personal and general; and the talking by all the company, or by two or one.—T. P. per World.

Acquainted with the Gentleman.

Fogg, the eminent lawyer (who has a weakness for charging high fees), to nephew who has been speculating—"What! you paid two dollars for one rabbit, Bobby?"

Bobby (seven years old)—"Yes, sir."

Fogg—"Why didn't you consult your uncle?"

Bobby (who has heard of his uncle's fame)—"Then it might have cost me five."

Sweet Is Revenge.

"It's just as well that you didn't go, John," said a wife to her husband on her return from the theatre.

"Why so?"

"There were two hats in front of us and we could not see the stage."

"Then you were miserable all the evening?"

"Not exactly. I know something about millinery, you know."

"How did that help you?"

"Well, they were cheap hats and I took them to pieces, described the materials of which they were made to my escort, the price of the frames, the ribbons, the feathers, said they were such hats as milliners sold to nurse maids, cooks, etc. You should have seen the wearers' ears burning—

"Oh! I wish I had been there."

"So the wearers didn't see any more of the stage than I did."

"Why not?"

"Because they were too busy listening to me. I have not enjoyed myself so much for a long time."—Boston Courier.

MEDICINE AMONG SAVAGES.

The Medicine Man—Music, Dancing and Sorcery as Medicine—The Mind as Its Condition Affects the Bodily Health.

medicine among savage and barbarous nations of recent times.

Here we find that the priests are usually the physicians or medicine men, but there are other persons, often women, who treat diseases with simple and natural remedies. The essential remedies are incantations, steam baths, proprietary offerings, etc., and removal of the evil spirit by suction.

Among the American Indians the word medicine refers in general to that which is extraordinary or supernatural, and the medicine man is one who possesses a knowledge and control of such matters. Every Indian has his own peculiar medicine charm or talisman, and sometimes there is also a tribe medicine, usually some animal or reptile, indicated by a badge or token. The medicine man is much more than a physician; he is a priest, rain-maker and minister plenipotentiary of the supernatural powers, both good and evil.

Major Alvord says, in relation to the Oregon Indians:

"In some of these tribes any child may be trained for the position of medicine man, but among the Nez Perces the position is inherited from father to son."

All the tribes have great faith in their medicine men and believe that they have the power of killing by charms and enchantments, and when, as sometimes happens, a man becomes possessed with the idea that the medicine man is hostile to him and is "making medicine" against him, he will pine away, refuse to eat and die of hypochondria and melancholy. In consequence of this implicit faith, when a death occurs it is often attributed to the doctor, and the relatives of the deceased avenge his fate by killing the supposed murderer.

Among savage nations we meet with peculiar diseases in which equally peculiar medication is of service. Examples are seen in the trances of the Cossack women, the peculiar fever found in Abyssinia, which reduces patients to skeletons, and can only be cured by music and dancing. The very general use of suction as a remedy among savage tribes is curious and not easy to explain. It may possibly be connected with the animal instinct of licking.

The power of belief, faith, imagination or expectant attention to affect the material organism of the body is well known.

Jaundice has been produced by anger, and also by grief. The sudden change of color in the hair from black to white, under the influence of fear or sorrow, is well authenticated. How often does it happen that a person suffering violent toothache finds his pain disappear as he enters the door of the dentist? All surgeons of large experience know how unfavorable a sign it is when a patient declares that he will not recover. What is known as "home-sickness"—the "heimweh" of the Germans—is a well-recognized form of disease in recruits, which in some cases may prove fatal, either directly or by leading to suicide.

But if the emotions can produce disease, they can also sometimes cure it. Charms which act on the mind of the person charmed always have some effect, in incantations commonly a mischievous one.—Boston Herald.

CHAMPAGNE IN THE PITCHER.

In the Senate restaurant at Washington one end of the counter is called the "cheap and hungry corner." Here baked beans are sold for ten cents a plate, fish balls for ten cents each, and deviled crabs at the same figure. Doughnuts, cakes, pies, and so on are correspondingly cheap. Nearly every day of late, in this "cheap and hungry corner," can be seen a large, handsome Congressman with rosy cheeks and gray moustache. He is from one of the Western States.

His regular luncheon is pie, varied occasionally by beans, and he always drinks from a tall slender pitcher.

The curiosity of some "regulars" was aroused the other day, and one of them asked a colored waiter what the gentleman had in the pitcher.

"If you won't give me away, boss, I'll jes' tell you; he's got champagne in the pitcher."

"What in the world does he drink champagne in a pitcher for, and at a lunch counter, and along with pie and beans?"

"'Deed I don't know, boss; mos' likely 'pears to me he done take his champagne that way fear some of the people he does law business for see how extravigump he is."

Some Gigantic Words.

The longest English word yet discovered is that found by a Boston physician in a medical journal, the word being the chemical terminology for cocaine,—Methylbenzomethoxyethyltetrahydropyridinecarboxylate. There are fifty-two letters in the word.

The next longest words known are Anthropomorphitamisticeliation, thirty-two letters; phlegmonoscophagraphicalities, thirty letters; dynsmorphosteopalinkistes (an instrument used for breaking the ossified callus of a falsely united fracture), twenty-six letters; methylethylphenylammonium, twenty-five letters, and dioxymethylarthraquinone (an old name for chrysophanic acid), twenty-four letters.

New Use for Celluloid.

Celluloid has recently been used as a substitute for copper in sheathing the hulls of vessels, and has been found to answer the purpose admirably.

Plates of this substance have been applied to a number of vessels and allowed to remain six months. At the end of that time, the parts of the hull left uncovered were found to present abundant collections of marine vegetation, while the celluloid was intact and free from such vegetable masses.

Two of a Kind.

Wife (in soiled wrapper, soiled collar and slippers down at heel, to husband who enters late)—"Ah! John, you're not a bit like what you used to be."

"Husband (glancing at her dress)—"Neither are you, my dear, neither are you."—Boston Courier.

A Wise Infant.

"How old are you, Tommy?"

"Nine when I'm on my feet, and 6 when I stand on my head."

"That's funny; how do you make it?"

"Why, if you stand a 9 on its head it's a 6, isn't it.—Philadelphia Times.

Renews Her Youth.

Mrs. Phœbe Chesley, Peterson, Cady Co., Iowa, tells the following remarkable story, the truth of which is vouched for by the residents of the town: I was troubled with kidney complaint and lamened for many years; could not dress myself without help. Now I am free from all pain and soreness, and now able to do all my own housework and owe my thanks to Electric Bitters. I having renewed my youth, and removed completely all disease and pain."

MENDING A BROKEN NEEDLE.

There lived not very many years ago a short distance from the town of Beaver, which, by the way, is looking like a young bride just now in her boudoir of green hills, a man of extraordinary meanness. I don't think it would be unjust to say that he was a miser. Most of you would enjoy the story more if I gave you his name. But I won't do it.

One day as he was starting out for Beaver to do his weekly shopping—for even he had to buy something for the support of his family—his wife came out and asked him to buy her a darning-needle.

"What's the matter with the one I bought you last winter?"

"The eye's broken out," she replied.

"Bring the needle here," said he. "I'm not going to allow any such extravagance. I'll have the needle mended."

The woman was wise in her generation, and made no protest. She brought out the broken needle.

The economical farmer rode into Beaver and stopped first of all at the blacksmith's shop. He took out the needle and handed it to the blacksmith. "I want that mended," he said.

The blacksmith knew his customer, and keeping his face perfectly straight, said that the eye could be made whole in an hour's time. The farmer rode away, and the blacksmith walked across the street and bought a new needle for a cent or two.

When the farmer called again the blacksmith gave him the new needle. The farmer looked at the smooth, polished surface of the steel, and remarked that it was a good job.

"How much will it be?" said he.

"Ten cents," said the blacksmith, and the farmer as he paid it remarked that he knew the needle could be mended, but his wife would have gone to the expense of buying a new one if he hadn't interfered.

"For a long time I had no appetite, was restless at night, and very much debilitated. After taking two bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla my strength and appetite returned, and my health was completely restored."—D. M. Fisher, Oswego, N. Y.

Do you feel languid, low-spirited, listless and miserable, both physically mentally, have poor appetite, frequent headaches, bitter or bad taste in the mouth, nervous prostration, and do you know what the matter is? You have torpid liver, associated with indigestion. You need Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic. You need it to-day. Buy of Dr. Geo. Ferguson. An ever prompt cure for headache, constipation, pimples, rheumatism, scrofula, dyspepsia and all blood disorders.

GIRLS AND MOTHERS' READ THIS!

I wish to tell you of the case of a girl 16 years old, who had been sick with suppression two years. Her father had paid over $300 for doctor's bills, still she was failing. She had the worst countenance that I have ever seen, a kind of greenish yellow she was emaciated had constant bowel trouble, and had to take morphine every night in order to sleep at all. All who saw her thought she would die. Her parents said they had done all they could. I repeatedly urged them to try Zoa-Phora, but they were strongly prejudiced against "nostrums." Finally the mother said, "We must do something, and this is as likely to help her as anything." She had persuaded the father to let the girls try it. As a result, in four months her functions were established and regular, and in six months she was the picture of health—a living wonder to all who had known her.

I could describe 20 other cases, not as wonderful as this, but still very remarkable cures.

Price 50 cents and $1.

For a languid, tired feeling, Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup has no equal, creating a good appetite, and rendering a healthy and active digestion.

Itch, mange, and scratches of every kind on human or animals cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. This never fails. Sold by Baker & Hall, Druggists, Tecumseh Mich.

CLARA, how is the baby? Oh, he is as chirp as a lark. That Hibbard's Throat and Lung Balsam is a great remedy. Three doses relieved his suffering, and he was ready for play.

For all diseases arising from impure blood, Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup is invaluable, as it is a sworn enemy to all poisons in the blood.

D. RANSOM'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Prices 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

THE OLD RAISIN INSTITUTE.

The Reunion of the Old Teachers and Scholars at Jas. B. Colvin's on Thursday Last.

The Raisin Institute, formerly known as the "Graham School," ceased to exist some years ago, the field now being occupied by the Raisin Valley Seminary, now managed by the Friends. A few years since the surviving teachers and scholars of the old Institute organized a Reunion Association and the Anniversary has been observed regularly each year since. This year's meeting was held on Thursday last at the commodious home of James B. Colvin, in Raisin. Many of the members attended school along in the forties and are now wearing white locks and wrinkled brows, but they renew their age and all enjoy a pleasant day at these reunions. They began to arrive as early as nine o'clock A. M. and when the noon hour had arrived nearly one hundred persons were present. The forenoon was passed in social chat and renewing old associations.

After a bountiful dinner, the formal exercises were given. Extra camp chairs had been provided and the spacious parlors of Mr. Colvin's residence afforded ample room for all. President Rufus Baker called the meeting to order. Rev. L. C. Chase gave a scriptural reading, and prayer was offered by Rev. John Hatchin and Aunt Laura Haviland.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Mrs. Julia Edwards spoke a few words of welcome to the old scholars of "Graham Town," and a very happy response was made by Mrs. C. D. West.

The treasurer's report was submitted and accepted. The following committee on program was appointed for next year: W. H. Knight, Mrs. A. G. Hall, Mrs. Julia Edwards. Then came the memoriam by Henry Knight which we produce entire.

FELLOW STUDENTS & FRIENDS:

As you all know it is a pleasing custom with our nation once a year to remember in an especial manner her fallen defenders. So it seems but justice that at these reunions, we should pause for a moment to think of those students who have fallen in life's battle. We now unite in gathering from memory a chaplet to offer as a tribute to the departed, believing that as we remember them, so will we be remembered when it comes our time to rest. The duration of the Institute extended through so many years, its existence beginning even before my birth, I have necessarily had help from friends which I am glad to acknowledge. The following are the names of teachers who have passed away.

Mrs. Anna B. Roots, the wife of P. P. Roots, who were the first teachers; Rufus Clark, the second teacher; Emily Galpin, Mr. Galpin, Anna Maria Townsend, Hattie Townsend, Nathan F. Comstock, Francis M. Olcutt.

STUDENTS.

Cordelia Watkins, Emma Ives, afterwards Mrs. Woodward; Freelove Camburn, Sarah Barrus, Harvy Haviland, oldest son of Aunt Laura; J. B. Haviland, another of Aunt Laura's sons; Celestina Rogers, Eliza Rogers, Jane Mills, Henrietta Mills, Edwin Mills, Mr. Dolbear, Harriet Smith, of Franklin; Louisa Allen, Lydia Smith, Aunt Laura's sister, afterward Mrs. Henry Baily; Percis Hoag, Lottie Aldrich, Sarah Stout, who became Mrs. Stephen Pratt, Died Nov. 12, 1873; Amanda Raymond, born Dec. 8th, 1823, died May 25th, 1884; Phœbe Comstock, Wm. Brownell, Walter Brownell, Albert Clark, Alanson Conklin, Elizabeth Smith, of Franklin; Cheever Lovett, John Brownell, Allen Smith, died in the army in Georgia; Polly Bowen, Maggie Camburn, Lorenzo Bailey, Lydia Ann Bailey, Webster Smith, killed in the Battle of Spotsylvania, just eleven days before his term expired; David G. Edmonson, born near Rome Center, Mich, Jan. 24, 1840, attended Institute in '59, '60 and '61, died at Osceola, Iowa, Feb. 19th, 1880, of bronchial consumption, after four years suffering; Charles Slocum, Myra A. Knight, afterward Mrs. Lane, born Dec. 11th, 1840, died Feb. 12, 1874, of consumption; James M. Hoag born in Raisin, March 26, 1839, died in Adrian, May 13, 1879, of scarlet fever; Emma Scouten, died in Adrian, of cancer; Eliza Fliteraft, married to Frazier, who died of small pox, died of spinal fever, leaving two little girls; Caroline Torrey; Thomas Wilkins, Louisa Seymour, Alvira German, Mrs. Albert Camburn; Phœbe Emery, afterwards Mrs. Elder Tompkins; Daniel Harkness, Richard Derby, Miss Russ, who became Mrs. W. H. Wiggins; Mary Noyes, Thomas Raymond, Hannah Emery, afterward Mrs. Brown; Eliza Torrey, Marion Chase, Franklin Harriet, Sarah Gould Comstock, Nellie J. Horton, died of diptheria, Sept. 15, 1862, aged 18 years and 9 months; Lucie Underwood, born April 6th, 1843, married James R. Steele, of Palmyra and died Nov. 10th 1873; Myra Todd, afterward Mrs. Townsend; Hubbard Todd, George Waltermire, Charley Sacrider, Stephen Hardy, Abel Harding, Addie Barnes, Theresa Bradish, Rufus R Hall, died Sept. 11, 1883 of blood poisoning; Maria Clapp, Jennie Clark, Carrie Robinson, Warren J. Holdridge born in Raisin, Aug. 1st, 1838; while returning from Decoration last week was stricken with paralysis and died second day after.

Some of these passed away in their youth, some in the prime of life and others still in riper years. Many of them had a faith so strong that it could pierce the darkness of the grave, could penetrate the veil that separates the known from the unknown and see in the beyond an enthroned Saviour ready to welcome them.

When we think of the many whose names have been taken from the little catalogue of the living and placed upon the mighty roll at the dead it seems that but a few more years can pass away before the reunions beyond the river will be within view of Tecumseh here.

The audience was entertained for some time by reminiscences and short talks by several members, selections by Mrs. Howland and a poem by Mrs. Moses Comfort.

A committee, consisting of Mr. A. H. Briggs, Mrs. Frank Rector, and Mr. A. G. Hall, was appointed to draft resolutions on the death of Warren J. Holdridge and others who have died during the year.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Mrs. John Edwards.
Vice President—Mr. Harmon. Camburn.
Treasurer Mrs. Eliza Camburn.
Secretary—Mrs. A. H. Briggs.

The meeting next year will be held at Mr. Frank Rector's, Clinton.

The committee on program then submitted this bill of fare for the reunion in 1889.

Welcome Address—Wm. H. Colyer.
Response—Mrs. E. N. Converse.
An old time excursion—Mrs. Phœbe Hoxsie Curtis.
Old time anecdotes—Geo. Griswold.
Poem—Caroline Colvin.
Music—Jerome Palmer, Eliza Camburn, Horace Holdridge.

A lunch was served at five o'clock and the company then scattered. Aunt Laura Haviland came all the way from Chicago to attend the meeting. The well known hospitality of the Colvin homestead was fully equal to the occasion and it was conceded by all to have been the most enjoyable reunion ever held by the Association.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

EDITOR HERALD:

Will you permit the members of the W. C. T. U. through the columns of your paper, to thank the many friends who so kindly responded to our call for aid in the Festival of Nations. We are indebted to them for time and money. Special thanks are due to the chairman, Mrs. Corey, and to the following church committees, of the four churches.

Episcopal Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. C. M. Wright, Mrs. Dr. Woodward.

Baptist—Mrs. I. C. Wolcott, Mrs. James Heck, Mrs. P. C. Temple, Mrs. Dr. North.

Methodist—Mrs. Fred Rosacrans, Mrs. S. W. Anderson, Mrs. I. S. Osborn.

Presbyterian—Mrs John Freeman, Mrs. Chas. Brewer, Miss Mary Dingman.

Thanks to Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Sutton, who so generally donated the Opera House for Friday evening. Also Mr. Coddington who so ably assisted us in the sale of tickets, and various favors during the two evenings.

To Mrs. Coddington, Mrs. Merritt, Mrs. Hale, Mrs. Grey, Mrs. Bryant, Mrs. Dr. Jones, Mrs. Osborn, Mrs. N. M. Sutton and all others who represented the W. C. T. U.

Special thanks are due to the business men of Tecumseh. To these gentlemen we are indebted for the diversity of articles donated, for decorating and for assistance in building booths, S. W. Anderson & Co., W. Anderson, H. Gainsley, Satterthwaite Bros. & Boyd, Gro. McClure, James Lowry, J. S. Kinney, Wm. McCowen, Temple, McClure & Co., S. P. Hosmer, I. C. Wolcott, A. Wilson, Harris & Co., W. B. Hoag.

We wish to thank the young ladies and gentlemen, who contributed so largely to the pleasures of the evening by representing the different nations in costumes.

To Miss Jennie Root who aided us in our musical program, assisted by Mrs. A. W. Mills; Miss Mabel Hayden, and the young ladies with their guitars.

We desire to thank the many friends who contributed so generously to the various tables.

To the G. A. R. and Co. C. for flags loaned. To the ladies for plants and flowers.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Mary H. Stitt was born June 30th, 1831, in the state of New York, and died March 23d, 1888, at Franklin, Mich. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pomeroy, moved to Tecumseh, Mich., when she was but five years old. She was married to Joseph Stitt, of Tecumseh, July 4, 1853. They continued to live in Tecumseh till 1865, when they moved to Franklin. She was taken sick August 29, 1887, and from that time till her death was a great sufferer. She was the youngest of a family of eleven children, only four of whom are now living. A husband and one daughter are left to bear the heavy loss.

The words of commendation that fell from many lips proved that she was loved by all who knew her. She lived an exemplary, moral life, and a few months before her death gave her heart to Christ. The funeral services occurred March 25th. A large circle of friends gathered to express their love for one whose memory will long be cherished and whose life will still bless loved ones with sacred influence.

THE CITY OF THE STRAITS.

Short Chapter about Former Tecumseh Residents, who are now living in the metropolis.

We were obliged to cut our report of the Press Association meeting short last week, and give the second installment, or "personal mention," to-day. The Tecumseh colony in Detroit has grown to be a large and respectable one, not only in quantity but also in quality. During our four day's sojourn in the city we spent one entire day ferreting out old acquaintances, and during the other three days we devoted as many odd snatches of time as possible to the same laudable and agreeable pastime.

On Tuesday, upon our arrival, we went directly to Mrs. Stoepel's where we took dinner. Mr. Stoepel has a fine home on Hancock Ave., only one lot distant from Woodward Ave. Here we met Mrs. John Bailey, nee Maggie Frazer, who was the guest of Mrs. Stoepel's for a few days, and with whom we enjoyed a brief but very pleasant visit. Mr. Stoepel still retains his interest in the big wholesale house of Burnham, Stoepel & Co., which is rapidly building up a mammoth trade. They have a branch house in Kansas City and are extending their business over the entire west.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Wilson occupy a neat little home at 74 Garfield Ave., and are most pleasantly situated. Mr. Wilson also owns an interest in the house of Burnham, Stoepel & Co. Although a young man he has already gained a good business foothold and his prospects are most encouraging.

Lavern Ide is head bookkeeper for J. W. Fales & Co., and seems to have a fixture as long as he wants it. He owns a home of his own, has a wife and a charming baby, and apparently enjoys life. But few young men of his age are better situated and he has attained his position by his own industry alone.

John B. Whelan has been a full-fledged attorney for some time. His desk is located in the office of Col. Duffield, and he is gradually working into a good practice. John is now engaged working up the Alger boom and is one of the officers of the Alger Club. He will go to Chicago, as a matter of course, and if Gen. Alger should fail to "get there" it will not be John B. Whelan's fault.

Alf James is now in the employ of Walter Buhl & Co., and is spending most of his time on the road at present. He and his wife are boarding and have pleasant quarters where the latch string hangs out for their old acquaintances. Alf has a good place now, with a chance to work up, which he is bound to improve.

Cub Berdan runs a music store at 308 Woodward Ave. and seems to be prospering.

S. O. VanDeMark, formerly of Clinton, has been admitted to the bar and has opened an office in the Telegraph Block. His prospects are as good as he could expect.

Will Baker is now with Jas. E. Davis & Co., wholesale druggist son Larned St. Will is well pleased with his position and his employers seem to reciprocate the feeling.

Edgar Ide, like Lavern, is a graduate of the HERALD office. He is now bookkeeper and salesman for the big carriage house of Theut & Lutz, at 213 Beaubien St. He is giving excellent satisfaction there, and can undoubtedly hold his place at his pleasure. One of the partners expressed himself to us in warm terms, of Edgar's efficiency and faithfulness.

Capt. J. C. Wheeler holds down one of the biggest chairs in the office of Collector Moloney and is regarded by the collector as one of the best clerks in the office. "Jim" doesn't lie awake nights for fear of losing his place. The new collector runs his office on business principles. The Captain has a fine home up on Warren Ave.

Wm. VanCamp's family are occupying very pleasant rooms on Third Ave. Mr. VanCamp himself is in Pennsylvania, selling a subscription book. Gertie is married and lives at home. Mabel has a position in Vet's Musical Academy. She spends four hours each afternoon giving instruction in voice culture. Her reputation as a fine vocal instructor is thoroughly established and Prof. Vet regards her as one of the best members of his faculty.

Sam James was found at the wholesale fur store of Walter Buhl & Co. He is now one of the active partners of the concern, having been admitted to the firm last year and has charge of one of the chief departments of the business. He showed us through the building, which is a double store, five stories high, and which is packed from cellar to garret with samples and costly goods. One room, not larger than the HERALD counting room, contains $250,000 worth of seal skins. If Sam keeps his health—and he does'nt pine away any at present—he will be on the top shelf in a few years.

Frank Smalledge is running a drug store of his own at 702 Jeff. Ave. He has a model drug store and is nicely fixed in every respect. He drives one of the best steppers in the city and is making money hand over fist. It is a mystery to all of his friends that so eligible a cath should still remain a bachelor.

We took supper one day with Capt. C. P. Stevens who lives in a very nice city place on 22d street, a few steps from Woodward Ave. We enjoyed our visit there very much, although it was the third time we had partaken of shortcake that day. The Captain's old trouble, rheumatism, still haunts him occasionally, but he has been getting the upper hands lately, and if Gen. Alger should get the nomination at Chicago, we should'nt be surprised to hear of his joining the Detroit base ball club. He is still giving his attention to insurance.

Bert Tribou holds his desk in Pittman's coal office, and seems to have become a fixture in that institution. Neither is he simply an ornamental piece of furniture. His five years experience there enables him to manage any part of the office work creditably. He has a pleasant home in his uncle's family and evidently enjoys a clear conscience, for his avoirdupois seems to be gradually increasing.

E. S. Clarkson has hung out his own shingle, and has a law office room with Wilkinson & Post in Mechanic's Blk. He is getting nicely started in his profession and the outlook is encouraging. The progress of a young lawyer in a city like Detroit is slow at first; but a man of the right metal always reaches the top in time.

Sumner Collins has an office with Edwin F. Conly in the Butler building. He is already considered as one of the most promising young attorneys in the city, and is gathering a fine practice. As Sumner goes for rich clients and clean-cut Cleveland Democracy, his success is assured.

We tried to find John F. Murray but gave it up in despair.

DEATH OF MRS. S. E. DEWITT.

The sudden death of Mrs. S. E. Dewitt, which occurred on Monday, June 4th, 1888, at the residence of her brother-in-law, Jehiel Davidson, was a painful surprise to her relatives and friends. Although for three years Mrs. Dewitt had been a sufferer from heart disease, and from the first the attending physicians had assured her friends there was no possibility of complete recovery, yet the great fortitude and cheerfulness with which she bore her sufferings, led them to hope the end was yet afar off. Her unshaken trust and confidence in her Saviour, with Jesus, the face and hand of the Christ close beside, she had been strong and well sustained. On Monday, as Mrs. Davidson was preparing her for her usual afternoon rest, she appeared more comfortable than any time previous. As the last attention was being given, with the sun shining brightly, the birds singing cheerily, the fresh, sweet breath of Heaven wafted in through open door and window, the tired eyes, without an effort, closed forever. The sister's spirit had found its long desired rest in the white garden of eternity.

Mrs. S. E. Dewitt was the eldest daughter of the late Samuel Depuy, of Macon, Mich., and was 53 years of age. She was born in New York state, had been a resident of Michigan nearly all her life. She was the first as well as the eldest of the children to be summoned by death to meet the parents who had gone before.

The funeral occurred on Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock, at the residence of J. Davidson, on Killbuck st. The services were conducted by the Rev. W. S. Sly, of Jackson, assisted by Rev. T. G. Potter, of Tecumseh. The interment was in the family lot at Ridgeway.

Mrs. Dewitt leaves three sisters and two brothers who sincerely mourn her loss, and although the final summons came all too quickly for the last good bye to each of the now broken circle, she would say, "Weep not, all is well, death is swallowed up in victory."

Nor shall I leave thee wholly. I shall be
An evening thought, a morning dream to thee,—
A silence in thy lips, when, through the night,
The bell strikes, or the sun, with sinking light,
Smites all the empty windows. As these sprout
Daisies, and dimpling tufts of violets out
Among the grays where some one lies asleep,
So round thy life, where I lie buried deep,
A thousand little tender thoughts shall spring,
A thousand gentle memories wind and cling.

Died, on Thursday night, May 31st 1888, at Tecumseh, Mich, Mr. Thomas Russell, aged 75.

Mr. Russell was a native of County Antrim, Ireland. He came to this country about 12 years ago and has been for several years in failing health. After long illness patiently borne he gently fell asleep to wake in the better world. He was "a good man full of faith and of the Holy Ghost." His wife and eight children, four sons and four daughters survive him. All the children but two are in this country.

MACON GRANGE.

A called meeting of Macon grange was held on Saturday, the 2d inst., for the purpose of initiating a class in the fourth degree and celebrating children's day, in addition to regular work. The members, with their families, friends and neighbors, met at 10 a.m., bringing with them their well-filled baskets.

The meeting was called to order at 11 o'clock, and regular order of business gone through, after which a class of 15 was initiated. At the close of the session it was announced that dinner was ready. Very soon the seats around the tables loaded with good things were filled. About 160 took dinner, a third of whom were children. At 2.30 p. m. all assembled in the upper hall to listen to an address by Rev. Benton. A committee afterward passed through the audience, dispensing gifts that had been provided for the children, consisting of candies, oranges, popcorn, peanuts, etc. We think the day was happily spent by all present, and at the proper time may be repeated.

Prohibition Caucus.

The prohibitionists of Tecumseh township are invited to meet at the Council room on Wednesday evening, June 20th, at 7:30 p. m., to elect delegates to attend the county convention to be held at Adrian on June 22d.

All members are requested to attend business meeting, for yearly election of officers. Supper will be served by Mrs. Crosby's committee. All are cordially invited.

Col. Robbins, pension attorney, filed application of George B. Elliott, of Adrian, for pension, January 30, 1888. It was allowed May 21, 1888, at $8 per month. William H. Smith, formerly of Co. A, 17th Michigan, claim filed December 6, 1887, pension allowed May 25, 1888. Such quick work indicates promptness and fidelity on the part of the attorney.—Adrian Times.

Very true, and it also indicates promptness and fidelity on the part of the pension bureau. There has been a wonderful improvement in that office since Gen. Black took the helm.

The Tecumseh HERALD offers a prize to the party who can guess nearest to the three hottest days politically during the coming campaign. Just send the prize over this way, brother. The day before and the day of the election will be two of the hottest. The other will be the day of the Republican state convention when that party will again attempt to hoodwink the temperance people with another installment of local option promises.—The Lance.

The M. E. church was well filled Sunday morning, to listen to the exercises appropriate to the observance of Children's Day. The floral decorations were never more beautiful nor more tastefully arranged. The primary class, consisting of more than forty bright faced children, formed a pretty group as they stood within the altar railing to give their part of the exercises. The entire program was up to the usual average, which consisted of recitations, readings and singing by the school.

The Lenawee County Hortfcultural Society will hold their June meeting in the City Hall, at Adrian, Friday, June 22d. Mr. J. W. Helm will have a paper on the subject of strawberries. There will also be a paper on "Flowers for June." The following premiums will be offered. Best collection of strawberries, five plates, 75, 50 and 25; display of cut flowers, 75, 50 and 25; best plate strawberries of any kind deemed worthy, by judges, 25. All may compete by becoming members of the society. All displays should be brought in by 1 o'clock.

E. A. Tribou went to Adrian Monday.

[illegible] went to Detroit Monday.

C. H. Hopkins, of Battle Creek, was in town a few days last week.

S. J. Walker, of Norvell, was visiting Tecumseh friends the first of the week.

Dr. Stewart has unfurled a Fisk & Brook's streamer at his celery farm. He is in the field early.

A delegation of Tecumseh ladies went to Adrian last Friday to assist in the observance of Flower Mission Day.

Fred Deuel has taken his steamer G. A. R. to Devil's Lake, where he expects to remain the balance of the season.

Dr. D. J. Dewey, of Washington, Iowa, is spending a couple of weeks with friends in Tecumseh and Cambridge.

W. C. Sharp, of Brooklyn, was in town over Sunday. We invite the attention of our musical readers to his new advertising card in another column.

Wm. H. Smith, of Springville, spent last Saturday and Sunday with his son Joe, in Tecumseh. Charley, Joe's brother, who now lives in Adrian, was also here on Sunday.

Bert and Will McNair are both expected home next week. Bert has just graduated at the Columbian Law School in Washington and Will has a vacation from his duties at West Point.

Mrs. Susan Hair, an old resident of Tecumseh departed this life on Tuesday last, aged 78 years and 8 months. The funeral will be held on Friday at 2 o'clock P. M. at her late residence west of the village.

The Soldiers & Sailors' Association of Eastern Michigan will hold a grand reunion on Belle Isle Park, Detroit, on the 3d, 4th, and 5th days of July. It is expected to be one of the largest military encampments ever held in this state.

Over 40 tickets were sold to excursionists for Presque Isle last Sunday from this station. Seven coaches were comfortably filled. The Isle was not reached until about six o'clock on account of a steamer being stuck on a sand bar in the channel and thus stopping the progress of other boats. The train passed through here about midnight on its return.

Monday evening, the Young People's Society of the M. E. church held a social and business meeting, which was largely attended. An instrumental duet by Will and Eda Ingersoll, formed a pleasing part of the program. Officers were elected for three months as follows:

President—B. Hurry.
Vice President—Vivia Howell.
Secretary—Adah Waldron.
Treasurer—Eugene Tremaine.
Chairmen of the various committees:
Prayer meeting—P. C. Snell.
Literary—Mrs. Fred Rosacrans.
Social—Nellie Lawrence.
Musical—Mrs. S. W. Anderson.
Visiting—Adah Potter.
Lookout—Mrs. P. C. Snell.
Decoration—Mrs. Harding.

The first number of the resurrected Lance has made its appearance. The publishers are Mr. M. P. Brown, of Tecumseh and D. W. Grandon, of West Virginia. Mr. Brown is well known throughout the county as a zealous prohibitionist, and Mr. Grandon has been firing grape and cannister into the liquor traffic for several months and is a ready writer who is well posted on that issue. The paper was issued at Hillsdale last week, but will be moved to Adrian this week. The permanancy of any prohibition party organ in this section will be very uncertain, but we believe the men now at the helm have the "git thar" qualities to make a success of it.

Fred Hall, son of D. T. Hall, generally rides his pony down to the Globe mill pond to let it drink. Tuesday evening when returning from such a ride he attempted to jump off the horse just as it was going through the barn door, but lost his balance and fell off, striking on his stomach. He was carried in the house in an insenseble condition and it was thought he had sustained a serious injury, but besides a general soreness of his body the injury was nothing. Later developments show that the boy is injured internally, as he passed a very restless time last night, and fears are entertained for his recovery.

The case of McCowen vs. Thorpe, which was tried in Justice Davidson's court last Friday, was the most amusing one on record to the spectators. The suit grew out of a difference of opinion as to whether W. T. Thorpe paid Mr. McCowen $1.50 indebtedness. It was Justice Davidson's first jury case and will probably be a memorable one to him, as well as to others. The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff, and Mr. Thorpe paid about $17.00 costs. He immediately began suit to recover damages he alleges done by Mr. McCowen to a cultivator owned by him, but carried the case down to Ridgeway where it will be tried, as Mr. Thorpe thinks he can get justice down him down there.

Prof. D. A. Hammond went to Charlotte last Friday.

Nathan Hale, son of Seneca Hale, who lived in Tecumseh away back in the thirties, was in town yesterday. His father built the house which Geo. Spafford now occupies.

Will Allen, brother of Frank, has taken the position of night clerk at the Battle Creek station of the C. J. and M. It is the same place he formerly held at Tecumseh.

Congressman Allen has our thanks for a copy of his tariff speech. We shall give it a careful perusal and shall undoubtedly agree with him or disagree with him.—One of the two.

The New McCormick takes the lead. Have just heard from the harvest in Texas where a man with the new McCormick knotter, only 7 pieces in it, and Blue Jay Twine tied up 80 acres of grain and did not miss a bundle.

A. W. Mills has just published a new book on Free Trade and Protection containing forty articles from the most noted advocates on both sides of this controversy, which sells for only $2.00. It is a work of great value. After a careful examination of the work, we shall give it a more extended notice.

There will be a meeting of the Tecumseh Cornet Band at their band room on Wednesday evening June 20th, at 8 o'clock, for considering and making arrangements for the Band reunion to be held here in August. The Band request all citizens that are interested in this reunion to meet with them at that time.

The commencement exercises of Raisin Valley Seminary will take place next week. On Sunday, the 17th, will come the baccalaureate sermon at 3 P. M. by Rev. W. K. Spencer of Adrian. Commencement proper will be given on Friday the 22d at 10 A. M. and the Alumni reunion on the evening of that day.

Word has been received that Mrs. Margaret J. Miller, of East Raisin who started from here May 1st, making a short visit in Washington with her son, Dr. Thomas Miller, and sailing the latter part of the month on the "State of Nebraska" from New York, has arrived in Scotland, safe and well, after a pleasant voyage. She will return in October.

At ten o'clock yesterday morning the marriage of Miss. Geneveive Frazer to Mr. John Bauden of Bessemer Mich, took place at the residence of the bride's father, G. W. Frazer, in this village. Only the family and a few intimate friends of the contracting parties were present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Babbitt. The bride is well and favorably known in this community and the groom is a rising young business man of Bessemer with Home and Co. merchants. They took the 12 M. train for Jackson and will go from there to their home. The HERALD begs leave to extend its congratulations to the young couple and its best wishes for their future welfare.

Gilmore's Band, the finest organization of its kind in the world, will appear in Adrian, Wednesday, June 27, afternoon and evening. The band will be led by P. S. Gilmore himself, and will present all the attractions which have been offered in the large cities. Our people have thus an opportunity of hearing the best band music near home and at comparatively small expense. Should there be an attendance of ten from this station the railroad fare will be reduced to one and a third fares for the round trip. Should the number reach fifty, the rate will be one fare for the trip. Additional information may be obtained from J. H. Smith at O. P. Bills & Co's bank who has the arrangements in charge for this place, also by consulting the advertisment which appears in another column.

The blanket matinee given by C. D. Bills was a success, good attendance, fine weather and fast time. The first race called was the 3-year-old class. It brought out two fine and speedy colts. The race was won in two straight hearts by Bidwell's Joe Rothschilds by Banker Rothschilds; Dabol by Banker Rothschilds, Second; time 2:59 and 2:54, the fastest mile ever trotted in the county by a three year old at this season of the year. The three minute class was won by Whelan's Tipton Boy in straight heats; Cambridge Maid 2d. The free for all was captured by Westfall's Bell H. of Mooreville. Hunter 2:26¼ by Banker Rothschilds, also gave a very fine exhibition, trotting the mile in 2:29 with apparent ease. He was shipped to Elmyra, N. Y. to take part in race to be trotted on the 14th. There will be another matinee given at Bills' track, on the 22d. of this month. A grand time is expected.

HOT LINERS FROM THE DIAMOND.

Tecumseh vs. Norvell and Norvell vs. D[illegible] Monday afternoon and afternoon.

The fever has struck the business men and they will throw down ledgers, journals, pens, etc, and wrestle for the supremacy on the diamond this afternoon. Burt Garlinghouse captains one side and Joe Smith looks after the opposite nine.

President—E. N. Satterthwaite.
Vice Pres.—Chas. Keysor.
Secretary—Will Spayde.
Treas.—Burt Conklin.
Manager—Jehiel Davidson.
Asst. Mgt.—Sam McClure.

A committee was appointed to draft constitution and by-laws for the government of the association.

The first game of the season on the new ball grounds took place Monday afternoon between two local nines of this village, one of them going under the sobriquet of "Gravel Pit" club. The opposing club was made up of several of Tecumseh's best players filled in with Ridgeway and Clinton talent. The game did not prove very exciting, although several good plays were made on both sides. Only five innings were played and were umpired by W. W. Frazer. The Tecumseh boys have the stuff in them to make good ball players and after they have played a few games, and get their hand in, they will be able to down anything in the county. The "pit" battery in Monday's game was composed of Gordon and Johnson, who were pitted against Codling and Palmer in the opposing team. It is needless to say it was a pitiful spectacle, and exceedingly one sided. Both pitchers were hit freely, although the pit men did not make theirs count. Codling struck out four men and Gordon one. At the end of the 5th innings the score stood 20 to 3 in favor of Tecumseh. Below is the score by innings:

Tecumseh	6	5	3	0	6	—	20

Next Monday will probably be played the first really good game of the season. The Tecumseh will play their regular nine against the Norvell in the morning at 9:30, and in the afternoon at 2:30 Norvell and Deerfield will play. Both nines are good players and a close contest will be the result. Admission 15cts; ladies free; children under 12, 10cts.

Since the above was in type a game has been arranged for to-morrow, Friday at 2:30 P. M. between Ridgeway and Tecumseh. The Ridgeways are fine players and it will doubtless be a good game. Admission 10cts; grand stand 10cts; ladies free.

The Tecumseh Browns are playing better ball than when they began. They went over to Clinton last Saturday and played the second nine, score 19 to 13 in favor of Clinton. The return game will be played at Tecumseh Saturday, June 16, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon.

Chicago now stands at the head of the league games, and Detroit has crept up to second place. The tug of war is yet to come.

SAND LAKE HOUSE OPENING.

On Friday of last week, Mr. E. L. Wells, proprietor of the Sand Lake House, opened the season of 1888 in fine style. People began to arrive soon after breakfast in the morning and before noon a good crowd had assembled. The chief attraction during the day was the base ball ground which is located about twenty rods east of the house and near the North east end of the lake. The forenoon's game was contested by the Invincibles and Evans Lake clubs and resulted in a victory for the former by a score of 19 to 15. Below is the score by runs.

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Invincibles	0	5	4	0	1	0	0	3	6	—19
Evans Lake	3	0	0	0	3	7	0	2	0	—15

Battery for Invincibles—Silvernail and Kelly; For Evans Lake—Hardcastle and Moore. Umpire—Hart.

During the noon hour the Sand Lake House was crowded, but dinner was served to all in due time. By two o'clock the crowd had swelled to city proportions and both the hotel and ball-grounds swarmed with guests. The ball game attracted the most spectators although many persons utilized the boats to take a row on the lake.

The afternoon game was called about three o'clock between Clinton and Norvell. Clinton took the bat and made seven tallies the very first inning. This rather demoralized the Norvell boys and they made only two runs in the 7th inning against 20 for Clinton. The game was so one sided as to be rather monotonous during the last hour. Below is the score

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Norvell	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	0	2	—2

Battery for Clinton—Sinclair and Scofield; for Norvell—Cole and Boocher. Umpire—Geo. Bobb.

Landlord Wells had another house full at supper, but his arrangements for accommodating the crowd were perfect and everything moved along like clock work. The entertainment wound up with a grand ball at night with music by Teachout's band, and the festivities were kept up until the early light of morning began to dawn.

It was a good jovial house warming and no mistake. Mr. Wells has opened the season very auspiciously and he expects to have a good patronage this summer. At least he intends to deserve it.

BRITTON BUDGET.

The funeral services of Mrs. Ida L. Dean Smith took place at her late home on Tuesday, June 12, 1888, at 2 p. m., conducted by Rev. Jas. Wright, of Britton, assisted by Rev. Mr. Moffit of Clarksville, when a large company of friends and neighbors were present in deep sympathy with the bereaved husband. The deceased was the wife of Joseph D. Smith, of the town of Dundee, Monroe co., Mich., and the daughter of John and Ortincia Dean. She was born in Oneida co., N. Y., Jan. 10, 1862, and died June 10, 1888, after one week's severe sickness of billious intermittent fever, aged 26 years and 5 months. She was united in marriage to Joseph D. Smith, Jan. 18, 1882, and in her death following three little sons who have entered into peace before the mother. One little boy four weeks old and a little daughter of two years remain with their father to walk the lone path of life. She also leaves a mother, two brothers and two sisters, her father having died three weeks since. Text, Mark xiv, 8—"She hath done what she could." To God, the Allwise, we leave the bereaved ones. J. W.

—C. A. Slayton has the agency for the McCormick light steel binder again, and has a sample set up, which he invites the farmers to examine. It has the simplest knot tyer of all binders, seven pieces doing the work of forty-six.

—Photographs—The undersigned has opened a new gallery in Clinton and wishes to state to his friends of Tecumseh and vicinity, that he is prepared to do as fine photo work as any other gallery in Michigan. Call in and see samples and be convinced.

Yours Respectfully,
GEO. S. GIBSON.

POINTED TESTIMONY

Witness Had Ridden 36 Miles To Deliver.

In a Kentucky Court. Lawyer (to witness)—"Where were you when the defendant knocked the plaintiff down?"

Witness—"On my hoss."

Lawyer—"Where was your horse?"

Witness—"In the big road."

Lawyer—"You were on your horse?"

Witness—"That's whut I said."

"And your horse was in the big road?"

"That's what I 'lowed."

"Ah, hah. What time was it?"

"Don't know."

"Ah, hah. You were on your horse?"

"Yes."

"In the big road?"

"Yes."

"On your horse in the big road when the defendant knocked the plaintiff down?"

"Yes."

"The plaintiff down?"

"Yes."

"On your horse?"

"Yes."

"In the big road?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, where was the plaintiff when he was knocked down?"

"On the ground."

"On the ground when he had been knocked down?"

"Yes."

"On your horse?"

"Yes."

"In the big road?"

"Yes."

"Well, how far is it from the road to the spring?"

"Half mile."

"From the big road?"

"Yes."

"The big road where you were on your horse?"

"Yes, sir."

"So the plaintiff was on the ground?"

"Yes."

"When he was knocked down?"

"Yes."

"In the big road?"

"Yes."

"Well, you may go home. We have no further use for you."

He had ridden a blind horse thirty-six miles to deliver this testimony.—Arkansaw Traveller.

Short Stories.

"Say, ma, Mrs. Brown has a cake on her supper table three stories high," exclaimed little Johnnie as he rushed into the family sitting-room.

Johnnie's mother was inclined to believe that her little boy's story was taller than the cake until she made an investigation and found the marvel to be a layer jelly cake.—Buffalo Express.

Agreeing with the Minister.

"I think," said the minister, who was visiting a parishioner, "that it is easier to coax children than to drive them. Gentle words are more effective than harsh ones."

"I think so, too," said the lady tenderly. Then she raised her window and suddenly shouted to her boy:

"Johnnie, if you don't come in out of that mud puddle I'll break your back!"—Columbus Dispatch.

He Knew Natural History.

A Professor of Natural History wandered away from the Smithsonian the other day and got into a lawyer's office on F street, where there is a very pompous young clerk.

The Professor asked two or three questions to the point at issue, and the clerk loudly remarked to him very largely:

"I tell you it's true, and it is true. What do you know about law, anyway?"

"Nothing, nothing at all," replied the Professor meekly, "but I know a great deal about natural history, and I think you are an ass."—Washington Critic.

CHANGING A BIG BILL.

"I have nothing but a fifty-dollar bill," said a lady who had been making some purchases at a little notion store on Sixth avenue, New York. "Can you change it?"

The proprietor took the bill, examined it critically, fumbled in his money drawer awhile, and then called his boy from the back of the store.

And the lady did wait, until she became nervous and uneasy at his prolonged absence. Finally she ventured to say, timidly:

"That boy's all right, isn't he? Seems to me he's gone a good while."

"So it seems to me," replied the proprietor, looking up from the newspaper he was reading. "Guess he's all right, though. He's a new boy, you see, only had him a few days, and you can't tell how a boy will turn out until you've tried him."

"But he came well recommended, didn't he?" asked the lady, growing faint at the thought that he might abscond with her money.

"Oh, yes, he was well enough recommended. His father and mother both came and gave him the best kind of recommendation, though I forget just where they said they lived."

"Have you never trusted him before to get a fifty-dollar bill changed?" she asked, hesitatingly.

"No, this boy," he replied, "But I had a boy last summer—looked a good deal like this one, come, to think, same age, size, same squint—that I sent to get a fifty-dollar bill changed, and do you know, madam, I never seen that boy since nor the money either."

The lady, who had been standing by the counter, felt very weak all of a sudden and sank into a chair. The proprietor, absorbed in this latter reminiscence, did not notice her agitation and continued:

"But I heard of him, though, up in Canada," and he smiled at his little joke.

"Living in luxury on his stolen gains, I suppose," said the lady bitterly.

"No; he had spent his money and was worn to a shadow by remorse."

"Hadn't you better send somebody to look for the boy who took my money?" suggested the lady, now thoroughly alarmed.

"Not a bit of use, madam," said the notion dealer, tranquilly. "If he's skipped he's clean out of reach by this time. I had six policemen hunting t'other boy within ten minutes after he left the store, for somehow I had misgivings about him, but they couldn't find hide nor hair of that young rascal. 'Twould be just the same in this case. The only thing that can overtake a boy like that is remorse, and I wouldn't want to bet much on remorse unless I could get big odds."

Fortunately, at this moment, the boy returned with the desired change, and remorse was knocked out of a job.

NEAR SIGHTED PEOPLE.

A New York Optician Explains the Causes of and Gives Remedies for Myopia.

"In no other city in the world can be found so many people afflicted with myopia or near sightedness as in right here in New York," said a Broadway optician a few days since.

"To what do you attribute the prevalence of this partial blindness?"

"Near sightedness arises from a number of causes, chief among which are reading in the dusk of the evening, or fatiguing the eyes in trying to read by aid of a bad artificial illumination; reading while in a lying position, or with the head thrust too far forward; the perusing of blurred or slovenly printed books, or matter printed in a very small type. All these and many other things conduce to a gradual decrease in the power of vision, and if too greatly persisted in will finally end in the total destruction of the sight.

"The principal cause of the prevalence of short sightedness (among our business men at least), is the pernicious habit so largely indulged in of reading newspapers while riding in the surface cars or omnibuses. The jolting or swaying motion of the car or 'bus causes an unsteadiness of hand, which makes the type appear blurred and uncertain. The steadier easy motion of the cars on the elevated roads has done much toward the preservation of the eyesight of those who find that they must read while en route and who patronize the aerial mode of transit."

"When does one become conscious of failing visual power?" was asked.

"One first begins to discover that he is losing his keenness of vision when the signs along the streets and distant objects are not easily discernible without a conscious effort, accompanied by a painful straining and extension of the pupil. When one is convinced that his eyesight is failing him he should not delay a moment before consulting an oculist."

"Is not near sightedness sometimes hereditary?"

"I believe hereditary influence to be of great effect in causing short sight. I have known large families, whose members, from the youngest to the oldest, were afflicted with weak eyes or a too short range of vision. The sight can be preserved and prevented from growing poorer only by the use of proper glasses at the proper time. A dangerous mistake too often made, is that of wearing glasses which are either too weak or what is worse, too strong for the requirement of the eye."

TO COOL WATER.

The Egyptian Mode of Doing It, and an Effective One.

I need state only three facts to show the rapidity of evaporation in Upper Egypt. Water too warm to drink is put into a porous jar and placed in the wind, though in the sun; in a half hour it is as cool as good spring water. At night, exposed to a breeze, even when the breeze is rather warm, before morning it becomes almost icy cold.

The night of my arrival here I took a pouring bath on a balcony. The wind was bleak and fresh. The rapidity of evaporation so chilled me that I could not stay out long enough for my bath.

At the foot of the cataract we took a swim in the Nile. We were soon undercover of darkness, when we turned up before our state rooms to dry. In ten minutes they were dry enough to be worn.

We have all heard of the universal habit of all Africans to anoint themselves with oil, and travelers speak of it as a nasty habit. It is, however, necessary in very hot and very dry climates to prevent the cracking of the skin. An English officer told me that during the hot winds on the Upper Nile his face and hands chapped worse than they ever did in a cold climate—chapped even to bleeding badly.

I have found fresh, white butter quite as pleasant on my hands as on my toast.

The boys have felt no inconvenience from the winds. My hands are very sensitive to the effect of a dry, dusty atmosphere. At Assouan we were in the sun during two days. We did not use our umbrellas, our pith hats being quite comfortable, and yet we were just on the edge of the tropics.—Carter Harrison.

ILLUSTRATING VOCAL PROGRESS.

The discourse, which consisted of an exposition of the Holt system of musical instruction, was illustrated by 21 little tots from the Workingmen's School of the Society of Ethical Culture, who had been under instruction about eight months.

The Holt system is founded upon the principle of rhythm, which Mr. Damrosch defined as a mental conception, the regular recurrence of accented sounds.

The principle as applied to the music score was demonstrated by the use of a pendulum operated by the speaker. The varied oscillations of this instrument marked the different tempi and took the place of beating time by hand, which was considered detrimental to the pupil's progress by reason of the motion of the hand attracting the pupil's attention at the expense of the ear, which should be kept free from any detracting influence.

French Women's Corsets.

Let common sense decide as to corsets. A weak, nervous woman who feels best in loose wrappers cannot judge for a robust girl who really enjoys the trim set of her corset, and takes no harm from it. It is painful, however, and unsuitable to see active housekeepers going about morning, noon and night in close fitting dresses and corsets.

Except some support for flabby figures, no corset should be worn in working dress, which, in or out of doors, should come as near the freedom of a gymnasium suit as possible.

French women have sense about this, and teach their children and order their households half the day in flowing gowns which would scandalize our tricked-up matrons. Then the slender artistic corset is worn with visiting and evening dress, to far less detriment.—New York Sun.

Shakespeare Vindicated.

The Spokane Falls burglar who grinned when Mr. Cannon fired six shots at him is another proof that a man can smile and smile and be a villain still.—San Francisco Examiner.

A Model Wife.

There is a couple in Wilkes County who have been married about 40 years and during that time the wife has never asked the husband for any money except 10 cents.—Savannah News.

Excitement in Texas.

Great excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Paris, Tex., by the wonderful cure of Mr. E. E. Corley, who was so weak he could not turn in bed, or raise his head; everybody said he was dying of Consumption. A trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery was sent him. Finding relief, he bought a large bottle and a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills; by the time he had taken two boxes of Pills and two bottles of the Discovery, he was well and had gained in flesh thirty-six pounds.

A Modern Miracle.

Mrs. J. W. Wentworth, of Elkhart, Ind., was long subject to pain in the side, shortness of breath, weakness, pain in the side, slight cough, swelling of the ankles and other symptoms of serious heart disease. She was expected to die at any time. Doctors in New York, Toledo, etc., failed to help her. But two bottles of Dr. Miles' New Cure for the Heart cured her three years ago and she has remained well ever since. Heart disease can be cured. Sold by Baker & Hale.

Prohibition

Of the LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

By Rev. S. M. VERNON, D.D.

The most active and aggressive period ever known in temperance work renders timely the appearance of this crisp, original and vigorous volume. It is a book quite out of the beaten track, newsy and piquant, bristling with telling points, brief, clear, sprightly, candid, earnest, searching, fair, dispassionate, full of ringing facts and bright with sterling truths.

It popularizes the burning question of "Prohibition," brings it down to every man's door, marshals its many startling facts in new and surprising forms, crystallizes and incorporates the results in vital and impressive forms for the benefit whose daily victims but increase in number, and the poison of whose breath blasts whatever it touches. Cloth $1.00. MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, on the 11th day of October, 1883, Samuel W. Temple mortgaged to Addison Hardenburg, all that parcel of land situate in the village of Tecumseh, County of Lenawee and State of Michigan, described as follows, to wit: Beginning at a point in the east line of Pearl street ten (10) rods north of the north line of Shawnee street, running thence eastwardly parallel with said ten (10) rods distant from said North line of Shawnee street about ten (10) rods to the Railway Depot Grounds; thence northward on west line of said Depot Grounds about six (6) rods to lands of Reesen Brothers and Nyland Factory; thence west on south line of said land of Reesen Brothers and Nyland two (2) rods more or less to land conveyed by said Samuel W. Temple and wife, Hettie A. to Edwin Wood; thence south on east line of said land 86 and a half (86½) rods to the southeast corner thereof; thence west on south line of said parcel of land so as aforesaid conveyed to said Wood eight (8) rods to the east line of Pearl street aforesaid; thence south on east line of said Pearl street to the place of beginning, with all the appurtenances thereto belonging or in anywise appertaining or thereupon situated, including the machinery in and about the buildings thereon or to be hereafter annexed to the same or any part thereof, to secure the payment of $2558.00 in five years from the date thereof with interest to be paid annually at the rate of ten per cent. per annum for the first three years, and for the remaining two years interest to be paid annually at the rate of nine per cent. per annum, which mortgage was on the 11th day of October, 1883, duly recorded in office of Register of Deeds for said county of Lenawee in Liber 93 of mortgages on page 329 and 330. And whereas said mortgage contains a provision that in event any default shall be made in the payment of said interest, or any part thereof at the time therein specified, and shall remain in arrears for the space of sixty days the aforesaid principal sum with all arrearages of interest thereon shall at the option of said mortgagee, his executors, administrators and assigns, become due and payable. And whereas default has been made in the payment of interest on said mortgage to the amount of $40.00 and upwards and the same having remained unpaid and in arrears for a space of more than sixty days, and the undersigned, administratrix, hereby elects to declare and does hereby declare the whole amount due, both principal and interest, amounting at the date of this notice to the sum of $3180.82 100, and no proceedings having been commenced at law or in equity for the recovery of said sum or any part thereof. And whereas the undersigned administratrix has been compelled to pay the further sum of $8.37-100 for insurance premiums to protect her interest as such administratrix in the mortgaged premises.

Notice is therefore hereby given of the power of sale in said mortgage and by virtue of the statutes of Michigan in such case made and provided, for the purpose of realizing the money owing on said mortgage, and the interest on from and after the date of this notice, said insurance premiums and interest thereon, as provided in said mortgage, and the cost and expense of this foreclosure, and the attorney fee provided by law; the said above described lands and premises will be sold at public vendue to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House in the city of Adrian in said County of Lenawee (that being the place where the circuit court for said county of Lenawee is holden) on Saturday, the 26th day of May, A.D. 1888, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day.

MORTGAGE SALE.

By a certain indenture of mortgage bearing date the 7th day of January, A.D., 1885, executed by Hiram Smith of Madison township, County of Lenawee, and State of Michigan, to Frank N. Chamberlin of the same place, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Lenawee County, State of Michigan, on the 9th day of January, A.D., 1885, in Liber 93 of Mortgages, on page 329, the said Hiram Smith, also sold Chamberlin all that certain piece of parcel of land situate in the city of Adrian, county of Lenawee and State of Michigan, described as follows, to wit: Lot numbered three (3) in block numbered two (2) in the plat of Adams Bent's addition to the village of Adrian, according to the record of said plat in the office of the Register of Deeds for said County of Lenawee, excepting and reserving the south eighty (80) feet off the west side of said lot, thirty feet to be used in common with owner of premises next west. The premises herein conveyed to be used and occupied as a dwelling house, and the said mortgagee, in the condition of said mortgage, with the power of sale therein contained has been operative. There is now claimed to be due and unpaid on said mortgage the sum of one hundred and fifty-seven dollars and [illegible] cents, being for principal and interest, and for payment of taxes and insurance premiums, and no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to collect the same or any part thereof. Notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale, and the statutes in such case made and provided, the said mortgaged premises will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder on the 6th day of August, A.D. 1888, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the Court House in the city of Adrian, that being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said County of Lenawee, to satisfy the amount then due, together with all legal costs and charges of this foreclosure.

Dated May 7, 1888.

ESTATE OF JOHN NIBLACK.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Wednesday, the 16th day of May, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

On reading and filing the petition of Elwin Horton, administrator upon said estate, alleging among other things that the funeral expenses of said deceased and the expenses of administration thereof have been fully paid, that said estate is insolvent and praying for the allowance of his final account and that a dividend of the residue of said estate remaining in his hands may be made under the order of this court among the creditors of said deceased, and that he may be discharged and his bond cancelled, and for such other and further relief as to this court shall seem proper.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 18th day of June next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, three successive weeks, previous to said day of hearing.

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

Beauty

Is desired and admired by all. Among the things which may best be done to enhance personal beauty is the daily use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. No matter the hair, this preparation gives it a lustre and pliancy that adds greatly to its charm. Should the hair be thin, harsh, dry, or turning gray, Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore the color, bring out a new growth, and render the old soft and shiny. For keeping the scalp clean, cool, and healthy, there is no better preparation in the market.

"I am free to confess that a trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor has convinced me that it is a genuine article. Its use has not only caused the hair of my wife and daughter to be but it has given my rather stunted mustache a respectable length and appearance."—R. Britton, Oakland, Ohio.

"My hair was coming out (without any assistance from my wife, either). I tried Ayer's Hair Vigor, using only one bottle, and I now have as fine a head of hair as any one could wish for."—R. T. Schmittou, Dickson, Tenn.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor in my family for a number of years, and regard it as the best hair preparation I know of. It keeps the scalp clean, the hair soft and lively, and preserves the original color. My wife has used it for a long time with most satisfactory results."—Benjamin M. Johnson, M. D., Thomas Hill, Mo.

"My hair was becoming harsh and dry, but after using half a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it grew black and glossy. I cannot express the joy and gratitude I feel."—Mabel C. Hardy, Delavan, Ill.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

THE GREAT COMMISION.—MATT. XXVIII, 16 20.

Notes.—"The eleven disciples."—Judas Iscariot had commited suicide.——"Unto the mountain."—A special ly designated place. He had told them what mountain at some unreported conversation. We can at least conjecture that a retired spot was selected, so that the "five hundred at once" (1 Cor. xv, 6) might meet him there too. The Great Commission was thus given to many at this great meeting. Galilee was a natural place to choose as it contained a greater number of trustworthy disciples and was far removed from the suspicious and watchful eyes of the High Priests.——"All authority."—Founded on power and right.——"Given to me."—Inherent, but imparted by the Father as a consequence of his voluntary humiliation and victory. Henceforth he came into possession of his premundane glory, only he added thereto the power and sympathy of humanity besides the authority of Deity.——"Therefore."—In the strength of his authority and of his power over the human heart he bids them go on an aggressive warfare. This humble Galilean had inaugurated the most wonderful enterprise that mortals had ever been called upon to assist.——"In the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost."—This is probably the most complete and satisfactory proof of the Trinity that we have. It is here a revelation from Christ himself. Though few understand it and none can grasp the wideness of its meaning, we accept it in faith with the other revelations of Christ.——"Unto the end of the world."—The material world; unto death; unto the end of our human system.

INSTRUCTION.—Away to meet Jesus! Most go away off from him. But if we can escape from the maelstrom of sin that gapes to devour us, if we can fly away to the place Christ has appointed to meet us, even though it be very far from where we are now, then we shall hear some of the promises, and ourselves receive the great commission with the chosen.

It is perfectly fair that the honest doubter should demand invincible proofs; but when such proofs are actually given over and over again, the doubter becomes a dishonest and self-distrustful fool if he accepts them not. The disciples that knew him well worshiped. Those that came out of curiosity or from faint approval, doubted. Christ is more visible to-day and gives greater proofs of the divinity of his mission than he did when among the disciples. Eyes are needed to see, then heart and intelligence to believe.

It is a safe enterprise to carry the religion of Jesus upon the authority of the risen one. Who can hesitate when Christ says "Go?" What soldier flinches when Sheridan gave the command?

Christianity of all religions is a proselyting and missionary enterprise. It is a system for the purpose of instruction. But it must appeal to the intelligence of mankind. No religion carries so much authority by virtue of its reasonableness as this. So if we would teach intelligently the truths that Christ made manifest there is no use of pouring pious mush down parched throats, but we must give well constructed arguments based upon the life and love of Jesus.

Christ's last Commission in the marching orders of his church. Its first great business is to disciple the nations. Nothing else is so important as its missionary work.

All nations! This truth is adapted as well in its simplicity to the wild men of Borneo as in its deep philosophy it is to an Augustine. Milk must be given to babes and meat to strong men. Teachers of all grades find it the most delicate task they have to adapt the truth to the minds of those they would attract. The simplicity of Christ's method and the principle of "Put yourself in his place" will help the difficulty wonderfully.

Men are to be taught not only to know but to do. Great is the difference between them. The translation of the knowledge of Christ into deeds is one of the hardest duties of the Christian.

Christ with us. A practical truth. Suppose we take greater advantage of his brotherliness and make him more helpful in our lives.

Christ with us; then we with him. Noah and Enoch would have given the whole world for our opportunity of walking heart to heart with the Messiah.

A box of Ayer's Pills has saved many a fit of sickness. When a remedy does not happen to be within reach, people are liable to neglect slight ailments and, of course, if serious illness follows they have to suffer the consequence. "A stitch in time saves nine."

DANIEL DANCER.

For Gold May Lead a Man to.

Daniel Dancer's life is the most striking example perhaps in all history of the insatiable thirst for gold.

His father died and left him, together with a sister, a comfortable fortune. Dancer and his sister lived in a miserable hut near Harrow in Middlesex. Their fare consisted of a piece of cheap beef and fourteen hard dumplings boiled on Sunday, and this lasted them the rest of the week.

The pair dressed in rags, and when the sister was dying from cold and starvation her brother refused to summon medical aid on the ground that he could not spend his money for medicine, because if the "old girl" was going to die the doctors couldn't save her anyhow.

Dancer was too miserly to provide soap and towels for himself. He would wash in a neighboring pool and lie out in the sun till he was dried. His clothes, a mass of patches, were held up by a belt of hay, and his whole appearance was that of abject misery.

Dancer on his rambles never returned empty-handed. He would gather up the bones in the village streets and lanes, bring them home, and after picking them clean himself would crack them and feed them to his dog.

Once neighbors complained that his dog worried and killed their sheep, and for fear that he would have to pay for future depredations, he took the dog to a blacksmith's, where he had all the poor dog's teeth broken off to prevent a further recurrence of the trouble. He mended his own shoes and wore one hat continuously for thirteen years.

When he lay on his dying bed his only garment was an old sack. When remonstrated with he said that he came into the world without a shirt and he would go out of it that way.

When a visitor suggested that he have a pillow for his head he ordered his only servant, whose weekly wages were thirty cents, to bring him a wisp of hay, which he used as a pillow till his death, a few days later.

He left an estate valued at $25,000, amply sufficient for all his needs during his lifetime had he so desired. This money, in odd sums, was hidden in old rags, nailed down to the under part of the manger floor in his miserable cow shed, and over $10,000 was found hidden in the manure pile, where it had lain for years.

SPEARING SUCKERS.

Spearing suckers by torchlight is a sport much practiced on the western branch of the Passaic River for a distance of several miles. Every night the torches can be seen flashing along shore as far as the eye can reach, and the effect is peculiar and very pleasing.

The fish always lie close inshore at night, and as they are of a sluggish nature and can be quite easily seen by the aid of the torches some of the more skillful spearmen secure a large number in a short time.

One of the best stretches for the sport extends from Hawthorne, near where the first toll-gate on the Godwinville macadamized road formerly stood, to the Main street bridge. Some nights there will be an almost continuous line of torches throughout this entire distance, which is fully a mile.

Spearing suckers is the tamest and most stupid manner of taking fish, still-fishing with angle worms ranking next, and is regarded by sportsmen as being about on a par with pot-hunting for game; the highest form is casting for trout, bass or other game fish.—Paterson Guardian.

"TOM PINCH" IN NEW YORK.

A Useful and Exemplary Philanthropist—Example of His Noble Work.

In a long, narrow, rather dusky room, with a desk by the only window, and an odd assortment of trunks piled one above another, household utensils, and a couch suspiciously like a bed, lives a modern Tom Pinch, with a heart as warm as sunshine and a hand of ready sympathy reached out to the help of the unfortunate.

Perhaps no man in the city accomplishes more real charity than this unassuming, unknown little man in the rusty black suit and antiquated tile. He can understand how the very sound of the word "home" is distasteful to a proud-spirited woman, appreciates the shrinking a cultured woman feels from the companionship of some of the inmates of the cosmopolitan charitable institutions, and sympathizes with the repugnance a refined woman feels for positions of drudgery for which she is physically unfitted and mentally superior.

An educated, refined, gifted young woman came to the city to seek her fortune, the typical female Benjamin Franklin. She obtained board in a cheap downtown hotel, and remained until her funds were exhausted, drifted into one of the "Homes," and finally came to this man with just 75 cents in her pocket.

A place was found for her in a western town, and there she educated herself, in an eminent profession, established and built up a lucrative practice, and is an honored and esteemed citizen.—New York Sun.

CONTRASTS IN COURT.

The Long and the Short of the Matter.

There is a story about old Peter Faucett, the New South Wales Supreme Court Judge, who lately retired. He was somewhat shortsighted, and one day a very diminutive barrister appeared before him to move something or other.

When the short man stood up alongside "Jumbo," a very tall barrister, who was sitting down, their heads were about on a level, and as soon as the small man began:

"If your Honor please, I——"

"Ye must stand up when y' address the Coort," interrupted old Peter irascibly.

"I'm standing up," said the small man, with dignity.

"Then tell the gentleman alongside ye to sit down."—New Zealand Times.

Sadie's Special Thinking.

Sadie was lying on the bed and her aunt told her to come to her, but Sadie heeded not.

"Come here, Sadie," repeated the aunt. The child paid no attention to the command.

"Will you get up from there and come to me?" exclaimed the lady, warningly.

Sadie turned over slowly and lifted up her curly head.

"I ain't thinkin' about shall," she said, "I'm thinkin' about shan't, and down she went again."—Washington Critic.

FOOD TESTS IN NEW YORK.

Adulterations in Cream of Tartar.

Under the direction of the New York State Board of Health, eighty-four different kinds of baking powders, embracing all the brands that could be found for sale in the State, were submitted to Prof. C. F. CHANDLER, a member of the State Board and President of the New York City Board of Health, assisted by Prof. EDWARD G. LOVE, the well-known United States Government chemist.

The official report shows that a large number of the powders examined were found to contain alum or lime; many of them to such an extent as to render them seriously objectionable for use in the preparation of human food.

Alum was found in twenty-nine samples. This drug is employed in baking powders to cheapen their cost. The presence of lime is attributed to the impure cream of tartar of commerce used in their manufacture. Such cream of tartar was also analyzed and found to contain lime and other impurities; in some samples to the extent of 93 per cent. of their entire weight.

All the baking powders of the market with the single exception of "Royal" (not including the alum and phosphate powders, which have not the virtue of even an impure cream of tartar), are made from the adulterated cream of tartar of commerce, and consequently contain lime to a corresponding extent.

The only baking powder yet found by chemical analysis to be entirely free from lime and absolutely pure is the "Royal." This perfect purity results from the exclusive use of cream of tartar specially refined and prepared by patent processes which totally remove the tartrate of lime and other impurities. The cost of this chemically pure cream of tartar is much greater than any other, and on account of this greater cost is used in no baking powder but the "Royal."

Prof. LOVE, who made the analysis of baking powders for the New York State Board of Health, as well as for the Government, says of the purity and wholesomeness of the "Royal": "I find the Royal Baking Powders composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates or other injurious substance. E. G. LOVE, PH. D."

It is highly satisfactory to the housekeepers of this vicinity, where the Royal Baking Powder is in general use, that the investigations by the analysts in Massachusetts, New York, and Ohio, the only States that have thus far taken action upon this important subject, agree in classing it as the purest and most efficient baking powder in the market.

Dr. Nelson, of Rideway, does not find patients enough to tax his patience, and threatened to explode his wallet, and believes that he could do humanity full as much good by holding the office of register of deeds, if the republicans have sufficient votes in the county to place him there. The position seems to be a sort of doc's grab bag. Dr. A. W. Smith, of this city, will also feel of the pulse of the convention with a view of being the family physician to the county offices.—Adrian Press.

The Laugh Cure.

All sorts of isms, pathies and "cures" have had their day, their disciples, and more or less success, but the "Laugh Cure" we have always with us, or ought to have, for it is sure to benefit even where it may fail to cure. Since the most ancient "chestnuts" will often provoke the heartiest laugh, especially when served up in a new dress, we can afford to forgive the man who has corrected many old and new favorites in a paper covered book called "Medical Sense and Nonsense," for ten cents, Illustrated. It is confidently offered as antidotal to the "blues," stimulating to the diaphragm, and accelerating to the blood circulation, and is served out by mail, on receipt of price, by the Murray Hill Publishing Company, 129 East 28th Street New York.

Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic is not a stimulant but a nerve food, restoring nerve force lost by sickness or excessive mental work or the use of liquor, opium, morphine or tobacco. It supplies food for nerve tissues and by its gentle aperative action, removes all restraint from the secretive organs, hence curing all diseases of stomach and liver. Dr. Geo Ferguson will supply the genuine Red Clover Tonic at 50 cents a bottle.

Interesting Facts.

Changes in the brain and nerves are the most common cause of disease. Their influence on the body is wonderful. Shame flushes the palest and fear blanches the rosiest cheek an whitens the blacke t hair in a night. Worry causes dyspepsia and hastens old age. Terror or excitement often causes instant death, etc. Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine removes the effects of worry, overwork, alcoholic excess, morphine habit, nervousness, dyspepsia, sleeplessness, headache, neuralgia and nervous prostration. Sold by Baker & Hall.

I suffered from a very severe cold in my head for months and used everything recommended, but could get no relief. Was advised to use Ely's Cream Balm. It has worked like magic in its cure. I am free from my cold after using the Balm one week, and I believe it is the best remedy known. Feeling grateful for what it has done for me I send this testimonial.—Samuel J. Harris, Wholesale Grocer, 116 Front St., New York.

For sick headache, Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup is miraculous in its cures, regulating to a healthy condition the stomach and digestive organs.

THERE is nothing more miraculous in its effects, entirely removing from the face moth patches or brown spots purely by its action on the blood, than Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup.

Inherited Diseases.

No fact of nature is more frequently the inheritance of disease.

Modern science, which has illuminated so many dark corners of nature, has shed a new light on the ominous words of the Scriptures, "The sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children unto the third and fourth generation." Fifty per cent. of cases of consumption, cancer and scrofula, run in families through inheritance. Insanity is hereditary in a marked degree, but, fortunately, like many other hereditary diseases, tends to wear itself out, the stock becoming extinct. A distinguished scientist truly says: "No organ or texture of the body is exempt from the chance of being the subject of hereditary disease." Probably more chronic diseases, which permanently modify the structure and functions of the body, are more or less liable to be inherited. The important and far-reaching practical deductions from such facts are obvious to reflecting minds, and the best means for preventing or curing these diseases is a subject of intense interest to all. Fortunately nature has provided a remedy, which experience has attested as infallible, and the remedy is the world-famous Swift's Specific, a pure vegetable compound—nature's antidote for all blood poisons. To the afflicted it is a blessing of inestimable value. An interesting treatise on "Blood and Skin Diseases" will be mailed free by addressing

When the Wabash through freight pulled in at this station Thursday morning a rather unusual spectacle greeted the eyes of our citizens. The train had run through a flock of sheep at Lowe's crossing, about a mile west, and one of their number had been neatly scooped up onto the pilot and given a free ride into the village. When the engine struck the Chicago street crossing the animal started to come from its perch and was tumbled onto the sidewalk, where it was captured by Joseph Daykin. It is as yet in his possession awaiting identification.—Britton Eagle.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

VILLAGE OF TECUMSEH, MICH., Council Room, May 2nd, 1887. Pursuant to adjournment, the Council met. Present the entire Council.

Minutes of preceding meeting read and approved.

NEW BUSINESS.

The following bills were presented and referred to finance committee: M. G. Updike, hay $29.17; M. Hendershot, hay $17.50; Whipple Harrow Co., repairs on road machine $[illegible]; and the following for street labor: C. Patters n $9.37; Wm. McKinney, $8.12; A. Packard, $6.87; J. O. Riley, $7.50; Geo. Snell, $6.75; Dell Hubbard, $7.50; W. C. Jordan, St. Com., $29; F. Herning, $4.87.

The marshal here reported the names of 42 lot owners whose sidewalks should be rebuilt and the names of 18 lot owners whose sidewalks should be repaired. Accepted and filed and the marshal directed to notify said lot owners to repair and rebuild their walks in accordance with the report within 10 days from such notice.

On motion and vote the council adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the marshal be and is hereby directed to notify the lot owners in accordance with the report of the committee, filed, on the Beverly and Ottawa streets, on Sutherland, Maumee and Church streets, on the north side of Chicago street and on Division street, from Pearl to Lane before ordered. On motion the marshal was instructed to notify such parties that unless the rubbish was removed from said alley in rear of their stores within five days after notice, prosecution for obstruction and the nuisance would be ordered.

NEW BUSINESS.

The following bills were presented and referred to finance committee: S. C. Stacy, printing $12.70; Moreland Bros. & Crane, oil $2.42; T. Kyle, marshal, $[illegible]; Messler, cash sundries $[illegible]; Jehiel Davidson, Board of Review $14; Albert Hyde, B. of R. $14; H. Weller, B. of R. and services as assessor $20; G. W. Frazier, B. of R. $14; E. A. Hodges, St. Com. $[illegible]; and the following for street labor, viz.: Snell $12.75; Dell Hubbard $15; Jas. O. Riley $7.50; F. Herning $6.88; Wm. McKinney $6.88; Bert Bartholomew $5; Wm. TeGrootenhuise, $[illegible].

The marshal presented his bond in the penal sum of $6000, which on motion was declared duly approved.

The sureties bonds of Wm. J. Arnold and Ervet C. Kennedy, in the penal sum of $4000, with two sureties each in due form of law, were presented and determined sufficient.

Complaint having been made that by the oversight of a former sexton, numerous errors had been made in the issue of cemetery lot deeds. On motion the cemetery committee were instructed to trace up all deeds issued since August 1st, 1884, have all erroneous ones cancelled and correct deeds issued in their stead.

On motion the stand in Military square was ordered removed.

The Recorder reported the total assessed valuation as fixed by the Board of Revised at $1,556,475.00.

On recommendation of the finance committee it was resolved that corporation tax for the year 1888 be levied at four mills on the dollar of assessed valuation and that Recorder is hereby directed to spread the tax upon the rolls at that rate.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

The Finance committee reported favorably upon all of the above claims. Accepted and bills allowed and orders directed drawn.

Council then adjourned.

FRED B. WOOD, Recorder.

ESTATE OF SARAH L. DEWITT.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 5th day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

On reading and filing the petition duly verified, of Joseph Lanning, praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this court purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that administration of said estate may be granted to petitioner, and William Marks, contingent executors in said instrument, or to some other suitable person.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 9th day of May next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

(A True Copy.)

H. Smith was at Milan this week doing the tinwork on Alva Dexter's large residence, and this week H. J. Williams and J. D. Arner are slating the same.

Mrs. Alfred Lucking and children, who have been spending several days here with relatives, returned to their home in Detroit Monday.

H. J. Williams visited Dundee last week in the interest of the slating business, with very encouraging success, having secured the slating of Dr. Haines' new house and prospects of several other jobs. The slating business opens up very brisk, and it is but a matter of time when shingle will be a thing of the past and slate the only successful roof.

By a letter received from our old friend, George Shipman, we are able to give the names of the players in the old barefoot club, who could play ball as well as any in their time. They held forth in the year 1866, with the following named persons as members of the club:

W. H. Arner,	L. Palmer,
J. Davidson,	H. Palmer,
F. Davidson,	A. E. Palmer,

HOLLOWAY HASH.

Mr. and Mrs. Mendon are visiting at A. D. Macham's.

There will be meeting at the F. M. church next Sunday evening and Rev. Reese is expected to preach.

Mrs. F. Earll went to Adrian Tuesday morning to visit relatives in that vicinity.

Died, June 12th, at the residence of his guardian, A. D. Macham, "Conrod M." Deceased would have been ninety years old if he had lived long enough, but his career was brought to an early close by want of breath. The funeral was held at his late home on June 13th, and although we were not able to attend, it was said to have been largely attended. It is not unlikely if he had lived he would have been of great use to his county in the campaign this fall, as he was possessed of a very strong voice and had by practice become very efficient in its use. The relatives have the sincere sympathy of the entire community.

FRANKLIN FACTS

The Franklin union literary and lyceum will meet at L. E. Taylor's on July 7th instead of June 30th, the change in date being made to accommodate those wishing to attend Barnum's show.

Mr. and Mrs. Rossiter formerly of Oberlin, Ohio have been visiting at E. C. Wisner's. Mr. R. is an artist of no mean ability. He goes from here to Mackinac at which place he has taken many fine views of the objects of interest upon the island.

Wm. Franklin and wife returned last week from a trip to Wichita, Kansas. They are much pleased with the appearance of the country, crops looking very well indeed. A severe hail storm had visited some portions of the state, breaking windows and destroying corn, gardens, etc. Their son Frank had just recovered from an attack of measles. Mr. L. also called on George Warner and Hugh Whelan, former residents of Franklin, and found them prospering in their western home.

Mrs. J. B. Whelan and little son, of Detroit, have been spending several days with her father-in-law, Alvinza Whelan.

John Conlin got a sharp rap on the head with a crowbar, which fell out of somebody's hands at Martin Whelan's barn raising, last Wednesday. Although it bled profusely it did not cause him any serious inconvenience. No other accident occurred to the 125 men who assisted; the wind and rain, however, delayed the completion of the work until the next day.

TIPTON TOPICS.

The exercises of Children's day were held at the Congregational church of Tipton, on Sunday evening, June 10.

The marked degree of success and efficiency with which was rendered the excellent programme bespoke no little eulogy and honor of those whose words and carols made bright this happy occasion.

Beautiful and artistic decorations added much to the pleasures of a large and attentive audience that will remember many an hour of pleasant entertainment due to the experienced directory of M. D. Alexander, whose deft competence and untiring energies for the pleasure and benefit of the public will not soon pass into oblivion by the citizens of Franklin.

MACON MUSIC.

Children's day will be observed here the first Sunday in July.

School closed on Friday last with a successful entertainment in the evening at the school house. Prof. Walker was present and delivered a few of his select readings, which were well received.

Parker Allen met with an accident in the saw mill, making the amputation of the forefinger on the right hand necessary. The operation was skillfully performed by Dr. El. Hendershot.

DEVIL'S LAKE DOINGS.

The new railroad is bringing quite a good many people to the state who have never visited this popular resort before, and the hotels are expecting quite an influx from off that line.

The spiritualists of Toledo have made arrangements for holding three days' meeting in Allen's grove, June 29, 30 and July 1. They invite all spiritualists to join them, bring their tents and have a grand time. The following eminent speakers and test mediums will be present: Dr. Palmer and Mrs. Dr. Bassett, of Chattanooga, Tenn; Mrs. VanDuzen, of Geneva, O., Mrs. A. D. Corall, Mrs. Ketchum and Mrs. M. E. Jamison, of Toledo. The C., J. & M. will probably run an excursion July 1 to accommodate those wishing to attend the meeting on Sunday.

"My father, at about the age of fifty, lost all the hair from the top of his head. After one month's trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor, the hair began coming, and, in three months, he had a fine growth of hair of the natural color."—P. J. Cullen, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

The benefits of vacation season may be greatly enhanced, if, at the same time, the blood is being cleansed and vitalized by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A good appetite, fresh vigor, and buoyant spirits attend the use of this wonderful medicine.

English spavin liniment removes all hard, soft, or calloused lumps and blemishes from horses, blood spavin, curbs, splints, sweeney, stifles, sprains, sore and swollen throat coughs, etc. Save $50 by use of one bottle. Warranted. Sold by Baker & Hall, Druggists, Tecumseh Mich.

A BOOK OF PERMANENT VALUE

Protection, Free Trade or Revenue Reform—A Work which Contains the Best Articles of the most Eminent Political Economists and Statesmen on this Great National Question.

This work was brought out to meet the demand of 12,000,000 voters who want more intelligence on this important subject.

The safety and progress of this Republic depends upon the intelligence of the American people. This great question of Taxation is destined to agitate the public mind for the next twenty years, at least. The ignorance of the great majority on this is the result of our educators and teachers, who have not been alive to the importance of this subject. Our colleges, even, have not given much attention to the subject of Political Economy, till quite recently, and but few of our high schools and academies have yet taken it up.

The great object of the book is education. We have, therefore, presented both sides of the subject, believing that the American people are candid and fair and demand to hear the evidence on both sides of a subject before they decide what will be for their interest.

How have we secured the arguments on both sides of this subject? While Mr. H. W. Furber has been the editor, he has called to his aid the most eminent writers on both sides, not only to prepare articles, but to give their opinion as to the best arguments that have ever been produced on their respective sides. It is safe to say that we have here, in the judgment of protectionist, the best arguments for protection, and, also, in the judgment of the free traders, the best arguments for free trade. We thus have here about forty authors, and each eminently fitted for the part he undertakes. We not only have a variety of authors, but a variety of subjects, so that this great subject is discussed in its relations to all classes,—the farmer, mechanic, manufacturer, miner, in fact all classes of laborers and producers.

Adam Smith, LL.D.
Jean Baptiste Say.
Henry Clay.
John Stuart Mill.

Mr. A. W. Mills, our Tecumseh book publisher, has just issued a large edition of this valuable work, and is allotting territory to agents. The book is sold at the low price of $2.00 or $2.50 according to style of binding. It is a book which should find its way into every family. No book within our knowledge contains so much information on the tariff question in so accessible a shape for the general reader. It ought to meet with a large sale.

GOT THE BEST OF THE DOCTOR.

W. F. Beyer, Garretsville, Ohio, says: "My wife has been troubled with Catarrh a long time, but have, with what remedies we had, and what the doctor could do, kept the upper hand of it until this fall, when everything failed. Her throat was raw as far as one could see, with an incessant cough, when I invested my dollar in a bottle of your Papillon Catarrh Cure as a last resort. To-day she is free from cough, throat all healed and entirely cured." Papillon extract of flax Catarrh Cure effects cures when all others fail. Large bottles $1.00.

Some Foolish People

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, Oh, it will wear away, but in most cases it wears them away. Could they be induced to try the successful medicine called Kemp's Balsam, which we sell on a positive guarantee to cure, they would immediately see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial size free, at Baker & Hall.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY JUNE 27.

ALLEN G. THURMAN AT HOME.

From a Columbus, Ohio, letter in the Evening News we gather a few interesting items about Judge Thurman's home life.

COLUMBUS, O., June 24. The residence of Judge Thurman in this city is just now the political Mecca of all good democrats whose travels bring them in this direction. Up to three years ago the vice presidential candidate occupied a frame house adjoining his law office, down in the central part of town, but business [illegible] stone house a mile farther out. He was in the calm enjoyment of his books and the society of personal friends, when the red bandana cyclone swept him once more into political activity. The judge's old law office is one of the interesting spots of the town. A weather beaten sign reading "A. G. Thurman" marks the entrance. It is a one story cottage, 20x30 and was built for the judge in 1851. The old home and the old office are treasures to him. His office is now in one of the floors of his old house, and his old office is temporarily occupied by an old friend. It is shelved all around with law books. Old fashioned powder horns are hung in the niches.

The judge says the president could not interest him in fishing tackle, but if he wants to talk about deer stalking and game hunting generally, Allen G. Thurman is the man to come to. The judge told of his early successes as a hunter in Ohio, when the deer were few and far between.

A noble picture of Sunset [illegible] hangs over the judge's old desk. French and Spanish books are plenty. The former reveal the study of democratic institutions for France, literature and the services as a member of the commission on Mediation. He reads French like a Parisian, and one of his recreations is a French novel. The Spanish books date of the time when he first entered the senate and was made a member of the committee on Mexican affairs. At recess he retired to his office and said he had been put on one of the hardest committees in the senate. How was he to be of value on the committee when his knowledge of Spanish was as meager as his acquaintance with Choctaw. That was the question which confronted him. He was 50 years old at the time. He solved the problem by buckling in and learning the language, and to-day he can roll off Spanish with the ease and grace of a native born nobleman of the infant Alphonzo's kingdom.

Those who have only seen the old judge on state occasions have been impressed with his severe dignity. When chatting in his library he was very different. A happy smile, kindly eyes, frank ways and hearty laughter are then the judge's chief peculiarities, combined, of course with his brilliant conversation. His silvery chin-beard and snowy locks contrast with his rich suit of black broadcloth, dark blue homespun socks and highly polished low shoes. His linen is of immaculate whiteness and almost glistens beside the black silk stock and black silk watch chain that is the sole indication of jewelry about him. He is a shining example of a cultivated gentleman, with many of the little courtesies which are [illegible] [illegible] Nature [illegible] [illegible] fit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

BEAUTY AT THE COUNTER.

Varied in character, in ability, in circumstances, in tastes, and accomplishments, girls who stand behind the counters are subjected to the same rules, discipline and restraints.

At 8 o'clock they flock to their respective places and begin work, which continues until lunch time. The lunch hour begins at half past 11 or 12, and by half-past 2 all have had their half hour's rest.

In all the large stores lunch rooms are provided, where girls may have hot tea or coffee, and where milk and fruit are also sold. At Macy's the lunch room seats some 200 girls, and in addition to the tea and coffee, hot rolls, eclaires, pastry, cakes, and the sweets dear to feminine hearts are sold the same as in the ladies' restaurant below, only at nominal rates—a cup of good coffee costing only three cents, and other things in the same ratio.

The girls usually bring their lunch from home, and leave it in one of the boxes which line one side of the large, well ventilated room. Here is a novel stuffed in one box, "The Dark Secret," "The Bandit's Bride," "Barriers Burned Away," or "He fell in Love with His Wife." In another box a newspaper is thrust waiting for the midday rest; there a piece of fancy work is folded away or a bit of knitting or crochet work which, when the lunch is dispatched, is brought forth, and while the swift, deft fingers fly the chattering tongue keeps up a merry accompaniment.

The lunch counter is liberally patronized, few girls eating without the cup of warm tea or coffee or a glass of milk. One lunches off two or three eclaires, reading her novel as she munches them; another absorbs the last number of a thrilling continued story as indigestible and delicious as the bit of pastry she devours at the same time; one tiny rosh girl, with her little dish of milk before her, eats her ginger cookies, but a great many of them for her noonday meal. Twice each week oyster stew is cooked for them, and other changes in their bill of fare are frequently made.

In this store, too, a society is established among the girls, to which each pays seven cents a week, and from which each receive $5 per week in case of accident or sickness.

The average age of girls entering the business is 14, but many come in much younger, and they remain six, ten, and even fifteen years, unless they marry. Some wed their associates and co-laborers, others make very excellent marriages outside among their acquaintances, and a few marry customers with whom they have become acquainted in the store, but these are exceptional cases, for there is little chance for conversation when on duty.

THRIFTY ISRAEL.

What Julian Hawthorne Observed in a Police Court.

One of the most unattractive looking Hebrews I ever saw came up, and the Justice said:

"I have here an order committing your father-in-law to the poorhouse at his own request. He is over eighty years old. He has tried to get work, he says you refuse to support him. You are earning $20 a week and your son $10. You have no one else dependent on you but your wife. Do you wish to have your father-in-law sent to the workhouse?"

The son-in-law rubbing his forefinger along the side of his nose, as he leaned his elbow on the desk, said that the old man was a nuisance and no good, and came round to the house drunk, and expected to be supported.

"I have known the man twenty years," replied the Judge; "he used to work under me; I never knew him to be addicted to liquor." And then he repeated, "Do you wish him sent to the poorhouse?"

At last the son-in-law reluctantly consented to take the old man back. But I should have preferred the poorhouse, I think.

The Drummer Was Left.

A Scotch story is that of a diminutive drummer in a local brass band who was in the habit, when out parading with his comrades, of walking by sound and not by sight, owing to his drum being so high that he was unable to see over it.

The band on Saturday afternoon paraded usually in one direction, but the other day the leader thought he would change the route a little and turned down a by street. The drummer, unaware of this movement, kept on his accustomed way drumming away as hard as ever he could.

By and by, after finishing his part, and not hearing the others, he stopped, and pushed his drum aside to see what was the matter. His astonishment may be imagined at finding that he was alone.

"Hae!" he cried to some bystanders, "has ony o' ye seen a band hereabout?"—Argonaut.

Question of Grammar for Settlement.

Our friends of The Portsmouth Penny Post are in doubt as to what form of the verb should follow measles, and being a fair-minded lot of people they offer their subscribers the choice between "measles are prevalent" and "measles is prevalent."

If we may be allowed a suggestion, it would be in effect a recommendation that our Portsmouth friends buy a dictionary to use in grave emergencies. Here in Dover the best schoolmarm authority indorses the dictionaries which call measles a noun of singular number, and a boy might as well have the measles as to tell his teacher that measles are prevalent.

By chance we hear of a remark quite apropos, made recently by a Sawyer school boy. Said he:

"'Measles are prevalent' isn't correct; you should say 'they is prevalent.'"—Dover (N. H.) Times.

Omaha's Primitive Customs.

Chicago Girl—"You have been engaged three years? How primitive! Why in Chicago long engagements are very unfashionable. Three years? Time thrown away."

Omaha Girl—"Oh a year or so, more or less, doesn't matter here. When we get married we stay married."

Just the Wrong Thing To Say.

Mr. S. (who has recently married a young wife)—"Why, good evening, Mrs. Brown. Where is your husband?"

"Mrs. Brown (who has seen her best days)—"Oh! he wouldn't come; I never can get him out."

Mr. S. (who is always blundering)—"Well, perhaps if he had a young, fascinating wife he would be tempted to come out oftener."

WHAT "LUNCHEON" REALLY MEANS.

Some Recommendations to Those Who Give Them and to Those Who Eat Them.

To mention the word luncheon is to call up a picture of rest and quiet and [illegible]

Within the home where peace and order reign, the cloth is neatly spread and the dishes tidily arranged for even a morsel of toast and a cup of tea. Perhaps a cloth of yellow or pink or crimson is provided for this meal with napkins to match. In that case the dishes ought to be white.

Porcelain, by the way, is a matter of choice with the housekeeper. Fashion changes; beauty remains the same. Numberless forms and combinations of color are always to be found, the choice depending upon exact of taste or less than of purse. Every year there is a larger variety, since skilled native workmen are becoming more skillful still, and our American wares now vie in every respect with the imported and are less expensive.

Stamped patterns of the wild rose or daisy, or grass, or of conventional forms, on ware of a good quality, can be purchased very reasonable, with the comforting certainty that anything broken can be readily duplicated. As for nicked dishes—those horrors of a sensitive eye—a fine piece of china had better be broken and thrown away than be degraded to kitchen service. The fitness of things forbids such desecration.

No other meal so well shows the care and thrift of the housekeeper as the family luncheon. A little foresight provides a savory stew or soup from the bones and remnants of meats and gravies, and stewed fruits and patties, or the old-fashioned baked turn-overs served warm on a cold winter's day when the children rush in from school asking for something savory. This is the case, where, unfortunately, circumstances compel a late dinner, if the father or other members find it impossible to be at home at the midday meal.

Let the table be ever so perfect, the success of a luncheon depends on the congeniality of the guests. It is essentially a woman's repast. Those who know each other too well are bored in being brought together in a formal way. Generally some one whom it is designed to honor becomes the cause of a conventional lunch party, and no more charming way can be found to introduce a friend into a social circle.

The cup that cheers loosens thoughts and sets the tongue in motion, and she is not a woman who does not enjoy conversation. The plane of the conversation will be upon the level of her thought, but that, thanks to the progress of intellectual and moral culture among women, is yearly taking a higher tone.

Those of mightier mold, who look down disdainfully on a feminine lunch party, would be surprised enough could they listen, unseen, to many a modern talk around the dainty board. Science, ethics, philanthropy, art and sociology have here found eloquent exposition from those whose lips are sealed in mixed gatherings, or when unexhilarated by the contact with those in whose society they feel free from restraint and criticism.

ON THE STEAMBOAT.

An Interesting Demonstration Industriously Worked Up.

There was, in the next stateroom to one which the listener not long since occupied, a family of three—mother and two daughters—who had sharp clear voices that could occasionally be heard through the board partition. And in the silent but unsteady watches of the night, at frequent intervals, there came an inquiry like this:

"Mother! You sick?"

"No, Mamie."

"You sick, Sarah?"

"No, Mamie. How do you feel yourself?"

"I guess I'm all right now."

Silence for a little while, and then the exclamation:

"Mamie!"

"What, mother?"

"You sick?"

"No, mother."

"You sick, Sarah?"

"Not yet, mother."

And a duo from the daughters:

"How do you feel, mother?"

"Well, I feel awful queer. I'm afraid I'm going to be sick!"

And so the night went on, and it was a relief at last when the mother had worked herself up into a pronounced attack of seasickness, and Sarah had followed suit, and Mamie had joined in the demonstration.—Boston Transcript.

BE COURTEOUS.

But Don't Make Undignified Mistakes.

He was a great swell, one of the affable, polite kind, who had worked all his life to get the reputation of knowing everybody. He prided himself on his tact, and flattered himself he knew exactly the degree of familiarity to extend to any given degree of life. He was a great card in the best society. He never made any mistakes; when he was not quite sure who it might be he relied upon his instinct.

He was walking in great state down the street, and a quiet, respectable-looking man, a man with a solid kind of business air about him, was coming up. He remembered his face, he was sure he knew him, and he did not want to be impolite. The man looked at him as if the recognition was mutual.

That was enough. When he did anything he did it with all his heart. He stopped and held out his hand and his grasp was full of cordiality.

"How do you do? Haven't seen you in an age. You are looking well. Where are you located now?"

"Same place—butler at Mrs. McGee's."—San Francisco Chronicle.

A Timely Suggestion.

"Bobby," said his mother, sternly, "I punished you only last week for running away, and yet you have done it again today. I don't know what I shall do."

"Why not give up punishing me, ma," suggested Bobby, "it doesn't seem to do any good."

Time To Close Up.

She was sitting in the parlor with her beau when the old man came down stairs and opened the front door.

"Surely, papa," she said, "you are not going out at this late hour."

"Merely to untie the dog," he replied.

"Well, Miss Clara," said the young man, reaching for his hat, "I think I will say good night."

THE MYSTERY EXPLAINED.

A New Illustration of an Old Weakness in Human Nature.

There was quite a little sensation in the little village of D— one Monday morning, Cousin Mattie being the innocent [illegible]

On the morning before [illegible] went out early, as was her usual [illegible] to the little wants of [illegible] was soon greeted by Deacon [illegible] with:

"Good morning, Mrs. L. I did not see you at church yesterday."

"I am glad you did not see me, Deacon, but I had a severe headache."

"That is certainly a good excuse," he replied with a peculiar smile on his face. A little further on she met Mrs. D.

"All good morning, Mrs. L. You are out bright and early, and looking very happy this morning."

"Is that anything unusual?" replied the widow, as she passed on to market.

The vender of pork and chops came smilingly forward.

"What can I do for you? We have some fine chickens and ducks, etc."

"No, thank you. I will have my simple Monday dinner."

"Nothing more? I thought you might want something extra to-day."

"Why to-day?" mused the widow, as she walked out. "It seems to me every one looks at me in a peculiar manner. Ah, here comes neighbor Pope; if there is anything afloat I shall get it now."

"I hardly expected to see you out so early this morning," Mrs. Pope began.

"Why not?"

"Oh, when one has visitors late at night, you know. I do hope we are not going to lose you."

"I do not understand you."

"Oh, but how innocent we are, but Polly Brown saw him."

"Saw whom?" replied the widow, her usually serene temper beginning to be a little ruffled.

"Your gentleman visitor as she passed your house late last night. She had been up to sit awhile with the sick baby, as Mrs. Jones was not well. She was well enough to go to church in the morning and wear her new bonnet, but as I said, quite late last night she peeped into your window and saw you seated quite near together and looking very happy, or at least you were—she could not see his face, as he was seated with his back to the window. A large man, and, no doubt, fine looking, to please you, but a very bald head."

An amused smile stole overt widow's face as she said:

"Tell Polly Brown when she peeps into her neighbor's windows she had better put on her spectacles."

A few minutes afterwards she walked into her cosy sitting room, and quietly remarked:

"Cousin Mattie, you had better draw down the shade to-night before you take off your chignon."

THE TABLE FORK.

This Now Indispensable Implement a Mod'rn Invention.

It is difficult to realize what a modern invention the table fork is. Queen Elizabeth never heard of one. She had, it is true, a few dainty forks, perchance with crystal handles, for eating preserved fruit at dessert. But long after her time dinner forks were unknown in England.

The very earliest now to be found are not older than the middle of the reign of Charles II.

The few early forks of the reign of George I. are three-pronged, and but few of our neighbors can show us four-pronged forks much before the reign of George III., from which time their fashion has remained unaltered to the present day, except for their handles, which have followed the fashion of spoons, finishing up with the familiar "fiddle pattern" of nineteenth century use.

Before the days of forks the ewer and basin, which have now generally disappeared, were much in request after every course, whereas now the basin alone, with a little rose-water, makes its appearance at civic feasts after dinner, as a matter of fashion rather than necessity.

Four out of five fine old basins have no doubt been melted up to supply the very forks whose invention rendered the washing of the fingers superfluous.—Murray's Magazine.

Bunco Women.

The bunco women of New York are more dangerous perhaps to what is familiarly termed the hayseed element of visitors from out of town than even the bunco man himself.

Passengers in a Broadway car were surprised shortly after a venerable-looking gentleman with a hoary yellow beard and a shrewd, curious eye got on the car, to see a loudly dressed and very wideawake woman turn with a bewildered look and say to him:

"I am a stranger in the city, sir, and am afraid I may lose my way. Won't you kindly tell me where I am?"

Flattered beyond expression at being mistaken for a city man, the venerable one from the country smiled and told the distressed damsel that she had "just passed the postoffice." That was where the old man had gotten on, and he knew that one locality in town.

Profuse thanks followed, and the foundation of a roguish conversation was laid. When the wideawake damsel got off the car, the old man followed her.

Chinese Logic.

A gentleman who is visiting town for a few days carried to a "heathen Chinee" of laundry proclivities a bundle of linen which he wished to have washed within a short time.

The washerman took the package and promised that it should be ready for Tuesday evening. The stranger was unable to call on Tuesday, but on Wednesday he presented himself and asked for his linen, only to be told that it was not ready.

"Not ready" he returned impatiently. "Why, you promised to have it ready last night."

"Yes," the Chinaman answered with a smile as child-like and bland as his language was unreproducible in print, "but you didn't come after it last night."

In Society.

He—"Ah, Miss Filbert, I have just completed another poem."

She—"Indeed, Mr. Peanut? How charming! What is the subject?"

He (hopelessly)—"The same old conceit, Miss Filbert; the same old conceit."

She (sweetly)—"Ah, an autobiography, Mr. Peanut?"—Washington Critic.

Hackleman & Co., druggist, Bellville, Ohio, affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my 20 years' experience, is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the Liver, Kidneys or Blood. Only a half dollar a bottle at

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame, every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this, we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Prices 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

THE BACCHALAUREATE SERMON.

Delivered to the High School Graduating Class, on Sunday Evening Last in the M. E. Church, by Rev. T. G. Potter.

These exultant words come down to us through the deep silence of bygone centuries, like the music of silver bells, each premonitory note quivering with impressible joy, the laudable, rational, ecstatic joy of conscious personal mastery.

These words were written by a man of peerless intellect, great learning, intense energy, ceaseless activity, indomitable perseverance and marvelous success. These impressive and impressive words were Paul's valedictory. He had, under the direct personal instruction of the Holy Ghost, mastered every subject in the curriculum of the school of Christ. And not only as a student but as a warrior also, he achieved victory and obtained mastery. And he now only waited the coming of the triumphal chariot, and the shining legions of his angelic escort, to move with more than princely dignity through the portals of light and, amid the resounding acclamations of innumerable multitudes of the glorious sons of the morning, and the ravishing melody of the new song of redemption, which only the blood bought and the blood washed can sing, to enter Heaven, a conqueror.

The statement, "I have finished my course," contains the real secret of a successful life. And that secret, consists of at least four essentials. First, a definite purpose. Second, an important object. Third, appropriate methods and efforts. Fourth, inflexible persistency.

The lack of a well defined purpose in life, is a very serious deficiency, a ruinous discount on the largest intellectual capital. In its absence, the most strenuous, brilliant and stupendous efforts, prove utterly abortive, and in the dense obscurity of vague uncertainty, priceless opportunities, which never return, pass slowly by, and are only recognized and appreciated as they pass out of reach forever. Like a costly rifle, without sights to guide the marksman's aim. Like a powerful engine, without boilers to generate steam. Like a magnificent ship without a rudder to guide her movements. Like a great railroad train without a track on which to run. Like a great army without a commander, or a body without a soul. Such is life without a purpose. Purpose is the off-spring of intelligence, the inspiration of progress, the guide to prosperity and the infallible index of character.

The great names of history in all ages, and in all lands, in every department, in which mind has achieved mastery, are such, as have pursued some well defined purpose, as closely and as incessantly as the current of some mighty river pursues its onward course, in its own appointed channel. But we should always remember that the value of a purpose, depends upon the nature of its object. If the object is evidently impossible, the purpose is insanity, a very great misfortune. If the object is of but little value, the purpose may be very unwise. If the object is worthless the purpose is certainly very foolish. If the object is of doubtful propriety, the purpose is pernicious. If the object is positively evil, the purpose is criminal, and the result disastrous. On the other hand, if the object is possible, desirable, commendable, important, noble, of inestimable value, and indispensable to our supreme interests, the purpose in every case equals the object in value, so far at least as it regards our intentions. But success is not assured by merely entertaining a purpose to accomplish some great object, no matter how pure the purpose, or how important the object. It is quite possible to go thus far and then to transfer the change of the whole enterprise to the imagination, with instructions to dream out its accomplishment. But in all such cases, there is ultimately, a rude awakening and a sad and painful realization, that it is only a dream. Imagination is a valuable auxiliary to reason and will, but utterly incompetent as a substitute for either. Earnest personal efforts are indispensable to success, and even these are insuffient if inappropriate. Many earnest, honest efforts are inopportune, either premature or tardy, both alike fatal, to success.

We should never forget the familiar words of the profound thinker who states, "There is a tide in the affairs of men, which taken at the flood, leads on to fortune. Omitted, all the voyage of their life is bound in shallows and in miseries. Whatever is very important, is usually very difficult; but, whatever is very difficult and very important, is usually very remunerative and very attractive.

To one, possessing the necessary, natural, and acquired abilities, there is a gradual diminution of the difficulties, and a constant increase of skill, and enjoyment in such work. The most dreary drudgery, is a perpetual routine of what has long since become unpleasantly familiar, and excites no interest, demands no conscious effort and admits of no variation. Wisdom in the selection, and skill in the use, of suitable means, constitute a master in any profession.

Every one should endeaver to make the most of life, and this can only be accomplished by such as make the most of themselves. Personal development is the only foundation of true greatness. Personal well being, its grand consummation. There are immense deposits, of glorious possibilities, in every human constitution. Resources, which if fully developed, would constitute their possessor the [illegible] of all strangers. But alas in many cases, only such specimens as are scattered upon the surface, are ever discovered during life, and at the last, death takes and retains possession and hides the precious treasure forever. Here we pray if we will succeed, our right to mine in other claims may be questioned denied, resisted, but here, our title is valid, and our work always at hand.

All the most valuable institutions in existence, civilization, government, education and religion, have for their supreme object, the good of the individual. Indeed, nothing can be shown to possess public utility, which fails to promote or conserve private prosperity. Men do not exist for the benefit of institutions of any kind, but institutions of every kind for the benefit of men. Work wisely performed in personal, intellectual and moral development, is beyond all comparison, the most profitable work ever accomplished by man. The gain secured, by such work, could never be obtained from any other source, or in any other manner, and once secured, it is ours forever. For no one can ever, by either stealth, fraud or force, deprive us of possession. It is absolutely personal property. Even those, who would divide with others, soon discover that it is like the bread which the Saviour blessed, the more it is distributed, the more it increases, and after all who will accept are supplied, the fragments are found to be greatly in excess of the original store.

The statement, "I have finished my course," does not mean, I have arranged a course for myself, selected such things as were agreeable, having consulted my own tastes, I have followed my own inclinations, gratified all my desires, and always insisted on having my own way. No! Paul gloried in being a follower of the Divine man, who said, "I came down from heaven, not to do mine own will, but the will of him that sent me." This great teacher and leader, instructed all his people, when addressing their heavenly father and God to say, "Thy will be done." And doing as that will directs, is pursuing the course to which our text refers.

In military life, the soldier is not expected or permitted to either declare war or proclaim peace. That is a prerogative of Supreme authority. The soldier is not required to make a plan of a campaign, that duty devolves upon the commander in chief. The soldier seldom has any information whatever in regard to the designs of the commander. It is the duty of the soldier to await orders, and when received to promptly and strictly obey. The soldier seldom receives an order direct from the commander, he is under obligations to obey orders given by his superiors of any rank. But no able and wise commander is indifferent to the interests of his men. His own success, reputation, and fortunes, are too closely associated with theirs for him to neglect or forget. The triumphs of the army, is the glory of its commander. In our schools, the student does not establish and arrange the course of study. To do that, requires a knowledge of all that is contained in the course, which, if the student knew already, would render the course unnecessary. The course is arranged and prescribed by authority and students are required to respect that authority, and to master all the subjects, before being able to say, "I have finished my course." These subjects are all difficult from first to last, and can only be mastered by close attention and patient toil, and it takes long years for even the most intelligent and industrious student to be able to make the joyful statement, "I have finished my course." But long, difficult, and exacting as your course has been, it was not instituted in a spirit of tyranny, malice, caprice or folly, but by wise and experienced minds, actuated by sentiments of deep and tender solicitude for your welfare. And, in your progress, the nearer you came to end, the more clearly, you could percieve and appreciate its value, and now you are thankful that the course did not contain one subject less.

In addition to all that is taught in our schools, there is a course of life arranged by infinite wisdom, and prescribed by Divine authority, which we all are under obligations to complete. There will be a searching, personal examination bye and bye, for which we should prepare. It is not possible to conceal intellectual deficiency from a competent examiner. Moral deficiencies will all be detected and exposed at the examination of the great day. We may not now be able to perceive the utility or the importance of many of God's requirments, but as we advance in the course, our vision will become clearer, and as we near the close, we shall rejoice that there was nothing omitted by Him, who hath called us out of darkness, into his marvelous light. In the Divine order, the end of one course is the beginning of another. Mark the progress and changes in our nature and condition in this life: infancy, childhood, youth, maturity, age, death. Then, the much more accelerated progress of Heaven, from glory to glory, etc., etc., On! On! forever.

Young ladies and gentlemen of the graduating class. We all, including officers and members of the school board, superintendent, and teachers of the schools, pastors of the several churches, representatives of the press, professional and business men, ladies and gentlemen, parents and relatives, schoolmates and acquaintances, in a word, we, your friends of this whole congregation, most heartily congratulate you, on having faithfully performed so much important work and finished your course.

Card of Thanks.

To my husband whose love and care have been indefatigable. To the skill and attention of my physician, gentleman sirs, Seger, of Adrian. To the sympathy of my children and to the ladies of the neighborhood and vicinity for their solicitude and assistance in my late painful sickness. To each and every one of whom I owe a debt of kindness.

MRS. O. P. REMINGTON.

TEMPERANCE COLUMN.

SOME PERTINENT SUGGESTIONS

Your committee on temperance would most respectfully submit the following report:

It was with much regret that we learned but a few days ago, that the chairman of your committee, Rev. S. G. Moore, on whom we depended to write this report, had left the association. The duty therefore devolving on the members from the pew, you will pardon us if in this report we do not indulge in lofty flights of rhetoric, sentiment or theory, but present as best we can, in our plain, abrupt and unvarnished way, the facts in regard to the temperance question as we believe they exist, and the plain and unmistakable duty all christians, especially those of the pulpit, in the light of another year's experience.

A little over a year ago an amendment to the State Constitution, prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks, was submitted to the vote of the people. You all know full well how all christian men with scarcely any exception, regardless of party, politics sect or creed, prayed and worked for success in that contest. And right here please note that in that instance our work and our prayers went right along together in perfect harmony, grandly, nobly battling for the right and to rid our state from the curse of strong drink. And how that noble organization, the W. C. T. U. with all other christian women, worked and prayed, and sacrificed, that this great evil of intemperance might be put away. What was the result of that contest? The cause of righteousness, and humanity, we believe, was in a majority, but was beaten by fraud and false returns, against which we could obtain no protection or redress, from partisan board, or officials, under the control of the rum power.

Further on, what was known as the "Local Option" law was passed; and again the voters of our county, together with thirty-seven other counties were called upon to arrange themselves for or against the liquor traffic. Again the God fearing and christian element was united although many expressed doubts of its efficiency, and the majority for temperance and sobriety in thirty-six counties, including our own, could not be overcome by trickery, fraud or technicality, and we rejoiced that for three years at least we might be rid of the blighting curse of the legalized saloon in our locality.

Again, through a defect in the law all our hopes were blasted; the work done and the expense borne was wasted, the saloon doors thrown open, and the clearly expressed will of the people set aside and defied. Alas! how vain to attempt to compromise with wrong, or spend our strength with those who are attempting to serve God and Mammon. We may appear to gain success for a time, but before we taste the fruits thereof they will turn to ashes on our lips. We have asked for bread, (which has been promised us) and been given a stone. We have asked for fish (which has been held out to us) and have been given a scorpion. Why longer remain and parley in the camp of the Philistines? Come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing and I will receive you." Brethren, we can never succeed in accomplishing any great results in the temperance reform, or in suppressing the liquor traffic, until we adopt God's plan and follow His law, which is uncompromising and unyielding hostility to sin and vice, in whatever form it may appear, having no fellowship therewith, either by way of tax or high license laws, or their advocates, but demanding strict and absolute prohibition.

We believe the time has come when all christian and temperance people should lay aside all the minor questions and petty differences and be fully united, and act in perfect unity and harmony with each other on this great question. The greatest opponent to christianity—the greatest hinderance to the advancement of the cause of Christ—the greatest enemy of the Church—the most damning and blighting curse in our nation, is the liquor traffic. You may attempt to regulate or tax it, or license it, the curse with all its long catalogue of crimes and its withering and blighting influences remains. The time was when the only weapons used against its advancement and for its suppression was "moral suasion" and "public sentiment." Confined as these agencies of reform were, to societies, Sunday school and pulpit they were a power for good, and the saloon and its votaries became alarmed at their rapid growth, and sought to protect itself behind legislative enactments and the open and highhanded bribery of tax and license laws. It entered the open field of political action, fortified itself behind the great political parties and controls with its giant power, caucus, conventions, legislatures and courts alike. Its bold aggressiveness has forced its opponents to meet it with its own weapons and on its own chosen field of action. People hitherto careless or indifferent on the subject, are forced to take their place on one side or the other. There is no longer (if indeed there ever was) middle ground. "He that is not for me is against me" is as true of this temperance question, as of any other branch of Christian work.

The people generally are much exercised over the question, and they are watching the action of christians and professed temperance men very closely, and are quick to detect any inconsistency in their actions. For christians to countenance or support in any way and act in harmony with men who are not pronounced earnest and determined advocates of the entire suppression of the liquor traffic, is to nullify to a great extent their christian influence in the community, and for a minister of the gospel to take neutral grounds, or to preach or lecture on temperance, and then by his actions or association, give aid and comfort to the enemy, either for partisan or any other reasons, thus showing his love for party to be greater than that for his Lord and master, not only dwarfs his usefulness as a christian minister, but subjects himself to the ridicule of the very men he thus supports. "Ye cannot serve two masters." To say that we are as good temperance men as any body, and that we are in favor of prohibition, but that we do not believe in mixing politics and religion, (as we often hear it said) will not do. If our politics will not mix with our religion we had better bury the politics and try and get some that will. Or if we have not enough of the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ in our hearts to control our politics and make all our acts conform to our declarations, we had better do as Peter did, leave the place of our weakness, (politics) and go out and weep bitterly, seeking for forgiveness and more strength.

We are not our own, for we have been bought with a price and we have no right as professed followers of the Lord and Master to lay aside our armor for a moment to cherish any idle of our own, or to come down from the great work he has for us to do to parley in doubtful disputations, or to detract in any way from our influence and usefulness by subjecting ourselves to the charge of inconsistency or insincerity.

What right has a christian to lay aside the Armor of God and attempt to fight in his own strength, and subject himself to being pierced on every hand by the sharp arrows of the adversary. We should be very much encouraged at the rapid and continued growth of the temperance sentiment. But in the present state of affairs what does sentiment amount to without action. We believe that the people who are in favor of the total suppression of the liquor traffic, are in a large majority to-day. Then why not unite our strength and banish it from our country, that this may become a christian land in deed as well as in name. And who should take the lead in such a great reform if it be not christians and the christian church? As long as the church is divided there will be no unity of action by others in any great reform, and the responsibility rests not only with the church, but with each individual christian, if we fail to join hands and charge in one solid phalanx on this great enemy of our race, of the church and of our God.

A SHORT CHAPTER ON OLD TIMES.

Mathew C. Hale, a resident of Sidney Ohio, was in Tecumseh last week and remained over one night. He paid his respects at the HERALD office and while here gave us a few items that will be of interest to some of our old settlers. Mathew Hale's father, Seneca Hale, came to Tecumseh in the year 1829, and for twelve years thereafter, until 1841, he sold goods in Brownville in the building now occupied by Geo. Spafford as a residence, which Mr. Hale built for a store. In 1841 Seneca Hale and family moved to Cincinnati, Ohio, and in 1845 to Sidney, Ohio, where he engaged in the milling business. In 1850 Mrs. Hale died and Mr. Hale then sold out and moved to California and went into the stock business on an irrigated ranch in Tulare county. In 1860 he returned to Sidney and in 1861 he enlisted and served as 2d Lieut. of Co. K, 20th Ohio Inf. during the war. He was in the thickest of the fight at Pittsburg Landing and came out unhurt. He died in 1870 at a brother's near Syracuse, N. Y. Mathew Hale now lives at Sidney, Ohio, and his sister Mary Wyman, now a widow, and the only daughter of Seneca Hale. James Hale, the remaining son, now lives at San Diego, Cal.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

Hot, Hotter, Hottest.

The [illegible] opens very slowly.

Wallie and Burt House, of Springfield O., are in town on a visit.

Capt. Wood and L. B. Stevens are setting up the cigars this week.

Remember the Farmer's Club picnic at Sand Lake next Saturday. There will be a big crowd from this section.

There will be a game of base ball on the Sand Lake grounds, Saturday, June 23d. Game called at 3 o'clock.

Judging from the crop report for June, it would seem that the wheat prospects were rather slim in this section of the state.

Richard McConnell is spending a week or so among his old Tecumseh friends. He is now living at Hurley, Wis. and is well pleased with the business prospects there.

Lillie E. Brown will close her school in District No. 2, of Franklin, next Friday June 22. She has taught four very successful terms of school in that district. This term there have been forty pupils in regular attendance.

Asa Howe will start his Sand Lake stage next Saturday, the day of the Farmer's picnic. His regular days hereafter will be Tuesdays, Thursdays, Saturdays. Private parties can charter the stage at any time.

Mrs. C. A. Stacy has taken advantage of the convention rates to Chicago to visit her son George at Elgin Ill. She went out last Saturday. Mrs. Berger, of this village, also went to Elgin to visit her children who are living there.

Macon Grange met in regular session on Friday the 15th, at 7:30 o'clock P. M. In addition to the regular the program as announced was carried out. Owing to the busy time the next meeting will not take place until July 13th. Notice of the program will be given in due time.

During Capt. Wood's absence at Adrian last Friday on business, an intruder invaded his domicile very unexpectedly and upon his return he found a Democratic embryo voter at home who tipped the scales at about nine pounds. The boy was carefully wrapped in a red bandanna, and thus started out in the right path at once.

A Prohibition State Convention will be held in Detroit, at White's Opera House, June 26th and 27th to nominate candidates for state officers and Presidential electors. Sam Small and General Clinton B. Fisk have been invited to attend this meeting. Lenawee county will send 24 delegates.

The reunion at Gettysburg will be remembered in the July Century by the publication of a short article descriptive of the reunions of the Blue and Gray which have taken place within the last few years. A poem by an ex-confederate soldier, entitled "The High Tide at Gettysburg," will be printed in this number.

Wide Awake for June begins a new volume, "Eurania's Boys and how they kept House," by Margaret Sidney, will amuse the mothers as well as the boys. "The Story of Boston Common," by Rev. Edward Everett Hale tells about the early days of this famous ground—the days of the cow pastures, and witches, and of the old-time training bands.

The pastor of the Universalist church of Tecumseh, the Rev. J. M. Getchell, has written desiring us to say that there will be services in the church next Sunday morning, June 24th at 10:30. No service in the evening. The thought of sermon for the morning upon the pastors' journey and visit. "Religious Thoughts during Vacation." All invited.

At the last meeting of the Northern Lenawee Farmer's Club held at J. F. N. Bowen's, it was decided to hold a picnic in place of a regular July meeting. The picnic will be held on S. P. Sheldon's lawn, July 4th. Let all come prepared to enjoy a good old fashioned Fourth of July. Each lady will please furnish herself and family with dishes and spoons for ice cream and strawberries. All members of the club both ladies and gentlemen are cordially invited.

About day break last Tuesday morning a pack of tony bevel edge cards was printed at the HERALD office, bearing this brief announcement.

TECUMSEH, JUNE 18, '88.
BENJAMIN ALGER STEVENS.
Eight Pounds.
All Doing Well.
MR. & MRS. LEVI B. STEVENS.

Our job department was somewhat disorganized the fore part of the week, but 'tis in running order again now. During the past six months, all the new comers in Democratic families have been boys, and in Republican families they have all been girls. But Levi Stevens has broken the record. A young Republican voter has enlisted at his house. Alger stock is strong and steady with an upward tendency in this neck o woods.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Cook last Saturday—a fine boy baby.

On and after Monday, June 25th we will close our store at 8.45 P. M. Saturday excepted.
ANDERSON & CO.

A. E. Kennedy has a fine combination lithograph of the National Democratic ticket hung in his show window.

Whatever candidates get the prize at Chicago, it can be truthfully said that the convention has been in a sweat this week.

Percy and Will Fitzsimmons took the four o'clock Lake Shore train yesterday afternoon for San Deigo, Cal., where they will remain with their father.

M. E. Gainsley removed his stock of dry goods to Dundee last Monday and the store left vacant will be improved and occupied by O. P. Bills & Co's bank.

Geo. A. Kies, of Elkhart, Ind., was in town yesterday and completed arrangements for the sale of his house and lot in this village. John Sutfin was the purchaser.

The ladies of the M. E. church anticipate holding an ice cream and strawberry festival some evening next week. Be all ready and give them a lift on their organ fund.

East Branch pupils neither absent nor tardy for the school year of 1887-8. Sixth grade—Minnie Morrison, Charlie Williamson, Myrtle Dixon; Fifth grade—Olin Hodges; Fourth grade—Frances Patterson.

Geo. Miles, formerly editor of the Clinton Local, was in town yesterday. He is now traveling man for the Detroit Tribune and has charge of the circulation department in outside towns. He is doing finely in his new location.

There is a tremendous crowd in attendance upon the Republican Convention at Chicago, it is hotter than tophet, and everything is at sea in regard to candidates. A ballot for President may be reached this afternoon but probably not until to-morrow.

While in his grocery store yesterday Will F. Anderson showed us the finest line of canned goods we have seen in a long time. The list included English Dairy and Edam cheese mushrooms, all kinds of soups, apricots, tomatoes, peas, beans, etc., including olive oil. Picnic parties will find the stock a perfect bonanza.

Levi C. Hayden got home from Boston on his bicycle Tuesday afternoon. A delegation of about a dozen Tecumseh wheelmen went out on the Saline road and escorted him into town, which made quite an imposing display. He made the entire journey from Boston to Tecumseh in two weeks, coming through New York to Buffalo and thence through Canada to Detroit. He arrived home in fine physical condition, feeling none the worse for his long trip.

The High School Alumni Reunion will take place to-morrow, Friday evening, at the Opera House. A program of literary exercises will be presented as follows:

Oration—Lyster Dewey.
Poem—Lucy J. Train.
Essay—Mrs John Bailey.
History—Mabel Hayden.
Welcome—A. W. Mills.
Response—J. E. Tremaine.

A banquet, toasts, and responses will follow, when another spicy program of brief addresses and music will be given. A meeting of unusual interest is anticipated.

A pleasant family gathering was held at old Mrs. Woodard's, on the 13th inst., in honor of her ninety-second birthday; many of her children and grand children from far and near were gathered around her table once more, and the old lady remarked that she felt proud of her children and that they had come to greet her once more. But the greatest joy of her heart was to welcome back the invalid daughter who has recently returned from the Ann Arbor Homœopathy hospital, where she has been under successful treatment for the last 4 months and is now restored to the fond mother with recovery of both voice and limbs and on the road to a final restoration of health and strength. She hopes to again be the support of her aged mother in her declining years, and thus somewhat lift the heavy burden from the other faithful daughter who has stood by them both through suffering and affliction and may kind nature grant them all the blessings desired until the end of earth life shall come.

Misses Etta Potter and Lizzie Beamish are visiting in Detroit.

Mrs. W. D. Adams of Toledo, is the guest of Mrs. L. T. Bidwell this week.

B. J. Collier's new steamer, Manitou, was launched on Devils Lake last week.

The thermometer this week in Chicago has averaged about 150 in the shade.

We venture the prediction that last Sunday will prove to be one of the three hottest days.

That Bartlett pear cider at Henry Jones's is a very palatable drink. If you don't believe it, try it.

Mrs. Geo. Perry of Charlotte, is visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. P. C. Snell. She will return home to day and Miss Frankie Snell will go with her to spend her summer vacation.

An Adrian young lady planted some morning glory seeds under her window and in due season a nice crop of onions came up. Freaks of nature are wonderful, but this beats all on record.

The editor of the Clayton Journal published the last issue of his paper last week and will move north to a larger field. Here is a good opening for some young man to step into a good business.

While at Adrian the other day we dropped into Wilcox Bros. & Co's store and examined their samples of mantels and grates. They have a very fine show and are working up a good trade in that line of goods.

E. L. Wells is preparing for a grand 4th of July celebration at the Sand Lake House. The program will consist of horse races, base ball games, tub races, yatch races, etc., to conclude with a grand ball at night.

Clarance A. Cotton, son of A. B. Cotton of West Bay City, is spending a few days with old Tecumseh and Clinton acquaintances. He has been engaged lately on special editorial work for the Bay City Tribune.

The Lawrence House has taken a fresh start, since the new lessee, Mr. Cobb, took the helm, and the house is now admirably managed. People from this vicinity who visit Adrian should not fail to put up at the Lawrence.

This is the time of year when the average pathmaster routs out the average farmer and has the average amount of land scraped out of the average ditch along side of the road, and placed in a heap in the center of the road.—Blissfield Advance.

In speaking of the number of yards of cloth made at the factory the types read last "week" whereas it should have been month. Our factory is a hustler but we could hardly expect it to turn out 32,000 yards of excellent goods in one week.—Clinton Local.

Hon. Minor T. Cole heads the Palmyra Alger club and will lead a delegation of it to the Chicago convention. If there are any louder yellers in the Windy city June 19 than the chaps from Palmyra their photographs ought to fetch big money—Detroit News.

The Manchester Enterprise and Clinton Local agree that the dance at Wampler's lake opening was a very pleasant affair. Maybe it was, but those who attended from Brooklyn say the music was miserable and they could not dance at all.—Brooklyn Exponent.

The Free Methodist camp meeting at Devils Lake closed Tuesday evening of last week. The next great event will be a three days' grove meeting held by the Spiritualists in Allen's grove on June 29, 30 and July 1. There will be eminent speakers and mediums from abroad, and a big time is expected.

The Gazette said last week that the proud bird of freedom would flop her wings and scream her lustiest in Hudson on Independence Day. We take it back. She has concluded not to flop nor scream. Instead, dove-winged peace will hover over our municipality or perch on our doorsteps.—Hudson Gazette.

"Why don't you run a paper like that?" a grocer merchant said to a reporter this morning, throwing out a Chicago daily. "For the same reason that you don't run a grocery like that," the reporter replied, turning to an advertisement of a Chicago house showing a twelve story building. The groceryman looked at the picture a moment and said: "I never looked at it that way before.—Exchange.

Considering the sultry character of the weather a good congregation assembled at the M. E. church last Sunday evening to listen to the bacchalaureate sermon by Rev. T. G. Potter. It was an excellent production and was well received. By a little extra persuasion we finally prevailed upon Bro. Potter to part with the manuscript and our readers will find the sermon entire on the 4th page.

Do not forget the Gilmore Band Concert at Adrian next Wednesday.

Opera House this evening. Admission ten cents.

A Deerfield schoolma'am has introduced a new feature in her school. When one of the girls misses a word the boy who spells it gets permission to kiss her. The scheme is making great spellers of the boys, but the girls are not improving very fast.

On Wednesday, the 13th inst., at 2 o'clock P. M. a very pleasant company assembled at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. G. Burtch, on Ogchla street, to celebrate the 21st anniversary of their wedding. The afternoon was passed in social enjoyment, music, and feasting, and upon their departure the company left behind them many valuable testimonials of their esteem for the host and hostess.

Owing to the small attendance at the band reunion meeting no business of importance was transacted. Money is needed to make this reunion a success and our citizens should take hold and give the boys substantial encouragement. Twenty or thirty bands will draw a large crowd to Tecumseh and business will be benefited. Another meeting will be held soon and a large attendance is desired.

In Dist. No. 9, Franklin, the following pupils have not been absent, or tardy during the last half of the spring term ending June 15, 1888: Dewey Wisner, Frank Cole, Roy Witherell, May Brighton, Thirza Larzalere, Matie Welch, Clara Welch. During the last school year of 178 days, Roy Witherell, aged 12 years, has been neither absent nor tardy.

M. NELL PARKER, Teacher.

Of all the months in the year June is the one when you are most likely to find some strange and beautiful wild flower whose name you would like to learn. In such a case fold the plant snugly in a soft newspaper and mail it to Mr. E. E. Sterns, 23 Union Square, New York, and he will send you, without charge, its popular and scientific names, and other details of interest concerning it.

On Saturday, June 30th, 1888, there will be held on Simmon's driving park, Tipton, a horse fair for the benefit of horse breeders in general. There will be an interesting program and some trotting. All owners of good stallions are invited with their stock. Come one, come all, and spend an afternoon in the pleasant grove on the south west corner of the track.

A. W. SIMMONS.

The commencement exercises at Raisin Valley Seminary will take place to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock. A class of eight will graduate and Judge Lane will deliver an address. An excellent program will be presented and there will doubtless be a good attendance from Tecumseh. The Alumni Reunion will be held to-morrow evening. An essay, history and oration will be given, to be followed by a banquet. Prof. F. R. Hathaway will act as toastmaster.

It has been enacted by congress that pensions heretofore granted to widows of soldiers of the war of the rebellion shall be dated from the time of the husband's death. In the settlement of claims under this law, no formal application will be required, and the services of an attorney will be unnecessary. Widows entitled to benefits of this law need only write the pension agent, giving name, post-office address and certificate number, upon which their claims will be promptly allowed.

One of the conspicuous and unique features of the Gilmore Jubilee will be the accompaniment of the more pronounced numbers on the program by anvils and cannon. The anvils will be beaten by a red-shirted anvil brigade, and the cannon will be fired from electric keys on the stage connected by wire with a battery of six beautiful bronze cannon, manufactured expressly for these jubilees by the Strong Arms Manufacturing Company of New Haven. The cannon will be placed at some distance from the Jubilee building, but their reverberations will come booming along in exact time to the music.

SHUT OUT BY RIDGEWAY.

Quite a number of people from Ridgeway and a much larger number from this village adorned the grand [illegible] last Friday. The Tecumseh people came out to see what kind of a showing their club would make against the Ridgeway aggregation, while the Ridgewayites paid their dimes fully expecting to see their favorites give their opponents a sound thrashing. Figuratively or base ballically speaking they did. The visiting team plays a good game of ball, making only three errors and one passed ball. Their fielding shows practice, and as a battery, Huston and Palmer are without a superior in the county. The home nine shows a lack of practice in batting and throwing, especially the former. Huston was the first difficult pitcher they had stood before this spring. He was hit quite freely but not for safe ones as they were generally fielded before first was reached. Chapman and Codling each made a clean base hit, while McKinney captured a difficult fly at left field.

The Tecumseh's presented Codling and Booker, and the points and good work was done by them, although Codling was hit for seven base hits. Booker had only one passed ball. The visitors seemed to hit safely where there was no fielder, while their fielders invariably gobbled every fly that was made. Ridgeway's went to bat first and scored three times on wild throwing. In the sixth inning three more were run in; in the eighth one, and in the ninth three. Only two earned runs were made. Tecumseh failed to score. The only man to reach 3d base was Ross. In the 9th inning Chapman went to bat first and struck out. Ross went to first on a scratch and was sent to third by Holderman, who was out at first. It looked for a minute as if the home team would at last make a score. Booker picked up the bat and after striking twice sent a grounder to left. Ross made a wild dash for home and that tally, but it was too late; the ball got to first before Booker and the "jig was up." Tecumseh made a good fight of it but was worsted.

Codling struck out three men and Huston eight. Following is the score:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R.	I.B.	P.O.	A.	E.
Tecumseh	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	—0	2	27	8	10

Monday's games were exceedingly one-sided. The Norvell's are a strong team and proved too much for both the home and Deerfield clubs. In the morning Tecumseh and Norvell occupied the diamond and the score resulted in 14 to 4, in favor of the latter. The Norvell seem to be satisfied with that number of scores, for they made 14 while Deerfield made 3 in the afternoon.

Yesterday afternoon the first and second nines played a five inning game at the base ball grounds, resulting in a bad defeat for the former. The score was, first nine, 7, and second, 20. The absence of the first nine's regular battery was, in a measure, the cause of the large number of runs.

This medicine is an Alterative, and [illegible] in some cases, may not be [illegible] as in others, but, with perseverance, the result is certain. Read these testimonials:—

"For two years I suffered from a severe pain in my right side, and had many troubles caused by a torpid liver and dyspepsia. After giving several other things a fair trial without a cure, I was advised to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I was greatly benefited by the first bottle, and after taking five bottles I was completely cured."—John W. Benson, 70 Lawrence st., Lowell, Mass.

"Last May a large carbuncle broke out on my arm. The usual remedies had no effect and I was confined to my bed for eight weeks. A friend induced me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Less than three bottles healed the sore. In all my experience with medicine, I never saw more [illegible]."

Wonderful Results.

Another marked effect of the use of this medicine was the strengthening of my [illegible]."—Mrs. Carrie Adams, Holly Springs, Texas.

"I had a dry scaly humor for years, and suffered terribly; and, as my brother and sister were similarly afflicted, I presume the malady is hereditary. Last winter, Dr. Tyron, (of Fernandina, Fla.,) recommended me to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and continue it for a year. For five months I took it daily. I have not had a blemish upon my body for the last three months."—T. E. Wiley, 146 Chambers st., New York City.

"Last fall and winter I was troubled with a dull, heavy pain in my side. I did not notice it much at first, but it gradually grew worse until it became almost unbearable. During the latter part of this time, disorders of the stomach and liver increased my troubles. I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, after faithfully continuing the use of this medicine for some months, the pain disappeared and I was completely cured."—Mrs. Augusta A. Furbush, Haverhill, Mass.

TO AMUSE A GUEST.

Now, how to amuse a guest in the country is one of the questions which a young hostess will surely ask.

Lawn tennis seems to be the solvent, so far as the young are concerned. Every country place should have a lawn tennis court. Archery has not yet become acclimated in America, but there are clubs in certain circles which promise a future for this game.

Yachting is a favorite summer entertainment, and adds much to the ease of country neighborhoods near the sea.

The opulent young people, near New York, who keep horses and dogs, who can offer everybody a "mount," and take them to the hunt, have great facilities for entertaining guests. But no incompetent rider should ever get on a friend's horse. An English writer has said a man will forgive you for breaking his own neck, but not for breaking the neck of his favorite hunter. But driving in a carriage over a good road is by far the favorite amusement for ladies.

A correspondent writes to ask the etiquette of carriage riding. A gentleman always takes his seat with his back to the horses, opposite the lady, unless he is requested to sit by the lady. When he enters the carriage he should put his left foot on the step and enter the carriage with his right foot. This is, however, supposing to sit facing the horses. If he sits with his back to the horses he reverses this process. When the carriage stops he must be the first to alight, and then assist the ladies. He is not to sit beside the lady who occupies the carriage, sit on the left hand.

Ladies who own country horses and who entertain should learn to drive well. Indeed, in these days, when ladies drive ponies in little carts, we need not advise them to drive well.

Many correspondents ask what is the best equipage for a young man? A tilbury and one horse is very showy, a dog cart the most convenient, a high chariot very stately, but the two-seated post wagon the most convenient for a country neighborhood. There should always be a servant behind.

A guest who is asked to stay over Sunday at a country house should always hold himself at the disposal of the hostess. If she proposes a plan of action he should fall in with it and yet he should not be a heavyweight. He must be ready to walk, read, write letters, take himself off if he sees he is not wanted, and the best hostess is she who sees to it that, while her guest is taken care of, he has no suspicion that he is being "entertained." The charm of a country neighborhood should be in its ease, and while a good-natured host and hostess place their grounds, their horses and carriages, and their servants at the disposition of their guests, the greatest care should be observed by the guest not to presume on this, to observe the family hours.

Some people are "born visitors"—they have the tact to perceive when they are wanted and when not; they allow the hostess to get off to write her letters, they are gay and amusing. Such a visitor is in great demand.—M. E. W. Sherwood, in New York Sun.

STEEL NEEDLES.

The Sewing Implements That Preceded Them.

It is impossible to say who were the inventors of needles; for at a very early period rude attempts were made among various uncivilized nations to form such an article out of bone, ivory or like materials, in order to stitch together their clothes. Doubtless our first mother employed such an instrument, along with the fibre of plants, etc., as thread.

But fine needles of metal were in common use among the more refined nations of antiquity, as the Hindoos, Chinese, Egyptians, Assyrians, Hebrews, Greeks and Romans. Pliny mentions the ladies of his day as having needles of bronze for sewing and knitting, and numbers have been found in Egyptian tombs that must have been made some 4000 years ago.

The size needle was first manufactured in Spain, where the process of making it was long kept a secret, whence it was first imported into England in the time of Queen Elizabeth.

In 1560 Christopher Greening, at Long Crendon, in Buckinghamshire, erected needle works, and these are in the manufacture of an article for which England is famed throughout the world.

John Was All Right.

"Your husband is out pretty late o' nights, Mrs. Cully."

"Yes, Mrs. Daily; his business keeps him late, you know."

"Are you sure it's business? These men ain't to be trusted too far, Mrs. Cully. I speak from experience."

"Well, I guess my John is all right."

"What makes you so confident?"

"Well, he shaves only once a week, and then he grumbles about having it to do. He doesn't give the least bit of attention to his personal appearance; indeed, I have hard work in keeping him tidy. Then he won't put a drop of cologne on his handkerchief, and——"

"That's enough, Mrs. Cully. There's no female in his case, that's sure. He's all right."—Boston Courier.

"You know the defendant in this case, do you?" asked a Kansas lawyer of a female native of the soil.

"Know which?" asked she.

"The defendant, Jake Lynch."

"And I know Jake Lynch!"

"Yes."

"You want to know if I know Jake Lynch—well, if that ain't a good one. Why, mister, the Lynch family an'——"

"Can't you say 'yes' or 'no'?"

"Why, Jake Lynch's mother an' my stepdad's father was once first cousins, an'——"

"Then you know him?"

"Who, Jake Lynch? Me know Jake Lynch? You're a stranger in these parts, ain't you?"

"That has nothing to do with the case. If you know Jake Lynch, say so."

"If I know him! Lemme tell you that Jake Lynch's birthday and my brother Hiram's is on the same day, an'——"

"You know him, of course, then?"

"Who—Jake Lynch? Ask Jake if I know him! Ask him if he was ever interdoped to Betty Skelton."

"I don't care to ask him anything. I simply want to ask you if Jake Lynch is known to you personally."

"Pussonly? Well, I don't know what you mean by 'pussonly,' but if you want to know if I know Jake an' he knows me, I can tell you in mighty few words. Jake Lynch's father an' my father——"

"Now, I want you to say 'yes' or 'no.'"

"Thought you wanted me to say if I knew Jake Lynch."

"That's just what I do want."

"Well, then, bein' jest as I'll tell you all about it. Jake Lynch was born in Injeeany an' I was born in the same county an'——"

"And of course you know him?"

"Who—Jake Lynch? Do I know Jake Lynch, when the very hoss he rid here on was one he traded my man a pair of young steers for? Why, man, Jake's wife was Ann Elizy Skiff, an' her ma-in-law is the same age to a day, an'——"

"That will do. I see that you do know him."

"Know him? Know Jake? Why man——"

"That will do."

"Why, I was married on a Chewsday an' Jake was married the next day, an' his oldest boy an' my oldest girl is most the same age, an'——"

"That will do."—Chicago Tribune.

SOME SCANTILY CLAD PEOPLE.

Description of the Female Attendants in New York Baths—Healthy and Vigorous Young Women.

The attendants present the most picturesque appearance, being clothed only in a short tunic of white cotton caught on one shoulder, falling away from the other down under one arm, and reaching to the knee.

These girls are very beautiful in form, their round, shapely limbs gleaming white, like marble, and soft to the touch as a baby's skin. Not an ounce of superfluous flesh encumbers them, not an outline of bone or joint mars the fair roundness of shoulders and limbs.

They seldom know disease of any kind, and are splendid specimens of physical strength and symmetry.

On first engaging in work of this kind they lose flesh rapidly, and become very much exhausted each day, but when accustomed to the work they regain their normal weight and experience only a feeling of lassitude, from their long exposure to the heat, which passes away after an hour's rest. Their hands are never exposed to any other kind of work, and are as soft as velvet, supple, firm and exquisite in touch.

In the Russian bath the chief attendant, a lithe, vigorous girl, with a crop of kinky brown hair that curled all the tighter in the steam and heat, wore a very unique and original costume of Turkish towels.

Two towels were knotted by the fringe at the corners on one shoulder, passed underneath the other arm, and were again tied by the corners on one hip; two more towels knotted by the corners on each hip formed the abbreviated skirt of this striking regalia.

GOOD MANNERS.

The higher a person rises in the Old World the better his manners. No one is so respectful of an engagement to meet other people as the crowned head. Queen Victoria would not appoint an hour to meet a lady and go away and forget it.

This carelessness of forms and ceremonies may be ignorance; probably it is, but it is an ignorance which is culpable. Probably the reverse is true. A newly-made monarch commits the errors which marked the career of Sancho Panza on the Isle of Baratara. His new wine had made him drunk, and he insults the people to show his greatness.

No American citizen should allow his family to come up without some idea of good manners, for there is no end to the privileges of those who have good manners; no remuneration could cover those from which a person is debarred by the lack of good manners.

It is the duty of every educated American to disseminate this knowledge. It is the duty of every uneducated American to condescend to learn it.

"Merit, without manners, is a flower without perfume, or a tree without leaves."

Her Long Wait.

An obliging lady customer in a certain store in city of the two cities Friday insisted that she always traded with the proprietor and not with mere clerks.

"But the proprietor is not in," said the clerks.

She waited and as the half hours sped she grew impatient.

"When will he be back?" she said, loftily.

"In about four weeks, madam," was the reply. "He is now on a business trip to Madrid."

She traded with the clerks.—Lewiston Journal.

Charming but Unseen.

It is astonishing how pretty the homely girl you have never seen can look when she is busily talking nonsense to you through the telephone.—Somerville Journal.

[illegible]

It is time that respectable merchants combined with consumers for the suppression of all gift, prize and lottery schemes in connection with the sale of articles of merchandise. These schemes are not only demoralizing to legitimate business and to the [illegible] extent in which they are being carried on the sale of articles of food have become a source of great danger to the public health. They are, no matter in what form they appear, nothing more or less than devices to swindle honest and unsuspecting people.

It is gratifying to learn that in some instances the officers of the law have taken hold of the matter. In New York, and also in Chicago, parties who in this way offered gifts to purchasers of their packages, have, recently been arrested upon indictments for lottery swindling. The latest candidates, both for public execration and criminal prosecution, are the manufacturers of the alum baking powders, who are both, by means of gifts and lottery tickets, disposing of large quantities of their corrosively poisonous compounds, which are so well known to be detrimental to health that no housekeeper will admit them to her kitchen knowingly. This form of swindle is not only being peddled from house to house, but under a promise of large profits to be realized, the manufacturers are entrenching themselves behind the counters of many grocers by getting them to offer the alum goods with the gifts or lottery tickets attached, thereby shifting the liability to prosecution, in part, upon other, and perhaps innocent parties. Every grocer or dealer, for instance, who sells or offers for sale any of the prize or lottery baking powders is a criminal in the eye of the law, and liable, upon conviction, to fine and imprisonment, while those who sell the gift goods are morally, as responsible, for they are offering an inducement, or prize, to housekeepers to use a food that contains a corrosive poison. This is a predicament in which it is not possible our grocers will care to place themselves when they come to think seriously of the matter.

It must be borne in mind that every one of these gift or prize baking powders are alum baking powders. These powders cost less than four cents a pound to produce; the gift or prize costs but a few cents more. They are sold at the prize of a first-class baking powder, so that the swindle, in a commercial sense, is enormous. But the chief iniquity of the business consists in selling, as presumably wholesome, an article of a positively injurious character, and by means of gifts or bribes inducing servants or unsuspecting housekeepers to purchase and use it in our daily food.

There should be some prompt method of reaching these dangerous practices and punishing the parties engaged in their promotion. If the present laws are not ample, we commend the matter to the consideration of our State Board of Health for recommendation of such additional legislation as shall be effective of the protection of the public.

The president of the Chautauqua Assembly, Lewis Miller, of Akron, Ohio, well known as a successful inventor and manufacturer, is to lecture at Chautauqua in July on a new method of teaching reading and spelling in our public schools. This method is original with him, having been developed outside of the many hours daily given to his large manufactories. He has made a rule to set aside some time each day for work in other lines, and much that is helpful in educational methods has been the outcome of his busy brain. The explanation of this new theory will be awaited with interest by secular teachers.

English spavin liniment removes all hard, soft, or calloused lumps and blemishes from horses, blood spavin, curbs, splints, sweeney, stifles, sprains, sore and swollen throat coughs, etc. Save $50 by use of one bottle. Warranted. Sold by Baker & Hall, Druggists, Tecumseh Mich.

There is no denying the fact that Dr. Jones Red Clover Tonic is the most successful blood purifier ever put on the market. Its wonderful cures in all stomach, kidney and liver troubles has brought out many imitations. It restores debilitated nerve tissues, restoring the force lost by sickness, mental work or excessive use of liquor, opium and tobacco. Dr. Geo. Furguson, will supply the genuine at 50 cents a bottle.

A Narrow Escape.

Mrs. L. S. Pickerell, of Middlebury, Ind., had a very narrow escape from the insane asylum. For years she was subject to headache, palpitation, spinal pain, sleeplessness and nervous prostration. For three years she had convulsions, often as many as fifty a night. Able physicians failed to help her. At last after taking that wonderful remedy, Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine for six weeks she was entirely cured. It is a recent discovery by one of the greatest of living physicians, and is working wonders. Free bottle free at Baker and Hall's Drug Store.

[illegible] found a very severe [illegible] my head for months and used every thing recommended, but could get no relief. Was advised to try Ely's Cream Balm. It has worked like a charm in its cure. I am free from my pain after using the Balm one week, and I believe it is the best remedy known. Feeling grateful for what it has done for me I send this testimonial. Samuel M. Harris, Wholesale Grocer, 165 Front St., New York.

For sick headache, Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup is unexcelled in its effects regulating to a healthy condition the stomach and digestive organs.

There is nothing more miraculous in its effects, entirely removing from the face, moth patches or brown spots merely by its action on the blood, than Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup.

[illegible] Cancer and Ulcers.

Judge T. C. McLendon writes to the Swift Specific Co.: "About three years ago, Jerry Bradley had a cancerous sore on his face, near the right eye. It caused him a great deal of pain, and he lost the sight of the eye, but was finally cured by the use of Swift's Specific. This case is well known in Wilkes Co., Ga., where he lives."

Miss writes: "I suffered a great deal from blood poison, and after using your medicine was completely cured. Your medicine does more than you claim for it. I have known it to cure cases which were thought incurable."

Mrs. A. M. Gotsman, No. 604 Warren St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "I commenced using S. S. S. about three years ago. I had suffered from a sore throat for over a year. I used several many other remedies, but to no good results. My little girl, a baby, had also suffered for a long time with a sore on her head. I treated her for over two years, and when I commenced using S. S. S. I thought I would see what it would do for her. I am thankful to say that it entirely cured her. It is the best remedy I know of for the blood. I really believe it was the means of saving my life. The doctor told me I had a blood disease similar to Gen. Grant's. I cheerfully recommend it to all suffering from disordered blood."

Philosophical Housemaid.

"No," said the housemaid, "I don't apologize to a man when I throw a bucket of water down the front steps to wash 'em, and he comes along and gets drenched. I've tried apologizing, but I've found there's nothing you can say to a man in that case will satisfy him."—Scranton Truth.

"These Three Are One."

"Who is that lady dressed in black, mamma?" asked Bobby, as he sat with his mother on a ferryboat.

"That is a Sister of Charity, my boy," replied his mother.

Bobby pondered deeply for a moment and then he said, "Which is she, mamma, Faith or Hope?"—Harper's Bazar.

KING OF THE BLOOD

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

Its name is its best description as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, CLOTHS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES, and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. It has frequently cured it when advanced.

It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, generally or partial.

It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.

It reduces in a simple and effectual manner all swellings, whether from Dropsy, Disease and Mineral Poisons and [illegible] and constitutions.

CANT AND SLANG.

An Eminent Writer's Observations on These Abuses of Language.

"Cant" was the Gaelic or British word caiunt, signifying language—the language, par excellence, of the common people in the olden time before the prevalence of the Teutonic or Anglo-Saxon. From that language the now common slang of the streets, and of the very lowest classes of the population, imitated too extensively in our day by the class immediately above them, and even by those of a still higher grade, is in great part derived.

If proof be needed of the fact, it will be only necessary to cite such words and phrases as "cove," "bloke," "beak," "hook it," "do you, twig," "masher," "brick," "cut your stick," and scores of others that are but too familiar among the millions both of low and high life.

"Cove," a fellow, a man, a person, is from the Celtic or Keltic caobbh—bh pronounced as v—which signifies courteous, and is synonymous with the vulgar abbreviation of "gent" for gentleman.

"Bloke," a term of disrespect and not of courtesy, is from ploc, a large or bull headed person, and plocach, a big, strong, coarse person.

"Hook it," to be off, to run away, to decamp, is from thugad—th silent—a command to be gone' to go away'

"Beak," a magistrate, is from beachd, judgment or a judge

"Do you twig?" do you understand? is from taig, to understand, and tuigsin, comprehension.

"Masher," a beau, a dandy, a swell, an exquisite, is probably, though not certainly, from meas, pronounced mash, elegant.

"Brick," the highest encomium paid to a good fellow, is from brigh, spirit, energy, courage and right feeling, and brighell, high spirited and magnanimous.

"Cut your stick," to disappear, to run away, to decamp, is a ludicrous corruption of cuit as teach, or "leave the house."

The secret tricks and observances of trades and professions of all kinds which are spoken of among themselves by their adepts and practitioners are to a great extent derived from the same ancient sources, although, as these tricks and mysteries were less widely practiced and known in the comparatively primitive days of the Middle Ages than they have become in the keener and less scrupulous age of unlimited and almost desperate competition in which society now grovels and wallows—when it does not growl and fight—slang and cant words were less numerous than they have since become.

The trades and professions of the present day while preserving many of the old Celtic shibboleths and passwords, have invented or compounded new ones from the Teutonic and latinized English as it has been extended within the last two centuries. As new and more ingenious frauds have been practiced by unscrupulous traders, they have discovered or coined new words and phrases to designate their knaveries.

In the days when milk was sold pure and unadulterated as it came from the cow, there was no necessity to talk of "the cow with the iron tail," or "the pump; or of a fabulous "Simson" or "Simpson," whose aid was required to convert milk into milk and water, or for beer, when similarly treated, to be described as 'stretched.'—Charles Mackay in Blackwood's Magazine.

STUPID PHILANTHROPY.

An Illustration of Misdirected Energy and Liberality.

A vivacious lady was relating to a friend how much difficulty she and a few others had had in raising a sum of money sufficient to send a missionary to Constantinople.

"We did have to work so hard," she said pathetically. "People absolutely refused to be interested. We held fairs and made people buy things, and we had parlor concerts and actually forced our friends to take tickets, and we sewed and we begged subscriptions.

"But now we've got the money it is worth all our trouble to see the zeal of the young lady we are going to send out. Of course she won't introduce religion at first, until she has won their regard; but she's bought a Turkish grammar, and she is so eager to begin to civilize the Turks and she has such clever ideas about how to go to work, too."

"But how will she go to work?" the friend inquired. "What will she teach them first?"

"Oh, all sorts of nice things," the other returned rapturously. "Things that tend to elevate. She'll teach them to—to—why, to eat with knives and forks and not to have harems and to sit on chairs."

The Homely Waiter Girl.

"Come, Ned, let's take this table over here."

"No, no, old man, come down in the corner there, furthest from the door."

"But look here, Ned, just see the table-girl over here. Isn't she a daisy? She's the prettiest one in the place. I don't want to go down there to be waited on by that old chromo."

"There, there, my boy; you just stop your nonsense and come along with me. I've been grubbing at restaurants too long to be fooled by any such talk as that. If you want to flirt you can get a prettier girl outside. If you want to eat you come here and pick out the homely waiter. The waiter-girl who is pretty doesn't have time to do anything else. It's the homely girl who brings your order straight and gets you your dinner hot every 'single time.'"

MORTGAGE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of interest and principal on said mortgage to the amount of one hundred eighty five 73-100 dollars, and the same having remained unpaid for a period of more than sixty days and by reason of such default the whole amount of principal and interest has thereby become due amounting at the date of this notice to the sum of Four Hundred Eighty-five and 73-100 dollars, and no proceedings at law or in equity have been commenced for recovery of said sum or any part thereof.

Notice is therefore hereby given that by virtue of the power and provisions in said mortgage contained, and of the statute of the state of Michigan, in such case made and provided, the said above described land and premises will be sold at public vendue to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House in the city of Adrian, Lenawee County, Michigan, (that being the building in which the circuit court for said county of Lenawee is holden) on Friday, the 14th day of September, 1888, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage, the costs and expense of this foreclosure and sale including an attorney fee as provided by law.

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH!

The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, printed from good readable type on good paper, and many of them handsomely illustrated. They are without exception the cheapest books ever published in any land or language, and furnish to the masses of the people an opportunity to secure the best literature of the day at the most trifling expense. In any other series these great works would cost many times the price at which they are here offered. Each one is complete in itself:

Wonders of the World. NATURAL AND OTHER. Contains descriptions and illustrations of the most wonderful works of nature and of man. Very interesting and instructive.
"A Pleasure Excursion," and Other Sketches. By "JOSIAH ALLEN'S WIFE." A collection of irresistibly funny sketches by the most popular humorous writer of the day.
The Aunt Keziah Papers. by CHARA AUGUSTA, author of "The Beer Documents." A most ridiculously funny book—in every way equal to "Widow Bedott."
Christmas Stories, by CHARLES DICKENS. Contains a number of the most charming Christmas stories ever written by the greatest writer who ever lived. Each one is complete.
Round the Evening Lamp. A book of stories, pictures, puzzles and games, for the little folks at home.
Popular Recitations and Dialogues, humorous, dramatic and pathetic, including all the latest, best and most popular.
The Self-made Men of Modern Times. Contains portraits and biographies of famous self-made Americans, from the time of Franklin to the present.
Familiar Quotations. Containing the origin and authorship of many phrases frequently met in reading and conversation. A valuable work of reference.
The Road to Wealth. Not an advertising circular, but a thoroughly practical work, pointing out a way by which all may make money, easily, rapidly and honestly.

RAISIN VALLEY SEMINARY.

A CLASS OF EIGHT GRADUATES FINISH THE COURSE AND RECEIVE THEIR DIPLOMAS.

The Exercises of the Annual Commencement Held at the Seminary on Friday Last—A Fine Program Presented to a Crowded House.

The Raisin Valley Seminary has enjoyed a very prosperous year during the twelvemouth just closed. The attendance has been larger than ever before and under the efficient management of Prof. Hathaway, the school has run very smoothly. The regular Commencement Exercises of the gratulating class took place last Friday forenoon. The day, although sultry, was very pleasant, and the attendance crowded the accommodations to the utmost.

The hall decorations were confined to the platform but they were exceedingly tasty. A wire netting was stretched along the front of the stage filled with ferns and evergreens. In the center over the opening was an evergreen arch extending to the ceiling and from the arch was suspended an evergreen bell covered with white lillies. The class motto "Onward" was handsomely wrought on the blackboard back of the stage.

At ten o'clock, the members of the graduating class and others who had parts on the program filed into the hall and took chairs upon the platform.

Prof. F. R. Hathaway opened the exercises with a short scriptural selection, and the venerable Richard Harkness offered the invocation.

Marian L. Hathaway of Addison then gave an essay upon the subject "Being and Doing." Nature is governed by two fores, dynamic an tatic, and these two forces must always work together. There must be doing as well as being to accomplish the end of nature's laws.

"Duties of American Citizenship" was the title of an essay by Alma A. Howes of Fairfield. The leading idea of the essay was that the love of liberty was inate in every man's heart. To secure this liberty the rising generation must be taught to obey the laws and be faithful in their allegiance to the government.

Margaret F. Everiss of Adrian sang a solo, "I arise from Dreams of Thee." Miss Gay Lewis accompanied on the piano. Miss Everiss fully sustained her reputation as a fine vocalist.

Allie M. Luther of Sutton, then read an essay on "Universal Education the Duty of the Hour." Education has made great advancement during the last fifty years but there is still room for improvement. There are still many thousands in the United States who cannot read or write. In a government like ours where all men have a voice in making the laws education should be universal.

"The American Girl" was the subject of Ida M. Pocklington's essay of Ridgeway. She is rapidly becoming independent and now enjoys the same privileges of education as her brother. Compared with the girls of other nations, the American girl will hold her own both in intelligence and outside advantages.

Warren G. Shepherd of Onsted then gave an address on "The Nature of of our Government." The formation of our Constitution was of slow growth, but came about from natural causes, the gradual development of free institutions. The colored race is now admitted to full citizenship. The speaker pointed out the difference between our rulers and those of other nations. In this enlightened country, anarchy can never prevail.

"Conscience, the Final Rule of Action" was the title of an essay read by Etta Stanley of Damascus, Ohio. Conscience is a separate and distinct mental faculty. It decides what is right and what is wrong, without assigning any reason. If we follow the dictates of our own conscience we shall always have a safe guide to action.

Miss Everiss then favored the audience with another solo, "Tit for Tat" which was charmingly rendered.

"The Jury System" by Charles H. Vaughan of Springville, was the next address. The jury system was first introduced by the Athenians, but was very different from the one now in fogue. Owing to the foreign element now rapidly filling up this country, the present jury system should be modified so as to exclude ignorant persons from serving as jurymen.

"The Reformer" was the title of the last essay by Eva I. Wheeler of Adrian. There are two classes in society, one seeks to improve everything, the other discourages all advancement. Both are necessary. The reformer is the advance guard of civilization. Sometimes he is no more than a crank, but the real reformer tempers his reform with energy and prudence.

Judge V. H. Lane gave an address to the class which was brim full of good advice, expressed in charming language, and fitly terminated a very interesting program.

The closing piece of music, an instrumental solo, entitled "Lucrezia Borgia," was beautifully rendered by Belle Barlow of Ridgeway.

Mr. Seth Rees then pronounced the benediction and the audience was dismissed.

All the graduates were the recipients of floral mementos and most of them received gifts of books and other articles of value. Although the hall was literally packed, and the audience overflowed into the adjoining room and hung out of the windows and over the lawn, still they all listened with intent interest. At the close, many of the visitors lingered an hour or so to renew old acquaintances and to congratulate the young graduates who had successfully finished their course.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

Potatoes are doing fine and promise a big crop.

The ladies renovated the audience room of the church last week, and it appeared a little strange that only one man could be found to assist the ladies in their work. It seems to us that some of the men who enjoy their cigars in the shade might have assisted as much as to put the matting down. It is a work that every man as well as woman of the village should feel interested alike, in keeping up the property of the church.

G. P. Waring is giving his fine residence on North street a fresh coat of paint and changing the shades.

Richard Cadmus is erecting a new barn on his farm north of the village.

Belle Barlow assisted in the musical part of the commencement exercises at the Valley lest week.

Ida Pocklington finished her school days at the Raisin Valley Seminary, she having graduated at the commencement last week. With other friends we extend our best wishes for success.

Grant Schreder, of Clinton, and Miss Jack, of Blissfield, called on W. H. Arner and family Sunday.

The Band of Hope will hold their meeting each week on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the school house. They desire a full attendance of the members and extend a cordial invitation to all who wish to attend.

Robert Houseman was overcome by the heat one day last week so as to be under the doctor's care.

G. P. Waring is in Detroit at this writing, attending the Prohibition state convention being held there this week.

Prof. Martin Palmer having closed his duties as superintendent of the Flat Rock School for the past two years, is home enjoying his vacation.

It was our privilege to enjoy the graduating exercises of Adrian college on Thursday morning and evening of last week.

Williams and Arner finished slating Alva Dexter's house at Milan Saturday, and Tink is completing the tinworks this week.

Our base ball team played the straw work club of Adrian a game on the new fair grounds at Adrian, Saturday last, and returned home with more laurels in their crown of success. At the close of the ninth inning they were tied, and it took two innings to break the tie, making eleven innings. The score then stood 6 to 7 in favor of Ridgeway.

The W. C. T. U. will give an ice-cream and cake lawn fete at Mrs. W. P. Cadmus' on Tuesday evening, July 10th. The attraction for the evening is as follows: To the lady who saws a board a foot wide the best in every respect will be given a dish of cream for herself and best fellow, and to the lady who drives a tenpenny nail the straightest will be given the same reward, and also to the lady who bores an inch hole the straightest. Cream and cake will be served at ten cents a dish.

Richard Wiggins, of Britton, and Theodore, of Ridgeway, returned last week from Clinton co., where they have been building a large barn for James Campbell. It is claimed to be the best and largest barn in that section. Mr. Campbell is very much pleased with his fine structure and speaks of his carpenters in the highest terms of praise.

ONSTED ODDS.

A very nice rain Saturday night.

Haying will commence in this vicinity this week.

A. P. Ousted has invested in a bran new carriage.

Mrs. D. C. Richards is entertaining relatives from near Battle Creek at present.

Claude Austin now has a mustang pony to assist him in his promenading exercise.

That woman's district convention held at Andrew Riley's a few days ago, put a large, new boy into the field as a candidate for board and clothes, and Cleveland is nowhere.

Mrs. S. A. Darling visited in Jackson part of last week.

Two ball games in town last Saturday afternoon between kid clubs, and everything lively.

Mrs. Phillips gave a talk Sunday evening at the church.

The majority of our church going citizens attended the quarterly meeting at the North Rome F. B. church last Sunday.

C. Cooper is putting up a nice lot of wire and picket fence these days.

The scandal south of town has somewhat subsided.

The ladies' missionary society convenes at E. S. Ross' on Thursday.

Jessie Short, returned from Dakota a few days ago.

J. B. Russell has moved his small barn from his lot north of the railroad onto his home lot, and placed it back of his residence.

Leonard Mann visited Chicago last week.

Charles Wooden is practising as a wool buyer.

C. Parker, our new shoemaker, reports business lively for this time of year, and thinks his location a good one.

CERTAINLY THE BEST.

Papillon (Clark's extract of flax) Catarrh Cure, from an experiment, has grown to be the acknowledged superior of any remedy for similar purposes. Purely vegetable and scientific lly prepared, it is absolutely harmless, and effects cures where all other known remedies and the most learned medical talent fail. That it is a favorite with all classes is evidenced by the fact that during the past two years, 86,000 gallons have been sold. Positively cures Catarrh, Hay Fever, Colds, etc., etc. Large bottles only $1.00.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

The Republican National Convention which closed its labors in Chicago last Monday, was the longest, and most exciting convention ever held, with perhaps two exceptions. The Democratic convention at Charleston in 1860 was contested as hotly and resulted in the disruption of the party, but the outside attendance was comparatively small. The Republican convention of 1880 assembled on Wednesday, adjourned over Sunday, and did not nominate Garfield until the Tuesday following. The battle between Blaine and Grant raged four days and the bitter animosities there engendered have been one of the chief causes of the subsequent decline of the party.

The contest last week was not upon any political principle or doctrine. The platform was adopted on Thursday without a dissenting voice, and there was no struggle in the committee that reported it. The entire fight was a war of factions, a contest between personal ambitions, and as usually happens in such cases, the strongest men were killed off and strewn by the wayside, and leaders of lesser note came to the front. The two men of national reputation and tried leadership before the convention were Blaine and Sherman. They had been in public life for more than a quarter of a century. They were known and honored in every state in the Union. Their nomination would have enthused the masses of the party. But the fight between them was so intense that neither could be nominated without disintegrating the party organization. The alternative which presented itself was to make the best available ticket for it local strength in the debatable states, and from that point of view the ticket is probably the best that could have been made. The platform commits the party unequivocally to class interests and high tariff, to war taxes and prodigal expenditures. Gen. Harrison is a faithful representative of these influences. His nomination was secured by Chauncy M. DePuy, the New York railroad president. He, himself, is an extreme protectionist. And he controls the party machine in Indiana and Indiana is a doubtful state.

Levi P. Morton, of New York, the candidate for Vice President, has had but little experience in public life, but he is personally popular in his own state, and like our own Gen. Alger, he is the happy possessor of a big barrel, which is always on tap. The ticket is framed to capture New York and Indiana, and the Republican theory of the campaign will be to concentrate their forces in these two states, relying upon the faithfulness of all the hitherto Republican states in the North. It is staking success on a very slender thread, but in the present dilemma of the party it seems to be their only alternative. The South will be solid for Cleveland as against Harrison. The Pacific states will become doubtful owing to Harrison's Chinese record. Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Nebraska and Minnesota will become debatable territory on the tariff question, and even Ohio, with Sherman slaughtered and Thurman's bandanna fluttering in the breeze, may be wrested from her Republican moorings. Blaine would have contested at least four southern states; he would have held the Pacific coast beyond a doubt; he would have drawn 50,000 Irish Democrats in New York; he would have enthused the rank and file of his own party and made the fight hot along the entire line. Is Harrison stronger in New York to-day than Blaine was four years ago? We doubt it. Is he stronger in Indiana than Blaine and Logan were in 1884? We doubt it. There is another view of the situation however that cannot be overlooked. Personally considered the ticket is a clean one. Both candidates are men of irreproachable character. All the corporate and monopoly influence in the country will stand by the ticket. Campaign funds will be forthcoming in abundance. The big money rings will open their pocketbooks freely, for they know that the re-election of Cleveland will sound the death knell of war taxes, tariff robbery and enormous expenditures. The issue is so plainly made that even the wayfaring man can read and understand. It will be a hand-to-hand fight between the "masses" and the "classes," and although the outcome may be somewhat shaded in doubt, we believe that the people will win.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

A Hot Time in More Senses than One—Harrison and Morton the Winners.

The Republican National Convention which convened in Chicago last week Tuesday did not complete its labors until Monday evening of this week. On that afternoon Gen. Harrison received the nomination for President on the 8th ballot. Levi P. Morton of New York was nominated on the first ballot for Vice President. The detailed proceedings of each day will have reached our readers before we go to press, and we simply reproduce the platform in these columns.

BENJAMIN HARRISON.

LEVI P. MORTON.

THE PLATFORM.

The Republicans of the United States, assembled by their delegates in national convention, pause on the threshold of their proceedings to honor the memory of their first great leader, the immortal champion of liberty and the rights of the people—Abraham Lincoln—and to cover also with wreaths of imperishable remembrance and gratitude the heroic names of our late leaders who have more recently been called away from our councils—Grant, Garfield, Arthur, Logan, Conkling. May their memories be faithfully cherished. We also recall with our greetings, and with prayer for his recovery, the name of our living hero, whose memory will be treasured in the history both of Republicans and of the Republic—the name of that noble soldier and favorite child of victory, Philip H. Sheridan.

In the spirit of those great leaders, and of our devotion to human liberty and with that hostility to all forms of despotism and oppression which is the fundamental idea of the Republican party, we send fraternal congratulation to our fellow Americans of Brazil, upon their great act of emancipation, which completed the abolition of slavery throught the two American continents. We earnestly hope that we may soon congratulate our fellow-citizens of Irish birth upon the peaceful recovery of home rule for Ireland.

We reaffirm our unswerving devotion to the National Constitution, and to the indissoluble union of the States; to the autonomy reserved to the States under the Constitution, to the personal rights and liberties of citizens in all the States and Territories in the Union, and especially to the supreme and soverign right of every lawful citizen, rich or poor, native or foreign born, white or black, to cast one free ballot in public elections, and to have that ballot duly counted. We hold the free and honest popular ballot and the just and equal representation of all the people to be the foundation of our Republican government, and demand effective legislation to secure integrity and purity of elections, which are the foundations of all public authority. We charge that the present administration and Democratic majority in Congress owe their existence to the suppression of the ballot by a criminal nullification of the Constitution and laws of the United States.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction, as proposed by the President and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests, except those of the usurer and the sheriff. We denounce the Mills bill as destructive to the general business, the labor and the farming interests of the country, and we heartily indorse the consistent and patriotic action of the Republican representatives in congress in opposing its passage.

We condemn the proposition of the Democratic party to place wool on the free list, and we insist that the duties theron shall be adjusted and maintained so as to furnish full and adequate protection to that industry.

The Republican party would effect all needed reduction of the national revenue by repealing the taxes on tobacco which are an annoyance and burden to agriculture, and the tax upon spirits used in the arts and for mechanical purposes; and by such re-check imports of such articles as are produced by our people the production of which gives employment to our labor, and remove from import duties those articles of foreign production (except luxuries,) the like of which cannot be produced at home. If there shall still remain a larger revenue than is requisite for the wants of the government, we favor the entire repeal of internal taxes, rather than the surrender of any part of our protective system, at the joint behest of the whisky trusts and the agents of foreign manufacturers.

We declare our hostility to the introduction into this country of foreign contract labor and of Chinese labor, alien to our civilization and our Constitution; and we demand the right enforcement of the existing laws against it, and favor such immediate legislation as will exclude such labor from our shores.

We declare our opposition to all combinations of capital, organized in trusts or otherwise, to control arbitrarily the condition of trade among citizens; and we recommend to Congress, and the State Legislature in their respective jurisdictions, such legislation as will prevent the execution of all schemes to oppress the people by undue charges on their supplies or by unjust rates for the transportation of their products to market.

We approve the legislation by Congress to prevent alike unjust burdens and unfair discriminations between the States.

We reaffirm the policy of appropriating the public lands of the United States to be homesteads for American citizens and setlers, not aliens, which the Republican party established in 1862, against the persistent opposition of the Democrats in Congress, and which has brought our great western domain into such magnificent development. The restoration of unearned railroad land grants to the public domain for the use of actual settlers, which was begun under the administration of President Arthur, should be continued. We deny that the Democratic party has ever restored one acre to the people, but declare that by the joint action of Republicans and Democrats about 50,000,000 of acres of unearned lands originally granted for the construction of railroads have been restored to the public domain, in pursuance of the conditions inserted by the Republican party in the original grants. We charge the Democratic administration with failure to execute the laws securing to settlers titles to their homesteads, and with using appropriations made for that purpose to harrass innocent settlers with spies and prosecutions under the false pretense of exposing frauds and vindicating the law.

The government by Congress of the Territories is based upon necessity only, to the end that they may become States in the Union; therefore, whenever the conditions of population, material resources, public intelligence and morality are such as to insure a stable local government therein the people of such Territories should be permitted, as a right inherent in them to form for themselves constitutions and state governments and be admitted into the Union. Pending the preparation for Statehood, all officers thereof should be selected from the bona fide residents and citizens of the Territory wherein they are to serve. South Dakota should of right be immediately admitted as a State in the Union, under the Constitution framed and adopted by her people, and we heartily indorse the action of the Republican Senate in twice passing bills for admission. The refusal of the Democratic House of Representatives, for partisan purposes, to favorably consider these bills is a violation of the sacred American principle of local self-government and merits the condemnation of all just men. The pending bills in the Senate for acts to enable the people of Washington, North Dakota and Mountana Territories to form Constitutions and establish State governments, should be passed without delay. The Republican party pledges itself to do all in its power to facilitate the admission of the Territories of New Mexico, Wyoming, Idaho and Arizona to the enjoyment of self-government as States, such of them as are now qualified, as soon as possible, and the others as soon as they may become so.

The political power of the Mormon Church in the Territories, as exercised in the past, is a menace to free institutions, too dangerous longer to be suffered, Therefore we pledge the Republican party to appropriate legislation asserting the sovereignty of the nation in all Territories where the same is questioned, and in furtherance of that end to place upon the statute books legislation stringent enough to divorce the political from the ecclesiastical power, and thus stamp out the attendant wickedness of polygamy.

The republican party is in favor of the use of both gold and silver as money, and condemns the policy of the Democratic administration in its efforts to demonetize silver.

We demand the reduction of letter pastage to one cent per ounce.

In a republic like ours, where the citizen is the sovereign and the official the servant, where no power is exercised except by the will of the people, it is important that the sovereign—the people—should possess intelligence The free school is the promoter of that intelligence which is to preserve us a free nation; therefore the State or nation, or both combined, should support free institutions of learning sufficient to afford to every child growing up in the land the opportunity of a good common school education.

We earnestly recommend that prompt action be taken by Congress in the enactment of such legislation as will best secure the rehabilitation of our American merchant marine, and we protest against the passing by Congress of a free ship bill, as calculated to work injustice to labor by lessening the wages of those engaged in preparing materials, as well as those directly employed in our ship-yards. We demand appropriations for the early rebuilding of our navy; for the construction of coast fortifications and modern ordinance, and other approved modern means of defense for the protection of our defenseless harbors and cities; for the payment of pensions to our soldiers; for necessary works of national importance in the improvement of harbors and channels of internal coast-wise and foreign commerce; for the encouragement of the shipping interests of the Atlantic, Gulf payment of the maturing public debt. This policy will give employment to our labor, activity to our various industries, increase the security of our country, promote trade, open new and direct markets for our produce and cheapen the cost of transportation. We affirm this to be far better for our country than the Democratic policy of loaning the government's money without interest to "pet banks."

The conduct of foreign affairs by the present administration has been distinguished by its inefficiency and its cowardice. Having withdrawn from the Senate all pending treaties effected by Republican administrations for the removal of foreign burdens and restrictions upon our commerce, and for its extension into better markets, it has neither effected nor proposed any others in their stead. Professing adherence to the Monroe doctrine, it has seen with idle complacency the extension of foreign influence in Central America, and of foreign trade everywhere among our neighbors. It has refused to charter, sanction or encourage any American organization for constructing the Nicaragua Canal, a work of vital importance to the maintenance of the Monroe doctrine, and of our national influence in Central and South America; and necessary for the development of trade with our Pacific territory, with South America, and with the islands and further coasts of the Pacific Ocean.

We arraign the present Democratic administration for its weak and unpatriotic treatment of the fisheries question, and its pusillanimous surrender of the essential privileges to which our fishing vessels are entitled in Canadian ports under the treaty of 1818, the reciprocal maritime legislation of 1830, and the comity of nations, and which Canadian fishing vessels receive in the ports of the United States. We condemn the policy of the present administration and the Democratic majority in Congress towards our fisheries as unfriendly and conspicuously unpatriotic, and as tending to destroy a valuable national industry and an indispensable source of defense against a foreign enemy.

The name of American applies alike to all citizens of the Republic, and imposes upon all alike the same obligation of obedience to the laws. At the same time that citizenship is and must be the panoply and safeguard of him who wears it, and protects him, whether high or low, rich or poor, in all his civil rights. It should and must afford him protection at home, and follow and protect him abroad in whatever land he may be on a lawful errand.

The men who abandoned the Republican party in 1884, and continue to adhere to the Democratic party, have deserted not only the cause of honest government, of sound finance, of freedom and purity of the ballot, but especially have deserted the cause of reform in the civil service. We will not fail to keep our pledges because they have broken theirs, or because their candidate has broken his. We therefore repeat our declaration of 1884 to wit: "The reform of the civil service, auspiciously begun under the Republican administration, should be completed by the further extension of the reform system, already established by law, to all the grades of the service to which it is applicable. The spirit and purposes of the reform should be observed in all executive appointments, and all laws at variance with the object of existing reform legislation should be repealed, to the end that the dangers to free institutions, which lurk in the power of official patronage, may be wisely and effectively avoided."

The gratitude of the nation to the defenders of the Union cannot be measured by laws. The legislation of Congress should conform to the pledges made by a loyal people, and be so enlarged and extended as to provide against the possibility that any man who honorably wore the Federal uniform shall become an inmate of an almshouse or depend upon private charity. In the presence of an overflowing treasury it would be a public scandal to do less for those whose valorous service preserved the government. We denounce the hostile spirit shown by President Cleveland in his numerous vetoes of measures for pension relief, and the action of the Democratic House of Representatives in refusing even a consideration of general pension legislation.

In support of the principles herewith enumerated we invite the cooperation of patriotic men of all parties, and especially of all workingmen whose prosperity is seriously threatened by the free trade policy of the present administration.

The New York Weekly Post in reply to a letter from a subscriber charging it with inconsistency in supporting Mr. Cleveland on a tariff issue, in spite of his failure to fulfil all his civil-service reform promises—the principal basis on which the Post supported his first candidacy—thus defines its position: "If we saw the smallest chance of Cleveland's being opposed by any one who would carry out or come anywhere near carrying out the pledges Cleveland made in 1884, we should not be prevented by any concern for the tariff from supporting him, because we know well that tariff reform is not within the President's reach, while civil-service reform is. But we see no prospect of anything of the kind. In the present condition of the Republican party we can see no possibility of it. If the Republican Convention nominates a fit man it will be with the intention of 'knifin' him' if it nominates a bad one, it will be with the view of using his clothes to disguise the well known features of James G. Blaine.

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH!

The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, printed from good readable type on good paper, and many of them handsomely illustrated. They are without exception the cheapest books ever published in any land or language, and furnish to the masses of the people an opportunity to secure the best literature of the day at the most trifling expense. In any other series these great works would cost many times the price at which they are here offered. Each one is complete in itself:

Wonders of the World, NATURAL AND OTHER. Contains descriptions and illustrations of the most wonderful works of nature and of man. Very interesting and instructive.

"A Pleasure Excursion," and Other Sketches. By "JOSIAH ALLEN'S WIFE." A collection of irresistibly funny sketches by the most popular humorous writer of the day.

The Aunt Keziah Papers, by CLARA AUGUSTA, author of "The Rugg Documents." A most ridiculously funny book—in every way equal to "Widow Bedott."

Christmas Stories, by CHARLES DICKENS. Contains a number of the most charming Christmas stories ever written by the greatest writer who ever lived. Each one is complete.

The Self-made Men of Modern Times. Contains portraits and biographies of famous self-made Americans, from the time of Franklin to the present.

Familiar Quotations. Containing the origin and authorship of many phrases frequently met in reading and conversation. A valuable work of reference.

The Road to Wealth. Not an advertising circular, but a thoroughly practical work, pointing out a way by which all may make money, easily, rapidly and honestly.

And they're [illegible] I know,
When they must be shopping go.

Do not fret at [illegible] alone:
She'll return by set of sun.

ANCIENTS OF ARIZONA.

Searching for Evidences of a Prehistoric Race.

Dr. H. F. C. Ten Kate, of the Hemenway Archæological Expedition, spent some considerable time on the Pima Indian reservation in comparing the characteristics of the present tribe with those found in the ancient ruins. But his conclusions do not encourage any theory of relation between them. The skeletons unearthed are too short in stature, and more closely resemble the Pueblo or Zuni Indians of New Mexico.

They were evidently of a higher order of intelligence than the Pueblos or Zunis of to-day, and notably in the remarkable perfection they achieved in agriculture, as shown by the extensive aqueducts ramifying the whole country, did they excel all other Indians and many of the civilized nations of to-day.

Dr. Ten Kate has given considerable attention to photographing the symbolical hieroglyphics cut or painted upon the rocks in the hills skirting the valley. These are particularly plentiful in the Estrella Mountains near the Gila crossing, where many caves are also found, strewn with broken pottery, having probably been sacrificial offerings to the Deity.

These cut and painted rocks are nearly always found in juxtaposition, and even on Peston butte, at Florence, some of them may be seen. The hieroglyphics are sketched by Dr. Ten Kate, and to an ordinary observer they are utterly devoid of meaning, but may yet be deciphered.

They are mostly of animal forms, but circles, volutes, crosses and other forms indescribable are found among them. These were scratched with some hard instrument upon the black, weather-stained face of the granite rocks, forming a white, indelible record.

The doctor also investigated the eyesight, color blindness and muscular strength of the Pima Indians, and made collections of their modern handiwork for comparison with those rescued from the ruins.

He found no tradition among these Indians bearing upon the identity of the prehistoric people, the cause of their departure, nor whither they went, and therefore concludes that they existed at an age more remote than is popularly supposed.—Florence (Ari.) Enterprise.

HOW TO WIN.

Infallible Rules of Making the Lottery Gainful.

Travelers who have found it hard to win at trente et quarante will probably try to recoup themselves by backing their fancy in the Italian lottery. An infallible plan for winning has been communicated to me by a learned Florentine, but I forget some of the details.

After incantations, which you can get up for yourself in Petrus de Abano, you have a little dinner for two laid on Christmas eve or the eve of St. John. One of the plates must be blackened with smoke on the bottom.

You sit down and utter Aves and Pater Nosters till the door flies open and in rushes Saint Pasquale somebody (I forget his highly respectable family name). He is angry and fetches you two or three swinging boxes on the ear, for he dislikes being summoned from Paradise. As he is doing this you hand him the plate with the smoked bottom, on which he writes a terno of numbers with his finger.

You plank your bottom dollar on the terno and (if the Government pays up) you are a made man.

This is only a rough sketch of how to win. I have discovered no other way.

The lottery is a beneficent institution. Nobody wins, perhaps, but everybody expects to win and lives in happy dreams of purchasing steam yachts and of existing in idleness and opulence.

PEN-AND-INK SKETCH OF NAPOLEON

The Great Warrior as Described by Samuel Rogers, the Poet.

Following is a description of Napoleon Bonaparte, when Consul, written by the poet Rogers.

"His profile is very striking and elegant, but his eyes are of a light gray and his eyebrows scarcely distinguishable and his face is overspread with one dead yellow tint. His head, to use the expression of a celebrated painter here, is une tete de mort—but it is the head of a giant. His measures in height but five-feet-five; but his hat, when he has left it on the table, as I have been assured by those about him, has moved round the head of the tallest and most robust general in his army."

Making Persian Carpets in Russia.

A native of Finland named Runen, was a few years ago sent to the East at the expense of the Government with the object of endeavoring to discover the art of Persian carpet weaving, the secret of which is strictly guarded by those engaged in the trade.

He made the journey disguised as a simple workman, but it was only after long and fruitless efforts to obtain admission into a Turkish carpet manufactory that he succeeded at a small place near Smyrna in acquainting himself with the process and making a design of a loom.

A Persian carpet manufactory was then established in Finland.

Private Interpretation of Scripture.

"But, my friend," said the missionary, "I shall have to consider the case of the other teachers—shall I not?"

"Oh, it does not matter that; you need not tell; our Saviour has taught us to give our alms in secret!"

Whether this doubly "private interpretation" availed the applicant we are not informed.—Christian Inquirer.

"DEHOOFING" IN FRANCE.

Since the high heel and pointed toe have had time to do their work the chiropodist is rising to a money-making a position as the American dentist. The women who operate in the public baths for ladies have more work than they can attend to, and are raising their fees according to the state of the pairs of feet which they are asked to attend to.

The ordinary old-fashioned treatment, requiring only the sharp knife and the pumice stone, is still a franc and a half. But for the operation known as "dehoofing" the foot, you pay, with extras, get up from 10f. to 30f. There are women who are able when the fine world is in Paris to make from £3 to £5 a day.

The seaside season is even more lucrative, because feet are so much in view on the sands of marine bathing places, where it is permissible to paddle about in salt water long after the teens have been cleared.

Be it remembered that the high-heeled boot or shoe, by throwing the whole weight of the body on the tightened-up toes, deadens them and the rest of the foot, and brings the whole member, so far as the distribution of muscular force and nervous vitality go, into much the same state as a horse's hoof.

The dehoofing process begins with a warm bran or potato starch foot bath, followed by a quick plunge in cold water, after which there is shampooing with eau de Cologne, or something else, to help a reaction. Then there is a gymnastic pulling out and moving up and down and from side to side of individual toes, which reminds one of the piggy-wiggy game which nurses play with the pedal extremities of babies.

The nurse, beginning with the great toe and going on with the four others, says:

"This pig went to the market, and this pig staid at home, and this pig ate bread and butter, and this pig ate none, and this little pig cried take me to mammy at home."

The toes are manipulated and exercised separately, until each is limber and lively. The sole of the foot is also enlivened thus:

The patient leans with both hands on a pair of props, and places the foot on a broad horsehair band which works from side to side. Then comes more hand rubbing, this time with glycerine, followed by friction with small brushes and instruments like drawing stumps.

The nails are carefully attended to. All dead and hard skin is carefully removed, and finally the ankle and insteps are put into gymnastic training.

At the end of, say, an hour, a pair of feet which have been martyrized with high heels and pointed toes feel equal to dancing, jumping, or taking a long walk. They also look shapely and quite young.

One wonders why they should be hidden with shoes and stockings, and whether skilled chiropody will not lead to a revival of sandals.

UP IN THE WORLD.

Funny Affectation of an ex-Hod-Carrier's Wife.

By one of those unexpected turns of fortune which occur in Albany as often as anywhere a man who but half a dozen years ago was a hod-carrier has become comparatively wealthy.

This change of financial circumstances has had the usual effect upon the ex-hod-carrier's wife. She has, notwithstanding an utter disability to read, affected a fine literary taste which she ostentatiously announces whenever possible.

Calling upon a lady whom she has been trying to make herself acquainted with she picked up a book from the table, and innocent of any knowledge that it was a copy of the Bible, asked the loan of it for a little time, as "she had not the book in her library." The lady readily consented.

After keeping it about a fortnight her visitor returned the volume with profuse thanks.

"How did you like it?" was asked.

"Very well, indeed; but I knew how it would turn out before I was half through. They got married after all."—Albany Journal.

TESTING HIS QUALITY.

The Way in Which a Shrewd Old Lady Circumvented Her Selfish Nephew.

The story is told in Boston of a young spendthrift who hoped to inherit the wealth of a certain aged but shrewd maiden aunt.

She had helped him out of more than one hole, and when he went to her the other day with a long face and an air of penitence she knew what it meant.

"Been gambling again, eh?" she said. "Well, I'm willing to pay your gambling debts again on one condition. You must marry, and I've got just the wife for you."

"Who is she?" asked the nephew.

"My nurse. She's 40 years old, strong, able to take care of you, and, if you marry her, I'll do something handsome for you."

The upshot of the talk was that young spendthrift agreed to marry the woman if all his debts were paid and an income of $6,000 a year guaranteed to him.

Then the old aunt invited another nephew, No. 1's rival, to dinner, told him of the compact, and said that she had made the proposal merely as a test, and that she should refuse to receive in her house a man who would marry a servant for money.

Not What He Expected.

"Darling," said he, fenderly, "I have made up my mind to ask you—to ask you—"

"Yes," she whispered breathlessly.

"To ask you to become my wife. I know, dearest, it is bold, it is presumptuous for me to do so. You are so much superior to me. I am, I feel, unworthy of you, but—"

"Say no more, John. I'm yours. You may be unworthy of me, but—"

"But what, dearest?"

"Half a loaf is better than no bread."

WOMEN IN PROVERBS.

The Mean Things that Smart Alexanders Say of Them.

Popular proverbs of all nations are full of unkind allusions to women. It is rare, speaks well of the sex.

"Women are variable as April weather," say the Germans. "Women, wind and fortune change," say the Spaniards, while the English equivalent is "A woman's mind and April wind will change off."

Women are talkative: "A woman's tongue wags like a lamb's tail" (English). "A woman's strength is in her tongue" (Welsh). "Women are never at a loss for words" (German). "Three women and three geese make a market" (Italian). "Foxes are all tail and women are all tongue" (French). "All women are good Lutherans; they would rather preach than hear mass" (Danish). "A woman's tongue is her sword and she does not let it rust" (Chinese).

They are great blabbers: "To a woman and a magpie tell what you would in the market-place" (Spanish). "A woman conceals what she does not know" (English). "Women can keep a secret, but it takes a great many of them to do so" (American).

They have little logic, yet their intuitions are sometimes valuable: "Women are wise off-hand, fools on reflection" (Italian). "Take a woman's first advice, but not her second" (French). "A woman's counsel is no great thing, but he who does not take it is a fool" (Spanish). "Summer sown corn and women's advice turn out well once in seven years" (German). "Women are watches that keep bad time" (Ibid). "It is sometimes right even to obey a sensible wife" (Servian).

To the latter proverb there hangs a tale.

A Herzegovinian once asked a kadi whether a man ought to obey his wife, and was answered in the negative. Then said the Herzegovinian:

"My wife pressed me this morning to bring thee a pot of beef suet, but I rejoice to know that I have done well in disobeying her."

"Verily," returned the kadi, "It is sometimes right even to obey a sensible wife."

Women are quarrelsome and self-willed: "Because is a woman's answer" (English). "He that hath a wife hath strife" (French). "What a woman wills God wills" (Ibid). "Gie her her will, or she'll burst" (Scotch).

They are vain and greedy of praise: "Women and maidens must be praised, whether truly or falsely" (German). "Every woman would rather be handsome than good" (Ibid).

They are untrustworthy: "Beware of a bad woman, and put no trust in a good one" (Spanish).

They must be handled roughly. This English couplet teaches the same ungallant doctrine of which illustrations might be taken from other languages.

"A spaniel, a woman and a walnut tree—
The more they are beaten the better they be."

Much wiser is the Scotch saying: "You may ding the deil into a wife, but ye'll ne'er ding him out o' her."

With such a catalogue of faults, it is no wonder that in French proverbial philosophy "A man of straw is worth a woman of gold;" that the Germans think "There are only two good women in the world; one of them is dead, and the other is not to be found," and complain that "A bag of fleas is easier to keep guard over than a woman;" that the Italians say: "Women rouge that they may not blush," and "He that loseth his wife and a farthing hath a great loss of his farthing;" that the Spaniards say: "There is only one bad wife, and every man thinks he has her" (the Scotch, by the way, are so surprisingly gallant as to quote the same proverb only with the word "good" substituted for "bad"), and that the proverbs of all nations unite in warning the bachelor, "Marry in haste, and repent at leisure."

Yet, after all, perhaps the wisdom of the ages is summed up in the Portuguese: "Women are supernumerary when present, and missed when absent."—Lippincott's Magazine.

After the Old Greek, but Not Warranted To Catch Up.

Two cats, having stolen a piece of cheese, asked a monkey to divide it for them. The latter broke it into two parts, and under pretense of equalizing them, gnawed at them alternately until nothing was left but the rind, which, with gravity, he returned.

The cats, who had been for some time stifling their glee, now departed, wishing the monkey a good digestion to wait upon his appetite, inasmuch as the cheese had been intended for rats, and was plentifully supplied with arsenic.

On hearing this, the monkey expired in great agony.

This teaches the folly of indulging in cheese, without first ascertaining whether or not it is loaded.—June Table Talk.

A SIBERIAN PRISON.

THE June number of the Century Magazine contains the second of George Kennan's illustrated papers on Siberia and the Exile System, which are attracting such wide attention. The articles are being extensively copied into foreign papers, among others the organ of the Russian liberals, published at Geneva, by whom they are very highly commended.

In this June number Mr. Kennan gives an interesting account of his visit to the forwarding prison at Tiumen, where he found double the number of prisoners confined than there was room for.

In reply to a question from Mr. Kennan as to how many prisoners died during the year, the warden replied:

"About three hundred. We have an epidemic of typhus almost every fall. A prison so overcrowded can not be kept clean, and as for the air in the cells, you know now what it is like. The local authorities here have again and again urged the Government to make adequate provision for the large number of exiles crowded into the prison during the season of navigation, but thus far nothing has been done beyond the building of two log barracks."

In the overcrowded women's prison Mr. Kennan says he found no criminals—all of the occupants were voluntarily going into banishment with their husbands.

Mr. Kennan describes the marching away of an exile, and gives, also, a graphic picture of a convict barge. The illustrations of this article are remarkably interesting.

DR. A. TRASK'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

WE PADDLE OUR OWN CANOE.

WHICH THE GRADUATING CLASS OF THE HIGH SCHOOL HAD A CHANCE TO DO LAST THURSDAY EVENING.

Successfully Under Rather Adverse Circumstances.

The High School graduating class of '88 numbered six members, three ladies and three gentlemen. The ladies, Misses Mamie L. Osborne, Minnie E. Rector, and Mary F. Adkins, completed the Latin course. The gentlemen, Claude H. VanTine, Clarence C. Monaghan and J. Eugene Tremaine, graduated in the English course.

The Commencement exercises took place at the Opera House on Thursday evening of last week. The stage was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The forest scenes were drawn at the back and sides and upon each front corner were huge banks of potted plants, evergreens and flowers. The class motto, W. P. O. O. C., in large silver letters was suspended from the drop curtain in front. The floral mementoes and other gifts were gathered by the ushers as the audience assembled and placed upon the platform, thus obviating a tedious delay between the essays. The arrangements were complete for a large crowd and a fine program of exercises. The day had been excessively warm from early morning and about six o'clock a large black cloud rose in the Western horizen, that betokened a squall. At seven it began to pour and for nearly an hour the rain came down in sheets. Whether the class navigated to the Opera House in their canoes, deponent saith not, but they surely had a fine opportunity to put the theory of their motto into practice. The heavy shower not only interfered with the attendance but also delayed the opening of the exercises, and it was nearly half past eight before the class took their places on the platform.

The program was then announced by Prof. Hammond in the following order.

PROGRAMME.

Instrumental Duet, Grand Galop Brilliant, Koelling—Misses Fisher and Benedict.
Prayer—Rev. F. Adkins.
Oration, Manual Training—Claude H. Vantine.
Essay, Self Reliance—Minnie E. Rector.
Solo, Because of Thee, Berthold Tours—Miss L. Gregg.
Essay, Patches—Mamie L. Osborne.
Oration, Patriotism in our Public Schools—Clarence Monaghan.
Solo, Last Night, Halfdan Kjerulf—Mrs. A. W. James.
Essay, Light and Darkness—Mary F. Adkins.
Oration and Valedictory, Recompense—J. Eugene Tremaine.
Presentation of Diplomas—Prof. D. A. Hammond.
Solo, Selected—Lizzie Gregg.
Benediction—Rev. Wm. H. Barbatt.

The whole program moved along very smoothly, and was fully up to the usual standard. As the essays were some of them quite lengthy we are compelled to give a synopsis of them, which will show their general tenor. The attendance was very good, in fact much better than any imagined it could be at eight o'clock, while the program itself was brief and very creditable to all concerned.

Manual Training.

BY CLAUDE VANTINE.

In all ages, the primal object of education has been the same, to develop those powers and faculties which combine to form the ideal man. The ideal man however, has been different in different ages and countries. In Greece and Rome the aim was to produce orators and warriors. Since the invention of printing, the popular idea of excellence has been the man of letters. All old customs are not good customs, and the old systems of education are behind the times. That pupils should be compelled to waste years in the study of the dead languages is unjust. Many a good mechanic is spoiled to make a poor lawyer. Manual training is the coming idea in educational progress. This should not do away with the study of the English branches and the sciences, but should be incorporated with them. The lack of harmony between the school room and the outside world, which often proves a barrier to the student when he enters business life will be done away with by the introduction of manual training. Many claim that herein lies the solution of the labor problem which now agitates society. The leader of the mob is not illiterate, but the mob itself is. Let the masses of workmen obtain a knowledge of their trade in manual training schools and they will no longer be led astray by every fanatic. A better intellectual development will also result, for both the physical and mental faculties will be trained together. The best method of introducing this system is still unsettled, but it will become a part of all our common schools at no distant day.

Self Reliance.

BY MINNIE RECTOR.

The fable of Esop is familiar to us all, in which he depicts a wagoner with his wheels in the mire calling on Hercules for help and the reply of Hercules, "Put your own shoulder to the wheel." This little lesson, all should heed. It is as good to-day as it was ages ago when given. We often meet with difficulties which seem beyond our power to overcome. We go to work, we press onward and pass them, thus verifying the old saying, "The Gods help those who help themselves." We find many illustrations of this among the great men of all ages. George Stevenson grew from an ignorant lad in a colliery to the greatest engineer of his time. What could a captain do in crossing the ocean if he relied on someone else? What could Napoleon have done with his vast armies without self reliance to sustain him? This trait of character is found among women as well as men. Miss Ada Sweet entered the office of the U. S. Pension Agt., at Chicago when fifteen years of age, and two years after she took the whole charge. Another of our self reliant women is Miss Ida Lewis, the heroine of Lime Rock light house. Women are aspiring to reach an equality with men. Much depends on habit, and the habit of self reliance can be as easily formed as any other, and become as permanent in character.

Patches

BY MAMIE L. OSBORNE.

Yes, patches is my subject. Their practical value depends much on their kind and use. There are coat and vest patches, pant and dress patches, boot and shoe patches, large and small patches, black and white patches, Sam patches and cross patches. Another is the cabbage patch. This is certainly useful. The children of the butterfly must be fed. Once upon a time there lived in this world a masculine patch. He thought another patch would add to his happiness and a magistrate was called. By and by a third patch came to dwell with them who was called Sam, known afterwards as the great jumper. A patch represents economy, and economy is the parent of wealth. Some cold winter evening, don your furs and go out on a tour of inspection. Go to one house and see the little rosy cheeked fellows snugly stowed away beneath the patch work quilt. At the next home the wife will show you the patch work she prizes because it was mother's handiwork. Ask the business man how he got his start in life and he will say, "I got it from that little patch of ground that father gave me." Every good thought, every worthy action is but a comely patch on life's surface. The grandest opportunities for good surround us. If we grasp them, we do well; if we neglect them, life will be a succession of failures.

Patriotism in the Public Schools.

BY CLARENCE MONAGHAN.

Few people realize the amount of study that is now being spent upon this subject. It is occupying the minds of all earnest thinkers. The old curriculum of study which contained simply mathematics and the languages has been greatly enlarged during the past few years. Political economy, the science of Government and kindred topics, are now found in the courses of study in all our best schools. Immigrants are coming into this country from all foreign lands in large numbers every year, bringing their families, and the vital question of the hour is, how shall we educate these children of foreign birth so that they may become true citizens of the Republic. In the city schools of St. Louis, Mo., all the foreign teachers have been discharged and American teachers substituted, that the proper theory of their duties as American citizens might be inculcated to the children. This is a bold position to take and one which but few cities would care to introduce, for fear of arousing a hostile public opinion. There is no doubt however that more attention should be given to this subject, and every proper effort should be made to teach the pupils in our public schools to be true and loyal citizens of the American Union.

Light and Darkness.

BY MARY F. ADKINS.

Go down the narrow shaft of a coal mine and wander through its halls. All is damp and dark. Ascend the shaft and enter our own bright, healthy homes. What a difference between them. It is the difference between the pure warm light of the sun and the flickering flame of the miner's lamp. What is this sunlight? Philosophers in all ages have sought to answer this question. Enough for our practical needs is the simple story. "God said, Let there be light, and there was light." Light and darkness alternate with each other. Night follows day. The uses of light and darkness in the physical world are varied and manifest. As the overflow of the Nile is necessary to the life and health of the Egyptians, so the light of the sun is needful to men and plants. Darkness too has its place in the economy of nature. It is the time for rest, when weary nature seeks repose. How much more good could be accomplished if life were one continual day of work, says one. He would go madly on like an engine furnished with steam enough to give it perpetual motion. Hence night is necessary for repose. So too, night gives time for reflection. It has been aptly said, "The night is the judgment bar of the day." Thus we see that light and darkness has each its use. Each is necessary to the physical and spiritual development of man.

Recompense.

BY J. EUGENE TREMAINE.

The whole domain of conscious existence is regulated by the impartial principles of equity. Recompense is the personal award rendered to each individual as the equivalent for what he has done, endured or lost. All men expect a fair recompense for their labor whatever it may be. There are many conflicting views, however, of what this recompense consists in and how it is to be obtained. The most common idea is that it is money received for labor. Another is the excellence of the work itself. The recompense the student receives for his years of toil and study is the acquired ability to do with ease, and success many things which he could not otherwise do at all. Another kind is the actual improvement that takes place within every man who performs earnest, honest work. The laborer becomes firmer in muscle, the mechanic more skillful with his tools, the clerk more rapid and accurate in his calculations, the artist more effective in delineation, the teacher wiser in her methods of instruction. There is always pleasure in accumulating knowledge and power. This recompense is unique in kind, for it may come not only with success but with what the world calls failure. Ones hopes may have been blasted in certain directions but he may have gained wisdom, power and experience, which will serve him at some future time. Let us so conduct ourselves in this life that we may receive the recompense of greater value in the world to come.

VALEDICTORY—Classmates, we have received the recompense that is due to close application to study, but we owe part of this recompense to the careful and judicious instructions given by our professor and teachers, also to the public for providing us such excellent schools for our benefit. Kind friends, would that we could compensate you for your trouble and expense in furnishing us free institutions of learning. May you long live to enjoy your Patriotism in the Public Schools, and may you with "Self Reliance," pass safely through "Light and Darkness" into life's school of "Manual Training" with such a spirit that your life may be an enviable "Patch" upon the canvass of the future. And now we thank you, principal and teachers, school board and public, and ask your best wishes for our welfare and success in life, and help us to emphasize our class motto, "We Paddle Our Own Canoe."

Presentation Remarks.

BY PROF. D. A. HAMMOND.

My young friends, you have completed a course of study prescribed for the Tecumseh High School and are entitled to all the honors appertaining to graduates of that institution.

As a token of this fact and in behalf of the board of education, I now present you these diplomas. You have reached the termination of the period of your tutelage and now go out into the world to begin that of personal responsibility. It may not be inappropriate therefore for me to speak to you a few earnest words upon that future which lies as an unsolved problem before you. I would not have you forget that the solution of this problem depends wholly upon yourselves. If you fail the fault is your own. You have reached a critical period in your lives. But if you have been properly trained, if you have builded aright up to the present time, you may hope to successfully assume the responsibilities which you cannot escape.

Presume not too much upon your present acquirements, and be not of the number of those who consider their education finished when they leave school. The limit which you have now reached is indeed but a short distance compared with that which lies beyond. Your real student life has not yet begun. This, remember, is your commencement day, and if your experience thus far has taught you the necessity of being systematic students as long as you live, it is well. In the future your time will be more at your own command, and you will have greater freedom in the choice of your line of study; but this implies greater responsibilities for yourselves and more laborious endeavor. Therefore be industrious, be temperate, be patient, be steadfast, honest and full of courage. Grudge not labor or disappointment; these will be for your good. "If you can but endeavor and endure." There is unlimited virtue in hardwork. It raises the humble, consoles the sad and guides the erring into the path of virtue; it is the joy of the strong and the comfort of the good.

Be content. Let excellence in your own sphere be the ideal which shall fill your hearts and fire your energies. Live your own individual lives grandly and nobly, in whatever line of duty your pathway may lie. Such an ideal may be an unknown quantity, but it is real, true and attainable. You need not fear that by following such an ideal you will not find full scope for all your faculties, and occupation for all your time, and keen enjoyment in all your successes.

Great men and women in any walk of life are blessings to humanity and are worthy of all honor, but all cannot be great. The number of such is necessarily small. Hence it is to the great middle class, those of average ability that the world must look for its character and advancement. Measure every educational activity by its influence on character and full life efficiency. How to live, in its widest sense, how to use all our faculties for ourselves and others, these are the real functions of education. Let improvement of character be the leading object of all your study; for in the words of one of our greatest educators,

"Character is at the foundation of all felicity and dignity, whether among men or angles, whether on earth or in heaven. The influence and grandeur of a nation are upheld by character alone. If that fails everything fails. It is character, the personal character of the people who compose it, which most adorns, honors and perpetuates the state. It is character which gives integrity to commerce, authority to government, protection to property and security to liberty and life. It is character which stands forever as the collateral of wholesome human law. Without character, kingdoms must be overthrown and nations must rot. To build character upon the unfailing, immutable principles of truth and righteousness is the highest work of angels and the sublimest work of men."

PROHIBITION STATE CONVENTION.

The Michigan prohibitionists have held this week in Detroit, one of the largest and most enthusiastic conventions ever held in the state. The national candidates and platform were endorsed heartily and the position upon local option clearly defined. The delegates in actual attendance numbered over 700 and the attendance Tuesday evening was over 2000. The best of harmony prevailed throughout and the campaign in Michigan will be the liveliest the prohibitionists have ever made. A campaign fund of nearly $5,000 was contributed by individuals in a short time, more than three times as much as the state committee has ever had before. A plan of organization presented by chairman Dodge, which is designed to reach every school district in the State, was unanimously adopted. A. B. Cheeney, of Kent, was nominated for Governor and a full state ticket.

OUR BASE BALL ASSOCIATION.

Although somewhat late in getting started, the Tecumseh Base Ball Association is now on a good substantial footing and a good nine has been organized, the players are becoming hardened to their work and we look fair to have a club at no distant day which will be a credit to the town. The following firms and individuals have formally identified themselves with the organization and rendered assistance in the way of finances. It will be seen that the Society has good backing. Chas. H. Keyser, Will Spade, Sam McClure, Jones & Hazlett, E. N. Satterthwait, Anderson & Co., Harris & Hitesho, A. E. Kennedy; Patterson & Garlinghouse Bros., Jas. Lowry, E. Service, E. C. Kennedy, Ed. Rowland, Jno. Sutton, J. J. Orr, Geo. Field, W. L. Heck, Marks & Russell, H. G. Conklin, A. W. Mills, L. P. Tribon, Dolph Heesen, C. A. Wright, F. Holderman, M. Eckhert, Will Hayden, Walter Burridge, Harry Snell, W. F. Anderson, A. C. Preston, L. B. Stevens, Jas. Elliott, Jas. Montague, C. F. Field.

The grounds have been fitted up and are superior to anything we have ever had for that purpose, as all the clubs will testify that have used them this season.

The following officers have been chosen.

President—E. N. Satterthwaite.
Vice Pres.—John Freeman.
Secretary—Will Spade.
Treasurer—Burt Conklin.
Manager—Jehiel Davidson.
Ass't Man'r.—Sam McClure.

The following constitute the regular nine with their respective positions:

P.—Rob. Codling.
C.—Ed. Palmer.
S. S.—Sam McClure.
1st. B.—C. H. Keyser.
2d B.—F. Holderman.
3d B.—Burt Conklin.
R. F.—Ed. McKinney.
C. F.—Will Ross.
L. F.—John Anderson.
Captain—Chas. Keysor.

Heidenrich acts as change catcher. Rob. Grim and Chas. Bell also belong to the regular team and act as subs as occasion demands.

The boys have been rather unfortunate thus far but they have plenty of grit and they intend to fight it out on this line if it takes all summer. We shall expect to see a good many close and interesting games played on our grounds before the season closes.

The best on earth can truly be said of Grigg's Glycerine Salve, which is a sure, safe and speedy cure for cuts, bruises, scalds, burns, wounds and all other sores. Will positively cure piles, tetter and all skin eruptions. Try this wonder healer. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Only 25 cents. Sold by Dr. Geo. Ferguson's.

WHAT IS IT? AND WHAT IT IS.

Pandion Clarke's extract of flax Skin Cure, like many other inestimable benefits to mankind, was discovered by accident. The proprietor, engaged in the preparation of certain plants, from time to time noticed the effect of working in the pulp vats on the skin. If there was present any cutaneous eruptions, warts, blemishes or scrofulous symptoms, all disappeared as if by magic. After experimenting ten years, it has become a scientific fact and a priceless boon to the human race. From giving away a few bottles, the demand has increased until the sale for the past two years amounts to 1 032 000 bottles. Large bottles only $1.00.

MEETINGS, CONVENTIONS, ETC.

July 19, Thursday—Democratic State Convention at Detroit.

STONY GROVE HOTEL.

Mr. T. J. Hills of Adrian, Saturday took possession of the hotel at Brazee's landing, Devils Lake, having leased the building for the ensuing year. Mr. Hills will at once begin to refurnish and improve this once popular resort, putting it in better order than it has ever been heretofore, and affording first-class accommodations for his guests. The location of the hotel compares favorably with that of any other at the lake, and under the new management it is sure to succeed. Boats will connect with the trains on the C. J. & M. Ry., making the resort easily accessible by rail. Special attention paid to excursions and picnic parties. Will have a formal opening on the 4th of July. Music and refreshments through the day, and dancing during the evening.

Fred Deuel's steamer, the "G.A.R." will make its headquarters at the Stoney Grove House. Tecumseh people should give Mr. Hills a call when they visit Devils Lake.

Celebrate the Fourth—Low Rates via. the Wabash Western Railway.

For the coming Fourth of July, The Wabash Western Railway will sell tickets between all stations, at one fare for the round trip. These tickets will be on sale July 3d and 4th, not good returning after July 5th, 1888. The Wabash Western Short Line trains are equipped with elegant day coaches, free reclining chair cars, and Buffet sleeping cars. For further particulars apply to the nearest ticket agent of the Wabash Western Railway.

The Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway will sell special excursion tickets at half fare (one fare for the round trip) to and from all stations on its line and branches, July 3d and 4th; good to return up to July 5th, inclusive. This will be a rare opportunity to go somewhere and celebrate the glorious Fourth at a nominal expense. Purchase your tickets early and avoid the rush at the stations. Ample accommodations for all will be provided on above days.

Reduced Rates Via. the Mackinaw, July 3d & 4th.

The Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw railroad will sell excursion tickets from all its stations to any point on its line and return on July 3d and 4th, and return to and including July 5th, at rate of one fare for the round trip; and from all stations from Battle Creek to Carlisle, to Cincinnati and return on July 3d and 4th, good returning to and including July 7th, at rate of one fare for the round trip.
H. R. JOHNSON, Gen. Pass. Agent.
T. C. M. SCHINDLER, Asst. Pass. Agt.

Summer Vacations.

Before deciding on your summer vacation, call on or write nearest agent of the Lake Shore R'y and obtain one of their pamphlets entitled "The Mail Bag," in which a list of routes and rates to the various Summer Resorts is given; or communicate with A. J. Smith, Gen'l Pass. Agt., Cleveland, O.

—It will pay you to call on M. P. Brown at his well known place of business and examine thoroughly the celebrated Chicago Jewel Vapor Stoves, for which he is agent. 72,000 are already in use and their economy of fuel, and easy adjustment to all kinds of cooking, makes them a general favorite.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

L. P. Tribou was in Detroit over Sunday.

Will Spayde took in the Chicago Detroit ball game last Tuesday at Detroit.

"Tipton Boys" has gone to Fostoria this week to take part in the races there.

Lola Monaghan, of Jackson, was in town to attend the commencement exercises.

Miss Adah Potter is attending the Ann Arbor University commencement this week.

Hon. John J. Adam is seriously ill, and his friends are somewhat alarmed about him.

A new sidewalk in front of George Heesen's store and Lilley's bank is the latest improvement on the street.

Mrs. Christian Coller is recovering from a severe illness, with which she has suffered the past two weeks.

Chas. Beal, who lives on Jehiel Davidson's farm, has left an egg at our office which measures 7¾ inches by 6¼.

Mrs. Sarah Capps, who has been visiting at Dr. North's, returned to her home in Vandalia, Ill., last Saturday.

I wish to tender my thanks to those who aided and assisted in graveling the road between Clinton and Tecumseh in road dist. No. 16,
R. B. GILLESPIE.

The Prohibitionists held their county convention at Adrian last Friday, and selected a full list of delegates to the state and congressional conventions.

A young Democrat arrived at Rob. Boyd's in Raisin, last Friday. He will be too young to wave the red bandanna this campaign, but will await future developments.

McClure's delivery horse and Will Hayden's "tangs" indulged in a small runaway Monday. As no one was in either wagon, they were not hurt, and the damage to property was slight.

L. E. Taylor came near losing a horse last week. He was in the last stages of spasmodic colic, when Dr. G. W. Goodrich was called and within three hours the horse was eating hay.

Alva Coddington is selling a campaign life of Cleveland & Thurman. It is a very complete work for a campaign edition and sells like hot cakes. About every Democrat he meets takes one. It sells for two dollars.

The old Gainsley store is being rapidly put into shape for Bills' bank. A new plate glass front will be put in and the interior will be elegantly fitted up and arranged expressly for banking purposes.

Mrs. Lucius Lilley has returned from Ann Arbor where she went to have an operation performed on an eye. The prospects are favorable for a permanent improvement of the eyesight, and she is feeling quite encouraged.

In the list of State University graduates published in yesterday's Free Press we find the names of two Tecumseh boys. Erastus Francis Potter takes the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and Elmer Bertrand Hause that of Doctor of Dental Surgery. We congratulate them both upon the successful completion of their college course.

"What does W. P. O. O. C. mean?" said a young man to his best girl at the Opera House last Thursday evening. My interpretation is "We possess only one cent." "Perhaps you're right" she replied, but I say it means this, "We purchase our own candy." "You're both wrong," said an urchin in the next row. It means, "We plug our own cantaloupes."

Mr. Lester Warriner died at his home in Napoleon last Friday, aged 34 years. He was a former resident of this village, having spent his boyhood days here. His death resulted from injuries received last April when his team ran away with him, and he has been suffering from paralysis since. He was a step-brother of D. B. Garlinghouse. The funeral occurred at Napoleon last Sunday.

Remember the 4th of July celebration at the Sand Lake House next Wednesday. Mr. Wells is making arrangements to have a big time. Boat races, yacht races, horse races and base ball games will be the order of the day, to conclude with a grand ball at night. Bill, $1.50. Floor Managers, Myron Mudgett, Fred Treat. You cannot do better than to visit Wells on the 4th.

The sixth annual reunion of the Fourth Michigan infantry, at Lansing, Tuesday, was largely attended. Following are the officers for the ensuing year: Moses A. Luce, of San Diego, Cal., president; M. A. Merrifield, of Union City, first vice president; O. S. Smith, of Owosso, second vice president; H. C. Daniels, of Pentecost, third vice president; George Kinney, of Hillsdale, secretary and treasurer. The next annual reunion of the organization will be held in this city.—Adrian Times.

The wool market opens very slowly

Dept. Sheriff Teachout, of Adrian, was in town last Friday.

Harry Root went to Cleveland, Ohio, last Monday on business.

The band concert was cut short last

W. W. Dewey, the landscape artist, of Adrian, was in town last Friday and favored us with a call.

Mrs. W. C. Blood and two children, arrived last Saturday and will visit a few weeks with her parents.

We are glad to hear that C. A. Shayton is improving daily. He will soon be down town again.

Grant Hanford, of Pratt Kansas, arrived in town last week and will spend a week or two at the old home.

Mrs. A. W. James, of Detroit, has been spending a few days with friends in Tecumseh. Mr. James was here over the Sabbath.

Dr. North showed us some specimens of strawberries yesterday from O. B. Finch's garden, which were as fine as we have seen this season.

The report of the Alumni Reunion is necessarily deferred until next week, as the Commencement exercises absorb all of our available space this week.

The Addison Courier has been enlarged to a seven column folio and much improved in appearance. Kempton is "getting there" with a sure and steady gait.

It was a jolly load that went to Adrian yesterday in Asa Howe's stage. There were nine lady passengers, exclusive of the driver—eight old maids and Mrs. Brown.

Bert McNair took a vacation of one week at home. He returns this week to his desk in the Treasury Department at Washington. He likes his position there very much and is doing admirably.

West Branch pupils neither absent nor tardy during the school year 1887-8: Fourth Grade—Kittie Bowers, Sammy McClure, Elouise Waring, Iva Elliott, Archie Beebe; Third Grade—Nellie Young, Ernie Elliott, Eva Elliott.

J. D. Sholes has lately added to his stock some very fine horse nets and horse blankets—They are of superior quality and will be sold as cheap as the cheapest. He has put up a few sets of elegant light harness, and in fact his entire stock has no superior in town. Call and see him when in need of horse furnishing goods, and you will get your money's worth.

Prof. Hammond has begun the interesting pastime of "packing up" and before the lapse of many days he will be a resident of Charlotte. For nearly six years he has made Tecumseh his home, has mingled with our citizens in social, political and religious affairs, and in his professional capacity has made a record second to none of the illustrious men who have preceded him. May his shadow never grow less; may his lines fall in pleasant places; may he always cherish the same kindly feelings toward Tecumseh which all our citizens entertain towards him.

The largest crowd of the season gathered at Bill's race track last Friday to see the blanket matinee. Four races were on the program with ten horses to take part in them. Speeders were present from Adrian, Cambridge, Clayton and Southern Ohio, besides home talent. The following is the result.

Green race—Mac. 1; Kittie Clayton, 2.

The Woman's World for July is a particularly good number. The opening paper by Julia Wedgwood is on "Women and Democracy," in which the writer argues that woman represents all that is good in Democracy, for her sympathy must ever be with the weak. An illustrated paper follows, showing what women have done in the way of benefactions for Oxford. A very interesting paper is this, and so is the one that follows, which gives some "Recollections of Cobden," by Dorothy Nevill. An account of Marie Bashkirtseff, a young Russian painter, who, if she looked anything like her portrait, must have been unusually pretty. "Women Club Life" is discussed by Amy Leoy, who proves beyond peradventure that if women are to do men's work, they should have some of the comforts of men's lives. The woman journalist, the woman artist, has as much need of a club as the man who follows the same pursuit. We think that we are very progressive in this country on everything that concerns women, but England is much ahead of us. There is only one woman's club in New York and that has no local habitation, while there are half a dozen and well housed in London. The department of fashions in this magazine is one that has no rival, and the women of America have thoroughly awakened to this fact.—Cassell & Company, New York, 35 cents a number, $3.50 a year, in advance.

Tecumseh vs. Manchester to-morrow.

Dundee will celebrate the 4th this year.

Dr. A. W. Alvord, of Battle Creek, was in town Monday.

Miss Carrie Goodwin, of Detroit, is [illegible] W. Shayton.

A. P. Coddington is attending the Prohibition state convention at Detroit this week.

Mrs. Rice returned to her home in Jackson this noon, having visited at Oc. Palmer's during the past week.

E. G. Cook has taken in several loads of wool this week. The market ranges from 20 to 25 cents for good washed wool.

Remember the citizen's band meeting next Monday evening. Every business man in the village should make it a point to be present.

A number of Tecumseh people attended the Gilmore Band Concert at Adrian yesterday. They were enthusiastic in praise of the entertainment.

Osgood Bros., of Britton, have a large stock and assortment of hay rakes and would say to farmers wanting such to call on them and they will give you an eye opener on prices.

—SPECIAL—All persons indebted to the late firm of W. & S. W. Anderson & Co. are cordially invited to settle at once, and greatly oblige
ANDERSON & Co.

We were glad to see W. J. Osborn at the Farmer's Picnic last Saturday. He is still in the land of the living, and if he has his way, he will remain with us for some time yet.

A ball game between the Manchester club and the Tecumseh 2d nine will take place on our grounds to-morrow, Friday. Admission 10c. Grand stand free. Game called at 3 P.M.

Charles Blanchard, of Chicago, arrived in town yesterday and will remain a few days. Mrs. Blanchard has been here for several days, assisting in the care of her father, Hon. John J. Adam.

Fred Deuel's steamer the G. A. R., went up Chicago street on wheels this forenoon bound for Devil's lake. Fred will make his head quarters at the Stoney Grove House, but he will run to all the docks on the lake.

"Think of a family," is the way an interesting ad. starts out on the 8th page of to-days paper. It will be to your interest to peruse it entire, and if you intend to add a Cyclopedia to your library, write to the publishers for terms.

The Adrian Times is anxious to have a ratification meeting at once. Don't get excited, Bro. Applegate. If the Republicans of Adrian take the ticket as coldly as they do in this section, you had better save your powder for some future occasion.

J. L. Remington brought a basket of strawberries into our sanctum Tuesday, which were properly sampled the same evening with sugar and cream. The variety was "Bubach's No. 5." A new kind introduced in Illinois in 1886. They were just prime.

Mrs. Obernaur, state missionary of the W. C. T. U. on Lumbermen's work, will address a mother's meeting at the Opera House in the afternoon of Friday, at three o'clock, July 6th, and in the evening a public meeting of gentlemen and ladies. All are cordially invited to hear her.

The teachers and pupils of the High School collected a purse last week with which to purchase a beautiful silver bronzed gold lined fruit basket, and on Wednesday it was presented with the compliments of the donors to Prof. Hammond. The gift will be highly prized by him, not only for its intrinsic value but more for the manifestation on the part of his most intimate associates of the kindly regard and esteem which they entertain for him.

THE BAND MEETING.

Owing to the Commencement exercises, the Alumni and other meetings last week, the called meeting by the Tecumseh City Band, asking the citizens to meet with the band (to take action relative to the Michigan and Ohio band reunion which was voted to Tecumseh to be held in August) but few attended and a meeting has been called for Monday evening, July 2d, at the band room for the same purpose. This band reunion is something that Tecumseh can't afford to loose, but unless the citizens turn out and show some encouragement to the band, they will call a meeting of the officers and vote it to some other city that will entertain the bands, and from the expressions of other places there seem to be others anxious for it. Prof. Bohme, the musical director, has notified the band that he will bring a special train of ten bands. We hope the citizens will turn out and help to make necessary arrangements for the reunion.

THE FARMERS' UNION PICNIC.

SECOND ANNUAL PICNIC OF THE FARMERS CLUBS OF NORTHERN LENAWEE.

A Large Crowd Gathered at Sand Lake Last Saturday. A Good Literary Program, and Plenty of Enjoyment.

Last summer the different Farmers' Clubs of Lenawee County instituted the plan of combining their forces and holding a Union Picnic at Sand Lake. Their first attempt was such an unqualified success that they resolved to repeat the experiment this year. Some difference of opinion existed as to the best time to select, but June was finally chosen in preference to August. Last Saturday was the time and Putnam's Landing was the place decided upon. It proved to be a delightful morning, although decidedly hot. A heavy shower the previous evening had laid the dust and the roads were in fine condition.

As early as nine o'clock in the morning teams began to arrive at the grove, and before noon several hundred people had assembled with baskets well filled. Promptly at twelve o'clock the tables were spread, and all enjoyed a bountiful feast. At least that is a reasonable supposition, for every family took their own lunch and if they were not bountifully provided for it was their own fault.

At one o'clock the crowd was called together at the speaker's stand, and a good literary program was presented as follows:

I. H. Schreder acted as President of the Day, and L. M. Waldron officiated as Secretary.

Music by Emma Witherell, of Franklin.

The Franklin Glee Club then gave a quartette entitled, "Cheers for the Farm." The club is now composed of the following.—W. M. Crittenden, 1st tenor; E. A. Wilson, 2d tenor; Verne Roberts, 1st bass; Bert Briggs, 2d bass; Amy Alexander, organist. The club is constantly improving, and they never sang better than on this occasion.

Alex. Richards, of Raisin, then gave the principal address of the day. He was in good voice and made himself distinctly heard by the entire crowd. As his remarks were entirely impromptu, it is impossible to reproduce them, but they gave excellent satisfaction and were well worthy of appearing in print.

Short addresses followed by A. P. Coddington, of Tecumseh, A. G. Hall, of Raisin, and M. J. Martin, of Macon.

The Glee Club then gave another quartette, entitled, "Spreading a Rumor." This called forth a hearty encore and they responded with "Straining the Milk in the Dairy."

A. H. Briggs, of Adrian, gave the audience a short talk which was well received.

The election of officers followed, and the following were chosen by a viva voce vote.

President—J. F. N. Bowen.
Vice President—M. J. Martin.
Secretary—L. M. Waldron.
Treasurer—A. G. Hall.

An executive committee of one member from each club will hereafter be appointed by the clubs themselves.

W. C. Sharp, of Brooklyn, sang a song entitled "Make your name honored," which was very finely rendered.

The Glee Club then gave a quartette, "A Little Farm well Tilled," which concluded the exercises at the stand

Just at this time a smart shower struck the grove and such a scattering for cover "you never did see." The dance hall and Putnam's spacious verandas were crowded to overflowing and for half an hour standing room under cover was at a premium. The rain did not continue over thirty minutes however and was followed by a fine brisk breeze which cooled the air and made splendid sailing on the lake. The balance of the afternoon was spent in sailing and rowing and the steamer "Manitou" did a rushing business until night. Mr. Putnam has made many improvements since last year and the season is opening very favorably. His house now has telephone and telegraph connections with both Adrian and Tecumseh, and the Adrian and Tecumseh stages will make their head quarters there. He has increased the number of row boats and the Manitou has been thoroughly overhauled and repaired. The steamer will hereafter make regular trips to Wells's dock on the north shore and will receive and let off passengers there whenever they wish. We are very glad that this amicable arrangement has been made between Mr. Putnam and Mr. Wells, as it will be a great convenience to all pleasure seekers who may visit the lake. Both houses on the Lake confidently expect an increased patronage this season.

About four o'clock in the afternoon a portion of the crowd at Putnam's went over to Wells's base ball grounds to witness a contest between the Franklin and Evans Lake clubs. The game proved to be quite an interesting one and held a large crowd of spectators until the close. Below is the score.

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	Total
Franklin	0	0	0	2	4	0	1	2	9	9
Evans Lake	2	1	0	5	2	5	2	1	*	18

Battery for Franklin—Briggs and Raymond.

Battery for Evan's Lake—Moore and Hardcastle.

Umpire—Dell Whelan.

With the approach of sundown, the picnicers took their evening lunch and then scattered for home. All the towns in this section of the county sent their quota and barring the short shower the day was a success but a picnic day without a shower is the exception rather than the rule. All in all it proved to be a day of genuine enjoyment. The Union Club Picnic has been fully established, and we look to see it repeated annually with increasing interest.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Democracy of Lenawee County assembled in Adrian last Tuesday to select delegates to the State and Congressional conventions. Col. Eldredge was called to the Chair and Ira Waterman was chosen secretary. The usual committees were appointed and a recess was taken until after dinner.

At the afternoon session the business was quickly dispatched.

Lewis Frensdorf and Col. N. B. Eldredge were elected delegates at-large to the State convention.

The following district delegates were chosen.

STATE CONVENTION.

First district—David McNair, B. F. DePuy, Dale Munson, Samuel Underwood, B. O. Randall, L. V. Judson, C. E. Judson.

Second district—Harry B. Walby, Wm. G. Smith, J. W. Helme, Jr., E. S. Hagaman, W. H. Wiggins, Eugene Case and W. W. Todd.

Third district—Ira Waterman, Robt. L. Rogers, W. B. Town, James Rogers Ed. Hall, Oscar Abbott and Aaron Poucher.

CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.

First district—W. F. Wiesinger, Chas. Burroughs, Jerome Bowen, Charles R. Huber, Wm. Corbett, I. C. Mills, and Albert Pence.

Second district—Seth Bean, M. O'Leary, James K. Wolverton, A. S. Grady, Charles G. Wilcox, Samuel Glasgow, John H. Livesay.

Third district—Orrin Pierce, Alvin C. Osborn, J. B. Ayres, A. T. Nichols, Josiah Metcalf, Wm. H. Hood, and E. S. Bouney.

A BIG OFFER.

The HERALD does not intend to be outdone in enterprise, even by the Detroit dailies. After much reflection and patient consideration we have decided to offer a prize to the person who shall guess the three hottest days politically, in Lenawee County, between June 1st and election day, guaged by the political thermometer in the HERALD office. The prize will consist of a years subscription to the HERALD and a lithograph portrait of the man who shall be elected President next fall. The first person who makes the right guess or approximates nearest to it will be entitled to the prize, and all guesses must be handed in before July 1st, next. Send dates on a postal card in this form:

Monday, August 6.

TO PREPARE COFFEE PERFECTLY.

To prepare coffee you must take the green seed, using your judgment to make sure that it is new. You must then roast it in a rotary cylinder, or even in a small [illegible]

It will change its color from light sage green to dark brown, and will at the same time begin to sweat. Drops of brown oil stand out upon it and will give out an unmistakable aroma. This aroma consists of a delicate essential oil, so volatile in its nature that coffee roasted the day before yesterday—nay to say coffee which has been roasted and ground and kept in tin-foil for a month—has no more left of its virtue than a rose a week cut.

The seed thus prepared should stain your fingers or leave a perceptible greasy brown trace on white blotting paper. From this point all is easy.

Break your seeds, for the kernel of the nut is always the sweetest. Tie the fragments in muslin. Then, if you are an epicure, pour a small quantity of actually boiling water upon a large allowance of them. But you can get admirable coffee for a larger number of guests if you boil the muslin bag for a minute and a half or two minutes, and not longer.

Coffee is an infusion, and not a decoction. Coffee thus prepared is a beverage within the reach of every man who will make it or see it made for himself, and it can be made by any woman who condescends to be taught.

Coffee is more potent than tea. It not only arrests waste of tissue, but it also possesses qualities which bring it very near to the limits of the range of dangerous drugs. If we take theine the alkaline of tea—and we may practically leave out of consideration the difference between black tea and green—and compare it with the corresponding alkaloid in coffee, we find certain marked differences.

Coffee is more immediate and more marked in its effects than tea. A strong cup of coffee will act on the moment, and is sometimes employed by medical men as an emetic. Or, again, a cup of hot coffee will recruit a man who has suffered from a violent shock, where a cup of warm tea would be not much better or more efficacious than a basin of gruel.

It may be agreed, then, that coffee properly prepared is a drink for men rather than for women.

KEYING UP RACE HORSES.

Their Immediate Preparation for the Contest.

The work at starting is usually slow. A mile of a mile and a gallop of three hardens the muscles and takes off the flesh fast enough without producing any soreness. The fast work begins only after the animal has been keyed up to a fine point and is ravenous for his exercise.

All the skill of the trainer is called out for the few days before the race. It is the custom to speed the animal a distance a little longer than that of the race. If a mile race he is given trials of a mile and a quarter, so that he can do the distance with something in hand.

Horses often become track sick by being put through their trials too often. This makes them sulky and sometimes turns them into bolters.

The timing trials usually come off two days before the race. It was for this that an army of touts have been besieging the training stable for days. They and their employers are as anxious as the owners to know what may be expected, but the latter are also anxious that the touts shall not find out. If the trials are made in open daylight the chances are that fifty watches will do the timing.

Sometimes, however, the touts are fooled. Trials have been run at dead of night, with the aid of lanterns.

The day before the race a horse is sent along at slow gallop, to work out stiffness, and is then returned to his stall not to come out again until early in the racing morning, when he is sent along at full speed for an eighth or quarter of a mile, to make sure of his speed. He is then returned to his stall until the saddling bell rings.

He is given a light feed of oats at noon and a very little hay. His water is measured out to him carefully. When the time comes for him to appear he is sent out under a sweating blanket and moved around pretty fast if he shows any stiffness, but slowly if he is in good shape. He is rubbed out well when the blanket is taken off, and then sent to the post.

After the race the greatest care must be taken to cool and dry him off slowly. He is usually walked around under a heavy blanket before going to his stall for a day's rest.

GOING AROUND THE MATTER.

Something To Exercise the Wits of Young People.

A correspondent writes to ask whether a hunter "goes around" a squirrel which keeps on the opposite side of a tree about which the hunter makes a circuit.

The squirrel is on the trunk of the tree and shifts his position as the hunter walks around to shoot him in such a way as always to keep the tree between him and the hunter. The man does not ever get into a position to see the other side of the squirrel—supposing the tree to be transparent—but he "goes around" him in the sense in which any circle may be said to go around a circle described within it.

In a very practical sense, however, the squirrel "gets around" the hunter, inasmuch as he succeeds in defeating the purpose of the latter to shoot him.—Baltimore Sun.

Well Up in Banking.

Business Man—"Now, don't forget; deliver this note to the president of the Millionaire Bank. On no account give it to any one else. Go right to the president and hand him this yourself. Don't let any one of the clerks take it."

Messenger Boy—"Don't yer fear. Them dudes can't fool me."

"Eh? Ever carry messages to banks?"

"Often."

"How do you find the president?"

"Look for the cove in the shabby suit."—Omaha World.

Kind to His Little Boy.

"Mother writes that she will be here tomorrow for a short visit, my dear."

"Very well," he replied, and as he left the house he patted his little boy on the head kindly, and said:

"Bobby, didn't you ask me to buy you a tin whistle and a drum, the other day?"

"Yes, pa."

"Well, I will bring them to you to-night."—Sun.

THE COMING WOMAN.

But She Must Learn a Good Deal First.

At a meeting of a dozen ladies the other day to organize a lodge of the King's Daughters, the utter unfamiliarity of women with parliamentary law, or even [illegible] somewhat humorously illustrated.

After they had sat looking at each other a trifle nervously for a while, one of them said:

"Well, here we are. What are we going to do?"

"Oh, dear," said another, "I don't know, but let's do something."

At last a young lady suggested they might try not to say mean things about other people until next meeting, anyway. Everybody thought that would be nice.

Just as they were adjourning, two hours later, a lady exclaimed:

"Oh, I suppose we ought to have a president!"

"Why, of course we ought," said another.

"I don't suppose anybody will object to Mrs. Brown for president," said a third, "let's have her."

"All right, let's," echoed the rest.

And nobody objected to names proposed for secretary and treasurer, either.

A few days later the fair secretary consulted a gentleman acquaintance as to how she should write up the minutes of the meeting.

"Well, you ought to begin by saying who was chairman of the meeting."

"Why, we didn't have any chairman," said the girl.

"Who then put the motions before the meeting?" asked the gentleman.

"Oh, we didn't have any motions. Somebody would say she thought such a thing would be nice, and all the others would say they thought so too. That was all."

"If that was the case," laughed the gentleman, "you will have to set it down in the minutes that such and such measures were informally approved. But you must state clearly that the club was organized and write out the name of your particular branch or lodge and the constitution and by-laws you adopted, and then—"

"But we haven't got any name," interrupted the girl, "and we didn't adopt any constitution and by-laws. What was the use? We all knew what we were there for. Besides, we didn't think of that."

THE LANGUAGE OF ANIMALS.

Observations of a Student of Natural History.

Mock anger seems to be rather common among birds. There is in them, when caged, some suppressed excitement or fury, especially in the spring.

Everyone who knows a parrot knows that a perfectly reciprocal fondness is no protection against his bite. The one I know bites his best friend deeply and roars with laughter.

The little birds use a kind of flirtation of defiance with the overwhelming power of those they know intimately. A skilled bird tamer, I believe, puts his hand into the cage, and when the bird moves, withdraws it hurriedly, as if in fear.

This invites the bird to a contempt which becomes the foundation for familiarity, and the device is founded, I suppose, on that adventurous and provocative spirit in the bird which prompts the bullfinches to scold and bully the master whose favors they value. Does a puppy bark and snap in play in something like the same temper? I might mention a goldfinch I know, which, I think, never fails to distinguish its partial mistress from all others by an outburst of swearing and ruffling.

ONE CIGAR AT A TIME.

Some Things Noticed by a Retail Dealer.

"Yes; there's money even in that, though you wouldn't think it," said a Nassau street tobacconist after ransacking his whole stock to sell one five-cent cigar of a specified quality.

"I have at least a thousand customers who buy only one cigar at a time and pay me, all together, about $75 a day.

"Many do it to avoid too much smoking. A man with his pockets full of cigars lights one from the stump of another. Many a man is made a heavy smoker, not by love of tobacco so much as by the habit of keeping his pockets full of the smoking materials. Then a man having bought, say five cigars, generally has to set up at least two of them, though treating is not so prevalent as it was.

"Why, my brother, up in a northeast German quarter, says that in his store often every man in a party of five or six buys his own cigars. That's the only square way, I think, though of course we lose money by it, because cigar-spongers often get other men to buy them cigars for which they would never spend their own money."—New York Sun.

His Cup Overflowed.

A certain minister of our acquaintance was invited to dine with a member of his flock who, though well enough off in the goods of this world, lived sparingly in his greed for the dollars and cents. When dinner was served the host said:

"I can't give you nothin' but bacon and greens, parson; it's all I can afford these hard times. Will you ask a blessin'?"

The minister responded:

"Lord, make us truly thankful for what we are about to receive. We expected nothing but greens—and behold! here is bacon also. Make us truly thankful!"—Smithville (Ga.) News.

A Business Suggestion.

Mr. Mould, the undertaker, was complaining about business, and appeared somewhat discouraged.

"Uriah," suggested his wife, "I wonder if it wouldn't brighten things up a little if you were to offer a bargain sale of coffins for the next thirty days? I think people would take advantage of it."—The Epoch.

A Pretty Grave Joke.

A facetious gentleman remarked Saturday that he saw something that morning which he considered a pretty grave joke.

"What was it?" was asked.

Ups and Downs of Life.

"I have looked up the whereabouts of your friend," wrote an ex-Buffalonian now in New York to a former fellow citizen.

"I find that he holds a very important and trustworthy traveling position with —— & Co. He has seen many of the ups and downs of life since coming to the metropolis. To be explicit, he is running the elevator."—Buffalo Express.

Prohibition

Of the LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

By Rev. S. M. VERNON, D.D.

The most active and aggressive period ever known in temperance work renders timely the appearance of this crisp, original and vigorous volume. It is a book quite out of the beaten track, newsy and piquant, bristling with telling points, brief, clear, sprightly, candid, earnest, convincing, fair, dispassionate, full of ringing facts and bright with sterling truths.

It popularizes the burning question of "Prohibition," brings it down to every mind and conscience, marshals its many startling facts in new and surprising forms, clarifies and invigorates its logic, paints in vivid and impressive hues the monster whose daily victims but increase its hunger, and the poison of whose breath blights whate'er it touches. Cloth $1.00. Paper 50 cts. Supplied by Agents, Booksellers and News Dealers, or mailed postpaid to any address by

MORTGAGE SALE.

BY a certain indenture of mortgage bearing date the 7th day of January, A. D., 1887, executed by Hiram Smith of Madison township, county of Lenawee, and State of Michigan, to Frank N. Chamberlin of the same place, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Lenawee County, State of Michigan, on the 8th day of January, A.D., 1887, in Liber 117 of Mortgages, on page 339, the said Smith mortgaged to said Chamberlin all that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the city of Adrian, County of Lenawee and State of Michigan, described as follows, to wit: Lot number thirty-three (33) and the west one-half of lot number thirty-four (34) on the plat of James Berry's subdivision of the Comstock homestead in the city of Adrian, as per the recorded plat thereof—excepting and reserving an alley eight (8 feet in width from off the west side of lot thirty-three (33) to be used in common with owner of premises next west of the premises herein conveyed, for their mutual benefit and to be kept open so long as they or either may desire. Default has been made in the condition of said mortgage, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative. There is now claimed to be due and unpaid on said mortgage the sum of Four Hundred and Thirty-Seven 33-100 dollars ($437.33), and no suit or proceedings at law or in chancery have been instituted to collect the same or any part thereof. Notice is hereby given that, by virtue of said power of sale, and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgaged premises will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder on the 4th day of August, A. D. 1888 at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day at the east front door of the court house of said county in the city of Adrian, that being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said county of Lenawee, to satisfy the amount then due together with all legal costs and charges of this foreclosure.

Dated May 7, 1888.

FRANK N. CHAMBERLIN,
may10 Mortgagee.

MORTGAGE SALE.

ON the 15th day of December, 1884, David A. Sickner and Hannah A. Sickner mortgaged to Albert Hyde Sr., all that parcel of land situate in the township of Cambridge, Lenawee County, Michigan, described as follows, to wit: Beginning at a stake one hundred and sixty-six feet south and thirty-three feet west of the north east corner of the east half of the southeast quarter of section twenty-eight, town five (5) south, of range two (2) east; running thence south sixteen rods to a stake; thence west sixteen rods to a stake; thence north eight rods to a stake; thence east four rods to a stake; thence north eight rods to south line of street; thence east twelve rods to place of beginning—containing seven village lots as per plat of the village of Onsted (so called) numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 17, 18 and 20. Excepting and reserving from the lands and premises above described two parcels thereof, which have been released from the lien of said mortgage. The one of which released parcels is described as a parcel of land forty-eight (48) feet wide north and south, by twelve rods long east and west to be taken from off the north side of the lands and premises above described, and the other of said two released parcels is described as a parcel of land three rods wide north and south, by eight rods long east and west, to be taken from out the southeast corner of the lands and premises above described, to secure the payment of six hundred dollars, which mortgage was on the 18th day of December, 1884, recorded in the Register of Deeds' office for the county of Lenawee, Michigan, in Liber 97 of mortgages on page 268, and said mortgage contains a provision that in case of non-payment of any principal or interest at the time limited therefor, then after sixty days the whole amount shall become due and payable.

Default having been made in the payment of interest and principal on said mortgage to the amount of one hundred eighty-five 73-100 dollars, and the same having remained unpaid for a period of more than sixty days and by reason of such default the whole amount of principal and interest has thereby become due, amounting at the date of this notice to the sum of Four Hundred Eighty-five and 73-100 dollars, and no proceedings at law or in equity have been commenced for recovery of said sum or any part thereof.

Notice is therefore hereby given that by virtue of the power and provisions in said mortgage contained, and of the statute of the state of Michigan, in such case made and provided, the said above described land and premises will be sold at public vendue to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House in the city of Adrian, Lenawee county, Michigan, that being the building in which the circuit court for said county of Lenawee is holden, on Friday, the 14th day of September, 1888, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage, the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and sale including an attorney fee as provided by law.

Rich and Poor,

Prince and Peasant, the Millionaire and Day Laborer, by their common use of this remedy, attest the world-wide repute of Ayer's Pills. Leading physicians recommend these pills for Stomach and Liver Troubles, Costiveness, Biliousness, and Sick Headache; also, for Rheumatism, Jaundice, and Neuralgia. They are sugar-coated; contain no calomel; are prompt, but mild, in operation; and, therefore, the very best medicine for Family Use, as well as for Travelers and Tourists.

I have derived great relief from Ayer's Pills. Five years ago I was taken so ill with that I was unable to do any work. I took three boxes of Ayer's Pills and was entirely cured. Since that time I have kept a box of the pills in the house.—Chas. Jackson, Sherwood, Wis.

"Ayer's Pills have been in use in my family upwards of twenty years, and have completely vanquished all that is claimed for them. For attacks of piles, for which I suffered many years, they afford greater relief than any other medicine I ever tried."—T. F. Adams, Hot Springs, Texas.

I have used Ayer's Pills for a number of years, and have never found anything equal to them for giving me an appetite and imparting energy and strength to the system. I always keep them in the house."—R. D. Jackson, Wilmington, Del.

"Two boxes of Ayer's Pills cured me of severe from which I was long a sufferer."—Emma Keyes, Hubbardston, Mass.

Headache,

"Whenever I am troubled with constipation, or suffer from loss of appetite, Ayer's Pills set me right again."—A. J. Kiser, Jr., Rock House, Va.

"Ayer's Pills are in general demand among our customers. Our sales of them exceed those of all other pills combined. We have never known them fail to give entire satisfaction."—Wright & Hannelly, San Diego, Texas.

ROMANCE AND REALITY.

Something That Married People May Think Over and Profit by.

"James, dear, will you bring me up a hod of coal from the cellar?" said a busy wife.

"That's just the way with you," said James, with a [illegible] frown, as he laid down his book and rose up from the lounge.

"Just the way with me?"

"Yes," he snapped. "As soon as you see me enjoying myself, you have some chore or another for me to do. Didn't you see I was absorbed in my reading?"

"Well, dear, I will do it myself."

"Yes, and tell everybody, your mother especially, that you will have to carry your own coal up from the cellar. No, I'll do it. Let me mark my place."

So he marked the place in the book at which she had ceased reading, and when he went down the cellar grumbling all the way, she picked up the volume and found it was a love story, and that the passage he had been absorbed in was as follows:

"My darling, when you are my wife, I will shield and protect you from every care, the winds of heaven shall not visit your face too roughly, those pretty hands shall never be soiled by menial tasks, your wish shall be my law, your happiness——"

Just then he reappeared, and dumping the hod on the floor, said:

"There's your darned hod. Give me my book."

Is life worth living?

A WASHINGTON CELEBRITY.

Prosperous Aunt Clara.

She is a poor old demented lady who makes her living by selling photographs of public men, guide books, souvenirs made out of the pulp of macerated greenbacks, and a great variety of things of that sort. She looks like an old witch, and it is hard to say whether she is French or German.

To those who enjoy her confidence, she talks with great freedom, and very interestingly at times. At others she is as incoherent as Hamlet's Ophelia, or as reticent as the Sphinx.

Her story is romantic. In early life she was a beautiful woman, and lived for a number of years in Washington. She knew intimately Clay and Webster, Calhoun and Tom Benton; and if you are so fortunate as to get her to talk about them she can tell many an interesting story.

After a time it became necessary for her to leave Washington, and she made her home in New Orleans, where her taste in matters of dress made her a successful milliner. She built up a fine business and made a snug little fortune.

When the war broke out she rashly avowed her Union sentiments, with the consequence that she was obliged to leave the city with her children, a refugee, penniless and dependent, not knowing which way to turn. The terrible strain upon her mind unsettled her reason and she has been a harmless victim of dementia ever since.

In some way she wandered to Washington, and old-timers remember how she used to sit in the Senate gallery and wave a little silk flag whenever a Union speech was made.

This at length became rather annoying, and several of the Senators, Charles Sumner among them, decided to give her something to do so as to keep her out of the Senate, and she was allowed to set up her notion stand in one of the Senate corridors.

After a time she was moved over on the House of the rotunda, and for twenty-five years she has been one of the familiar landmarks of the Capitol.

She owns a comfortable house, has sent her boy through Yale College, and given her daughter the benefit of extended European travel.—Hartford Times.

MARK TWAIN'S DEBT RAISING.

A Novel and Successful Scheme To Raise Money for a Church.

It was at the time the Rev. T. K. Beecher was building his large church at Elmira, where Mark Twain was living at the time. The humorist wrote up the plan on which Beecher was doing it.

A church in a town on the Hudson River had a debt of $18,000, and the treasurer happened to come across the account of Mark's. At the next meeting of the church board he told the brethren of it. He said there was no telling whether it was told for a fact or as a joke, for he always thought Mark was joking when he was telling the truth and serious when he was joking. At any rate he thought it was worth trying.

So he sent out letters to every member of the church to send him by a certain date what he or she thought was his or her portion of the debt, giving as the Lord had prospered them, no matter how much or how little. They were asked not to give according as others might give, but to leave the matter entirely with their own conscience and with God. They were not to communicate the amount they gave to anybody, except the pastor.

The result was astonishing. Persons that never had given anything to the church responded promptly and generously. Parties that had always given grudgingly and meagrely gave astonishingly large sums. When the date fixed arrived the whole amount asked for was in the hands of the treasurer.

Mrs. Hayseed at a Fashionable Church.

A pleasant-looking old lady, evidently from the country, appeared in a well known Episcopal Church in Boston the other Sunday. The service had begun, and she stood a moment at the door until an usher came up to her, when the following conversation took place:

Old Lady—"Be the riglar pasture up there?"

Usher—"Yes, madam."

Old Lady—"Is he goin' to preach?"

Usher—"Oh, yes. Shall I show you to a seat?"

Old Lady—"Wait a minit; that meachin' little feller on the right isn't the pasture, is he?"

Usher—"No; that is the assistant."

Old Lady—"Is all them men in white gowns ministers?"

Usher—"No; they are the choir."

Old Lady—"All right, then; give me a seat near the brass bird."

Graceful Arrangement of the Hair.

One of the most beautiful heads of antiquity is that of Clytie, which is simply one of female perfection in grace and arrangement, and which has the forehead quite low, with the hair divided evenly over the center and falling away each side and backward in artistic waves.

There is a similar arrangement in the Aphrodite in the Glyptothek in Munich, excepting the few descending tresses, wanting in the latter.

WHAT MAKES AN ACCOMPANIST.

It requires neither a very good nor a very bad musician to make a good accompanist, according to a well known authority on the subject. The former is often unwilling to sing to the requisite degree of passiveness, the latter too unsympathetic a follower of the divine art to feel that more is necessary than a fitful and inaccurate dabbling with the keyboard.

What really is an essential to one who would become a true accompanist in every sense of the word is a mesmeric, intuitive sympathy. If the singer be not followed, in all the vagaries the passenger of a voice—whether good, bad or indifferent, indulges in, the effect must be a marring one.

It is not necessary in order to be able to play the songs chiefly in vogue at the present day that the performer should have what is understood by a thorough musical education. Hours of practicing of scales and chords, months of study at some foreign conservatoire, and a disbursement of a fortune on lessons with some celebrated professor cannot achieve what a quick eye, a quicker ear, and a total temporary suppression of self can in the art of playing accompaniments.

Society has long since tabooed the idea of relying solely on amateurs for its musical entertainment, and in proportion to the excellence of the vocal music now heard in drawing rooms is its piano accompaniment.

It stands to reason that a hostess will not engage professional singers for her "at homes" and after dinner parties without also providing them with a professional pianist; and it is quite possible for an intelligent, lady-like girl to earn a very comfortable addition to her income by going out in the capacity of professional accompanist without once putting her foot on a platform, or possessing any extraordinary amount of musical talent.

DESTROYING CRICKETS.

Two Ways Employed in Their Wholesale Destruction.

Accounts published of the devastation caused by crickets in Algeria show that the insects resemble, but are not identical with either locusts or grasshoppers. They spring like grasshoppers, but have a more rapid and sustained flight. They form clouds, which shut out the light of the sun.

When they alight on the ground they destroy every trace of vegetation. They sometimes fall exhausted on the ground in such numbers as to cover it with a layer of dead bodies, from which pestilential exhalations arise.

The method still employed to check the evil in the African possessions of France is the old and expensive one of digging long trenches at a right angle to the advancing swarms, and placing on the most distant side a sort of fence, formed by a web of cloth. The advancing insects strike against the cloth, fall into the pit, and are there covered with lime or mold.

It was recently stated that the English authorities in Cyprus had traced the locusts in that island to their breeding-places, and had there to a great extent succeeded in destroying them in germ, before they became developed into the destructive swarms which periodically devastated that island.

As yet the French do not appear to have introduced this method into Algeria.

OUR PURITAN ANCESTORS.

Their Harsh Views on the Subject of Men and Women's Attire.

For example, the wife of Mr. Johnson, the pastor at Amsterdam, gave offense because, having formerly been a rich merchant's wife, "she wore such apparel as she had been formerly used to, which were neither excessive nor immodest, for their chiefest exceptions were against her wearing of some whalebone in the bodice and sleeves of her gown, cork shoes, and other such like things as the citizens of her rank then used to wear. And although, for offense sake, she and he were willing to reform the fashions of them so far as might be without spoiling of their garments, yet it would not content them except they came full up to their sizes."

The Governor gives another instance.

In England a godly man, long imprisoned for his religion, is released, and goes to see an old woman who has been very kind to him. She "came up to him and felt of his band (for her eyes were dim with age), and perceiving it was something stiffened with starch, she was much displeased and reproved him very sharply, fearing God would not prosper his journey. Yet the man was a plain countryman, clad in gray russet, without either welt or guard (as the proverb is), and the band he wore worth scarce threepence, made of their own homespinning, and he was godly and humble as he was plain."

Writing in 1648, the Governor says:

"What would such professors, if they were now living, say to the excess of our times?"

A CHILD ON DEATH.

Skepticism in the Mouth of Babes and Sucklings.

I suppose every child finds death, on first seeing or hearing of it, a fascinating puzzle.

The little boy was listening to their talking about somebody who was dying.

"What is dying?" he asked.

"The soul leaves the body, my child."

"And where does it go?"

"Up into the skies."

The sick woman died, and the boy heard of it.

"She ain't dead yet," he said.

"Yes, child; she died at 6 o'clock."

"No, she didn't. She wasn't dead when I came in."

"What do you mean?"

"'Cos I watched, an' I didn't see no soul go up into the skies at all."

No Wonder.

Visitor—"What has become of your living skeleton?"

Dime Museum Man—"Ah! he is dead, poor fellow. Drunk himself to death."

V.—"Good gracious!"

D. M. M.—"Yee, he married the two-headed woman and it took all his salary and hers to keep her in bonnets. So he took to drink."

No Better Reason.

Mistress (to servant)—"I want you to do your best to-day, Bridget, and have everything pat for to-night's dinner."

Bridget—"Shure an' Oi will, mum, fer it's Pat himself wat'll be here this blissed avenin'!"—Texas Siftings.

COUNTERFEITING A BAKING POWDER.

The public is too well informed as to the danger from alum baking powders to need any caution against using them. It is, nevertheless, a fact that careful housekeepers are, without knowing it, using these deleterious articles daily, and from them preparing for their families food which, were they aware of its nature, they would not offer to a beggar. Baking powders made from burnt alum cost less than four cents a pound. When these can be worked off in place of the Royal Baking Powder, and sold for forty or fifty cents a pound, there are many manufacturers and dealers sufficiently unscrupulous to do it.

A favorite method of selling these poisonous alum baking powders is by placing them in an empty Royal Baking Powder can and weighing them out in small quantities when the Royal Baking Powder is called for by customers. The grocer, if questioned, claims that he buys in large packages at a lower rate and is thus able to sell below the price of the goods in small cans. All baking powders sold in this way are entitled to suspicion. Analyses of many of them have been made with a view to a prosecution, and in all cases they have been found largely adulterated and generally made from poisonous burnt alum. This is selling counterfeit goods, and is, of course, an offence against the law. We are glad to know that the Royal Baking Powder Company have taken the matter in hand, and are acting in a way that will protect the public from the swindle.

The surest protection from this fraud is for the housekeeper to buy the baking powder of the brand she wishes in the original unbroken package, looking carefully to see that the label has not been tampered with. The Royal Baking Powder Company announce, what is well known, that their goods are packed for the convenience of consumers in cans of various sizes, but are never sold in bulk, by the barrel or loose by weight or measure. The cans are securely sealed with the company's trade mark label, and the weight of each package stamped on the cover. Any baking powder being peddled out by weight under the name of Royal they denounce as bogus and to be avoided.

Consumers should bear these facts in mind if they do not wish to have imposed upon them the poisonous alum stuff that is being profusely distributed throughout the country under the name of baking powder. If, however, they buy the Royal in cans with unbroken labels, they are always sure of using a baking powder perfectly pure and wholesome, and of the highest test, strength and efficiency.

GREAT CAMPAIGN OFFER.

The Weekly Courier-Journal has now the largest circulation of any Democratic newspaper in the United States and its publishers, to further extend its circulation, offer to send it postage prepaid from June 4, 1888, to December 31, 1888—thirty-one issues—for only fifty cents.

Subscriptions sent before June 4th will be entered from that time, but those received after June 4th will be entered from the date received, to expire December 31, 1888.

The rate to clubs of eight and over are extremely liberal. A sample copy of the Weekly Courier-Journal containing its great campaign offer can be procured, free of charge, by addressing W. N. Haldeman, President Courier-Journal Company, Louisville, Ky.

The subscription price of the Daily Courier-Journal, without the Sunday issue, is ten dollars ($10) a year. Price of Sunday Courier-Journal is two dollars ($2) a year.

English spavin liniment removes all hard, soft, or calloused lumps and blemishes from horses, blood spavin, curbs, splints, sweeney, stifles, sprains, sore and swollen throat coughs, etc. Save $50 by use of one bottle. Warranted. Sold by Baker & Hall, Druggists, Tecumseh Mich.

A prompt source of relief from every symptom of indigestion is found in Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic. This elegant and efficacious remedy is prompt and thorough in its action, acceptable to the taste and stomach, curing dyspepsia, jaundice, bad breath, piles, pimples, low spirits, headache, ague, malaria, scrofula, salt rheum, eczema, boils, tetter, rheumatism and all chronic diseases of the blood, stomach and liver. Fifty cents of Dr. Geo. Ferguson. Cures many who vainly seek relief of physicians.

Died of Heart Disease.

Many eminent men, among them Mr. Vanderbilt, Mr. Hendricks, Gen. McClellan and Josh Billings died of heart disease last year. Authorities state that one person in four has it, though few know it. The symptoms are shortness of breath, pain or tenderness in side, palpitation, choked or smothered feeling in the chest, tendency to faint, swelling of feet, ankles, etc. If you have any of these symptoms do not fail to try Dr. Miles New Cure for the Heart. For sale at Baker & Hall's Drug Store.

I suffered from a very severe cold in my head for months and used everything recommended, but could get no relief. Was advised to use Ely's Cream Balm. It has worked like magic in its cure. I am free from my cold after using the Balm one week, and I believe it is the best remedy known. Feeling grateful for what it has done for me I send this testimonial.—Samuel J. Harris, Wholesale Grocer, 116 Front St., New York.

There is nothing more miraculous in its effects, entirely removing from the face moth patches or brown spots purely by its action on the blood, than Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup.

WHAT IS SLANG?

Some Interesting Remarks on This Abuse of the Mother Tongue.

Slang is, in short, giving nicknames to things. "Mr. B." (says the report of the boat race) "rubbed the crews well and [illegible]" knowledge the absurdity of "awfully jolly," and of other similar freaks of boyish exuberance.

Young ladies, too, have a slang of their own. A small thing is "wee" or "teny;" a pretty thing is "bonny;" the children at a school feast are a "goodly number," and they are "regaled" on tea and cake.

Slang is everywhere. Why should "big" be reiterated when we mean "large," or "mighty" for "great"? What is gained by calling a panic "a scare," a folly "a craze," a hoax "a sell," a ship or a soldier "a liner," or by saying of a horse or watch, "it is a good goer," instead of saying, "it goes well"?

Even writers in the foremost rank are sometimes guilty of extraordinary solecisms. The Addison of our day, in one of his charming novels, relates how his heroine had "sat awake all night." The eloquent and accomplished painter in words describes how the "Dead Sea laid waveless beneath him." Dickens has lent his sanction to "Our mutual friend." Phrases like these are plentiful: "The reverend prebend," "the learned antiquarian," "whether or no," "equally as good as," "more preferable than," etc.

When those who lead the way offer us, it is no wonder that an invalid, recommending a couch, writes: "It is much curiant," or that a servant says, "The meat be stood on a slab."

A Horrible Inheritance.

The transmission of the fearful effects of contagious blood poison is the most horrible inheritance which any man can leave to his innocent posterity; but it can be certainly mitigated and in the majority of cases, prevented by the use of the antidote which Nature furnishes, and which is found in the remedy known all over the world as Swift's Specific—commonly called "S. S. S."

Mr. J. H. Brown, of Hornellsville, N. Y., writes: "Three years I suffered with this horrible disease. Swift's Specific cured me completely."

Prof. Edwin Paar, 224 E. 22nd st., N. Y., writes: "Swift's Specific cured me of a fearful case of Blood Poison."

Dr. B. F. Wingfield, of the Soldier's Home, Richmond, Va., writes: "Swift's Specific cured me of a severe case of Blood Poison."

D. W. K. Briggs, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "I was a perfect wreck from Blood Poison. Swift's Specific restored health and hope, and I am well to-day."

C. W. Langhill, Savannah, Ga.: "I suffered long with Blood Poison. I tried Swift's Specific and am perfectly well."

A. W. Buell, of Power's Hotel, Rochester, N. Y., writes: "It is the best blood remedy on earth. I cured myself with it. I recommended it to a friend and it made him well."

Mr. F. L. Stanton, of the Smithville, Ga. News, writes that a friend was afflicted with a case of Blood Poison, and two bottles of S. S. S. effected a complete cure.

Clara, how is the baby? Oh, he is as chirp as a lark. That Hibbard's Throat and Lung Balsam is a great remedy. Three doses relieved his suffering, and he was ready for play.

KING OF THE BLOOD

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the Stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

Its name is its best description as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES, and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. It has frequently cured it when advanced.

It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the Surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.

It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.

It reduces in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.

It eradicates the effects of Venerial Disease and Mineral Poisons and establishes a sound constitution.

Many certificates, much further information and full directions for using, will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," which we send free to any address.

Price $1 per bottle containing 12 ounces, or 50 doses. Sold by Druggists in medicine.

If your druggist does not happen to have it on hand, request him to order a supply of it for you. It will be cheaper than for you to order direct of us, and less trouble.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON FOR JULY 1st. 1888.

GOD'S COVENANT WITH ISRAEL.—EXODUS XXIV 1 12.

NOTES.—"And he." God——"Up unto the Lord."—Upon Mount Sinai.——"Nadab and Abihu."—Sons of Aaron. Lev. x. 1.——"And seventy of the elders of Israel."—Representatives of the people.——"They shall not come near."—These elders probably waited at some point half way to the top of the mountain, while the people at their own request awaited results at the foot.——"Moses wrote all the words of the Lord."—So that there should be no cavil or mistake; that posterity might know what the Lord saith to his chosen people.——"And he sent young men."—These on account of their innocence and youth had committed to them the tasks that the Levitical priesthood undertook as their right later.——"Burnt offerings." These were wholly consumed by fire on the altar. They were mainly expiatory and also were the signs of complete heart offering to God.——"Peace offerings."—Partly consumed and partly eaten by the officers. These were the signs of thankfulness for mercies received. Both were generally offered together.——"Half of the blood he sprinkled on the altar."—It was as representative of the people that Moses covenanted by this act to be faithful to God. Thus he might expect the blessings and promises that fidelity could demand.——"And sprinkled it on the people."—Not all, of course, but these representatives. This was the most solemn seal of the acceptance of God's covenant by the people.——"A paved work of sapphire as of various colors. The gem in those days was more valued for its light blue transparent color than for the dark blue. This is a wonderful and realistic description of splendor that could not be described.——"And upon the nobles he laid not his hands."—The vision did them no harm.——"They beheld God."—As in a trance of ecstacy. This refers more to a prophetic vision.

INSTRUCTION.—The same cry that Moses and the people heard has been reverberating down the centuries in ever increasing volume and strength. Come up unto the Lord. Nor to our minds is our Lord on a high hill where only a single representative may see him for us. He is to be found by the seeking. He is to be heard by the hearing. He speaks to us in a thousand tongues. All can go to him. Christ revealed a God on Calvary. A God with all his people.

Yet to see him we must still go up as they did of old at Sinai. It is a toilsome, but, oh, how pleasant a journey! Our passions, our wicked appetites, all that holds us back from heavenly purity—all must be left at the base of the ascent. Then up and onward. God in Christ our high goal. He will not harm us, nor will the lightning-flash of wrath blast us as we upward march.

There are some holy privileged ones who by a life of devotion and purity live far nearer to God than others. Shall they not tell of the glories they see? Shall they not teach the slow what they know see by intuitive love? If any man knows or even thinks he knows more than his neighbors let him teach them as Moses taught the people. True knowledge will bring forth fruit. The false will gradually find its level.

An honest and enthusiastic presentation and interpretation of God's truth will generally carry assent and belief. No truth need be despaired of. Some truths are only partially known. Some more fully. Yet where truth is there believers must be.

Is not God making a covenant with us at this time? There is no more blood sprinkling now. What need? Was not the last victim slain a sufficient sacrifice for all ages? God's covenant is in the heart of each believer. He knows God accepts him. He knows it on Christ's authority and on his own consciousness, provided he has done his part of the agreement.

The blood covenant is somewhat of a mystery in its early origin, but its meaning is full of suggestion, as the blood was the inner life, and by tasting blood one received another's life. So our spiritual life, that inner life, comes from God. God is a spirit. On to those whose spirits are quickened can understand such a God. And from no other source than from the Father can spiritual life come.

As that memorable covenant was followed by a vision of the life giver himself, so when we take his life into ours will we see him more as we think him to be.

NORTH EAST FRANKLIN

Mike Cummins, of Jackson, visited at his father's Saturday.

Smith Munger has a very sick horse and its disease is not understood, but some think it has been bitten by a snake. Frank Erskine lately lost one that was affected similarly, and Will Beebe has one that appears to have the same disease.

Mrs. Mary Woods, from near Hillsdale, was out last week to see her mother. She returned Saturday.

Mrs. Leavitt, nee Helen Potter, of Centralia, Ill., has been visiting relatives in Franklin the past few days. She will return to her home this week.

L. E. Taylor and wife lately made a four days' trip to Hillsdale and Jonesville. They report a very pleasant visit among old-time friends.

The many friends of Charles Hampton were delighted to see his face among them at the picnic Saturday. He came to Franklin June 15th, gave a few days to friends here, and started Monday for Lansing to attend the reunion of the old 4th Infantry. Harrison Daniels accompanied him.

Willard Peck, of Lansing, is visiting in Franklin.

A Gentle Hint.

"John," she said sweetly as she glanced at the clock, "do you know anything about base ball?"

"Well, I rather guess I do," he answered with pride.

"There is a short-stop in every Nine, isn't there?"

"Certainly."

"Is there a long stop, too?"

"No."

"It is a pity."

"Why so?"

"Because," and she glanced at the clock again, "if there was a long stop, you would make money. Every club would be bidding for you."—Boston Courier.

The World's Steam Power.

The Bureau of Statistics in Berlin has recently issued some curious information with regard to the number of steam engines in use in the chief countries of the world and the amount of motive force which they represent. The United States stand first with a total horse power of 7,500,000, next comes Great Britain with 500,000 less. Germany has 4,500,000, France 3,500,000, and Austria 1,500,000. In these figures the motive power of the locomotives, which number 105,000 throughout the world, is not included. They represent collectively a total of 3,000,000 horse power.

Summarizing these figures, and remembering that a steam horse power is equal to the power of three actual horses, and that the strength of a living horse is equal to that of seven men, we arrive at the following result; the steam engines of the world do the work of double its working population.—Chambers's Journal.

A Precious Volume.

"You attend Sunday school, do you?" inquired Rev. Mr. Smith of Nellie. "Then you must know a great deal about the Bible. Now tell us something nice that's in the Bible here, can you?" "Yeth, thir; sis hath, some dried leaves in it, a peith of Aunt Jane's weddin' dreth, a peith of my dreth when I was a baby, thome hair and six feitheir's pictures."

What are Suppositories?

A. G. Rose, from New London, Penn., writes: Send me two boxes of your Kemp's Pile Suppositories by mail. Our druggist is out. They are for a friend. I tried everything without help, but the Suppositories cured me.

The treatment is new and within reach of all, and would advise the affected to give them a trial. For sale in Tecumseh by Baker & Hall, at 50c per box.

"Think of a Family

having the habit of daily converse with all the knowledge that is old enough to get into books"—your family!

You can bring that about, if you want to. Possibly some father or mother may read this, to whom it isn't true; but we doubt it.

Consider what it means. It means that you have a Cyclopedia in your living room, your evening family-room, the handiest place to get at when you want it; and when a subject comes up that one of the family wants to know more of, you turn to it in your Cyclopedia, just as you turn to a word in your dictionary.

This set of books can be the means of constant growth in knowledge, in use of the mind, in the habit of seeking light on whatever is dark, for you and your family, if you will have it so. Or you can neglect it as many neglect their dictionaries. All we said was that you have your choice.

You are thinking, "Can I get it?"

If you really want it, the very fact that you want it almost certainly puts it within your reach. We should like to see an exception or hear of one. We don't believe there is any.

If you desire the end, let us hear from you. You shall know the means.

The International Cyclopedia is one for you. Latest, most comprehensive, briefest, cheapest. (These words lean on one another a little.)

President Cleveland's Prize for the three best babies at the Aurora County Fair, in 1887, was given to these triplets, Mollie, Ida, and Ray, children of Mrs. A. K. Dart, Hamburgh, N. Y. She writes: "Last August the little ones became very sick, and as I could get no other food that would agree with them, I commenced the use of Lactated Food. It helped them immediately, and they were soon as well as ever, and I consider it very largely due to the Food that they are now so well." Lactated Food is the best Food for bottle-fed babies. It keeps them well, and is better than medicine when they are sick. Three sizes: 25c., 50c., $1.00. At druggists. Cabinet photo. of these triplets sent free to the mother of any baby born this year.

OBITUARY.

James Lanning was born in Huntington, Sussex Co., N. J., Oct, 1810, and died June 4, 1888, in his 78th year. He was the son of Cornelius and Charity (Young) Lanning. Mr. Lanning continued in his native state until a youth of nineteen years, then repaired to Ovid, Seneca county, N.Y. Soon after his arrival, he was married to Miss Margaret, daughter of Peter Bodine. Mr Lanning came to Michigan and settled in Raisin, Lenawee county. To them was born four children as follows: George, Rachel Ann, Mary E. and Peter B., who died June 5, 1840. The mother of these children who was born in Ovid, Seneca Co., N. Y., died in Raisin, Lenawee Co., Mich., Feb. 25, 1840. In 1847 Mr. Lanning was a second time married to Miss Maria, daughter of Julius and Martha Willet Dalley. Mrs. Maria Lanning was born in Readington, Hunterdon Co., N. J., May 13, 1814, and came to Mich. in 1846. Of her union there were two children born as follows: Martha H. and Joseph. Mr. Lanning has lived on the same spot where he first settled until the time of his death, the number of years being nearly 56. He has been in a healthy state, until eight months previous, when he was taken suddenly ill, his sickness being caused by a stroke of apoplexy. He has been ailing since his recovery from that sickness, but was not confined to the house until within about two weeks of his death. His sufferings were severe but he bore them all with much patience. When he found his life was nearly ended, he talked to those who were present, and told them he was ready and willing to go, and that there was a better world than this for him. Another of the pioneers has left us. He was a kind husband, a loving father and obliging neighbor, and a respected and honored citizen, beloved by all who knew him. He leaves a wife and five children, together with a large number of relatives, friends and neighbors to mourn his loss. The funeral service took place at his residence in Raisin, June 6, 1888, at two o'clock P. M., Rev. Babbitt of Tecumseh and Rev. Pearce of Franklin officiating. A large number of friends followed him to his final resting place.

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret W. Brazee, was held in the Wolf Creek church on Saturday, June 23d. Was born in Niagara Co. Y., Dec. 19, 1830. Died June 21st, 1888. Her parents moved to this state in June 1831. Lived near Saline for four years. They then moved into Lenawee county, where Mrs. Brazee has always lived for some fifty-three years. Mrs. Brazee, before her marriage with Morgan Brazee, was a Turner. Her father passed on before her in Dec. 1851; the mother in Feb. 1878, and her oldest sister in Nov. 1873. Her husband Morgan Brazee, lives at Devils Lake; her oldest brother, Geo. H. Turner, Adrian, Mich.; John V. Turner, Cambridge township, Lenawee county, Mich; Mrs. E. W. Covell, Spring Lake, Mich.; Mr. Wm. W. Turner, Middleville, Barry county, Mich.; Mrs. E. M. Morley, Brooklyn, Jackson county, Mich; Mrs. Jane Nearing, Cambridge Junction, Lenawee county, Mich. Mrs. Brazee was loved by all who knew her. She was a mother in Israel to those who needed sympathy, a kind deed and word. One more human soul passed on who was in friendship, sisterhood and womanhood the salt of the earth. Sweet is her love and memory to the husband, the sisters, the brothers and many friends. Of her in spirit the "Inasmuch" can be truly said.

Now is the time when the small boy finds it too awfully hot to weed onions, but just the checker to sit in a boat all day on the lake, and haul in little sun fish with one hand, and brush off big mosquitoes with the other. There's a deal of difference between a hoe handle and a fish pole as a heat conductor. We've been there on several occasions.—Adrian Press.

THE WESTERN METROPOLIS.

A Gossipy Letter from an Occasional Correspondent.

CHICAGO, June 25th, 1888.

DEAR HERALD:—Although many of your readers are more or less familiar with the attractions of this great city, I believe a few notes in regard to them will prove interesting.

As is well known, Chicago abounds in lovely parks, and smooth, level drives, the delight of horsemen and wheelmen. On the North Side is the vast and beautiful Lincoln Park with its extensive and interesting menagerie; its large and picturesque lake and bridges; magnificent floral display; broad walks and pleasant drives. On the lake front extends a broad boulevard, that reaches south nearly to the river.

On the west side are Humbolt, Garfield, Douglass, Union, Jefferson and Vernon Parks. The first three of the west side parks I have just named are large, elaborately laid out and beautiful, connected by a system of macadamized boulevards. Washington St., from Halsted street west to Garfield park, was several years ago converted into a boulevard, and, as all traffic teams are prohibited from driving on the boulevards they form fine drives that are fully appreciated by all, especially by the bicylists.

Garfield Park is four miles west of the City Hall, and the center of the west side park system. The park is about a mile long, and half a mile broad, not including the driving park. The lake is a beautiful one, and the park contains some fine buildings and bridges. The conservatory in this park is the prettiest one in all of the parks of Chicago. Nearly two miles by the boulevard, north-east from Garfield park lies Humbolt park, nearly as large and beautiful as the former. A little over two miles south-east, by the boulevard from Garfield park is Douglas park, by many thought to be the best of the west side system.

Union, Jefferson and Vernon parks, although smaller than the others are breathing spots that have proved blessings to countless thousands of tired, care worn workers.

On the South side a grand system of boulevards take you to the great parks of this section of the city. A ride down Michigan Boulevard to 35th st., thence east to Grand Boulevard, and then to south park, is one of the finest trips in the city, and one that should not be missed by visitors to the metropolis of the west.

From South park another boulevard about a mile long takes you to Jackson park, which lies along the lake, about as Lincoln park does on the North side.

The boulevard connecting Humbolt and Lincoln parks, only lack about two miles of being complete, while the one connecting South park, and Douglass parks lack the same distance. When these roads are finished the city will have about sixty miles of fine macadamized boulevards, connecting the park system. When any Tecumseh bicyclist visits Chicago I advise him by all means to bring his wheel along, as he can see more of the city and enjoy his visit much more by doing so.

Through the kindness of a valued friend I have become the possessor of a Columbia light roadster, and so know what I am talking about when I praise a wheelsman's advantages in Chicago. I shall be pleased to devote spare hours, after work, in showing bicycling friends around the boulevards and parks. I have been wishing that Levi Hayden would write up his trip from Boston for the HERALD, and I believe he could give us an exceedingly interesting description of his journey.

David Henderson of the Chicago Opera House, has given us a new and gorgeous burlesque of the old fairy story of Cinderella, in the spectacular "Crystal Slipper," now being played at his theatre with success. Last week the "Crystal Slipper" drew nearly $14,000 into the Henderson's treasury. Another new and successful burlesque has been produced at Hooley's, E. E. Rice's "Corsair." Both plays are in for an all summer run. More Anon. L. F. W.

ONE BOTTLE CURED HIM.

A. H. Thompson, Rockford, Ill., writes; "I have been troubled with Catarrh for years, nothing helped me until I tried Papillon Catarrh Cure. I followed directions, and with less than one bottle, I am cured." Papillon extract of Haze Catarrh Cure will positively and permanently cure Bronchial Catarrh, Acute or Chronic Catarrh, also Rose Cold and Hay Fever. Large bottles $1.00.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY JULY 5

It is a condition that confronts us, not a theory.—PRESIDENT CLEVELAND.

The railroad attorneys seem to have manipulated the Chicago convention very successfully.

Reduce the war taxes. Wipe out the surplus. This is a good enough platform for us to stand on present.

Did anybody hear the price of wool go up five cents a pound when Ben. Harrison was nominated on a high protection platform?

Ben Harrison is a free trader after all. He believes in free trade in labor, and would allow cheap Chinese labor to overrun this country to compete with American workingmen.

LINCOLN advocated a government of the people, for the people and by the people. The Republican platform advocates a government of the monopolies, for the monopolies and by the monopolies. Where do the people stand on this issue?

A significant feature of the big Democratic ratification meeting in New York last week was the presence of a colored brigade of five hundred voters. The Goody shirt must go.

The San Francisco Alta says "Onetenth part of the population of Portland, Oregon, is the after election revelation that comes from Oregon. Mr. Metthan, elected District Attorney in that city, is pelted for the Congressional muster and hamstrung as fast as a pup be pelted the polecat that represents Republican corruption in Oregon for years and represented it so well. It was a great victory.

The Phoenix, Pa. Herald, which has been even an independent republican paper, puts the issue in this form: "The people will now decide for one of the two following principles as the policy of the nation.

For the protection of labor against pauper wages of Europe and the reduction of taxes on all the necessaries of life, or—

For the protection of monopolies, trusts and corporations and the multiplication of millionaires and tramps.

A new bug has made its appearance in our ridden Jersey. It is two inches long about the length of the average Jersey "skeeter" and is of a light brown color. It has four big claws near its head and its sting raises bumps the size of hen's eggs on the human body. The circulars of the hotels and cottages make no mention of this addition to their attractions.

Ben. Harrison's opinion is that one dollar a day and two meals is enough for any laboring man. Perhaps the laboring men will express their opinion about Ben Harrison next November, at the ballot box.

President Cleveland's little speech to the notification committee was a model of good taste and sound sense. Every word came from the heart of an honest man, who feels the responsibility of his great trust, and is determined to perform every duty with fidelity let the consequences be what they may.

Cheaper clothing, cheaper farming utensils, cheaper fuel on one side. Free whiskey and a free chaw 'on the other. Take your choice, men and bretheren.

The question before the country does not relate to Gen. Harrison's grandfather or President Cleveland's substitute. It has to do with two conflicting economic systems. Shall the war tariff be maintained for protection? Or, shall war-tariff taxes be reduced in accordance with the revenue tariff doctrine of the Democratic party? This is the issue, and it is a great one. It involves more than appears on its face. Whoever will study it carefully will find in it two conflicting and never to be reconciled theories of government—the Hamiltonian and the Jeffersonian. One side upholds the right to tax all the people for the benefit of some of the people. The other side denies the existence of such a right. One side advocates protection for protection's sake. The other side asserts that revenue is the only object of lawful taxation and that to tax for any other purpose is usurpation. It ought to be possible for a great nation to discuss and settle this question without any display of unseemly passion.—Washington Post.

THE SUMMING UP OF THE MATTER.

The tariff question as it relates to manufactures and labor is a question of supply and demand. The greater the latter the more work there will be to produce the former. When protective tariff becomes so burdensome as to exclude trade with foreign countries the demand is limited to home trade and overproduction is the quick result. It is the practical, common sense view of the tariff situation which the Journal of Commerce, of New York, takes, and in the following article from that paper the subject is summed up very clearly and very soundly. Read it:

If politicians would stop their war cries long enough to study the real needs of the country they might find better material for their campaign tracts than now fills the sheets sent broadcast over the land. Here is a man with scarcely lungs crying out for "protection of home manufactures" when any one not wholly blind ought to be able to see that what manufacturers need most is a wider market. There is not a leading industry in the United States that cannot under a very moderate tariff compete successfully on our soil with any foreign producer of similar goods if the home demand is large enough to exhaust its capacity. It is not more protection but more customers that is the crying want of the American producers of all classes.

The common theory of the high tariff politicians is that the American fabricant, owing to high rates of interest, a greater outlay for wages and a more conscientious attention to the quality of his product, is shut out of our markets, and is compelled to see the foreign substitute, made abroad under cheaper conditions by half-starved operatives, take the place of the home-made goods. The truth is that whenever an American manufacturer of desirable goods has come to grief, it has been because our markets has been glutted by over-production and domestic competition, and he has found no relief in a demand for export.

The moment anything the product of human ingenuity is wanted in this country, there are found enterprising fabricants enough to produce it. If no more is made than consumers demand the business is profitable and the industry is amply rewarded. But the one great peculiarity of American enterprise is a mad propensity to overdo anything that holds out promise of profit. If our people celebrated for ingenious inventions, they are still more remarkable for an insane desire to seize for their own advantage whatever another is found profitable. A railroad is built to connect New York with Coney Island and is found to be profitable. Before half a decade has expired two more lines are finished for a similar purpose. With our open seaway as legal to the same destination the travel will not supply those many chances of conveyance, and the stockholders suffer. This is a fair illustration of the greed with which a nearly bone in anybody's mouth is grabbed up by some other hungry fellow who will hunt hard for game in an unoccupied preserve.

The over production which has brought so many corporations and capitalists to grief is seen and acknowledged, but the remedy is sought in the wrong direction. The usual course is to combine the competitors into a trust or syndicate or pool, and to limit the output of industry. Artificial prices are thus created and often maintained to the disadvantage of consumers, and to the ultimate injury of producers themselves. The true solution of the difficulty is not a curtailment of the supply, but an enlargement of the demand. Not fewer goods to sell but more people to buy is the real need of the market.

THE TEMPERANCE STRADDLE.

The Chicago convention wound up in good orthodox fashion with a roaring farce. In the strife over candidates the convention had forgotten to insert a temperance plank in the platform, and just before the adjournment Mr. Boutelle asked leave to present a temperance resolution. This raised a tremendous hubbub, second only to the storm Bob Ingersoll stirred up by his stump speech for Gresham. But when it was read it proved to be as harmless as a bottle of birch beer or apollinaris, and the convention adopted it with a whoop. We owe our temperance Republican friends an apology for leaving it out last week. Here it is in all its beauty and completeness:

The first concern of good government is the virtue and sobriety of the people and the purity of their homes. The Republican party cordially sympathizes with all wise and well-directed efforts for the promotion of temperance and morality.

Does the party favor prohibition or license? Well, yes. Does it favor local option or non-restriction? Of course it does.

In Oct. 1886, the National Liquor Dealer's Association held a convention in Chicago and adopted the following temperance plank:

Resolved—That we recognize to its fullest extent the duties and responsibilities resting upon our citizens, and pledge ourselves to the faithful performance of every duty. That we most earnestly favor temperance, and appeal to every member of the trade to make proof of this declaration by his daily life and daily conduct of his business.

These two resolutions might be interchanged and they would serve the purpose just as well. You pays your money and you takes your choice.

Most everything in this world is full of decention. Few things are what they seem, but the results obtained for Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic far exceed all claims. It restores lost nerve force, cures dyspepsia, and all stomach, liver, kidneys and bladder troubles. It is a perfect tonic, appetiser, blood purifier, a sure cure for ague and malarial diseases. Price 50 cents. at Dr. Geo. Furguson.

A NEW PARTY ALIGNMENT.

In 1884 the Republicans were defeated by a weak and assailable candidate. They have presented an unobjectionable if not popular candidate, and will be beaten, if beaten at all, by their platform. In other words, the issue has been changed from one of candidates to one of distinctive party policies. The oft reiterated charge that the two parties were alike in everything but name is true no longer. Thanks to President Cleveland, the Democratic party has taken a positive stand on the issue of a reduction of taxation to the wants of the government, economically administered. This has forced or induced the Republicans to plant themselves squarely on the principle of taxation for protection, let the revenues be what they may from this source, with the alternative that if the revenues must be reduced it shall be done by removing the internal taxes from tobacco and whisky.

As might be expected this calls for a new party alignment, and already it is manifesting itself. Although Harrison's nomination is only three days old such former Republican journals as the Providence Journal, the Springfield Republican, the New York Times, the Evening Post, Harper's Weekly, and the New York Commercial Advertiser have planted themselves squarely on the Democratic side. Each of the above named journals acknowledges General Harrison's fitness as a candidate, and justifies its advocacy of the election of Cleveland solely on its objection to the high tariff attitude of the Republican party as expressed in the Chicago platform.

How large a following these journals will carry with them into the Democratic party it is entirely too soon to estimate. The most notable individual utterance on this subject yet made is that of Ex-Mayor Seth Low, of Brooklyn, who has already declared that he cannot support Mr. Harrison, not because the latter is not a clean and creditable candidate, but because the stand on a platform on which Mr. Low does not believe. He says the Republican party in its Chicago utterance on the tariff question stood on what seemed to him to be entirely new ground, and the tariff policy outlined in the platform is a policy in which he does not believe, and one in behalf of which he can not make a fight. That a good many other Republicans who have not yet been heard from will declare themselves of Mr. Low's way of thinking is not to be doubted.—Philadelphia Times.

SETH LOW'S REASONS FOR BOLTING.

The bolt of Ex-Mayor Low from the republican party is still the talk in political circles. Mr. Low says that he cannot conscientiously support the republican national platform, and could not unite with his party in the national campaign this fall. The announcement creates a big breeze of excitement. Mr. Low has occupied a peculiar position in Republican politics in Brooklyn. Elected twice to the mayorality he became most prominent in the councils of his party. He secured a large following among the young men, and there are hundreds who still follow his lead in political matters. Mr. Low is outspoken and takes a firm stand. In explaining his position he said:

"I think the ticket nominated at Chicago is one that ought to command the support of all those who believe in the principles of the platform adopted there. I find myself unhappily in the dilemma which I feared at the time when I made my Lincoln dinner speech, in line with my party friends, on state and local issues, but I am sorry to say completely out of line with them upon the tariff question. If there were but a side issue it would be easy to overlook the difference; but inasmuch as it is the chosen battle ground of both parties, it is not possible for us to do so. Any one who will take the trouble to read what I said at Saratoga last September in regard to the tariff, or the fuller statement which was contained in my Lincoln dinner speech, cannot fail to perceive that my convictions of what is wise policy for the nation in this matter are completely at variance with the platform just adopted by the republican party. I believe as Garfield did in a protection which leads toward free trade.

"The declaration of the Chicago platform is for a protection which works away from free trade. The chief line of changes in the present tariff to which the party commits itself are to increase duties where any articles made at home are still imported. This, it seems to me, is entirely new ground for the republican party, but whether it is or not, the policy outlined in the platform is one in which I do not believe, and on behalf of which I can make no fight. I do not desire to claim the privileges of party fellowship when I am unable to support the party on the leading issue of the moment. I therefore propose to send my resignation to the ward association in order to regain my individual relation to things.

"I have given this matter the most painstaking thought ever since the platform came into my hands and I have been able to discover no other way in which I can be true to my duty, without falling short of my party obligations. I regret to leave its fellowship. Those who know me will understand that this decision has not been reached without great pain and sincere regret. I believe in parties, and I hope the time will be short when I shall feel obliged to maintain my present position, but parties, in my mind, should be fortified against common opinions, and I can see no other course for a man except he be true to his conviction at whatever cost."

In "Godey" for July we find an unusually bright variety. "Peterson" for July begins its ninety fourth volume. Nearly half a century ago, it made itself the favorite magazine for ladies, and it still retains its hold as firmly as ever. This opening number is a great success. The steel plates and other illustrations are all of the first order of merit, and the stories and poems are equal to its artistic attractions. The short stories will be from Peterson's very best contributors, and the serials announced by Mrs. Hooper, Miss Bowman, and the author of "A Transplanted Rose" will make as brilliant a trio of novelets as any periodical can boast. No lady should fail to give this new volume of "Peterson" a trial. Terms, Two Dollars a year. Send for a sample copy. Address Peterson's Magazine, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Nervous Diseases.

There are more nervous than blood diseases. Thus, a weakness of the nerves of the brain causes headache, fits, dizziness, sleeplessness, etc.; a weakness of the nerves of the stomach causes dyspepsia, pain, wind, etc.; of the lungs, makes "weak lungs;" of the liver produces biliousness, constipation, etc.; of the womb induces irregularities, sterility, pains, etc.; of the sexual organs, impotency, etc. For all weaknesses Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine surpasses all other remedies. Trial bottle free at Baker & Hall's Drug Store.

The HERALD and Courier-Journal will be sent to Jan. 1, '89 for one dollar.

The great popularity of Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic is due to its efficiency, agreeableness and pleasant action. It promptly and thoroughly cures colds, fevers, dyspepsia, costiveness, bad breath, biles, pimples, low spirits, sick and nervous headache, ague, malaria, scrofula, rheumatism, salt rheum and all stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Fifty cents of Dr. Geo. Ferguson. It cleanses and tones up the clogged and feverish system. Acceptable to the most delicate stomach. Harmless, prompt and thorough in its action.

Purify Your Blood.

Bodily and mental health depend upon a healthy condition of the blood. The blood particularly in the spring and summer months, becomes clogged with impurities which poison it and generate disease. A harmless blood purifier is necessary to restore a healthy tone. The best purifier and tonic known is Swift's Specific (S. S. S.). Of its wonderful purifying and tonic powers we give a few testimonials.

Mr. Wm. A. Sieboid, with George P. Rowell & Co., 10 Spruce Street, New York, writes: "I feel it my duty, for the benefit of others who may be afflicted as I was, to write you this letter, which you can use in any way you choose. I suffered great pain from boils, all over my neck; I could not turn my head without acute pain. After trying all the usual remedies, and finding no relief, I used one bottle S. S. S., and very soon I was entirely relieved of my 'Job's Comforters.' Now not a sign of my affliction can be seen."

Mr. M. S. Hamlin, Winston, N. C., writes: "I use it every spring. It always builds me up, giving me appetite and digestion, and enabling me to stand the hot summer days. On using it I soon become strong of body and easy of mind."

Mr. C. E. Mitchell, West 23d St. Ferry, New York, writes: "I weighed 116 pounds when I began taking your medicine, and now 152 pounds. I would not be without S. S. S. for several times its weight in gold."

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS

WORK OF THE NATIONAL LAWMAKERS BRIEFLY STATED

A Summary of the Proceedings in the Senate and House of Representatives During the Past Six Days, Showing

Washington City.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 24.—Notice was given in the senate yesterday by Plumb of an amendment he will offer to the sundry civil bill prohibiting the purchase of convict-made goods for use at soldiers' homes. The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was passed. A veto of a private pension bill was received, but no quorum was present and so, without action thereon, the senate adjourned.

The land bill occupied the attention of the house all day. It was intended so to increase the time in which entrymen must build dwellings on their claims to six months instead of three, and without final action on the bill the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 25.—The senate yesterday agreed to house amendments to senate bills authorizing the construction of bridges at Muscatine and Clinton, Ia.; Nebraska City, Neb., and Quincy, Ills. A bill was introduced to provide for appeal on capital cases decided in the United States district court at Fort Smith, Ark. The river and harbor appropriation bill was then taken up and a large number of senate amendments agreed to. They mostly increase the sums provided for work in the east, and aggregate $1,3000,000. The senate then adjourned.

The house passed the public land bill with an amendment by Holman retaining the title of the government in all coal found on public lands. The tariff bill was then taken up and Kelley made a proposition to drop it until next session, to be passed then or not, as the election should determine. This was opposed by both Mills and Reed, and a long discussion was stopped by a demand for the regular order. A number of motions to strike from the list were negatived, among which were coal and brick other than fire brick, and then the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 26.—Several pension bills, which had been vetoed, were reported back to the senate yesterday with recommendations that they pass, the veto to the contrary notwithstanding, and Davis of Minnesota made a report on the same, the gist of which was that in vetoing these bills the president was going beyond the line of his rights and duties regarding the veto power. The army appropriation bill was reported, and then the river and harbor bill was resumed, and amendments were adopted adding $20,000 to the Ohio river appropriation, and $25,000 to that for the St. Clair flats, Mich. The bill was then laid aside, and the conference report on the diplomatic and consular bill agreed to. A joint resolution to extend the current year's appropriations for thirty days was presented and referred, after Allison had stated in effect that it would be impossible to pass the necessary appropriations by the 30th inst. The army appropriation then came up, and $500,000 was added for cannon, torpedoes, etc. Pending action on another amendment appropriating $75,000 for a gun factory at Watervliet arsenal, N. Y., the senate adjourned.

The house elected Blount of Georgia speaker pro tem during the absence of Carlisle, and then took up the tariff bill. A good deal of political debate was indulged in. The only changes made in the bill were to place German looking-glass plates on the free list and to strike therefrom plums, prunes, pulp for papermakers' use, hatters' fur not in the skin, lime, linseed, flax seed, marble, and plaster of paris when ground or calcined. A joint resolution to continue the current appropriations for thirty days was agreed to, as was the conference report on the diplomatic and consular bill, and the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 30.—A long discussion took place yesterday in the senate on the proposal in the army appropriation to appropriate for the establishment of a gun factory at Watervliet arsenal, New York, during which Gorman made a vigorous attack on the ordnance bureau, which was as vigorously defended by Hawley. The bill was laid aside without action, and the resolution to extend the current appropriations for thirty days was adopted. Then the army bill was resumed on the Watervliet amendment, but adjournment was reached without action.

The house concluded the free list section of the Mills bill, the only changes being the striking from the free list of paintings and statuary and the adding thereto of primuline. Then the clause providing that the duties provided for in the bill shall go into effect July 1 was passed over and two or three amendments offered by Republicans were rejected. The bill was then laid aside and the resolution to extend the current appropriations for thirty days agreed to, and the house took recess to 8 p. m., at which time it reassembled and passed twenty-seven private pension bills.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 2.—The river and harbor bill was the subject principally discussed in the senate Saturday. A number of amendments were agreed to, among them appropriations as follows: Mississippi river above St. Anthony's falls, $40,000; same, head of passes to mouth of Ohio, increase $500,000; Missouri river, $1,000,000; directing surveys at Rock Island, Ills., and Clinton, Ia., and also from LaSalle, Ills., to Lake Michigan, at Chicago, for a waterway 160 feet wide and 14 feet deep; also a survey from Lockport to Lake Michigan; also to locate a canal from the Illinois river at Hennepin to the Mississippi river at the mouth of Rock river. An amendment was adopted abolishing the Missouri river commission. Thirty-eight private pension bills were passed, and the senate adjourned.

The house passed the Fourth of July claims bill and then took up the Mills bill. The duty on flaxseed and linseed oil was increased to 15 cents per gallon, and that on licorice in various forms was also increased. A motion to reduce the duty on bichromate of potash was defeated. The supporters of the motion said the whole product was controlled by a trust. The duty on glazed or enameled tiles was reduced 5 per cent., and the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 3.—The senate agreed to the conference report on the legislative appropriation bill yesterday and then took up the river and harbor bill again. Most of the amendments were agreed to, including the Hennepin canal clause, but that abolishing the Missouri river commission was rejected. Once the amendments appropriates $450,000 for the purchase of the Portage Lake and Lake Superior ship canals. The bill was passed. It appropriates $22,474,586, which is $912,000 more than as passed by the house. Turpie then spoke against protection, and included in his remarks a campaign speech against Gen. Harrison for president. The senate then held an executive session and adjourned until Thursday.

The house was in charge of Anderson of Iowa all day and disposed of the conference report on the consular and diplomatic and the legislative appropriation bills. As soon as the house came to order it was moved to suspend the rules and pass the [illegible] posed thereto, and he introduced a bill to regulate railways acquired by the government under forfeiture. He demanded its reading in full, which occupied more than two hours. Then he introduced another bill, establishing a municipal code for the District, and demanded that it be read. It makes a volume of 321 pages, and as it shut out all other business the house contented to adjourn.

UNITED LABOR PARTY.

Robert H. Cowdrey Accepts the Nomination for the Presidency.

CINCINNATI, O., July 2.—The letter of acceptance of Robert H. Cowdrey, candidate of the United Labor party for the presidency, is made public. It is dated Chicago, and is addressed to William B. Ogden, chairman, and Alfred S. Houghton, secretary, of the national campaign committee. Mr. Cowdrey declares that his duty seems so clear that he can not do otherwise than accept, adding that he believes the United Labor party to be representative of the fundamental principle of equal justice to all, and that the policy it would adopt would make the constitution a declaration of living principles. He continues:

ROBERT H. COWDREY.

I know that many reforms are needed; that an oppressed and tax-burdened people appeal to us for aid; that monopolies, in ever-increasing numbers, are taking more than their just share of that which is produced; but I also know that all increase in the prosperity of the people is absorbed by the speculators in the land, and so long as this is the case it is useless to attempt to correct these evils unless we strike at the foundation on which they stand. The land reform strikes to the foundation, and for that reason is not only the best, but the most rapid means of accomplishing all these reforms. When all taxes have been taken off of the industrious, and the production of wealth is no longer punished by a fine, and when all taxes have been placed upon the rental value of the land, and the people see the good results—and understand why it should be so—then our greatest work will have been accomplished, for then it will be plain that all payments for work in every occupation depend upon the amount of food a day's labor on the land will produce; and knowing this it will be evident that all the owner of the land takes from the producer as rent must reduce the wages not only of the worker on the land, but also the wages in every other occupation.

I see no hope of reform in either of the old political parties; ours must be the work of educating the people to demand the adoption of this reform. Let us then present a solid front, our battle cry "The single tax," and press forward to the victory that awaits us.

Yours fraternally,

ROBERT H. COWDREY.

The President of Ecuador.

NEW YORK, July 2.—Antonio Flores, who was elected president of Ecuador last March, arrived in New York from France, where he was serving as minister of Ecuador. He has been negotiating treaties abroad with France, Germany, Spain, Belgium and Switzerland. The treaty with France provides for arbitration of disputes. President Flores will go to Washington and pay his compliments to President Cleveland and then he will return to Ecuador.

DON ANTONIO FLORES.

The Beauty of Mob Law.

MATTOON, Ills., July 2.—It has transpired since the lynching of W. A. Moore for alleged outrage on Mary A. Bumgardner, of Altamont, Ills., that the girl has an exceedingly bad reputation for purity, and also that she is suspected of arson. On account of the indignation of the citizens of Altamont at her and her mother's "goings on," and the suspicion of arson, she left Altamont and came to this city. Her story about Moore was contradictory and the people of this city say now, when it is too late, indignant at the lynchers, and there is talk of prosecuting the "best citizens" of Charleston who are implicated in the affair.

A monument is to be erected at Norway to commemorate her great fire. It will be made of thirteen safes that passed through that blaze but were rendered useless for the purpose originally intended.

A Grand Rapidsite is building a fiddle from material that was used in the construction of a lasting in 1734. If there is any virtue in age he ought to have a good fiddle.

Ed King, a Grand Rapidsite who is supposed to have "killed his man" at East Saginaw some twenty-four years ago and then skipped, turns out to be a wealthy resident of the City of Mexico. Of course he is "respected."

THE ITALIANS MUST GO.

Ominous Placards Posted by "Many Citizens" at Findlay, Ohio.

FINDLAY, Ohio, July 2.—Five or six hundred Italian laborers, have lately been employed here on various enterprises. The large importation of foreign labor has aroused the wrath of American working men. Several secret meetings have been held and angry speeches made. Hundreds of copies of the following notice, headed by skull and cross-bones, were thrown about the city and posted on the walls:

No Italians wanted. Notice is hereby given to the honorable council of the village of Findlay and to all contractors and sub-contractors to take some action at once in regard to Italian labor, as it must, and shall be prohibited, from working on the public works of this city. The American laborers and tax-payers in the city have become thoroughly aroused, and advise you to be warned in time and save you further trouble.

MANY CITIZENS.

It is feared that the bad feeling will soon result in mob violence, as the leaders appear to be proceeding with that intention.

McGlynn Advises the Anti-Povertyites.

NEW YORK, July 1.—There was a big turnout at the meeting of the Anti-Poverty society to hear more about the campaign against landlordism. The discussion was: "Is the Campaign Legal and Practical?" Dr. McGlynn was received with the usual outburst of applause. He said it was now time for rent payers to band together and refuse to pay more than house hire. "Let 20,000 people refuse to pay ground rent and take the course of eviction," said he. "There are only eight justice courts in New York, and it would take a long time to go through all the eviction trials. Meanwhile the people would be enjoying free rent and eventually the landlords would come to terms. Try this first in a single block," the doctor suggested, "and let us all pledge ourselves to see that no tenant is without shelter. The tenement house market would soon come down."

Charles Pinkerton's Discovery.

CLEAR WATER, Minn., July 2.—Charles Pinkerton, of the town of Corunna, twelve miles from here, in digging for a cellar came across the remains of seven persons in a good state of preservation. They were found in a kind of a mound, and were buried with their heads down. They were from seven to eight feet in height, and must have been placed there at least 200 years ago, as on top of the mound was the stump of an elm tree two feet in diameter. From the formation of the skulls they must have been of an inferior race of men. The teeth in the jawbones were mostly sound, and not like the teeth of the present race of men.

Sheridan at Fort Monroe.

FORT MONROE, July 2.—The United States steamer Swatara, with Gen. Sheridan and party on board, arrived here at 8 o'clock in the morning. A boat came ashore at 10 o'clock with a bulletin stating that the general passed a very comfortable day, his general condition appearing to it prove after reaching the Swatara. He was somewhat restless during the night, probably because of his new surroundings. His pulse is very good and his respiration easy and natural. Owing to the careful arrangements made by the commanding officer of the Swatara, the general is as comfortable as if he were in his own house.

Flack and His Boat.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 2.—Robert W. Flack, who will race through the whirlpool rapids Aug. 1 with Charles A. Percy, has arrived here, and will make a trial trip Wednesday afternoon in his peculiar craft, the Phantom. Flack thinks he can go the seven miles to Lewiston, including a considerable distance of comparatively still water, in thirty minutes. His race with Percy will be for $500. Flack seems perfectly confident of succeeding, but some old river men who saw his boat called it a death-trap.

Two Men Killed by a Train.

BRAZIL, Ind., July 2.—Mike Williams, aged 50 years, and Allen Campbell, aged 40, were run over and instantly killed by the New York east bound express on the Vandalia. They had been drinking in the city till late at night and had doubtless gone to sleep on the track. Campbell's remains bore some evidence of foul play in what appeared to be a bullet hole in the shoulder, but the evidence did not seem to warrant a post mortem examination.

Crooked Whisky Transactions.

NEWPORT, Tenn., July 2.—W. O. Harper's distillery burned and there were 550 gallons of whisky not accounted for, which Harper said were burned, but which were found buried in barrels near Harper's house. Harper claimed the whisky had been stolen and the distillery set on fire. Revenue officers will arrest Harper and J. M. Boyd, his storekeeper, besides a dozen others.

A Strike Fails for Want of Cash.

CINCINNATI, July 2.—The brass-workers' strike has been declared off. The men quit work several weeks ago because they were required to work sixty hours instead of fifty-four. Since then they have been supported by District assembly No. 48, but for want of support the strike now ends, and the strikers are compelled to apply for work at the various shops.

Annual Six Weeks' Shut-Down.

PITTSBURG, July 2.—The annual six weeks' shut-down of all the flint glass factories in the west has commenced. About forty-five factories and 3,200 men are affected. The stoppage this year will be shorter than usual, owing to the prolonged strike in the early part of the year.

The Influx at Castle Garden.

NEW YORK, July 2.—Four steamships have landed 1,500 immigrants at Castle Garden. The Etruria, from Liverpool, brought over 265, City of Rio Janeiro, from Liverpool, 512, Polaria, from Hamburg, 310, and La Gascogne, from Havre, 210.

Forest Fires in Michigan.

CRAIGVILLE, Mich., July 2.—Forest fires are raging in this vicinity. Sanford's camp, six miles south, is an great danger. Telegraphing from this place and working to save the timber lands and camps.

The interest on bondholders of corporations and other securities falling due Monday in New York city amounted to $17,000,000.

D. A. TRASK'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the imposters jeer and mock at it, it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Throat, Diphtheria, Neuralgia, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years,

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

THE HIGH SCHOOL ALUMNI

THE REGULAR ANNUAL RE-UNION SADLY DEMORALIZED BY A SHOWER.

A Fine Program Presented However A Banquet

Year

The annual reunion meetings of the Tecumseh High School Alumni Society have come to be regarded as second only in interest to the commencement exercises themselves. This year the meeting was held at the Opera House, on Friday evening, June 22d.

Two long tables were spread, along the west side of the hall and the remainder of the room was reserved for chairs to accommodate the audience. About seven o'clock a heavy shower arose, and it drizzled all the evening. The members however came drizzling along in by twos and threes, and the program was finally presented, although it was nearly nine o'clock before President A. W. Mills called the audience to order.

Prayer was offered by Rev. W. H. Babbitt, Miss Lizzie Gregg sang a fine solo, and Lyster Dewey's oration was read by Bert McNair, as Mr. Dewey himself could not be present.

Lucy J. Frain read a very creditable poem, and Mabel Hayden gave the history. Mrs. John Bailey followed with a select recitation.

The banquet followed with R. C. VanAntwerp as caterer and the small company did their best to dispose of the refreshments.

After the ice cream and strawberries had vanished, a short welcome to the class of '88 was given by A. W. Mills and a response by J. E. Tremaine. P. S. McKinnon, the toast master, then took charge of the ceremonies in his usual happy style. The following toasts and responses were given, but they were much abbreviated by reason of the lateness of the hour.

Ideals—Prof. Hammond.
Palmé Non Sine Pulvere—Mabel Hayden.
Eloquence—H. B. McNair.
Reflections—S. S. Stacy.

The committee appointed to report officers for the ensuing year, submitted the following list which was adopted.

President—Albert W. Jones.
Vice Pres.—Chas. H. Temple.
Secretary—Chas. A. Sheehan.
Treasurer—Seaton W. Anderson.
Orator—Eugene A. Wilson.
Alternate—Herbert L. McNair.
Poet—Mrs. J. J. Freeman.
Alternate—Mrs. John L. Richard.
Historian—Miss Linda L. James.
Alternate—Miss May DeAvis.
Essayist—Miss Hettie McClure.
Alternate—Miss Sharon Jones.
Toast master—Dr. Geo. B. Welch.
Executive Committee—Will H. Hayden, Miss Alice Wimple, A. W. Mills, Miss Lucy Frain.

Poem.

BY LUCY J. FRAIN.

The subject matter what to write,
I cannot quite determine,
Perhaps it may turn out a song,
Perhaps it may turn out a sermon.
But duty calls, I must obey,
Nor doubt you all will me it.
But patience, friends, I won't be long,
And faith, I have to do it.
Our Alma Mater calls to day,
And we her children gather
From far and near, to greet her here,
In spite of wind or weather.
The dear old dame, her loving heart
Would take us in its keeping,
But day by day, we daily stray
Nor heed her bitter weeping.
So here we pledge ourselves anew
Hands clasped in hands, uplifted,
To heal our Alma Mater dear,
Wherever we may have drifted.
And when the seasons roll along,
And bring the bright June weather
We'll gather round her once again,
A happy band together.
Dear friends, I would the power were mine,
To bring the old times nearer,
To revel in those happy days
When life and hope seemed dearer,
To day dull care and vain regret,
Oppress and often grieve us,
Till memory bring the by-gone days
To comfort and relieve us.
We live again as boy and girl,
We con the lessons over,
As often taught by daisy chain,
Or seeking four leaf clover.
Not always books the text revealed,
We found it in the singing
Of running brook, or flowering tree
When joy-bells soft were ringing.
We learned the different nouns and verbs,
Alas, the conjugation
I love, thou lovest, he loves, who?
Was food for meditation.
And next we learned the different states
From Maine to Matrimony,
But stopped just here—much wiser grown,
With thoughts of patrimony.
Division next our minds engaged,
Ah me, how sad and lonely,
When the dear vision far had fled
That smiled upon us only.
We dabbled in philosophy,
We reasoned, well we reasoned,
That things were not just what they seemed,
But needed to be seasoned,
That life meant work, for hand and brain,
That by the path of duty,
We only could attain the heights
Of happiness and beauty.
And then we learned that only those
Who strive with good endeavor,
Possess their soul with sweet content
Forever and forever,
Each day we learned some lesson new,
That told the same old story,
'Tis not for those who never strive,
That shines the crown of glory.
But work, work ever, day by day
With patient heart and willing,
Sow seed to bless the coming years
Thy little garden tilling.
Not all at once the deed was wrought,
Not in a day we learned it,
But years the page we had to read,
Till rightly we discerned it.
To do our work, so those who read
Might walk and never stumble
O'er barriers we have helped to build,
By deeds however humble,
To help each other day by day
A sister ever loving,
A brother striving faithfully,
To keep a another moving
In paths of duty and of right,
Just where our foot steps sounded,
Nor by way nor through thorny hedge,
But by the world surrounded.
How well we wrought, how well we taught,
The future's hire will tell us,
How much another's good we sought,
The good things that befell us.
I love the old times o'er and o'er,
I joy in memories pleasures
The days of youth our school day hours
I hold as richest treasures.
Now old grown, with many a care
And life a humdrum volume,
We scan the contents, pass along
To find the breezy column.
And if the present holds it not,
The future seems uncertain.
Dear friends, turn back to youth's bright page,
As memory draws the curtain.
And now good night, my school mates all,
I leave you, wishing ever,
That year by year, we gather here
As comes the bright June weather.

History of Classes of '80 and '81.

BY MISS MABEL HAYDEN.

At the last meeting of the Alumni, June 24, 1887, it was the misfortune of these classes to have appointed as their Historian, your humble servant.

As our candidates for Presidency invariably seem to object strongly to the honor their friends desire to confer, so she raised a feeble protest, but solely in behalf of the classes before mentioned. In looking up the career of the members, I find all save one had pedagogic desires. He had a legal turn of mind, a Daniel Webster nature, and his letter will speak for itself.

DETROIT, May 18th, 1888.

MISS MABEL HAYDEN:

Dear Miss—Yours of recent date duly received. I am one who surely does not consider it a misfortune that you are to write the history of the members of the class of '80. I only regret that in my own case the subject of the history is not more worthy of the fair historian. You ask for a brilliant autobiography. I assume that you do not mean what you say, for I know you want the biography based on facts. Of a humble life in a humble station, nothing particularly brilliant can be said. After graduating in Tecumseh in 1880, two years were spent in the University of Michigan Ann Arbor. From there I came to Detroit and began the study of the law profession in the office of the Hon. William Jennison. At the end of two months more I was admitted to the bar and have since been practicing in Detroit, where I am always ready to take most any kind of a case except a divorce suit. I was married in 1884 to Miss Maria A. Reynolds, of Tecumseh and am now the happy father of a two year old future President. I regret very much that other engagements will prevent my being in attendance at the reunion of Alumni. I suppose the local papers will give a full account of the exercises, but if they should not I wish you would give me a brief sketch of the other members of the class of '80 as I have completely lost trace of some of them.

Your's Very Truly,
JOHN B. WHELAN.

Members of the Alumni, allow me to present to you this fair school-mistress, Miss Julia Snell. An introduction tho', is unnecessary; you all know her as one of the Alumni's faithful devotees. She has been engaged in school teaching ever since her graduation, and for several years has taught in our public schools. The summer of '84 was spent in Missouri, where she went to regain her strength after a hard struggle with that dread foe, measles! I've had them, and know whereof I speak. "They are little, but Oh My!" She frequents our summer resorts, her favorite lake being—I was about to say Sand, but I don't know for Devils Lake has such a fund of memories connected with it that it ranks equally high. In addition to belonging to the alumni she is also a member of a great and only "call-them-in club" of Tecumseh, and divides her attention between this club, the alumni, and digging bait.

Minnie Jones, one of the bright lights of the class of '80 sends the following sketch.

I remained at home the first year after leaving school. The next spring taught school for the first time which I continued to do the fall and spring terms of the next year. The fall of '83 I spent with my sister in Portland. Began teaching again in the spring and have ever since, having been engaged in the Tecumseh public schools for the past three years.

Miss Luella Waring of Paw Paw, Mich., writes:

I presume you wish my history since June, 1880. It can all be stated in a very few words. I entered school that fall as a teacher and have been employed since almost constantly in that capacity. The past three years I have been in the public schools of Paw Paw; the first year holding sway over the 2d intermediate dept. and the last two attempting to fill the position of preceptress in the high school. I may say in all humility that I am each day endeavoring to better prepare myself for the great work in which I am sharing. I send kindly greetings to all members of the alumni. I remember that "a line is sufficient for remembrance," and hope this will answer your purpose.

Mr. Albert Arner greets us this wise.

LIBERAL, Kan., May 8, '88.

MISS MABEL HAYDEN:

Dear Madam—Your letter of inquiry finally reaches me to which I will answer briefly as follows: After graduating in the High School at Tecumseh, in June of 1880, I entered the class of 1884 in the University at Ann Arbor, taking as my work the engineering course. This work I pursued two years, at the close of which I entered the service of the Mississippi River Commissioner as recorder on Precise herds at Keokuk, Iowa. After three months work here I was appointed assistant engineer on a topographical party then stationed at Baton Rouge, La. Closing our work at Chicago in Aug. 1883, I returned to Michigan and taught school during the following year. In September, 1884, I returned to the University and took a course of study leading to the degree of Bachelor of Letters, which degree was conferred on me June 18th 1886. This succeeded a season of work upon our farm in Raisin during which I was captivated by the stories of the wild and woolly west, and when the corn was gathered and the wintry blasts began to blow, I set sail for on Dec 1, 1886. I married Anna Mitchell of Palmyra, who agreed for better or for worse to seek her fortune with me except for the Great American Desert. During the year 1887 I acted as resident agent for the Oak City Town Co. of Wichita, who were building a town in Seward Co. on the projected line of the Rock Island R. R. To cut the story short, the R. R. has come, misses Oak City, builds its own town whose name is Liberal, and which fates have decreed shall be the Chicago of the Southwest. I am in the real estate loan and insurance business, located on Kansas avenue two doors from Second street. I will be pleased to have any of my old friends drop in and see me; we will talk over old times and then I will sell them a few lots on which they will double their money and so forth. With regards to all the Alumni and best wishes to our common Alma Mater, I remain

Sincerely Yours,
ALBERT L. ARNER.

In answer to my inquiry Mrs. Clara Campbell Grout writes:

PAWTUCKET, R. I., May 13, 1888.

Dear Friend.—Your letter received and will give you a few points in my life since my graduation. In 1881, we moved to Chicago, and I went into a law office patent law and took testimony. I was married in 1883 and lived for a year just out of Chicago, when my husband was taken sick and we decided to visit his parents here in Pawtucket and here we have remained. We did not stay with them but went to housekeeping and have had a great deal to cloud our lives. My first baby we buried at four months, and I had one very severe sickness. Then a year ago last September my husband was taken sick and for seventeen long months, he was a most dreadful sufferer. We could do really nothing to alleviate his pain and he was very seldom free from pain, required some one with him all of the time, night and day, for a greater part of the time he was almost helpless. He was completely tired out and he passed away as a light dies out, without any struggle, just breathing farther apart and slower. His father died at my house while watching with me one night. I have one darling little girl, fourteen months old. She is a little sunbeam, transcript we call her. After my husband died I broke up and came to stay with his mother, until I know what I am going to do. Now of course you will not want to hear all this, but I write and you can write what you wish. Kind remembrances to all friends.

Your friend,
CLARA N. GROUT.

45 Cottage St.

All the members of this class are living and helping the world revolve, but of the class of '81 I regret to have to record the death of one of the trio, Mr. Martin Wilson, who entered the Normal at Ypsilanti, was soon stricken down with a fatal disease, and was brought home to be quietly laid to rest. He was a bright student and a faithful worker, and his death was a severe blow to his family and friends.

This from Miss Hettie McClue will interest all, so I will give it verbatim.

THURSDAY, June 7, 1888.

MISS MABEL HAYDEN:

I promised to give you something of my life since I left school. It can be summed up in a few words. Since I left school ten months of every year have been spent in feeding the hungry minds of the younger America, and the remaining two months in preparing wholesome food to satisfy the ravenous appetites of hungry mortals. In the line of study, I have read the four year's Chautauqua course. I have been obliged to make a careful study of economy, and now feel that I have mastered the science completely. At present, I am fast approaching that despised period in a woman's life known as old maidism, and I am calmly looking forward to the peaceful seasons of rest, when as a spinster, I am seated by my own hearth, communing with my own thoughts, with no companion save my favorite cat Tabby.

Yours, etc.,
HETTIE MCCLUE.

The next is from Mrs. Estella Miller Osgood.

MACON, May 25, 1888.

MISS HAYDEN:

Since receiving your letter I have been unable to write, but trust these few simple facts may arrive in time and aid you somewhat. "A sketch of my career since '81." Well it has been a very common one, and I can recall nothing that would interest the Tecumseh Alumni, yet such as it is I will willingly give. Upon leaving school I was very ambitious to attend Albion College, but the measles that summer left my eyes so weak, that such thoughts were given up, so my school days ended in '81, which is still a great disappointment. I commenced teaching that winter and continued four years, then married Edd. Osgood in May '86. I have made several visits and taken one pleasure trip but not very extensive, not going farther west than Douglas, on Lake Michigan, and north than Petoskey. I commenced house keeping last spring on the Daniel T. Lewis place and am devoting my time at present, to the Chautauqua course and raising poultry. Among these simple little facts leave out what you can, I wish it might be all. Hoping I have not kept you waiting.

I am sincerely yours,
ESTELLE MILLER OSGOOD.

I have given the letters this eve. to you in full, thinking it hardly fair for me to have the pleasure of hearing from each one, and not share it with the Alumni. You know letters are little visits.

The session then adjourned after singing this song, which had been composed for the occasion.

OUR ALMA MATER TRUE.

AIR—"AMERICA."

1.—Our Alma Mater true,
To night we sing of you,
Old Dame, so fair.
As fleeting years roll by,
Thy happy face we spy—
We raise our voices high,
Thy fame we share.

2.—While on this night we meet,
Low at thy feet we greet,
Our good old Dame
We sing in lofty praise
Of all thy kindly ways,
Thy fame in joyous lays
With one acclaim.

We strove, our hopes and fears
Thy care to frame,
Thy earnest, friendly care
Encouraged and cheered us all;
For nothing could appal
Our dear Old Dame.

4.—We'll raise our merry song
Our notes of praise prolong
To thee and time;
The longest that we will
We owe to thee alone,
Yes, every mother's son,
In Auld Lang Syne.

THREE BOOKS IN DUNDEE.

We paid Dundee a business call last Friday and spent three hours between trains circulating around the town. Friend White is now pleasantly situated on a farm near town and is doing finely. M. W. Goodrich is running a restaurant and lunch room and has evidently "struck his gait." His wife is a splendid cook and the two together are conducting the business very successfully.

Dr. Haines is working into a fine practice and also owns an interest in a drug store there. Between the two he is kept busy.

Gainsley seems to be getting a good start in his Dry Goods business and he regards the outlook as very favorable for working up a good trade.

We made Bro. Carr of the Reporter a short call and found him at the case in his shirt sleeves sticking type for all he was worth.

The big fire in Dundee occurred the night before and the smoke was still ascending from the ruins. As long as Dundee is provided with neither fire engine nor night watch, the town must expect an occasional calamity of this kind.

Everybody was getting ready for a big crowd and a fine time on the Fourth.

It is highly proper for a protection candidate to provide himself with a grandfather.

The best on earth can truly be said of Gregg's Glycerine Salve, which is a sure, safe and speedy cure for cuts, bruises, scalds, burns, wounds and all other sores. Will positively cure piles, tetter and all skin eruptions. Try this wonder healer. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Only 25 cents. Sold by Dr. Geo. Ferguson's.

THE GREATEST DISCOVERY

Of the nineteenth century, can truly be said of Papillon extract of flax Skin Cure. Thousands testify to its wonderful curative powers in seemingly hopeless cases of Eczema, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas and every kind of skin disease. Mr. O. P. Algier, of Hartford, Ohio, tried everything he heard of or saw recommended and suffered five years with Eczema until he found Papillon Skin Cure, which cured him. Large bottles only $1.00.

THE CELEBRATION AT SAND LAKE.

Fourth of July at Sand Lake was celebrated by an immense crowd of people who occupied the groves at Wells' and Putnam's landings, from early morning till night fall. The greater part of the crowd remained at the Sand Lake House, where the celebration program was presented. It was a model 4 th of July day as far as the weather was concerned. The sun was obscured by clouds most of the time and a cool wind came across the lake which made fine sailing for the numerous craft, and also proved very refreshing to the perspiring people on the shore. Lemonade and other cool soft drinks were swallowed by the barrel up and still the people were thirsty and called for more. Two stage loads went up from Tecumseh—22 in the first load and 14 in the second, while many drove their own horses.

The principal features of the program were a race between Ed Hayden of Sand Lake, and Wells' horse, a base ball game and a horse race, while the dance hall was occupied until the early morning hours of the 5th. The first race was a distance of 50 yards and back, and was easily won by the four legged racer. The horse running race was won by McCarbery's mustang of Ridgeway. The ball game proved to be a drawing card, although the sides were very unevenly balanced. One of the clubs expected did not put in an appearance and a nine was picked up from the crowd to play against the Tipton club. The Tipton club of course proved to be the stronger, as their opponents had never played together before. Clark Beebee, of Tecumseh, pitched for Tipton and the picked nine put in several of their best change pitchers. The game was interesting up to the sixth inning when the picked nine run out of a battery and were knocked all over the field. In the 8th inning the Tipton boys run in 15 and the game wound up with a score of 35 to 8 in their favor. During the 9th inning Wm. Daykin, the picked nine's first baseman was struck in the face while trying to catch a swift ball and retired with a smashed nose. It will not prove a serious damage to the gentleman's proboscis. We believe that was the only serious accident at the lake, although on the return trip, after several narrow escapes from capsizing on side hills (?) and reviving the fainting ladies in consequence thereof, the stage drew up about 12 o'clock in front of Cairns' farm to view the ruins of a carriage drove by Art Hubbard. Mr. Hubbard and wife and Mrs. Dan Hubbard and child were returning from the lake, and when at the place mentioned, they were overtaken by two horses racing. They turned out to one side to let them by but one of the wheels was caught and overturned them. Fortunately no one was seriously hurt. The horse was stopped after dragging them several feet and it was found that the carriage was badly demolished.

A Card.

I beg leave to extend my heartfelt thanks to my many kind friends and neighbors who so willingly assisted me in any recent affliction in the care of my beloved husband, and especially to Rev. Mr. Benton; trusting the Lord will reward all for their kindness is my sincere wish.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Did you celebrate the Fourth.

John L. Orr, was at Adrian last Sunday.

Robert Stretch, was at home a couple of days last week.

Oscar Heck has gone to Petoskey to spend the summer months.

Bert Hause is home from Ann Arbor, feeling happy over his sheep skin.

The Detroit Center is for sale. Bro. Cressy has got tired of running a paper at a loss.

Charley Whittier was at home over Sunday. He has obtained a good business situation at Jackson.

Miss Maud Eccles has returned from Chicago, where she has been visiting the past few months.

Miss. Anna Everhart of Tecumseh was the guest last Wednesday of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Brown of Adrian.

The Louisville Courier—Journal will be sent for six months for fifty cents. Hand your names in at this office.

C. A. Slayton has got the upper hand of his rheumatism and is now attending to business again. He went to Toledo yesterday.

The Detroit Weekly Tribune will be furnished from now until election for twenty five cents. Subscriptions received at this office.

Our friend Hon. G. P. Waring of Ridgeway has been honored with a place on the prohibition State ticket. And he will honor the ticket too.

A. R. Pardington is nicely situated at Brooklyn, N. Y., filling the position of apothecary at the Methodist Episcopal hospital. He likes it very much.

A. W. Simmons, had a fine time on his new Tipton race track last Saturday. There were about fifty young colts on the ground at one time in the afternoon.

Frank Potter, having completed his course at Ann Arbor, is at home for a few week's respite from work. He expects to teach school with the beginning of the fall term.

Sand Lake entertained a jolly Tecumseh party last Sunday. The season is now fairly opened and the exodus to that resort will be as large as ever.

E. H. Custer, of Monroe, is making his usual summer's visit with Lt. Elliott Gray, and will remain until he gets homesick. It is a pretty bad place to get homesick, however, at Mr. Gray's.

Geo. Smith, of Toledo, came up Saturday to attend the funeral of John Beckley, of Macon. Mr. Beckley was one of the old residents of Macon and Mr. Smith's brother-in-law. The funeral was held on Sunday and was largely attended.

John J. White of Clinton called at the Herald office last Friday on his way to Franklin to procure a nurse to take care of his sick wife. Mr. White seems to have given up all hope of his wife's recovery as she is evidently stricken with consumption.

Three teachers have been engaged during the past week to help instruct the young Tecumseh minds, next term. Miss Geneveive Kinne of Ypsilanti will teach in the B. room, Miss. Linnie E. Parker of Azalia, Ind. the primary department, and Miss. Mary R. Hosmer of Mt. Holyoke Mass. in the grammar grade.

The Tecumseh vs, Manchester second nine ball game last Friday was an extremely one sided affair, although both clubs played a fair game. The Manchester boys proved to be the strongest all round players and defeated their opponents by a score of 15 to 5. The visiting club put up Sloot and Farrell as their battery, while Beebe and Miller occupied the points for the home team.

The Commercial telegraph line, which covers a good share of northern Lenawee and is tapped by about every farm house it passes, makes itself handy in numerous ways. The following item from a Lenawee paper explains one of them: A horse owned by John Witt, which was hitched, at the store, got loose, and with the cart to which it was hitched, started on the way home, and the first John knew of it a telegraph dispatch from Erskine Wilson's informed him that it had arrived there.—Evening News

Appropriate to the Gettysburg Reunion are the poems by a Northern and a Southern soldier, Colonel Higginson and Will H. Thompson, in the July Century. Colonel Higginson's poem does not refer directly to Gettysburg, but Mr. Thompson's is a tribute by an ex-Confederate to the bravery of the Union as well as of the Confederate troops. Mr. George L. Kilmer of the Grand Army, in an article entitled "A Note of Peace," gives a carefully prepared account of the reunions of the "Blue and the Gray." A curious story by Brander Mathews, entitled "On the Battlefield," also has relation to Gettysburg.

Barnum's show will be in Adrian July 6th.

E. J. Fisher of Eaton Rapids was in town last week.

Morris Primrose of Mt. Pleasant was home over Sunday.

We have had a fine celebration yesterday and a big crowd.

Miss Allie Clever of Ann Arbor is visiting at Mrs. Wm. Tilton's.

Yee Yeun has added a new laundry machine to his household furniture.

Asa Howe's stage had a big load yesterday morning bound for Sand Lake.

Ellsworth Cairns returned from Dakota last Saturday and expects to remain several months.

Frank Snedicor has returned to Tecumseh and taken the first chair in Charley Keysor's barber shop.

Wheat is coming on much better than was anticipated a month ago. Still the crop will be below the average in this section.

Anna Harding has gone to visit her brother, Rev. W. F. Harding, of Comstock. She expects to visit Lake Michigan before she returns.

E. Tindall returned last week from his extended tour in the eastern states. He visited the principal Atlantic cities and enjoyed his trip exceedingly.

Ella Jackson left Monday morning for Richmond to attend the wedding of her friend, Miss Eva Shipman, which will take place on Thursday at five o'clock.

Ainsworth R. Spofford, the noted Libraian of Washington, is an own cousin to Mrs. W. W. Tilton of this village. His father and Mrs. Tilton's father were brothers.

Get your pocket books ready. Marshall Kyle has begun the collection of village taxes, and he will hold forth at the HERALD office on Friday of each week during the month of July.

We have received from White Smith & Co. of Chicago, a copy of Harrison's Grand March. It is a very creditable composition and ought to be popular in Republican households.

Mrs. C. M. Woodward and two daughters left Tuesday morning for the seashore, and will spend the summer on the S. E. Coast of Massachusetts. The Dr. remains home to attend to his practice.

Among the list of veterans who voted for Wm. Henry Harrison in 1840, printed in the Detroit Tribune, we notice that of E. Tindall of this village. He says it was his first vote, and he will cast another for his grandson next fall.

Workmen are repairing that miserable humbug structure in Brownville called a bridge. How much longer will tax payers submit to footing the bill for such civil engineering? It is a downright disgrace to the Village and Township and an insult to tax payers.

A merry crowd of young ladies left this morning for Sand Lake. Mame Crowell Hattie Bates and Flote Rowland started, but their horses had not celebrated the 4th, and they played havoc with the carriage, pressed chicken, cold tea, etc. A few repairs and the were "over the hill to the Putnam house."

Tecumseh was rather quiet yesterday. A few patriotic Young America's touched off a few fire crackers. Most of the stores were closed during the day, but little trade was done. Tecumseh people scattered considerably. Some went to Dundee, some to Detroit and many to the lakes.

After a struggle of several days with the grim destroyer, Hon. John J. Adam has surrendered to the inevitable. He departed this life last evening at ten o'clock. His death has been momentarily expected since Sunday and his friends were fully prepared for the event. The funeral services will be held at the family residence Friday afternoon at three o'clock.

While at Clinton the other day we met Dan Gibson and drove out to his berry farm. He is now in the midst of his strawberry harvest, having already sold eighty bushels and expecting to turn off about fifty more. His raspberry and blackberry patches will soon be in bearing, of which he has nearly ten acres. Between berries, honey and high bred fowls, Mr. Gibson is having a busy season.

Met Conklin is now closing a very successful season with the Walter A. Wood machines. He has sold more mowers this spring than ever before in one year and the harvesters have gone off as rapidly as he expected. Most of the farmers in this section who are able to buy harvesters have already provided themselves with a machine. He sold three last Tuesday and celebrated the 4th in a similar manner. The Mowers are giving excellent satisfaction wherever they have been introduced. They are light, easy running, and will work well on rough ground and in clogged grass. Several improvements have been made in the harvesters, notably that of the bundle carrier. This is a novel arrangement, but a great saving in work, and it operates like a charm. Farmers who contemplate buying a new machine this summer had better place an order with Met Conklin at once.

Harry Dunn, of Chicago, is in town.

Tecumseh was very quiet yesterday.

May Hunt, of Manchester, was in town last Saturday.

Try the HERALD for six month. Now is the accepted time—to subscribe.

Misses Hattie Conklin and Maine Haught visited friends at Ann Arbor and Saline last week.

Wool is now coming in briskly. E. H. Cook is buying for this market. The price ranges from 20 to 25 cents. Saturday is delivery day.

Our readers are indebted to Levi C. Hayden for an account of his bicycle trip from Boston to Tecumseh, which appears in to-day's paper.

Mrs. Obernaur, state missionary of the W. C. T. U. on Lumbermen's work, will address a mother's meeting at the Opera House in the afternoon of Friday, at three o'clock, July 6th, and in the evening a public meeting of gentlemen and ladies. All are cordially invited to hear her.

Commencing July 23 d, a camp meeting will be held at Devils Lake, Beardsell's landing. It will continue seven days and a rousing meeting will be held. The celebrated Wallace Jubilee Singers will furnish music. These singers were with the colored Tennessee Jubilee troupe and gave an entertainment in this village several months ago.

The Morenci Observer and the Adrian Press are still indulging in fraternal courtesies. Here is their last exchange:

S. H. Perkins will soon place the six new drinking fountains for horses, jackasses, etc., in the city. Verne Allen can then come up and take a drink with us.—Adrian Press.

Please excuse us; we are not in the habit of drinking with a jackass. Like any long-eared animal Stearns is apt to try and stray away from his natural company.—Morenci Observer.

Farmers take notice that I am selling the Milwaukee Jr. Binder. I can say without any exaggeration that it is positively the best machine in the world. It is the lightest draft and weighs only 1150 pounds. I defy any machine agent to go in on a fair trial of machines. The season is coming to a close and every farmer who wants a binder should call and see me before buying one. My office is at C. E. Williamson's egg store in Tecumseh.
G. C. POCKLINGTON.

Lenawee Junction must have presented a very fascinating appearance to a couple of Tecumseh young men last Wednesday night and Thursday morning. They had been over to hear Gilmore's band and started home with the seductive sounds of sweet music still lingering in their ears. After driving several hours they brought up at the Junction. Taking a fresh grip on the lines they started again and after making the circuit of several sections arrived at—the junction. They changed drivers, and with one of them walking and enquiring at each farm house, they finally arrived at their their destination.

THE BAND RE-UNION.

The call for a citizen's meeting to take action with the band in arranging for the band reunion was responded to by a considerable number of our citizens, who have awakened to the fact that such a reunion will discount a 4th of July celebration in drawing people to our village and the enjoyment had, to say nothing of the music. J. S. Strong was appointed to the chair and an executive committee was appointed to take matters in charge to solicit funds and to appoint sub committees to help make all the necessary arrangements for the success of the reunion. Prof. Skinner stated that the least sum of money required was $200. This would be used to pay the expense of keeping the bands while here, and the printing and advertising. No prizes were given, it being merely a reunion of the bands of Ohio and Michigan for the advancement of their mutual interests in music. About 20 bands are expected to be present. The citizens are requested to decorate their places of business and the streets, and the ladies will not be neglected, as they will be asked to furnish eatables for the occasion. The date of this reunion is August 16, and if our people take hold of the matter and give substantial aid, Tecumseh will hold the largest crowd on that day that ever walked its streets or set down to its hospitable tables. The committee that have the matter in charge, beside the regular officers of the association, is as follows: L. P. Tribou, Bert Garlinghouse R. A. Heesen, Jas. Boyd, Oscar Bills, Will Hayden, David McNair, Hudson Conkling, Prof. Skinner.

It is expected that on the evening of Aug. 16, the city band and Monroe band will give a concert at the Opera House, followed by a social hop for the benefit of the former.

A BIKE RIDE.

ALL THE WAY FROM BUNKER HILL TO THE WOLVERINE STATE ON A BICYCLE.

A Diary of a Journey from Boston to Tecumseh.

Notes and Incidents of the Trip.

If on the 4th day of June, 1888, any of you were in the vicinity of a town in the eastern part of Massachusetts called Boston, you would have heard the booming of cannons, and wondered at the cause of this fourning. If you will but listen a few minutes I will explain two good reasons, and you may decide for yourself what was the cause of the demonstration.

The first is this: The ancient and honorable artillery of Boston were to celebrate; the second—your humble servant was leaving by bicycle for a remote state (Mich.)

At 6 o'clock in the A. M. on the 4th of June there might have been seen a group of people on Sherwood st. shouting "good bye," and vigorously waving adieus to a departing bicycle and its propelling power, clothed in a suit of grey jerseys, and crowned with a helmet. The effect must have been striking, for everyone gazed as one would at Barnum's fat lady or walking skeleton. At the head of the machine, or on the handle bars, was strapped a bundle of no mean dimentions; on the backbone just above the rear wheel hung another of inconvenient diameter when vaulting into the saddle, which was the propeller's occupation. In all, a trifle over 20 lbs. of luggage was to be carried a distance of 1000 miles. When this vehicle was first put in motion it went to South Framingham, 20 miles out, without a stop. The first meal was partaken of at Northboro, 34 miles from Boston. 4 P. M. of the first day found the rider in the city of Litchburg, 59 miles out. Donning his dress uniform, after a good big supper, he sallied forth into the street, and followed the crowd that brought up at a large tent, in front of which was the red lemonade and the double jointed peanut man, and the never failing Punch and Judy. Having seen similar sights before, he wandered back and into the public library where was spent a very pleasant evening in as neat a building as there is in the state of Mass.

The next day in the broiling sun he was climbing and coasting hills, amid much scenery which was beautiful, but oh, my! At Hoosac the inhabitants told him it would take 24 hours to go over the mountains, so, as it was nearly train time he purchased a fare through the tunnel to North Adams, then pushed westward to North Petersburg, a little town in the mountains, where the night was passed.

At 7 o'clock mount, and at 11 dismount, found him in Troy, N. Y., six miles from Albany and 193 from Boston. The ride from Troy to Albany was very tough, as our rider had to battle with a strong head wind which blew into his face, the dust from innumerable it seemed to him funeral procession, their on way to the city cemetery which lies between the two places before mentioned. The night of the 4th, he had the luck to overtake a load of hay at the foot of a two mile hill, and grasping the binder pole, the ascent was accomplished with but little exertion on his part; at the same time he had a very interesting conversation with one of the men on the load, who pointed out the historical places, for he was in the region of the Cherry Valley Massacre of 1778. He procured board at the Central house, Cherry Valley, and there met a gentleman born in Hudson, Mich., and well acquainted in Tecumseh. It is needless to say this evening was an enjoyable one. The Cherry Valley Bi. boys entertained the tourist, and one escorted him out of the city the next morning. The ride of this day was very interesting, since it was in the district made famous by Fenimore Cooper. At Otsego Lake, boarding a small steamer that went to Cooperstown at the head of the lake, he had the good fortune to meet a gentleman who pointed out to him the places of interest here. Otsego Lake is about 9 miles long and from 1½ to one mile wide and is said to be the prettiest body of water in the state of N. Y. Cazenovia, on Lake Cazenovia, was the stop for the night. Here he met one of his school friends of Boston, and so had an opportunity of visiting interesting points in his town a pretty village of 2500 inhabitants. The day following was Sunday, and a warm Sunday too. His arrival in Syracuse was in time for dinner at the Vanderbilt house from whence he started at 5 P. M. for Sennett, a place the size of Franklin Center and which he reached in time to escape a thunder storm, and to attend the exercises of Children's Day. Although he had a seat as far back as possible, a stranger's presence was of as much interest as the exercises, for most of the heads seemed to face in his direction. After a good night's rest the start was made the next morning in a misty rain for Rochester. He had not gone over 20 miles in a genuine mud road when he was overtaken by a heavy shower, and in his haste to reach a farm house [illegible] a crank, and then—Well, 'twas a dilemma. On enquiring at the house which he reached in a drenched condition the NEXT railroad station which was but 4 miles walking the type. The next train was due in an hour, so he set out in the rain for the depot. If you have never enjoyed a trip by rail I'd advise you to get a bicycle, walk to Clinton some day in the wild, and shove your wheel ahead of you the entire distance. It's great sport.

At Rochester he found a store where parts of cycles were kept in stock but to his dismay they had no cranks to fit, with but one exception, and that was an inch longer than the one left on his machine. Nothing was left him but to take the mistake if he desired to ride at all. So making the purchase, 2 o'clock found the bicycle in motion again, and speeding westward. He was now on the Buffalo turnpike, and about 25 miles out of the city of Rochester. He discovered that the pike went around a little town. Well, it would not be right to miss any of the sights, so he decided to ride through the town and strike the turnpike on the other side. Riding nearly through the village it seemed to him there were two main roads, and he determined to enquire the one to take. Seeing two men conversing together he rode toward them and asked for the necessary information, and was about to mount, when one asked the starting point and destination. He seemed astonished at the undertaking I suppose, then asked if the rider knew anyone in Kalamazoo. On being answered "No, not widely acquainted there," the second gentleman inquired if the cycler knew Wm. Hayden, of Tecumseh. "Well, I guess," was the reply, "I am Wm. Hayden's son." "By jove!" exclaimed the inquirer, "you must spend the night with me, for my wife is your cousin." A very pleasant evening was passed, and our rider was glad to meet others of his own kin so he is a "stranger in a strange land."

The ride to Buffalo was accomplished the next day and the rider was greatly surprised to see, while down town the next day, his brother come up the street mounted upon a wheel. He had come through Canada, and found Canada accommodations on the average very poor, and his praise of the roads was not of the loudest, so they decided to ride back on good, old U. S. soil. The trip to Cleveland was an enjoyable one, but for one drawback, rough roads, rendered so by recent rains. At Cleveland they thought a little variation would be pleasant, so boarded the steamer "City of Cleveland," and steamed out for Detroit. The run from Detroit to Ypsilanti, a distance of 30 miles was made in 3½ hours. Here, they were met by Fred Tiffany, Al Heesen and Gustine Cummins, who were awaiting their arrival. After a big dinner at the Hawkin's House. I think the boys will back me in saying "big," I think the landlord will, they all started for old Tecumseh. At Saline a stop was made a few minutes, and they welcomed another to their ranks, who proved to be Marvin Hayden, mounted on Fan. The party left the city limits and were "stringing out" when word came down the line that they must dismount. A break down! The back bone of Gus Cummins' wheel had separated letting him off suddenly, and elected him to a walk of fourteen miles to Tecumseh! The boys took turns in rolling his wheel along and after inquiring at every house for nearly 4 miles they found a gentleman kind enough to rent them a carriage and harness. "Fan" was hitched to the rig and Augustine and his machine were safely conveyed home. All the way from Macon to Tecumseh wheelmen and equestrians met and joined the party and at last they pulled up at Van's where the "demo" was shouted and cannon fire crackers boomed.

HABITS OF TOADS.

The Ingenuity of One Poor Fellow Who Tries to Live. How a Toad Aids His Swallowing Apparatus.

In general the toad is a slow customer, but in his own line he is as quick as anybody. Indeed, it takes a quick eye to follow him.

Dr. Thomas Hill records some interesting observations upon this little appreciated but familiar door-yard neighbor:

Under a beehive in a garden at Cambridge I observed, for several successive summers, a toad watching for overloaded bees who failed to reach the threshold of the hives. No sooner did they fall to the ground than he snapped them up.

But one day I saw he had lost, by some accident, his right eye, and when he struck at a bee, he missed, his aim, and picked up dirt from one side of the bee. He wiped his mouth with his forepaw, and tried again and again.

The bee generally managed to climb to a [illegible] prominence on the ground, and fly away before the toad succeeded. The poor fellow was half-starved, and grew thin; but I observed that before the summer was ended he had learned to aim as correctly with one eye as he used to do with two, and had again recovered his plumpness. The toad's tongue usually puts things down his throat so nicely that he does not need much power of swallowing; but he occasionally needs it, and is forced to make up by another wit what is lacking in the powers of his throat.

You will observe this difficulty most frequently in his attempt to take a grasshopper or locust. A toad will often attack an object that is really too large for him to get into his mouth at all. Thus I have seen one attempt a huge caterpillar, and I have even known one to undertake a wounded hummingbird. In this case the attempt was a total failure.

But when a toad has transferred the head of a large locust to his stomach, and finds the hind legs and tail still protruding from his mouth, he usually turns to the nearest stone or fence and pushes the grasshopper's legs against the obstacle until he has rammed them into his mouth.

MAMMOTHS IN SIBERIA.

Remains of the Monstrous Beasts Yet Found in Quantities.

The existence of ivory in Siberia in a subfossil condition, but still sufficiently durable to be used for all the purposes to which recent ivory is applied, has been known since the middle ages, and formed one of the earliest exports from Siberia to China.

The very name given to the gigantic creature which produced it, mammoth or mammont—probably a corruption of behemoth—was introduced by the Arab traders, who mitigated the traffic in fossil ivory in the 16th century.

It was not, however, until the middle of the 18th century that the trade became considerable. In or about 1750, Liachof, a Russian merchant, discovered vast stores of elephant tusks and bones in the northern districts of Siberia, and especially on the islands off the mouth of the Lena, which have since borne his name. The ivory brought thence, says the traveler Wrangell, is "often as fresh and white as that from Africa."

Since Liachof's discovery it has been computed that the tusks of at least 20,000 mammoths have been exported, while an even larger number are too much decayed to be worth removal, and others are so large that they have to be sawn up on the spot where they are found.

These buried hecatombs of elephants abound throughout the frozen soil of Siberia, but they are more numerous the further we advance northward, and most plentiful of all on the islands above named, and in those termed New Siberia.

More remarkable still are the mammoth mummies, several of which have been disinterred, whole carcasses not infrequently standing upright in the frozen soil, with their flesh as fresh as if "just just taken out of an Esquimau cache or a Yakout subterranean meat safe."

The most widely known of these is that discovered in 1806 by an English botanist named Adams, and the skeleton, or such parts of it as could be recovered—for in the interval between part of it being laid bare and the information reaching Adams, wild animals had preyed on the flesh and carried off many of the bones—is now in the museum at St. Petersburg.

Carcases of the rhinoceros have also been found under similar conditions.

DUTY UNDER DIFFICULTIES.

Fooling a Sheriff and Getting Fooled.

Here are two stories of Maine sheriffs.

The first was a little Aroostook man, and one day he went with a warrant to arrest a certain farmer. He found him in the field and made known his errand.

"All right," said the farmer, a big, burly fellow, "I'm ready," and with that he lay down at full length on the ground.

"But you don't expect me to carry you, do you?" asked the sheriff.

"Certainly; you must take my body, you know."

"Will you walk till I get a team?"

"Can't say," and the upshot was that the sheriff went back without his prisoner.

The other sheriff was a Franklin county man, likewise small, but plucky. He was sent to arrest a notorious offender, a 200-pounder, and found him on the hillside. Grinning at the officer, he lay back on the grass, saying:

"If you get me you'll have to take me."

Quick as a wink the sheriff grabbed the fellow by his feet and started down hill with him as fast as he could go; and the bumping the big man got soon shook all the fun out of him, and he begged to be allowed to walk quietly by the side of the sheriff.

In a Great Hurry.

Policeman (to new resident)—"Say there! What are you trying to stuff that letter into the fire alarm box for?"

New resident (frantically dancing around the box)—"Go way! There's a fire at our house, and I'm going to send for the fire department."—Burlington Free Press.

Hand-Me-Downs.

Mrs. Merrywell—"Ah, Jennie, I understand you are going to marry a second hand husband."

Miss Jennie Cole (in consternation)—"Well, over)—"Yes, but I'm a ready made, you know, and the [illegible] won't be so bad."—Washington Critic.

THROWING UP INTRENCHMENTS.

Military Experiences of Which Little is Said in Books or out of Them.

[illegible] the process of throwing up intrenchments in the face of the enemy. The constrained position and violent labor must prove painfully monotonous and exhausting, but there is no loss without some small gain, and the [illegible] shiny shoulders on the other side are doubtless sufficient to prevent any feeling of weariness on the score of a lack of excitement.

Each soldier crawls flat on his belly as close to the enemy's lines as he dares to go, lays his gun down beside him and with his spade begins to make a hole in front of him throwing the dirt forward. If the rebel pickets are vigilant, they soon see what he is about, and begin to send him their compliments.

He has no time to pay any attention to this, however, but digs for dear life. In a few minutes he has thrown up dirt enough to protect his head, but must be [illegible] low and his legs straight behind him. A little lower, and he has a hole big enough to sit down in, when he works his feet round to the front and puts them into the hole, but does not dare yet to raise his head.

His feet now aid him in thrusting in the spade, and in a few minutes more he can rise upon his knees; then he can work faster, as he is less cramped.

Presently he stands on his feet, but never raises his head till the earth in front of him is high enough entirely to hide him from the rebels. All this has perhaps been done inside of twenty minutes.

He now breathes more freely, and begins to enlarge and shape the hole, and in an hour from the time when he began to dig he is ready to lay down his spade and take up his gun. Even then, however his feelings cannot always be of the pleasantest. There is no getting out of the hole before night.

Six or eight rods from him, on either side, is a comrade in just the same predicament, and as they lay aside their spades and begin to shoot, it brings down upon them the concentrated wrath of the rebels in their front, till the grape and canister fairly rain about them.

There they must lie in the broiling sun till darkness comes and they are relieved each by two others, who spend the night in digging right and left, to unite the excavations and complete the mine.

A TITLED MISER.

The Life of a Nobleman Who Voluntarily Left Splendid Surroundings for Squalor in Order To Save Money.

A celebrated miser was Ephraim Lopes Pereira, Baron d'Aguilar, formerly cashier to the Empress Maria Theresa of Austria. Strange to say, the early years of his life at the Austrian court were years of splendor.

Then he moved to England, married a wealthy lady and settled down. He lived in sumptuous style, kept several carriages and twenty servants. He was married twice, and after his second marriage he left his family and friends and withdrew himself from the fashionable world.

He turned farmer. At this time he was worth $1,000,000. After a year in the country his place began to be known as "Starvation Farmyard." His cattle and poultry were a mass of skin and bones, and peasants began to hoot at the Baron whenever he appeared for his mean treatment of his animals.

He always insisted on being present when the stock was being fed so that he might see that there was nothing stolen or wasted. He went about his farm clad in mean and dirty clothes, and refused to spend money to buy new ones.

After a life of selfishness and meanness he died in March, 1802, leaving property estimated at $1,100,000. His diamonds alone were worth $150,000, while his solid silver plate weighed over 700 pounds.

HYPNOTISM.

Experiments Lately Made in Spain.

At the trial of certain religious fanatics in the province of Malaga, Spain, experiments in hypnotism were made on the defendants by medical specialists. In nearly every case the defendants proved to be "good" subjects. Many of the experiments tried by the doctors were of the most extraordinary character.

One of the accused, for instance, when in the state of hypnotism, on being ordered to perspire, broke out almost instantly in a profuse state of perspiration, while another, who was ordered to ascend a high mountain, being the while in an ordinary room, behaved as if he were actually climbing, his breathing becoming difficult and his heart beating violently.

When the man was told that he had reached the summit and might rest awhile, the symptoms of exhaustion gradually disappeared. Others were pricked with long pins and gave no evidence of feeling what was being done to them.

An Honor to the Family.

"Mamma," said the debutante, "Mr. Evergreen has asked me to be his wife, and I have consented."

"Rash girl! Unnatural daughter! Do you not know that Mr. Evergreen will not have a cent until the deaths of his father and grandfather?"

"But, mamma, it is the grandfather I am going to marry."

"My darling, I always said you would be an honor to the family."—Town Topics.

What We're Coming To.

The excellent choirs in Maine churches doubtless draw many people to the service who might not otherwise attend; but few of these get so excited as an enthusiastic Gardiner man who last Sunday impulsively and heartily applauded the musicians after a selection that especially pleased him.—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

Good Things the Cheapest.

The good things in the world are the cheapest. Spring water costs less than corn whiskey; a box of cigars will buy two or three Bibles. A gallon of old brandy costs more than a barrel of flour, a full hand of poker often costs a man more than his church subscription amounts to in three years.—Burdette.

The Slangy Boy.

When the teacher asked:

"What made the Tower of Pisa lean?" the slangy boy at the foot of the class promptly responded:

Prohibition

Of the LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

By Rev. S. M. VERNON, D.D.

The most active and aggressive period ever known in temperance work renders timely the appearance of this crisp, original and vigorous volume. It is a book quite out of the beaten track, newsy and piquant, bristling with telling points, brief, clear, sprightly, candid, earnest, convincing, fair, dispassionate, full of ringing facts and bright with sterling truths.

It popularizes the burning question of "Prohibition," brings it down to every mind and conscience, marshals its many startling facts in new and surprising forms, clarifies and invigorates the logic, paints in vivid and impressive hues the monster whose daily victims but increase his hunger, and the poison of whose breath blights whatever it touches. Cloth $1.00. MORTGAGE SALE.

ON the 17th day of December, 1881, David A. Sickner and Hannah A. Sickner mortgaged to Albert Hyde Sr., all that parcel of land situate in the township of Cambridge, Lenawee county, Michigan, described as follows, to wit: Beginning at a stake one hundred and sixty-six feet south and thirty three feet west of the north east corner of the east half of the southeast quarter of section twenty eight, town five south, of range two east; running thence south sixteen rods to a stake; thence west sixteen rods to a stake; thence north eight rods to a stake; thence east four rods to a stake; thence north eight rods to south line of Street; thence east twelve rods to place of beginning, containing seven village lots as per plat of the village of [illegible] so-called, numbered [illegible] and 29. Excepting and reserving from the lands and premises above described two parcels thereof, which have been released from the lien of said mortgage. The one of which released parcels is described as a parcel of land forty-eight feet wide north and south, by twelve rods long east and west to be taken from off the north side of the lands and premises above described, and the other of said two released parcels is described as a parcel of land three rods wide north and south, by eight rods long east and west, to be taken from out the southeast corner of the lands and premises above described, which said mortgage was on the 18th day of December, 1881, recorded in the Register of Deeds' office for the county of Lenawee, Michigan, in Liber [illegible] of mortgages on page 268, and said mortgage was by a provision that in case of non-payment of any principal or interest at the time limited therefor, then after sixty days the whole amount shall become due and payable.

Default having been made in the payment of interest and principal on said mortgage for the amount of one hundred eighty five 75-100 dollars, and the same having remained unpaid for a period of more than sixty days, and by reason of such default the whole amount of principal and interest has thereby become due, amounting to the date of this notice to the sum of Four Hundred Eighty-five and 75-100 dollars, and no proceedings at law or in equity have been commenced for recovery of said sum or any part thereof.

Notice is therefore hereby given that by virtue of the power and provisions in said mortgage contained, and of the statute of the State of Michigan, in such case made and provided, the said above described land and premises will be sold at public vendue to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House in the city of Adrian, Lenawee County, Michigan, (that being the building in which the circuit court for said county of Lenawee is holden) on Friday, the 11th day of September, 1888, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage, the costs and expense of this foreclosure and sale including an attorney fee is provided by law.

Dated June 21st, 1888.

At the conclusion of the address, Governor J. W. Rusk briefly, but none the less fittingly, turned the seven monuments over to the Battlefield Memorial association, the trust being received by Governor Beaver, of Pennsylvania, ex-officio president of the Memorial association.

Gen. Lucius Fairchild, past national commander of the G. A. R.—who lost his left arm in the battle of the first day within fifty feet of where he stood—made a touching speech, referring in feeling terms to the past and of the terrible ordeal through which the Iron Brigade, in which Wisconsin had three regiments, passed on that memorable 1st of July, 1863.

Most prominent among the spectators was the well-known commander of Lee's first corps of Confederates, Maj. Gen. James Longstreet, who arrived Saturday morning and will remain throughout the exercises, one of the most pleasing episodes was the cordial greeting of Gens. Hancock and Longstreet, who came together [illegible]

SEVENTH WISCONSIN VOLS.

In the afternoon the Thirteen New Jersey monuments were dedicated east of Round Top, the exercises taking place in a grove upon Sedgwick avenue. Col. Campbell drew up the militia in two lines, and a salute was fired in honor of Governors Green and Beaver. Col. James W. Duffy, chairman of the New Jersey monument commission, presided.

Bright sunshine and a delightful breeze contributed much to the pleasure of the thousands here yesterday. Saturday's crowd was fully doubled yesterday, and the streets of the town, the various camps and the battlefield were thronged with people. The Ninth New York regiment, Col. William Seward commanding, came in at an early hour and marched to camp in front of the springs in fine style. Prominent among the commands of veterans getting here yesterday morning were those of the Excelsior brigade and the Sixty-seventh regiment. During the morning the Seventy-sixth, One Hundred and Forty-seventh, Ninty-seventh, Fifty-fourth, and One Hundred and Nineteenth New York regiments, the One Hundred and Fifty-first Pennsylvania and First New Jersey cavalry monuments were dedicated by veterans of the various commands. More than 1,000 Pennsylvania veterans reported at Camp "A. Wilson Norris," also the Union Veteran corps of Washington City, who have quarters on the southern edge of the camp. Religious services were held in the morning at the National Cemetery rostrum, Chaplain Sayers delivering the sermon. In the evening there was a dress parade in the presence of 10,000 people, followed by a sacred concert by the Frankfort band.

FIFTH WISCONSIN VOLS.

Reynolds Grove was a throng of humanity for an hour before the memorial exercises of the First Army Corps were called to order. During the gathering of the audience, Gen. Longstreet was escorted to the stand and hundreds of veterans of the blue shook hands with him. The ever crowded stand gave way without a moment's notice and suddenly let 500 occupants down several feet without any one being hurt. Gov. Beaver and his staff and a number of Confederate survivors occupied seats. Gens. Beaver and Longstreet were received with cheers. Promptly at 3 p. m. Gen. E. P. Halstead, president of the First Army Corps association, opened the exercises and introduced Bishop Newman, of Washington, who in a fervid invocation, gave thanks for the [illegible] devoted his remarks to a eulogy of the conduct of the First corps when [illegible] two-thirds of the Confederate army.

Speeches of the same tenor were made by Governor P. Smith, ex-governor of New Hampshire, Governor Armsbro, of Vermont; Gen. L. A. Grant, and others.

The Confederate Gen. James Longstreet was next introduced and received with hearty cheers. He said he was not on the field in time to witness the engagement between the First corps and the troops of the south; was glad to be present and participate in these exercises, for he saw in them the development of a sympathy such as was born in the hearts of all who know how to appreciate that feeling, and thought none knew better how to manifest these feelings than the troops of the First corps.

After speaking of the advantages of the federal position he said that here the southern army met its fate, but not for want of valor, fortitude or faith. In paying tribute to that valor he said: "Pickett's charge has not a parallel in the annals of war," and touchingly alluding to the dead said: "Such is the sacrifice sometimes demanded by the usages of war." Glancing toward Round Top: "You crowning heights are now for more pleasant gatherings; for fraternal meetings." In closing he said: "The ladies are present, God bless them, and may they dispel all allusions that may come between the people."

The band played "Dixie" before Longstreet's speech, and "Yankee Doodle" after. Then Gen. Fairchild was introduced, and started out with the sentence: "Twenty-five years have made it possible to sandwich a Confederate and a Yankee between 'Dixie' and 'Yankee Doodle.'" He did not know a better object-lesson for the young than these fraternal gatherings of these two once hostile armies.

There were several other speeches, and in the afternoon the monument of the Eighty-third New York regiment was dedicated. It is fifty-one feet high and the finest regimental monument on the field.

In the evening Bishop Newman addressed an audience of 800 in Christ's Lutheran church on the mission of the country.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 3.—Yesterday was occupied in the dedication of monuments, the meeting of corps societies, the meeting of old friends long separated by years and distance, and to renew as well as form old reunions of the blue and the gray. The Confederates have been moving on the town in greater numbers than before. Governor Gordon, of Georgia, and Governor Cullen Hughes, of Virginia, arrived yesterday. Mrs. Pickett was expected, but sent a telegram of regrets. The Robert E. Lee camp, of Richmond, 150 strong, and over 500 United veterans, from Richmond, also arrived last evening, together with a detachment of veterans from Atlanta, Ga.

ICLE IRON WORKERS.

The Wage Trouble Will Stop 100,000 from Working.

MILWAUKEE, June 30.—Francis Hinton, manager of the North Chicago rolling mills at Bay View, said last night that the works would shut down Saturday night and remain closed until the disputes were settled. The mills generally employ about 1,300 men, but nearly 400 have been idle for some time. The workmen claim that the shut down will not last more than three months, as, according to their statement the stock of manufactured iron in the market will not last longer than that time. They regard the shut-down as practically a victory for them, as they had before stated their willingness to have the mills close for three months to reduce the surplus stock in the market.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 30.—A telegram received at the Amalgamated association headquarters last evening from Akron, O., announces that the Akron Iron-Works company, employing about 500 men, has signed the Amalgamated wage scale and will keep its mills in operation. This break in the manufacturers' ranks is considered very important. Still the shut-down will involve nearly 100,000 workmen.

WOMEN APPOINTED.

An Innovation in the Educational Affairs of Illinois.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., July 2.—Governor Oglesby has made a handsome innovation in the educational affairs of the state by the appointment of Mrs. Ella P. Young, assistant superintendent of the city schools of Chicago, to fill the vacancy on the state board of education caused by the death of B. Greets, of Tamaroa, and Mrs. Mary E. Feitschans, of Springfield, to succeed Isaac Lesem, of Quincy, resigned from the same board. These are the first women ever appointed to the board of education of the state. It was known some days ago that one of the vacancies would be filled by a woman, but nobody knew that both of them would. The appointees are both well-known in educational circles in Illinois. The governor felt that one of them would be useful on the board and that probably both of them would be better. State Superintendent Edwards, in speaking about the appointments, said: "I hardly expected it. Illinois takes two steps in one day."

Yale Wins the College Race.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 30.—The thirteenth annual eight oared, four miles, straight away race between the university crews of Yale and Harvard was rowed yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock over the Thames river course from Gale's Ferry to Winthrop Point, and was won by Yale by twenty-four lengths; time, 20:10; Harvard's time, 21:14. The series of races between these two colleges now stands: Yale won seven, Harvard won six. Yale's time of 20:10 is the fastest ever make on the river. Both crews were in well nigh perfect condition.

Don't Have Legal Hangings in Kansas.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 29.—Early yesterday morning a mob at Minneapolis, Kan., took Chubb McCarthy, the murderer of Mike Dolsey, from the jail and hung him to a tree. This made four mob hangings in the state inside of twenty-four hours, the others being Wallace Mitchell, of Syracuse, and John Rosbee and Wyley Lee, two negroes, at Chetopa. No legal hangings occur in Kansas.

THE GOLDEN CALF.

LESSON II, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JULY 8.

The text of the Lesson is to be found in Ex. xxxi., 18 to Golden Text, 1 John v, 21—Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

"And Moses turned and went down from the mount." In our last lesson, we saw Moses going up into the mount, after the revelation of God to Aaron and his sons, and the seventy elders. Moses took Joshua, and leaving Aaron and the elders to tarry till they should come again, they went up into the mount and a cloud covered it. After six days God called unto Moses from the midst of the cloud and Moses went into the midst of the cloud and was there forty days. Just where he left Joshua, and what Joshua did these forty days, we are not told. But we are told that after God had given Moses the instructions concerning the tabernacle and priesthood which are recorded in chapters xxv-xxxi, He then gave him two tables of testimony, tables of stone, written with the finger of God (xxxi, 18), and said to him to go down from the mount, for the people had made a molten calf and were worshiping it. The Lord also said to Moses that He would consume the people in His wrath and make of Moses a great nation, but in answer to the intercession of Moses on behalf of the people He consented to spare them.

"The Work of God—the Writing of God." "Written with the finger of God" (Ex. xxxi, 18; Deut. ix, 10). The second set of tables which Moses received in place of these to put in the ark were also written by God, but the tables Moses hewed, and took with him up to the mount (Deut. x, 1-5). The righteousness set forth in these ten commandments is that which the holiness of God requires of those who would draw near to Him and enjoy His favor, and this is shown forth in many a type and symbol. When we remember the deep significance of each command as explained by the Lord Jesus in His sermon on the mount, and that "whosoever shall offend in one point is guilty of all" (James ii, 10), we may well exclaim, "Who, then, can be saved?" But blessed be God for Moses the intercessor who saved the people from the wrath of God, and what shall we say of the prophet like unto Moses, who not only in His life fulfilled all righteousness, but in His death became a sacrifice for our sins, and now risen from the dead becomes "the end of the law for every one that believeth" (Rom. x, 4), and because He ever liveth to make intercession. He is able to save to the utmost margin "evermore" them that come unto God by Him (Heb. vii, 25).

19. "Moses cast the tables out of his hands and brake them beneath the mount." Thus he dramatized what the people had done and were doing literally, and yet they seemed perfectly happy notwithstanding the broken law of God. How sin does blind the eyes, and stop the ears, and harden the heart. We see on every side of us today the laws of God continually broken and yet the people seem perfectly happy, and because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil." (Eccl. viii, 11). Put "Our God shall come, and shall not keep silence; a fire shall devour before Him, and it shall be very tempestuous round about Him. Now consider this, ye that forget God lest He tear you in pieces and there be none to deliver." (Ps. l, 3, 22.)

20. "The calf which they had made."—In verse 35 it is written: "They made the calf which Aaron made," and in Deut. ix, 21, Moses says: "I took your sin, the calf which ye had made." Moses burnt it, ground it to powder, strained it upon the water and made the children of Israel drink it. "They eat the fruit of their own way" (Prov. i, 31). We would suppose that after the judgment and plagues, 28-35, which came upon them because of this sin, their descendants to all generations would shudder at the mere mention of a golden calf, and yet we find the ten tribes for 150 years worshiping the golden calves which were made and set up by Jeroboam at Bethel and at Dan (1 Kings xii, 28-30); but it resulted in the destruction of the house of Jeroboam and in a captivity for the ten tribes, from which they have not yet returned. There is nothing more sure than that sin will in due time be found out and punished, and "whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." (Num. xxxii, 23; Gal. vi, 7.) The Lake of Fire is for all who are not written in the Book of Life (Rev. xx, 15), and even the works of believers are to be tried by fire, which, if they endure, shall be rewarded; but if they cannot endure the fire they shall be burned up, and the person saved yet so as by fire. (1 Cor. iii, 11-15). The only thing to do, and to do it quickly if not already done, is to stand where the fire has already fallen, even in Christ, who became sin for us (II Cor. v, 21), and so let Him live in us that He may do the works, for whatever He does will surely endure the fire and be rewarded.

21-24. Aaron tries to excuse himself and place the guilt of this sin upon the people, somewhat like Adam, who said, "the woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree and I did eat." (Gen. iii, 12.) But he was a willing partner in this sin, and his excuses were in vain. "The Lord was very angry with Aaron to have destroyed him; and I prayed for Aaron also the same time." (Deut. ix, 20.) He who rends the heart saw the guilt of Aaron in this matter, and only by the intercession of Moses was he saved from wrath. If we could see our guilt because of the sin which we allow by not rebuking it, as well as the sin we actually commit, we would be terribly afraid, and would more fully appreciate Him by whose intercession we are spared. Here are a few facts concerning sin which will surely help us if we receive them. "To him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin." (Jas. iv, 17.) "Whatsoever is not of faith is sin." (Rom. xiv, 23.) "If ye have respect to persons ye commit sin." (Jas. ii, 9.) "All unrighteousness is sin." (I John v, 17.) "The transgression of the law is sin." (I John iii, 4.) "The thought of foolishness is sin." (Prov. xxiv, 9.)

25. "The people were naked" (R. V., broken loose). It was when Adam and Eve broke loose from God that they lost their glorious clothing of light (Ps. civ, 2; Gen. i, 27), and became absolutely naked.

26. "Who is on the Lord's side?" The sons of Levi respond to this call, and 3,000 of the guilty ones fell before their swords. The whole nation was professedly on his side, but their conduct spoke differently; the whole visible church of Christ on earth professes to be "on the Lord's side," but if a similar consecration service was to be called for today in order to slay all "worshipers of the golden calf," who would stand forth with a clear conscience, and what would be the number of the slain? How many of us can say in our hearts, before God, that we are with Moses, and Joshua, and Caleb, and the sons of Levi, that we are worshiping God in spirit and in truth; that we are walking by faith, and not by sight, and that we have not in our hearts turned back to Egypt?

There are doubtless many other brands of alum baking powder besides those so far examined and named by the authorities. Most of the baking powders sold in bulk, by weight, and all sold with a gift or present, are said to be of this description.

Prof. H. A. Mott, United States Government Chemist, says: "In my opinion the use of alum as a constituent of a baking powder should be prohibited by law."

HONITON LACE.

Where and How Queen Victoria's Wedding Dress Was Made.

Honiton lace is said to have been first introduced by the Flemish, who took refuge in England to escape the persecutions of the Duke of Alva. Many Flemish names are still to be found in the neighborhood of Honiton—namely, Stocker, Murch, Maynard, Trump, etc.

In 1660 there was such a demand for it that France thought it necessary to issue a royal ordinance providing that a mark should be affixed to imported English thread lace.

Two great fires at Honiton in 1755 and 1767 gave the first great check to its production. Queen Adelaide tried to revive it after 20 years of severe depression by ordering a skirt made of sprigs, copies of natural flowers, commencing with the initials of her name, for a very debased and hideous set of patterns had come in.

This does not seem to have produced a great revival of the trade, and when Queen Victoria required her wedding lace it was found difficult to provide the workers; but eventually a dress worth $5,000 was made at the small fishing village of Beer.

The English royal family have been the most constant patrons of all Honiton lace, and have done immense good in keeping the trade alive.

A Tramp's Rustle.

A tramp called at a residence the other day begging for "some thing to eat." His clothes were very much the worse for wear, while soap and water had been economically used in preparing his toilet.

The lady of the house fixed him up a lunch in a paper and handed it to him at the door. He repaired to a grassy seat in the yard and unfolded a bundle which he had with him, and showed away in said bundle was a variety of victuals. He assorted the viands and began to store them away in the lining of his coat, biscuit, potatoes, cake, etc., until it looked as if he had on a bustle.

He had provided himself for a long tramp, and our citizens had furnished the rations.—Marietta Journal.

GRAPE CULTURE

It is fast becoming a leading business of this country, and that together with wine making requires years of practice. Mr. A. Speer, of New Jersey, one of the largest producers in the East, commenced years ago in a small way to make wine from currants, blackberries and other fruits. He soon turned his attention to grape raising and planted large vineyards of the Portugal vines from which his famous Port Grape Wine and Unfermented Grape Juice is made, which chemists and Physicians say rivals the world for its peneficial effects on weakly and aged persons.

Vines grow winding round sticks, and it is, therefore, no wonde that a man who takes too many sticks should go zigzag home.

Until the blood is cleansed of impurities, it is useless to attempt the cure of any disease. Rheumatism, which is traceable to an acid in the blood, has been cured, in numerous cases, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, external treatment being of no avail.

For twenty years I have suffered from catarrh. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm of J. Dawson & Son, which has so effectually cured my headache that I feel altogether a new man. I have recommended it to many with like good results.—M. M. Rez, D. D. S., Rochester, Ind.

WOMEN IN EVERYTHING.

The Mean Things that Sharp Alexanders Say of Them.

Popular proverbs of all nations are full of unkind allusions to women. It is rare, indeed, to find a popular saying that speaks well for her.

[illegible] "Women, wind and fortune change," say the Spaniards, while the English equivalent is "A woman's mind and April wind will change oft."

Women are talkative: "A woman's tongue wags like a lamb's tail" (English). "A woman's strength is in her tongue" (Welsh). "Women are never at a loss for words" (German). "Three women and three geese make a market" (Italian). "Foxes are all tail and women are all tongue" (French). "All women are good fighters; they would rather preach than hear mass" (Russian). "A woman's tongue is her sword and she does not let it rust" (Chinese).

They are good gabbers: "Two women and a magpie make all which you would in the market-place" (Spanish). "A woman conceals what she does not know" (English). "Women can keep a secret, but it takes a great many of them to do so" (American).

They have little logic yet their intuitions are sometimes valuable: "Women are wise of head, fools on reflection" (Italian). "Take a woman's first advice, but not her second" (French). "A woman's counsel is no great thing, but he who does not take it is a fool" (Spanish). "Summer sown corn and women's advice turn out well once in seven years" (German). "Women are watches that keep bad time" (Russian). "It is sometimes right even to obey a sensible wife" (Servian).

To the latter proverb there hangs a tale.

A Herzegovinian once asked a kadi whether a man ought to obey his wife, and was answered in the negative. Then said the Herzegovinian:

"My wife pressed me this morning to bring thee a pot of beef suet, but I refused to do what I have done well in thy judgment."

"Verily," returned the kadi, "it is some times right even to obey a sensible wife."

Women are praised sometimes and so [illegible] like a woman's answer" (English). "He that hath a wife hath enough (Welsh). "What a woman wills God wills" (Spanish). "[illegible] her will" [illegible] (Spanish). "[illegible] and greedy of revenge" (Welsh). "Women and maidens must [illegible] fancy, whether [illegible] or not" (Russian). "Poor woman would rather be [illegible] than good" (Russian).

They are untrustworthy: "Beware of a bad woman and put no trust in a good one" (Spanish). "They must be handled roughly. This [illegible] women, because the sides [illegible] are [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible]" (Russian).

Men have strong opinions about marrying: "[illegible] a wife for [illegible]" (Russian). "[illegible] a housekeeper of fools, it is no wonder that in Fez a proverbial philosopher [illegible] a straw is worth a woman" (Arabic). "[illegible] that the Germans think [illegible] are only two good women in the world, one of them is dead, and the other is not to be found." "[illegible] company." "A bag of fleas is easier to keep guard over than a woman," that the Italians say. "Women rouge that they may not blush," and "He that loseth his wife and a farthing hath a great loss of his farthing," that the Spaniards say. "There is only one bad wife, and every man thinks he has her" (the Dutch), by the way, are so surprisingly gallant as to quote the same proverb only with the word "good" substituted for "bad"; and that the proverbs of all nations are quite in warning the bachelor: "Marry in haste and repent at leisure."

Yet, after all, perhaps the wisdom of the ages is summed up in the Portuguese: "Women are superfluities when present, and missed when absent."—Lippincott's Magazine.

After the Old Greek, but Not Warranted to Catch Up.

Two cats, having stolen a piece of cheese, asked a monkey to divide it for them. The latter broke it into two parts, and under pretense of equalizing them, gnawed at them alternately until nothing was left but the rind, which, with gravity, he retained.

The cats, who had been for some time stifling their gloom, now departed, wishing the monkey a good digestion to gnaw upon his appetite, inasmuch as the cheese had been intended for cats, and was plentifully supplied with arsenic.

On hearing this, the monkey expired in great agony.

This teaches the folly of indulging in cheese, until it first ascertain whether or not it is loaded.—Jane Taylor Tuck.

Uses of Comic Journals.

Solemn lecturer.—"I have called, sir, to personally express to you my gratitude for yourself, the editor, and present you with a slight token of it, a $250 watch."

Editor on: Work.—"Eh? You have made a mistake."

"No, sir. You know I have always run pretty strong on jokes about married men kissing the serving maids when their wives weren't looking. Well, my wife got so scared about a year ago that she has since done her own housework, with much improvement to her health, great benefit to my digestion and at a saving to me of $10 a week or $500 a year. Take the watch, sir, and if you ever want a friend let me know."—Omaha World.

A Flood at Venice.

Purser (making "dinner talk")—"Glad you made up your mind to come back with us, Mr. Venu. Did you go everywhere you intended?"

Pa Venu—"Yep; didn't miss nothin'. Went all through Italy, 'n all over."

Purser—"You spent some days at Venice, of course?"

Pa Venu—"Nop. Meant to but when we got thar, thet was a flood or somethin', and the hull place was under water. Everybody goin round in boats. So we cleared right out."

Ma Venu—"We was so disappointed!"

"DEHOOFING" IN FRANCE.

Some of the Consequences of High Heels and Pointed Toes.

Since the high heel and pointed toe have had time to do their work the chiropodist is rising to as money-making a position as the American dentist. The women who operate in the public baths [illegible] attend to, and are raising their fees according to the state of the pairs of feet which they are asked to attend to.

The ordinary old fashioned treatment, requiring only the sharp knife and the pumice stone, is still a franc and a half. But for the operation known as "dehoofing" the foot, you may, with extras, get up from 10f. to 30f. There are women who are able when the fine world is in Paris to make from £10 to £15 a day.

The sensible season is even more lucrative, because feet are so much in view on the sands of marine bathing places, where it is permissible to paddle about in salt water long, after the teens have been crossed.

Be it remembered that the high-heeled boot or shoe, by throwing the whole weight of the body on the tightened-up toes, deadens them and the rest of the foot, and brings the whole member, so far as the distribution of muscular force and nervous vitality go, into much the same state as a horse's hoof.

The dehooding process begins with a warm bran or potato starch foot bath, followed by a quick plunge in cold water, after which there is shampooing with eau de Cologne, or something else, to help a reaction. Then there is a gymnastic pulling out and moving up and down and from side to side of individual toes, which reminds one of the piggy-wiggy game which nurses play with the pedal extremities of babies.

The nurse, beginning with the great toe and going on with the four others, says:

"This pig went to the market, and this pig stayed at home, and this pig ate bread and butter, and this pig ate none, and this little pig cried take me to mammy at home."

The toes are manipulated and exercised separately until each is limber and lively. The side of the foot is also entitled thus.

The pedicure pounds with both hands on a pair of [illegible] which works from side to side. Then comes more hard rubbing, this time with pommade, followed by friction with a stiff brush and instruments for drawing out stumps.

Their nails are carefully attended to. All the hard horny skin is carefully removed, and finally the sole and instep are patted [illegible].

At [illegible] you may see a pair of feet which have been manicured with nail nippers and pointed toes for equal to dancing [illegible] or taking a long walk. They look shapely and quite young.

The wonders wrought should be hidden with care and secrecy, and whether so [illegible] only with a hard or a revival [illegible].

UP IN THE WORLD.

By one of those unexpected turns of fortune which occur in America as often as anywhere a man who but half a dozen years ago was a hod carrier has become comparatively wealthy.

This change of financial circumstances has had the usual effect upon the ex-hod-carrier's wife. She has, notwithstanding an inner disability to read, affected a fine literary taste which she ostentatiously announces whenever possible.

Calling upon a lady whom she has been trying to make herself acquainted with she picked up a book from the table, and innocent of any knowledge that it was a copy of the Bible, asked the loan of it for a little time, as "she had not the book in her library." The lady readily consented.

After keeping it about a fortnight her visitor returned the volume with profuse thanks.

"How did you like it?" was asked.

"Very well, indeed; but I knew how it would turn out before I was half through. They got married after all."—Albany Journal.

TESTING HIS QUALITY.

The Way in Which a Shrewd Old Lady Circumvented Her Selfish Nephew.

The story is told in Boston of a young spendthrift who hoped to inherit the wealth of a certain aged but shrewd maiden aunt.

She had helped him out of more than one hole, and when he went to her the other day with a long face and an air of penitence she knew what it meant.

"Been gambling again, eh?" she said. "Well, I'm willing to pay your gambling debts again on one condition. You must marry, and I've got just the wife for you."

"Who is she?" asked the nephew.

"My nurse. She's 40 years old, strong, able to take care of you, and, if you marry her, I'll do something handsome for you."

The upshot of the talk was that young spendthrift agreed to marry the woman if all his debts were paid and an income of $6,000 a year guaranteed to him.

Then the old aunt invited another nephew, No. 1's rival, to dinner, told him of the compact, and said that she had made the proposal merely as a test, and that she should refuse to receive in her house a man who would marry a servant for money.

Not What He Expected.

"Darling," said he, tenderly, "I have made up my mind to ask you—to ask you—"

"Yes," she whispered breathlessly.

"To ask you to become my wife. I know, dearest, it is bold, it is presumptuous for me to do so. You are so much superior to me. I am, I feel, unworthy of you, but—"

"Say no more, John. I'm yours. You may be unworthy of me, but—"

"But what, dearest?"

"Half a loaf is better than no bread."

One Cause of Headache.

A physician analyzed a black band worn by a patient suffering from headache and found three grains of lead. He concludes that many headaches are due to the absorption of lead from the hat band.—Medical Bulletin.

Four Hundred Per Cent.

WHAT MAKES AN ACCOMPANIST.

It requires neither a very good nor a very bad musician to make a good accompanist, according to a well-known authority on the subject. The former is [illegible] degree of passionate [illegible] sympathetic a follower of the divine art to feel that there is necessary than a difficult and inaccurate dabbling with the keyboard.

What really is an essential to one who would become a fine accompanist in every sense of the word is a musical, intuitive sympathy. If the singer be not followed, in all the vagaries, the possessor of a voice whether good, bad or indifferent, finding [illegible] in the effect must be a marring one.

It is not necessary in order to be able to play the songs chiefly in vogue at the present day, that the performer should have what is understood by a thorough musical education. Hours of practicing of scales and chords, months of study at some foreign conservatoire, and a disbursement of a fortune on lessons with some celebrated professor cannot achieve what a quick eye, a quicker ear, and a total temporary suppression of self can in the art of playing accompaniments.

Society has long since tabooed the idea of relying solely on amateurs for its musical entertainment, and in proportion to the excellence of the vocal music now heard in drawing rooms is its piano accompaniment.

It stands to reason that a hostess will not engage professional singers for her "at homes" and after-dinner parties without also providing them with a professional pianist; and it is quite possible for an intelligent, lady-like girl to earn a very comfortable addition to her income by going out in the capacity of professional accompanist without once putting her foot on a platform, or possessing any extraordinary amount of musical talent.

DESTROYING CRICKETS.

Two Ways Employed in Their Wholesale Destruction.

Accounts published of the devastation caused by crickets in Algeria show that the insects resemble, but are not identical with either locusts or grasshoppers. They spring like grasshoppers, but have a more rapid and sustained flight. They form clouds, which shut out the light of the sun.

When they alight on the ground they destroy every trace of vegetation. They sometimes fall exhausted on the ground in such numbers as to cover it with a layer of dead bodies, from which pestilential exhalations arise.

The method still employed to check the evil in the African possessions of France is the old and expensive one of digging long trenches at a right angle to the advancing swarms, and placing on the most distant side a sort of fence, formed by a web of cloth. The advancing insects strike against the cloth, fall into the pit, and are there covered with lime or mold.

It was recently stated that the English authorities in Cyprus had traced the locusts in that island to their breeding-places, and had there to a great extent succeeded in destroying them in germ, before they became developed into the destructive swarms which periodically devastated that island.

As yet the French do not appear to have introduced this method into Algeria.

OUR PURITAN ANCESTORS.

Their Harsh Views on the Subject of Men and Women's Attire.

For example, the wife of Mr. Johnson, the pastor at Amsterdam, gave offense because, having formerly been a rich merchant's wife, "she wore such apparel as she had been formerly used to, which were neither excessive nor immodest, for their chiefest exceptions were against her wearing of some whalebone in the bodice and sleeves of her gown, cork shoes, and other such like things as the citizens of her rank then used to wear. And although, for offense sake, she and he were willing to reform the fashions of them so far as might be without spoiling of their garments, yet it would not content them except they came full up to their sizes."

The Governor gives another instance.

In England a godly man, long imprisoned for his religion, is released, and goes to see an old woman who has been very kind to him. She "came up to him and felt of his band (for her eyes were dim with age), and perceiving it was something stiffened with starch, she was much displeased and reproved him very sharply, fearing God would not prosper his journey. Yet the man was a plain countryman, clad in gray russet, without either welt or guard (as the proverb is), and the band he wore worth scarce threepence, made of their own homespinning, and he was godly and humble as he was plain."

Writing in 1648, the Governor says:

"What would such professors, if they were now living, say to the excess of our times?"

A CHILD ON DEATH.

Skepticism in the Mouth of Babes and Sucklings.

I suppose every child finds death, on first seeing or hearing of it, a fascinating puzzle.

The little boy was listening to their talking about somebody who was dying.

"What is dying?" he asked.

"The soul leaves the body, my child."

"And where does it go?"

"Up into the skies."

The sick woman died, and the boy heard of it.

"She ain't dead yet," he said.

"Yes, child; she died at 6 o'clock."

"No, she didn't. She wasn't dead when I came in."

"What do you mean?"

"'Cos I watched, an' I didn't see no soul go up into the skies at all."

No Wonder.

Visitor—"What has become of your living skeleton?"

Dime Museum Man—"Ah! he is dead, poor fellow. Drunk himself to death."

V.—"Good gracious!"

D. M. M.—"Yes, he married the two-headed woman and it took all his salary and hers to keep her in bonnets. So he took to drink."

No Better Reason.

Mistress (to servant)—"I want you to do your best to-day, Bridget, and have everything pat for to-night's dinner."

Bridget—"Shure an' I will, mum, fer it's Pat himself wat'll be here this blissed avenin'."—Texas Siftings.

AT THE NEW YORK MORGUE.

A Grim and Ghastly Tale.

"Now, mister, I'm just tell you somethin'," said one of the officials.

"I used to drink considerable more 'n I do now (some years ago), and one night I was comfortably fixed and woke up from a nap. I heard a noise—I wasn't rats; we [illegible] and [illegible] the place; they couldn't come any more. Besides, I knowed I wasn't rats. It made such a noise.

"So I grabbed my night stick, opened the door and went in. For a minit everything seemed all quiet enough. 'Twas kinder dark, but I could see that all the stiffs were all right, just as they was when I left 'em.

"But all of a sudden I see somethin' a movin'. It looked like a still about man over yonder in the corner against the wall. I knew I'd been a boozing in considerable whiskey along in the evenin', and, thinks I to myself, I guess I said out loud to myself, 'Sam, you're drunk!' and I reckon you've got 'em—snakes—bugs, and so forth.'

"Well, I rubbed my exes and scratched my head; then, I looked again—more keerful and pertickler like—and, by golly! sure pop—no mistake, I did see somethin'. I was just full enough to be skeered a bit, but, dare-devil like, I got it into my muddled brain that one of them 'stiffs' had kinder come to and was monkeyin' round when he had ought to lay down quiet. So, sez I:

"'Hello, there! What are you doin' there? Do you belong here?'

"'Oh, yes! That's all right,' says he, kinder independent like.

"That riled me to think he should be so cheeky; so says I:

"'Well, you go back and lie down in your own place and not be foolin' around disturbin' other folks. D'ye hear?'

"But instead of layin' down he came toward the door, and I went for him.

"'Let me out,' he yelled.

"'Not by a gol darned sight,' says I. 'You just go back and lie down. I'm responsible for every one that's put in here.'

"He grabbed me and I whacked him until he yelled bloody murder.

"'Shut up,' says I, or I'll club the head off of yer. Ain't you 'shamed to raise such a rumpus this time of night. Besides, what'll the neighbors think? Thunder!'

"By this time I'd licked him, so he calculated 'twas best to give in. So I laid him down on a slab, covered him over and sez he was quiet I locked the door on him and taished my stick.

"When the head keeper come in the morning and went inside, his eyes bunged out and his hair riz up like a porkepine. Why? Gosh! one of the bodies on the slab in the far corner was snoring like a trooper. Then we counted up the 'stiffs,' and found there was one extra.

"So I told the whole affair, and the upshot was that we found out that a drunken tramp, not knowing the place, had sneaked in to take a sleep, and sure enough I made him comfortable, after all."

A BIG SNAKE AT DINNER.

Crude Rat a Favorite Dish, but Chicken Preferred.

It is not everyone who has seen a python take a meal. It is usually averse to dead food; but it is partial to a live rabbit or a chicken or a guinea pig or by preference a rat.

The python seems to know that the rat will try to escape, and he gives it no time or quarter. With a rapidity that can hardly be conceived he seizes the rat with his mouth and the fatal coil passes around the creature, squeezing all the life out of it and reducing the body to the form of elongated sausage, which the snake lubricates with his own slime and swallows entire.

If a fowl is put into a python's cage the snake sometimes seems to take no notice, and the frightened bird, finding that no harm comes to it, begins to ruffle its feathers and to peck about, occasionally trying its beak on the snake's skin. But after a while the end of the python's tail may be seen to quiver with a strange emotion, while the small, black, beady eye is fixed upon the fowl.

Suddenly there is a convulsion. The snake has moved and the fowl has disappeared, and can only be discovered by the end of a feather or two protruding from the coils in the python's neck, which have crushed the bird's life out.

In its natural state the python will catch a deer or wild pig and crush it in the powerful folds of its neck.

There is a well authenticated story of a large python having caught two wild sucking pigs simultaneously, crushing both with the same coil of its neck.

In the case of a python which was said to have been killed by the horns of the buck it had swallowed, the snake must have been able to break all the bones of the body, but the stag's horns were probably too sharp and pointed to be easily crushed, and the snake rashly took the chance of digesting them in its stomach.

No stories of a python killing a man ever came to my knowledge, but one of the keepers at the Calcutta Zoological Garden had his arm much injured one morning by a python coiling itself on it and squeezing it severely before the man could be rescued.—Longman's Magazine.

A Boy's Reasoning.

A small boy who had happened to bruise his leg said to his mother:

"Oh, mamma, how awfully it must hurt to be a colored man."

"Hurt, my dear? Why, what do you mean?"

"Why, don't you know I tumbled down this morning and made that black spot on my leg, and it's just as sore as it can be all the time."

Some one has got up an alphabet of precious stones as follows:

Amethyst, beryl, chrysoberyl, diamond, emerald, feldspar, garnet, hyacinth, idocrase, kyanite (more commonly cyanite, a blue mineral), lyncs-sapphire, milk-opal, natrolite, opal, pyrope, quartz, ruby, sapphire, topaz, uvasite, vesuvianite (a species of garnet), water sapphire, xanthite, zircon, (a Cingalese stone).

A Speaking Likeness Undesirable.

Artist—"Yes, sir, I can enlarge this photograph and give you a speaking likeness."

Widower (whose knowledge of art terms is limited, but who has a very vivid remembrance of deceased)—"A speaking likeness! I would like the portrait, but—but I'm—don't care to have it talk much."—Life.

Now, after what may be the ills you have from indigestion, a dose of Ayer's Cathartic [illegible] Try them once and be assured; they have much worse dyspeptics cured. You'll find them nice and simply worth the price.

When the ship goes all over—especially when she goes down at sea.

False happiness renders men stern and proud, and that happiness is never communicated. True happiness renders them kind and sensible, and that happiness is always shared.

"Think of a Family

having the habit of daily converse with all the knowledge that is old enough to get into books"—your family!

You can bring that about, if you want to. Possibly some father or mother may read this, to whom it isn't true; but we doubt it.

Consider what it means. It means that you have a Cyclopedia in your living room, your evening family-room, the handiest place to get at when you want it; and when a subject comes up that one of the family wants to know more of, you turn to it in your Cyclopedia, just as you turn to a word in your dictionary.

This set of books can be the means of constant growth in knowledge, in use of the mind, in the habit of seeking light on whatever is dark, for you and your family, if you will have it so. Or you can neglect it as many neglect their dictionaries. All we said was that you have your choice.

You are thinking, "Can I get it?" If you really want it, the very fact that you want it almost certainly puts it within your reach. We should like to see an exception or hear of one. We don't believe there is any.

If you desire the end, let us hear from you. You shall know the means.

The International Cyclopedia is one for you. Latest, most comprehensive, briefest, cheapest. (These words lean on one another a little.)

Anna Mauch of Adrian visited Lou Smith several days last week.

Professors Hammond of Tecumseh and Hathaway of the Valley Seminary, were in the village Tuesday.

Miss Susie Osgood, who has been staying at Richard Clarkson's for the past two years, teaching school in that vicinity, took the evening train here Monday for Chicago, where she will visit cousins a short time and then leave for Astoria, Oregon, for indefinite stay with a brother who lives there.

We, in behalf of the young friends in the village, extend through the HERALD our congratulations to Miss Eva Shipman of Richmond, who was united in marriage to Mr. H. P Shayne of Bancroft, at the home of the bride on the 5th inst.

The ice cream lawn social given by the Ladies of the W. C. T. U. Tuesday evening was a success, socially as well as financially. The attendance was far beyond what was expected considering the busy time of the season. The W. C. T. U. quartette choir furnished some music. The Britton Cornet Band came up and furnished some fine selections. They took the ladies of the Union by surprise, as they were not expected until they appeared on the ground in full uniform. The contest by the ladies was awarded as follows: Miss Ella Pattison sawed the straightest, and Misses Flote and Lou Smith drove the nail the straighest. The ladies were so unusually timid at showing their skill that the boreing of an inch hole was dispensed with, owing to the late hour.

Mrs. Emma Obenauer, who has charge of the W. C. T. U. work among lumbermen and miners, will address two meetings at Cottage Hall, on Saturday, July 14, one at 3 P.M. exclusively for ladies to which all of that persuation are invited; the other at 7:30 P.M. to which the public are all invited. On Sunday evening, the 15th, she will address the people of Britton at the Christian church.

CON MUSIC.

Dr. Morden is spending a week in Canada visiting his mother.

Linda Hall of Tecumseh is visiting her friends, Alta and Ida Hendershot.

Della Thomas has gone to Grand Rapids to spend the remainder of the summer with her brother, George Thomas.

Rev. J. A. DeSpelder of Orange City, passed through here on Saturday last; we understand he occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian Church in Tecumseh Sunday morning.

Mrs. Wm. Biddle was taken suddenly ill on Wednesday evening last with heart trouble. Dr. Hendershot was called to attend the case.

An ice cream festival for the Sunday school in the afternoon and fireworks in the evening was the order of the day here on the 4th.

CLINTON CLIPPINGS.

Sol Brown assumed the ermine July 24, and is once again Justice of the peace.

Will Sherwood has moved into the Howell house, and Isaac Halpin into his own house vacated by Sherwood.

John Gregory, of Adrian was in town Tuesday, as was James Montague of Tecumseh.

E. R. Smith returned home from Rochester, N. Y., Tuesday night.

Libbie Jacobs is spending the week with friends in Freedom.

Earl McCollum, son of Wm. McCollum, died Wednesday morning after a long illness, aged 26 years. Funeral at the house Thursday P.M.

Mrs. E. Ogden, while picking cherries Tuesday, lost her balance and fell from the ladder, breaking both arms above the wrist. She is as comfortable as possible.

Last Sunday the M. E. S. S. visited the Congregational school in a body and joined in the exercises. A happy occasion.

Mabel Cooper, of Toledo, is spending the vacation at her uncle's, A. C. Brown's.

Geo. Waterhouse has resigned his position in the woolen mill, and will attend school at Flint. Mel Coffin has taken the position vacated.

Don Palmer has broken ground for his new residence.

P. Jacobs presented his bonds at a special meeting of the board Friday night, which were accepted. We now have two licensed saloons.

Alonzo Clark writes that on the morning of July 5th, the extensive Chemical Labratory of Chapman, Green & Co., of Chicago, burned to the ground, causing a great loss as it was very lightly insured. It was evidently set on fire. Mr. Clark and son-in-law C. S. Baker, were largely interested in the business.

Rev Joseph St. John was here last week and has gone to Mackinac Island for [illegible] weeks vacation.

[illegible]les Chandler and children [illegible]ver from Saline for a few days [illegible]uesday. She left Fred and took [illegible] back with her.

[illegible] Kishpaugh visited Adrian Tuesday.

Jas. Hause, Oly Sinclair, Frank Lancaster, C. D. Keyes, John Hause, John Martiny, S. F. Marsteller, W. R. Muir, E. Slinger and Geo. Belding attended Kossuth Mead's funeral at Tecumseh last Tuesday.

Carl Burton came home Monday for a little visit before the theatrical season begins; he was accompanied by his aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Wood and daughter, Mrs. Lillie Langdon, of Chicago.

Doc. J. L. Tuttle and family are spending the week at Whitmore Lake.

Mrs. Jarrett Walker and Clyde Marsteller are visiting friends in Scotch Ridge, Ohio.

Eugene Palmer drove over to Ypsilanti, Sunday with Ed. Hutchinson who will be treated at the Sanitarium. They have strong hopes for his recovery.

David Hamilton was here Tuesday, it being pay day at the woolen mill.

Susie Nase Fisk of Detroit, is visiting her people.

Mrs. J. J. Hickey of Harrison, was summond to the bedside of her sister, Mrs. J. J. White, who is very low and liable to drop away any moment.

Ben C. Ellis arrived in town from Carson City Tuesday night for a little visit.

Mrs. A. Roff visited Jackson friends from Friday until Monday.

Miss Mary Dolan, of Wyandotte, visited Mrs. Ella G. Rose last week.

Mrs. John T. Clark and children, are spending the week with her mother in Blissfield.

Master Charlie Freese has recovered from the measles, which kept him housed for some time.

Miss Mary Fitzgerald is visiting her uncle, Md. Wood and wife at Mecosta, this state.

Blanche Smith returned Monday from a visit with Saline friends, bringing her friend, Vesta Mills with her.

Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, of Napoleon, is visiting at J. O. Fitzgerald's.

Mrs. Will Muir, children and Mrs. Stanchfield, visited Ray Vest's family, in Saline township this week.

Mrs. J. S. Kies and Will's family of Elkhart, Ind., are spending some time at Sand Lake.

Crowel Eddy had a valuable colt die a few days ago.

The inestimable value of Ayer's Sarsaparilla as a blood-purifier should be known to every wife and mother. It corrects irregularities, gives tone and strength to the vital organs, and cleanses the system of all impurities. The best family medicine.

SCIENCE A SUPPORTER OF RELIGION.

Oration by Lyster H. Dewey read at the Last Reunion of the Tecumseh High School Alumni.

MR CHAIRMAN, AND LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

The oration which is to be delivered before your honorable body to-night has been the subject of many vicissitudes. The honor of designation as orator of the occasion, was bestowed upon me, and Mr. Lyster H. Dewey was named as alternate. But being situated so that my ability to be present was dependent on the caprice of others, it was impossible for me to promise definitely to perform the pleasant task, and I so notified Mr. Dewey. He prepared his effort, and at the last moment was called away on an important scientific expedition to Northern Michigan, which has prevented his attending this auspicious gathering. Accordingly it becomes my pleasure to read the paper which he has prepared and sent to me.

H. L. McNAIR.

A little more than two hundred years ago, there occurred in Rome a scene that will ever be memorable in history as evidence of the ignorance and bigotry of the times. A man ripe in years and in knowledge, kneeling before a priest of the Romish church, is forced to deny a fact that he has proved to a certainty. But "the world does move for all that." Galileo was right and to-day people look with a kind of horror upon the bigotry of his persecutors. Has the world changed so much in all respects in two centuries? Is every new principle of science now accepted as true as soon as it is proved by the scientists? No, there is the same scornful bigotry today that Galileo had to face. Every new principle has to pass the testing and refining crucible of proof against opposition before being accepted by scientists, and even then it may be long before it can gain the credence of popular opinion. One of the chief causes of this opposition to the truths of science is the fear of materialism. If science will explain away one after another of the theories held to be almost sacred, it is feared that the very foundations of religion will be endangered. If Copernicus asserts that the earth is not the center of the universe, if Newton declares that the planets and heavenly bodies are not held in place by a supernatural power, if Cuvier proves that the earth is much more than six thousand years old; will not some one, improving upon the arguments of Tyndall establish the fact that there is no God? In view of the strong tendency to materialism it is not to be wondered at that many good and thoughtful men earnestly oppose further advancements in science. But they need not fear the researches of true science. That there was a first cause, the Creator of the universe, is a fact too firmly established to be overthrown by any scientific research even if seekers after truth desired it. On the contrary as new truths are discovered they but confirm the existence of a supreme being, and reveal his works more clearly to the human understanding.

Throughout the history of the world moral advancement has gone hand in hand with intellectual advancement. As new truths dawn upon the human intellect, and new light is thrown upon nature's laws, man sees more and more his true position in this great universe. Living less within himself, he begins to appreciate the interdependence of each upon the other and the dependence of all upon one supreme Ruler to form the grand harmonious whole.

"All are but parts of one stupendous whole Whose body nature is and God the soul."

The mind of man is not a structure ready built that can not grow or change except at the will of the builder. It is like a tree that must ever grow and increase until death and decay destroys its vitality For this growth the mind must select, appropriate and assimilate materials. Some may select true principles, others false ideas; some may accept established facts while others hold to superstitious theories. The one will tend to grow to a strong courageous manhood while the other will produce a weak and fearful existence. Superstition, which in the days of Cotton Mather, made one of the darkest blots on American history, gives way before the onward march of science, as the shadows of morning vanish before the sun's illuminating beams. "Truth is mighty and will prevail." If the study of science makes a doubter, it also makes a truth seeker, and truth sought in the spirit of truth need never be suspected as a producer of evil. For proof of this we need only to look at the effects of great advancements in science in the past. When it was found that the sun and not the earth was the center of our system and that our solar system was only one among many which go to make up the universe, did these facts dwarf the mind of man or in any way impair his moral nature? Quite the opposite. Each new truth though it may place man in a more humble and lowly position than he had chosen for himself, yet reminds him of the greater power and omniscience of his Creator. As each narrow doctrine is replaced by a broad general truth and man is forced to admit that the great universe was not created merely for the human inhabitants of this little sphere which we call earth, his narrow minded selfishness is forced to give way to generosity. He must give up some cherished thoughts and some high aspirations, but he comes forth a wiser and nobler man in being able to conceive more of the divine plan of creation. His perceptions are trained so that he can better appreciate the [illegible] understand and better fill his own station in life.

A study of the natural sciences leads to an observation and study of the surrounding objects of nature. And in these is attractive one will "Find tongues in trees, books in running brooks, Sermons in stones and good in everything."

He who observes the plants and animals which surround him everyday, cannot help noticing in them ingenious contrivances and harmonious beauties which will awaken his interest. His better nature will be aroused and life itself will have new pleasures added.

"The effects first seen, he tries to seek the cause,
And from nature's beauties looks to nature's laws."

These laws, too grand, too harmonious for any human understanding, too unchangeable to be the sport of chance, admit of but one explanation. Their author is one supreme Being, all wise, all powerful. He whom we worship. God.

L. H. DEWEY.

Peter Henderson is a patriot who loves his country, and especially his country's capital, partly, perhaps, because it has so many beautiful trees—120 miles of them in a double row—and therefore he has contributed to Harper's Magazine for July an interesting article about this charming feature of Washington. Incidentally Mr Henderson throws out some points about tree culture, which should serve to whet the popular appetite for General Brisbin's book on "Trees and Tree Planting" just issued by the Harpers. The table giving the names of the trees in Washington is a noteworthy feature of the article.

The Art Amateur for July contains a pleasing colored study of "Ferns" a very fine one of "Poppies" in black and white, a portrait study by Ellen Welby, a striking decorative figure ("Hebe"), numerous designs for wood carving, china painting and embroidery, and a page of monograms in "S." The Summer student of art will find especially valuable the articles on "The Science of Landscape—Rocks, Ground and Trees," "Landscape Painting in Water Colors" "Sketching from Nature." Other topics practically treated are portrait posing, china painting, wood carving, decoration of table linen, summer embroidery and lectern hangings. Price 35 cents. Montegue Marks, Publisher, 23 Union Square, N. Y.

"Adela; or Love at Lake Manitou," has been received from the music printer, at Philadelphia, and copies may now be had of the publisher, Ollie Hunt, price 40 cents. This is essentially a home production, and every singer and musician in the county ought to possess a copy. The title page, designed by Miss Mattie Kelly, is one of the prettiest that ever prefaced a sheet of music, and does credit to her ingenuity and art skill. The piano accompaniment, by Miss Eva Kirk, is brilliant and effective, while the words and melody, both composed by G. W. Larwill, of The Times, must be heard to be appreciated. The melody is of easy compass, the chorus arranged for quartette very striking, and the mechanical execution of the work has never been surpassed by anything in the state.—Adrian Times.

An exquisite portrait of Helen Keller, the wonderful little deaf and dumb blind girl of Alabama, is the frontispiece of July Wide Awake; and Sallie Joy White, in an illustrated article, "The Story of Helen Keller," gives details about this marvelous child that will interest old and young, school children and metaphysicians. Another very delightful piece of biography is the Monroe chapter in "The Children of the White House," the fine Presidential series which has been so long preparing for Wide Awake. Very little has been given to the public concerning President Monroe's two beautiful daughters, Eliza and Maria, but for this paper the most interesting matter has been unearthed. Eliza was educated in Paris at Madame Campan's famous school, where her intimate schoolmate was the future Queen of Holland, Hortense Beauharnais, the daughter of Josephine, and the school life is most interesting reading; and as Mrs. Hay, in the White House, this same Eliza started most of the vexing questions in Washington etiquette—the entire chapter is piquant reading for every body.

Cold, cough, coffin is what philosophers term "a logical sequence." One is very liable to follow the other, but by curing the cold with a dose of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, the cough will be stopped and the coffin not needed—just at present.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY—JULY 12

What's the matter with Burt for governor? He's all right.

The President's wife is an enthusiastic tennis player, and she plays a first class game too.

Why is it that strikes most frequently occur in those industries which are the most highly protected?

Gen Harrison was a brave soldier. Very true, and so was Gen. Hancock, but that is not the issue this year.

Senator Thurman says of the Republican ticket: "It is an able or disabled ticket, but is no stronger than the party and hence cannot be elected."

The present financial policy of the Republican party can be summed up in these few words: Piledriver taxes and squander the surplus.

Thurston, the temporary President of the Chicago convention, is a railroad attorney and Estes, the permanent President, is the second largest wine producer in the United States.

The boodle controversy between Sherman and Alger is becoming quite interesting. A good many people entertain a faint suspicion that both sides tell the truth.

Michigan and Indiana both to be counted as doubtful states this fall, and the Democrats are more likely to carry Michigan than Harrison is to carry Indiana.

When President Cleveland finished reading the republican platform he is said to have remarked: "I have about concluded not to move next spring."

What is the cause of the present business depression? The continued increase of the surplus in the United States treasury. The prompt passage of the Mills bill is the only sure way to avert disaster. Every day's delay by the obstructionists in Congress adds to the burdens of the people.

An exchange says: "How do Democratic woolsellers like Mr. Cleveland's message advocating free wool?" We were not aware that Mr. Cleveland's message repealed the tariff statutes. We are still living under a good Republican tariff law, which keeps the price of wool down and the price of woolen clothing up.

It has been a matter of wonder to some people that the Chicago Democrats carried Harrison Republican Banner. There is no more room for wonder. The coal roads, the lumber barons, were represented at Chicago by great attorneys, receiving great salaries and plenty of perquisites, and they landed the Democratic nominee. They represent corporations rather than the people of the coast. Shekels made the enthusiasm.—Toledo Bee.

The wisdom of selecting Mr. Thurman is becoming more and more evident to the republicans, who really fear the popularity of the senator in his own state and in Indiana. As he intends to devote all his energy to a just presentation of the real issues in the campaign the republican leaders are apprehensive lest the great confidence the masses have in his judgment, in his integrity and ability in discussing the tariff problem will make their campaign in these two states unusually difficult. Mr. Blaine is alone relied upon to magnetize the people and counteract the work Mr. Thurman is expected to accomplish.—N. Y. Herald.

Melville W. Fuller, nominated as Chief Justice, has been reported to the Senate without recommendation. This partizan littleness is in striking contrast to the confirmation of the late Judge Waite. Mr. Waite's nomination in January 1874 was even more of a surprise to the country than Mr. Fuller's. He was not as generally or as favorably known throughout the country then as Mr. Fuller is to-day. Mr. Waite's nomination was favorably reported and unanimously confirmed. Out of the four speeches in his favor, one was made by the Democratic Old Roman of Ohio, Allen G Thurman. Sixty-three Senators voted in his favor and not one against him. The present judiciary committee dare not report against Mr. Fuller and they lack the manliness to report in his favor. It is just such petty, puerile, partizanship as this that is dragging the grand old party down into irretrievable perdition.

GENERAL ALGER'S BARREL.

[illegible]

[illegible] Chicago, as it was [illegible] of [illegible] The Southern [illegible]

[illegible] Gen. Chas. Foster, [illegible] Secretary Windom [illegible] his nomination for the Presidency, but he did no more than [illegible] at every such convention [illegible] the reconstruction of the party [illegible] In 1876, in St Louis, in 1884 and 1888, there were large contingents of South colored and white delegates from the South, to the Republican Presidential Conventions [illegible] demonstrations and always received more or less cash consideration for their votes.

If Conkling was defeated by cash and Federal patronage in 1876, he was again defeated by the same methods in 1880, and in 1884 when he was nominated, his friends had to deal liberally in ready cash to hold his Southern supporters against President Arthur. In fact, there is only one way to get Southern delegations to Republican National Conventions as a rule, and that is by paying idle and characterless governor-holds out of the treasury, or paying the delegates cash down at the Conventions.

The only difference between the Sherman and the Alger methods of controlling the Southern delegates was in the economic methods of Sherman and the liberal methods of Alger. Sherman when Secretary of the Treasury filled the South with unscrupulous Treasury agents whose chief and official business was to run the politics of the South, and they brought large Sherman delegations to the Conventions of 1880, 1884 and 1888, on the theory of indemnity for the past and security for the future; but Sherman's oral promises were stale compared with Alger's crisp cash. Alger brought up Sherman's Southern lines to the Liberal policy of paying his own way, while Sherman depended upon the government to pay his way, and between Sherman's and Alger's methods most people will give the preference to Alger's.

The question of nominating a man for President who was the supposed owner by the purchase of a lot of white and black mercenaries in the South is another matter. The fact that just to the close of the Chicago Convention Alger was so singularly his commercial methods that he could not have been nominated even for Vice President, proves that the Republican party couldn't accept a candidate of that sort; but as between the corruption of Southern delegates by the prostitution of government patronage and the corruption of Southern delegates by a candidate's own cash, there is vastly the more manliness in the man who buys in open market and pays out his own money. Don't condemn Alger without taking up the whole subject.—Philadelphia Times.

THE INDEPENDENTS.

Four years ago a respectable element of the republican party refused to vote for Mr. Blaine because of his record. The republicans had their votes well in hand to divide the election. Since then, with few exceptions they have supported Mr Cleveland's administration. The newspapers representing these independents are mostly republican and include such influential journals as the Boston Herald, the New York Times, the Philadelphia Times and Harper's Weekly. These papers approached the present campaign with caution. While endorsing the tariff views of the President it was clear that they hoped the republican platform would be such that they might tender allegiance to their old party. They speak well of Mr. Harrison, but they reject the platform. Upon principle this time, not because of personal leadership, they yield support to the democratic candidate and will do him excellent service. This is a point of vantage well gained, and evinces the wisdom of the bold tariff message of last December. The people of the United States are ripe for tax discussion and tax reduction. The sentiment is not confined to any particular section or any particular party. War taxes are too burdensome for these days of peace. A country which prospered upon a tax collection of $38,000,000 in 1860 does not need to multiply its expenses by four or five now. Profligacy of the government represents harder work and less luxuries for the people who have to pay every cent of the money which the government expends. This campaign will turn upon the right of the government to levy enormous and unnecessary tribute upon the people. The democratic party is pronounced upon this issue, and the independents are with the democrats in supporting the president in the sound position he has assumed. As in 1884, so in 1888, the independents will hold the balance of power. Their voice, their influence, their vote, will be for Mr. Cleveland.—Toledo Bee.

A barrel organ—The Coopers' Journal.

THE CHINESE FOR HARRISON.

The thousands of Yellow men who [illegible] New York are enthusiastic in their praise of the Senator who did much to defeat the bill prohibiting Chinese immigration for a set period [illegible] of his nomination. [illegible] banners were hoisted on the houses of prominent Chinamen in honored triumph. This friendship and advocacy is the jubilee of the Lean Ye Tong. The Six Companies bless him.

And now the New York Chinese Weekly News comes out with an editorial calling him the friend of the Chinaman. True, the editor, Wong Chin Foo, thinks that Mr. Harrison acted in opposition to the interests of American workingmen and of the Chinese already here. Even the resident Chinamen of New York looked upon the yellow tide of immigration as a great danger. They were glad to see a stop put to the unrestricted inflow of cheap Mongolian labor which threatened the prosperity of the country.

But that does not prevent them from recognizing the fact that when the Chinese Minister, acting for his government, was protesting against the passage of the restrictive bill Mr Harrison voted with China against his own countrymen.

The Chinese Weekly News will be issued to-day, and will contain an editorial of which the following is the concluding part, and which will command attention among American workingmen:

HARRISON INDORSED IN CHINESE.

人不許來美之
院內有一豪傑
可挽狂瀾於既
倒居王侍敢閣
人中諸子此真也的者

TRANSLATION BY WONG CHIN FOO.

"The Chinamen of the United States as a rule, want no more of their fellow countrymen here. Therefore those who are here would naturally prefer a man to be President of the United States who is opposed to their countrymen's coming into the United States. It is a very selfish motive entirely, but nevertheless it is the feeling of the Chinese here.

"This, however, does not change Harrison's position as a friend of the Chinese.

"The Chinese Weekly News believes in principle always. It dares to advocate it. Therefore it is heart and soul for Ben Harrison. He believes, as does the Weekly News, that this is a good country not only intended for the white and black sons of Ham, Shem and Japhet, but also for the yellow sons of Adam as well. Otherwise this would not be the America we know of."—N. Y. Herald.

MORTON'S WHISKER'S.

Levi P. Morton has sacrificed his whiskers upon the altar of his country. The portrait which we published two weeks ago was taken from a recent photograph. The one generally adopted by the papers was taken from a photo about two years old. As Mr. Morton prefers this picture, he has concluded to adopt it as his campaign portrait. This is the way candidate Morton wishes to appear during the campaign.

GOOD ENOUGH FOR HIM.

Mr. Asa B. Rowley, Druggist, was induced to try some of the Papillon Catarrh Cure by his customers, after several physicians predicted he would soon have consumption from an aggravated case of Catarrh. He says: "The result, was unprecedented. I commenced to get well after the first application, and am now, after a few weeks, entirely cured." Papillon (extract of flax) Catarrh Cure will do all that is claimed for it. Large bottles $1.00

You can never know till you try, how quickly a dose of Ayer's Pills will cure your sick headache. Your stomach and bowels need cleansing, and these pills will accomplish it more effectually and comfortably than any other medicine you can find.

HARRISON AND THE WORKINGMEN.

The Labor Signal published at Indianapolis, in commenting upon the nomination says: "The nomination of Mr Harrison was a genuine surprise to the organized workingmen of this state, because their attitude toward [illegible]

[illegible] it does not seem possible that a convention of sane men would invite contest with a large number of votes in an extremely doubtful state by naming a candidate so objectionable. Mr Harrison's candidacy for the senate two years ago aroused opposition among the labor organizations. It was expressed in scores of resolutions adopted by assemblies and unions. This paper opposed Mr. Harrison's election to the senate for reasons that would prevent it from supporting him now. His public record, in our judgment, has not been such as to commend him to the favorable consideration of the people this paper represents. We did all within our power to warn the republicans in time. That they did not think advice from such a quarter worth holding cuts no figure now, but hundreds of letters from representative workingmen in this and other states, indorsing the Signal's position, and breathing intense enmity to Mr Harrison, are convincing proof that our position is correct, at least from the labor standpoint. Organized labor will decide the presidential contest this year and it is almost solidly arraigned against Gen. Harrison. In our judgment Mr. Harrison's defeat is a foregone conclusion, even if Gov. Porter should lend himself to the commonly talked scheme of running for governor in order to help the Chicago nominee through in Indiana.

A second source of weakness to the Chicago ticket is Levi P. Mortion, the Wall street banker. It looks as if Senator Ingalls' advice to the Kansas delegation had been carried out to the letter. It is a principle as strong as a written law with the knights of labor not to aid in the election of a national banker to any office. The organization is opposed to the national banking system, and recognizes in it the mainspring of all monopoly. For a great political party to go into Wall street—over which the curses of the farming and producing classes of the nation hover like an angry cloud—to select a candidate for its national ticket is another thing that astonishes the average workingman and causes him to wonder whether the monopolistic interests of the country have not foreseen the inevitable conflict and concluded to force the issue without giving labor further opportunity to organize and inform itself.

Immortality of the Typhoid Germ.

The everlasting quality of typhoid fever germs is maintained by Dr. Quine. Although their spontaneous generation from filth is denied, there are few chances of their absence in impurified water so long as typhoid fever at any exists near any part of its course. Typhoid germs, he says, may be [illegible] in an old cesspool or unused sewer pipe [illegible] country, and when this cesspool or unused pipe is opened the typhoid germs are [illegible] existence with [illegible] and a few which [illegible] be cultivated [illegible] in the hands of [illegible] by the [illegible] typhoid fever is [illegible] in drinking [illegible] It is sometimes [illegible] in the food. In rare cases typhoid germs, if [illegible] through the atmosphere, may [illegible] way into the human body through the lungs."

The Odorous but Medicinal Onion.

For a cold on the chest there is no better specific, for most persons, than well boiled or roasted onions. They may not agree with every one, but to persons with good digestion they will not only be found to be a most excellent remedy for a cough, and the clogging of the bronchial tubes which is usually the cause of the cough, but if freely eaten at the onset of a cold they will usually break up what promised, from the severity of the attack, to have been a serious one. One medical writer advocates the eating of onions in the spring of the year at least once a week. Onions, he says, are invigorating and prophylactic beyond description. Further, I challenge the medical fraternity or any mother to point out a place where children have died from diphtheria or scarlatina anginosa, etc., where onions were freely used.

More than 1,000,000 working people in the United States are now idle, and yet they tell us that a high tariff and a big surplus are the sure forerunners of business prosperity.

Do you feel languid, low spirited, listless and miserable, both physically and mentally, have poor appetite, frequent headaches, bitter or bad taste in the mouth, nervous prostration, and do you know what the matter is? CASCARA SAGRADA. As a laxative it will restore the bowels to their normal condition without pain or griping, and has remarkable virtue in the treatment of habitual constipation, indigestion, and as a tonic for the stomach it has no rival, as used in this syrup.

BLACK COHOSH, as used in this syrup, is a powerful and useful remedy, acting specifically on the nervous system, kidneys and uterine organs.

UNICORN ROOT. In all diseases of women it stands first and foremost as a tonic and regulator, its value cannot be exceeded.

TAMARACK is tonic, diuretic, and diaphoretic.

CULVER'S ROOT is powerfully hydragogic, acting with great energy on the bowels. It is also an excellent tonic, laxative, and alterative, acting upon the secretive and absorbent glands of the body.

MANDRAKE is powerful in its action, acting with great energy upon the liver and secretive system, and is invariably used for habitual constipation.

POKE ROOT is cathartic and anti-scrofulous, highly esteemed for its virtues in curing Gout, Rheumatism, Syphilis, Scrofula, Cancer and all Skin Diseases.

IN ADDITION to the ABOVE, which are everywhere recognized by the MEDICAL FACULTY as being the best curatives of their kind, our medicine contains RARE DRUGS, rendering it a Safe Family Medicine, as it contains no poison or opiates.

THE STATE LOTTERY IN HOLLAND.

Mischief Wrought by This Government Protected Institution.

The agencies of the State lottery are under the protection of the Government. Statistics prove that 95 per cent. of the working population of Holland buy tickets in this invention of the evil one, and if you could place yourself any Monday forenoon near the main office of this lottery you would see lines of men and women dressed in the patched up, cast-off garments of a wealthier and past generation, wearing in their faces the evidences of lives of misery and starvation, crowding toward the door and bearing in their bony fingers thy few cents, torn, as it were, from the empty plates of their little ones. Expectation, hope and hunger seem to mingle in the eye of the purchaser.

A few days later when the lists of the drawing adorn the windows of this office, the scene is repeated, showing how the kindly Government of William the Silent profits by the miseries and passions of the populace. The Government charges 15 per cent. of every prize drawn in addition to a heavy tax on every ticket sold. A whole ticket costs 70 guldens, being $28, but is split into twenty parts, and the laborer pays $1.87 for his one-twentieth, the tax included. The highest prize is $40,000, and hundreds of families starve themselves nearly to death for the chance of winning $2,000.

The agencies of the lotteries are in the hands of the Israelites, and they canvass Amsterdam with a persistency worthy of an insurance agent. It is nearly impossible to sit quietly in a cafe or place of amusement without being approached by a son of Jacob who is certain that the lucky number in the next drawing is in his possession waiting for a purchaser.

High and low, rich and poor, invest in lottery tickets and political death would be the fate of a member of the House of Legislature attempting to remove this source of misery from the Netherlands.

A few months ago a workingman employed in the "gas fabriek" at 32 cents (American) per day was the possessor of the lucky number, drawing the 100,000 gulden prize. He was paid his twentieth part. His family fireplace grouted for three months under a constant frying of beefsteak and potatoes kept up night and day, and to-day the insane asylum at Veenedam has two inhabitants—a man and a woman, shouting incessantly the lucky (?) number.

CHINESE PATRON OF DUCKS.

An Interesting Superstition Believed in by the Celestials.

Playing such an important part as they do in their country, and in the life of such a superstition-ridden mortal as John Chinaman, the duck itself has not escaped superstition.

There are in China quite a numerous sect who religiously abstain from eating duck, and regard their duck-devouring neighbors as wanting in reverence.

They are the followers and worshippers of a god named Hon-Yuen Shuee, whose mother was cured of some dread malady by a mysterious duck, which brought her herbs in its bill every day until she recovered health. Out of gratitude for this, the woman brought up her son under strict injunctions never to eat duck. He became the patron of ducks, and one day when pursued by robbers a big flock of ducks appeared between him and his pursuers and hid him from view.

At his death he was canonized, and before his shrine his followers nowadays dedicate their children to his principles, and train them to regard ducks as sacred birds.—Thomas Stevens.

The Most Expensive Kind.

"Pa," asked a speculative youngster, "was I made of dust?"

"Certainly, my son; we all were."

"Just common road dust like that ragged boy out there?"

"Yes," admitted the puzzled father; "just the same. Why do you ask?"

"Oh. I thought maybe as I was such a nice little boy I might be made of diamond dust."

THE LADY AND THE LEOPARD.

An Exciting Adventure in an Indian Bungalow.

In an Indian bungalow every bedroom has a small ante-room attached in which the ... furniture.

The floor of cement and uncarpeted, to allow of ... and around the tub are placed the charpoys, or earthen pots of water which are required for the bath. The bed room has always two doors, one opening on the outer air, to admit the breeze, with its supply of water, the other opening into the ante-room.

On the evening in question, just as dusk was falling, I had finished the unpacking of a box in my bedroom and was moving away, when I fancied I heard a slight sound in the bathroom. It was an unusual hour for the barber's visit, so I opened the door and, to my horror, saw just in front of me the beautiful sleek back of a large leopard, which was crouched on the floor and drinking out of one of the ghurras.

The room was so small that I found myself quite close to the leopard, and could, indeed, have touched the spots on its glossy coat from where I stood. I was too frightened to move, and stood perfectly still, and, fortunately for me, the outer door by which the creature had entered still stood wide open, and with a single bound it cleared the threshold and disappeared up the hillside.

Had the door blown to or been closed from the outside by a servant, the animal would have had no resource but to seek an exit by the doorway in which I was standing, and the knowledge of my narrow escape made us very careful ever after about shutting up in the afternoon.

A few nights later we were awakened by hearing the watchman call out loudly that there was a leopard in the veranda, and we ran to the window in time to see the waving of the branches where the beast had sprung out among the trees. The bearer, who was lying rolled up in his blankets in the same veranda, slept soundly on meanwhile, unconscious of his proximity to the stealthy beast of prey.

These leopards are cowardly creatures, and will never attack a human being if they can avoid it; their special fancy is for little dogs, and they will so haunt the neighborhood of any house where dogs are kept that the greatest watchfulness is necessary to prevent the little quadrupeds falling victims to the dainty ones.

As the weather became better they grew less bold, and it was only toward the end of the season that we saw them again. When snow lay on the farther hills they were driven to seek food lower down, and then again they began to infest the station.

Often in the month of October, when coming home late at night, I have heard the hours sort of purring noise they make as they rub their side, like huge cats, against the trunks of trees. The men carrying their dooli (light palanquin) would then step out, and talk very loud, to keep up their courage, while the mate would flourish his lantern and shout.

No leopard would come near so noisy a party, and the only danger on such occasions is of the men taking a panic and dropping the dooli, when the situation would be awkward. This, however, never happened to me, and I was equally fortunate when riding.—Chambers's Journal.

"FINGERHACKELN."

"More Honored in the Breach than in the Observance."

The spirit of emulation is one of the strongest in the human breast. In obedience to it men frequently risk life, reputation, and even honor itself.

A tourist in Tyrol watched two bothheaded youths, who, having got into some dispute over money matters, had agreed to settle it by a resort to what in that country is called "Fingerhackeln."

This game, or rather struggle, is a simple trial of strength of arm and biceps. The table is cleared, and the two competitors seated opposite each other, with the table between them, stretch out their right hands so as to let them meet in the centre. Each, bending the middle finger into the shape of a hook, intwines it with that of his rival. At a given signal each begins to pull, the object being to drag the antagonist across the board.

Both were strapping young fellows, each eager to show off his prowess, and the fact that they were well-known adepts at it, rendered the struggle doubly interesting. Victory swayed hither and thither; the most prodigious efforts were made to wrest the slightest advantage from the foe, the subtle ruses coming into play, the most impossible contortions of the body undergone; and yet the issue seemed as far from decision as at the very outset.

With set teeth, rigid features and heaving breasts, the two young fellows tug and pull, and neither will give in. Their hands are of an an angry red, the veins swollen to double their usual size, while drops of perspiration on their foreheads tell of their almost superhuman exertions.

Watching the face of one, the observer all at once saw a look of agonizing pain shoot across it. His hand dropped; the struggle was at an end. Poor fellow! his finger is maimed for life; for the principal muscle has been rent in the fierce struggle.

His antagonist, by a sudden jerk,—one of the numerous strategems of fingerhackeln,—has succeeded in unbending his adversary's finger.

One very frequently sees in Tyrol a man with a finger bent nearly double on the right hand. If you ask the cause, you will invariably be told that it happened while "Fingerhackeln."

The Fool Killer.

"Is there such a thing as a fool killer, John?" asked Mrs. Brown as she folded the newspaper which she had been reading; "I don't believe there is."

"Oh! yes there is," replied Mr. Brown. Then with a laugh he added, "And you had better keep out of his way."

"No," said Mrs. Brown, musingly, "there isn't such a thing. If there was, I would have been a widow long ago."

Then she took up her sewing and Mr. Brown went out on the stoop to see what kind of a night it was.

WHAT THE WOMAN SAID.

The Ingenious Cement Seller.

"Madam," said a man with a crushed hat and dilapidated clothes, as he appeared at the basement door of a Harlem ... my own genuine patent indestructible cement for mending broken china and other articles, absolutely indispensable to any well regulated—

"Don't want ...!"

"It's only ten cents a bottle, madam, and it will pay—

"No, nor for anything of the kind, I say—wouldn't have it!"

"It is warranted to mend anything in the line of broken dishes, or—"

"I tell you I don't want it, and you needn't stand there talking any longer!"

"All right, madam, all right; don't want to intrude. Fine morning, madam. The lady next door made a little remark about you, madam, but I don't suppose you would care anything about hearing it repeated. Good bye, madam."

"Hold on a minute, won't you? She said something about me, you say?"

"Yes, ma'am, let fall a little remark concerning you—but I don't think you would care to hear it. I've got to hurry along."

"Just a moment. I believe I'll take a bottle of that stuff."

"The lady I was speaking of took three bottles for a quarter, madam, but—"

"Give me four bottles, please; half the dishes in the house are broken. The idea of her saying anything about me, the mean thing!"

"Yes, certainly. Accidents will happen to valuable china. Apply it with the brush as directed. Also, I have large bottles of furniture polish, fifty cents a bottle. Two bottles? All right. There you are. There's your change, madam. Hope everything will be all satisfactory. Good morning."

"But wait just another moment—you didn't tell me what that woman said about me. I'll teach her to talk about the—behind my back."

"Oh, yes, I most forgot it. You see it was this way: I asked her if the lady in the next house, meaning you, you see, was at home."

"Yes, I understand. What did she say then?"

"She spoke up quick like and said she didn't know. That was all, ma'am—I told you it wasn't much. Be sure and apply the cement with the brush, as directed. Good bye."—New York Tribune.

ABOUT KISSING.

A Clean Face a Great Fortune to the Woman—Various Kinds of Kisses.

In the old days, when powder and rouge were indispensable, a gallant gentleman kissed the hand of his fair lady. And her hand was kept immaculate, that this kiss might mean much to him.

Nowadays men don't stoop down to kiss your hand: it would get their trousers out of shape. So a clean face becomes a necessity to a woman who has any liking for that expression of affection which is generally approved of and seldom well done.

The only kiss worth having is that of a nice baby, and if the baby doesn't give it, it only submits to it, and keeps its sweet, dainty, perfumy little mouth, shaped like an O, as it waits for you to discover just how delightful it is. Men's kisses are like Scotch whiskey—they're apt to be smoky. Children's kisses are inclined to cover one's entire face; but a baby simply exists and lets you take a mouthful of the breath of Araby.

Men have an idea that their kisses are appreciated—they are most immensely mistaken. The average man gives a kiss just as he throws a baseball—with too much force. It ought to be as delicate as a roseleaf. Almost a memory in a second. It need not suggest a postage stamp, nor a porous plaster.

Dolly, I think I could write a book on kissing; but mankind is so determined that I don't think he'd take any advice on the subject, and yet, as it is the women who receive the kisses, they certainly ought to know more about them than the great, big, stupid creations who give them.—New York Star.

A Truly Honest Man.

A well-known man of millions living on the avenue was sent down town the other day by his wife to purchase some little things.

Being fancy articles, the money came out of her purse, so she gave it to him and he started.

He was out the greater part of the day, but returned with the parcels and handed the change to the good lady.

She counted it over carefully, grew red in the face, and said:

"Heavens, James, there's a bad dollar!"

"It can't be possible!"

"Lead! Look! Oh!"

"So it is. I picked up the change too quickly. The cursed thieves!"

"It isn't hard to be a thief with a fool like you. Why did you pick up the change in such a hurry?"

"Because I thought they were giving me a dollar too much."

Hard Times.

"Missus O'Brien, how do yez find the toimes?" asked an Irish lady as she leaned over the fence, which separated her yard from her neighbor's.

"The toimes is very harrud, t'ank yez. How's yer husband?"

"Oh, praise the Lord, he's very poorly, an' its meself that don't be knowin' what's going to become av us."

"Phwat's up? Is he the troubled?"

"Its timperance, sez he, is ... He's joined sivin different timperance societies in the last mont', an' he had to get good and drunk to swear off, an' for aich in-ishashun it's took all the money we could get hold of. There's niver a chair nor a table in the house, an O've just sint Dinny around to see if he couldn't pawn the goat."

The Child's Joys and Sorrows.

A child enjoys himself more heartily when he does enjoy himself than an older person does. That everybody admits.

A child suffers at least more keenly when he does suffer, and heart than does an older person. That is not recognized by everybody.

It is good to have the lightheartedness of a child. It is hard to have the heartracking sorrows of a child.—Sunday-School Times.

HINTS ON COOKING.

Some Admirable Hints for the Housekeeper.

When we wish to extract juices from anything we put it in cold water, and let ...

When we wish the reverse ... juices and ... a hard ... for cooking the opposite course must be pursued.

Starch enters largely into the composition of many vegetables, and on the prevalence of this ingredient depends the digestibility ... and hence it is that all vegetables should be put down to cook in boiling water.

Sometimes ... even though the water is boiling it extracts considerable of the starch and therefore the nutritive element, and that steam is the only agent that should be employed in cooking many varieties, potatoes, for instance.

There are as many opinions against as for this method, and while it undoubtedly seems probable, equally good results have been obtained from the older method.

Chemists say that potatoes should always be boiled in their jackets as there are various elements detrimental to the wholesomeness of the vegetable that are absorbed by the skin, and that the potatoes that are peeled before boiling retain some of these elements.

Those who are accustomed to having the potatoes peeled before being boiled think they have a peculiar taste if boiled in their skins.

Of course, it is all the effect of imagination, but no amount of talking will convince them of that fact, so if the potatoes have to be peeled see that quite a thick skin is taken off, because there is a very bitter acid lodged in cells quite near the skin, and you must get rid of as much of this as possible. The water, of course, draws most of this out, but it is not as effective as the absorbent nature has provided.

Soft water should be used in cooking vegetables, and the only way city folks can soften water is to add a little soda to it. Six or eight potatoes will need a spoonful of salt added to the water; turnips and parsnips require about the same; that is a teaspoonful of salt to a quart of water.

Hominy ... surface when the water ... it must be carefully skimmed off.—Brooklyn Citizen.

WOMEN'S RIGHTS IN ROME.

Public Appearance of Roman Women in Defense of Their Property.

On one occasion the women of Rome gathered in numbers and made a public appeal. The circumstances were these:

The triumvirs, Octavianus, Antony and Lepidus, had proscribed a large number of citizens, and they confiscated and sold their estates in order to meet the expenses of a war then going on. But land was a drug in the market, and, besides, people were unwilling to purchase property exposed to sale in consequence of violent acts.

The sum, therefore, obtained from the sales fell far short of the amount required, and the triumvirs had to look to other sources of revenue. They accordingly passed a decree that 1,400 of the richest women in the city should lay before them an exact statement of their means, with severe penalties against concealment or undervaluation, and they claimed the power to employ any portion of the wealth thus reported to them for paying the expenses of the war.

The women were thrown into the utmost perplexity and distress, but they could find no man daring enough to plead their cause before the triumvirs.

Left to their own resources they went first of all to the sister of Octavianus and the mother and wife of Antony. The sister of Octavianus and the mother of Antony gave them a kindly reception, but Fulvia, the wife of Antony, drove them from her door.

Thus insulted, they turned to the tribunal of triumvirs. Hortensia, the daughter of the famous orator, Hortensius, spoke in their name. She delivered a powerful speech, which is highly praised by the great Latin critic, Quintilian, and she succeeded in getting the demands of the triumvirs reduced to a comparatively small sum.

These public appearances of women in Rome were, of course, only occasional, but they were frequent enough to show that women had interests of their own and had resolution enough to assert them when such a course was necessary.

Don't Experiment.

You cannot afford to waste time in experimenting when your lungs are in danger. Consumption always seems at first only a cold. Do not permit any dealer to impose upon you with some cheap imitation of Dr King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, but be sure you get the genuine. Because he can make more profit he may tell you he has something just as good, or just the same. Don't be deceived, but insist upon getting Dr. King's New Discovery, which is guaranteed to give relief in all Throat, Lung and Chest affections. Trial bottles free. Large bottles $1.

Symptoms of Heart Disease

Diseased hearts are as common as diseased lungs, kidneys or stomach, but far less understood. The symptoms are shortness of breath, when weepings, etc., oppression in the chest, faint, weak or hungry spells, dreaming, pain or tenderness in the side, swelling feet, dropsy, etc. The unnatural circulation of the blood in the lungs, stomach, kidneys, liver and brain causes other symptoms. The only reliable remedy for the heart yet discovered is Dr. Miles' New Cure. Try it and be convinced. Sold by Baker & Hall.

Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic is not a stimulant but a nerve food, restoring nerve force lost by sickness or excessive mental work or the use of liquor, opium, morphine or tobacco. It supplies food for nerve tissues and by its gentle aperative action, removes all restraint from the secretive organs, hence curing all diseases of stomach and liver. Dr. Geo. Ferguson will supply the genuine Red Clover Tonic at 50 cents a bottle.

DR. TRASK'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT

The Great Healer of all Inflammations and Disorders.

FEARFUL DEEDS IN FRANKLIN

ATTEMPTED ASSASSANATION BY JOHN BUNTING AND SUCCESSFUL ARSON.

Details of the Most Shocking Affair that ever

FRANKLIN, July 11th, 1888.

That our quiet, brotherly-loving town should be the home of an assassin and incendiary of the blackest dye seems too absurd an idea to be entertained for a moment, yet the events of last night prove it to be only too true.

A few weeks ago the wife of John Bunting found life too intolerable a burden to be borne longer under his roof and consequently she removed from thence, since which time he appears to have been nursing a spirit of fury that broke all bonds at last and spread desolation and death about him.

Mrs. Pawson, mother-in-law of John Bunting, a widow lady, lives alone with her daughter Melissa, a distance of something more than a mile from her son-in law's house and but a few rods from Smith Munger's. Last night she retired shortly after 9 P. M. to her bed down stairs, while her daughter slept in the chamber above. Five or ten minutes after the light in her mother's bed room was extinguished, Melissa heard the report of a gun that shook the very house. The shot was fired just outside the old lady's bed room window, directly at her head, and had not the pillow and headboard intervened, she would not now be alive to tell us about it; as it was one shot—it was a charge of shot—grazed the right cheek just beneath the eye, leaving a swollen and discolored mark as a touching memento of her son-in-law; others lodged in the headboard of the bed, while a hole was blown into the pillow through which Sheriff Whitmore easily thrust his hand this morning. Mrs. P. did not faint, she arose and dressed and ascended to her daughter's room as soon as she could. She appears to have been to dazed by the unexpected attack to be even much frightened at the time. When she realized the situation she wished to go to Mr. Mungers, a thing Melissa would not consent to, thinking that the would-be murderer might be lying in wait for them; she tried to attract attention of some one, but failing in this the two remained up stairs with bolted doors, and watched out the lonely vigils of the night with sleepless eyes.

The report of the gun was heard at Mr. Munger's but not thought to be of any consequence as it was supposed to be some boys. Mr. M. was standing at the screen-door and heard a man walk quietly away through the grass, but thought nothing of the circumstance at the time—9.20 P.M.

At 10.30 a little girl of S. E. Taylor's heard a man rap twice at the door, soon after this the baby began to cry for a drink of water, and the man went away, but his foot-prints were visible next morning and undoubtedly he went there to shoot Mr. T., as he had an old grudge against him. It must have been about this time that Melissa, watching at her window, heard another shot fired, although the object of its being fired has not yet appeared.

The next heard of the desperado was at Bridgeman Wells. Mr. W. and daughter had been to the village, and while they were absent Mrs. Wells thinks she heard a man around the place; be that as it may, somewhere near eleven o'clock, a man rapped three times at the door, and three times said hello. Mrs. W. at last arose and said, "John Bunting, is that you?" A voice replied, "yes'm." The houses of Wells, Bunting and Taylor are but a short distance apart, and as neighbors Mrs. W. was perfectly familiar with the voice, and recognized it at once. She then asked if he wished to see Bridgeman, and upon being answered in the affirmative, Mr. W. arose and went to undo the bolt, but instead of standing as we usually do directly in front of the door, Mr. W., for some cause stepped to the left of it and began pushing the bolt back; a circumstance to which he owes his life, for no sooner did the bolt rattle than the man fired, the charge passing through the screen and heavy door, and striking an open window sash shattered it to atoms, a charge sufficiently heavy to kill an elephant it is said.

From Mr. Wells he appears to have gone to Croel Eddy's, and here his most disastrous work was done. A happy chance or Providence had so far saved the lives of his intended victims, but here he did not attempt murder, at least not in a direct way; only arson and incendiaryism and was more successful in carrying out his plans. About two o'clock Mr. Eddy's two daughters were awakened by a bright light shining into their room and arose only to find the barns and outbuildings wrapped in flames. The alarm was at once given and a brave effort made to save the burning buildings and the poor innocent dumb creatures sheltered therein, but all in vain; only by almost superhuman exertion was the house saved, as a strong wind was blowing directly that way; only the fact of the house not being wood, and the roof being a tarred roof seems to have saved it at all. At one time it seemed as if it must go and the contents were ordered removed, and as is usual in such cases, owing to the excitement of the moment, many things were needlessly injured and much misplacement and confusion ensued. Although too early, perhaps, to estimate the loss correctly, it is thought it cannot be less than $3,000, probably more; beside losing all his tools and 30 tons of old hay and a wagon loaded with new, four horses and four cows perished in the flames. The cows were shut in the barn yard, and the heat was so intense no human hand could endure it to free them. Everything about the barns was licked slick and clean. One mower which had been out in the hay field had been that night brought up for repairs, and one horse that had been put up that very night; one horse alone was saved from the stable.

Here all trace of this inhuman fiend is up to the present lost. Last evening at 9:30 by John Bunting's clock, which is said to be too fast, his hired man sat writing letters. John said he was going to bed and retired to his room, but sat a long time on the side of his bed. The man declares he did not leave the house unless he went through a window, but Melissa says that she has heard her sister, his wife, say that he could go through the house like a cat when he chose. The hired man had noticed an unusual excitement about John yesterday, particularly in the afternoon when they were drawing in hay, and his conduct was such as to alarm the man; he swore he would shoot his wife, Bridgeman Wells, Wesley Pawson and some others, and then kill himself. As he seems to have indulged in this kind of talk pretty freely of late, the man did not think it worth while to alarm the neighbors. After his wife left him he had only two young daughters to keep house for him; these he sent away to a married sisters last evening, telling them some one was coming to mob the house; yet after they were gone he seems to have forgotten it for he rapped on their door and called them by name. He gave to one of them $50 and to the other a valuable watch.

He left letters giving directions in regard to his business and wishes, and in one of them he requests that he may be buried where found without funeral or expense. Some who know him think that as long as he remains alive he will never give up the idea of killing his wife, and a watch is kept to guard against this possibility.

Promptly this morning Sheriff Whitmore was notified and duly appeared upon the scene with a number of assistants.

The family have the sympathy of the entire community, for they are among our best citizens. The only son is bowed down by grief and sorrow, but he the father, seems like one alone and entirely unlike any that belong to him. Is it in the bounds of the possible that this man is sane?

Later Notes by our Reporter.

Officer H. W. Stevens was notified Wednesday morning about six o'clock to come up to Franklin and look into the affair, and in company with Ed. Williamson arrived at Bunting's farm about 6:30. He says he found Bunting had been to his mother-in-laws, fired through her bed room window, the shot taking effect in the pillow on which her head lay, and grazing her temple. He then went to Loren Taylor's and tried to call him out, but he would not respond. Mr. Wells was the next place, where he fired a shot through the door after calling up the occupants. The shot passing through the screen and striking a window on the opposite side of the room, where 28 bullets were found. Bunting then left for Crowell Eddy's, where he set fire to his barns and other out buildings which were entirely consumed, together with four horses, four cows and a quantity of hay. His grudge against Eddy seems to have arisen from one of long standing. About 14 years ago, when Mr. Eddy was justice of the peace, he caused Bunting's arrest for shooting a gun in the house and threatening to shoot his wife, and otherwise abusing his family.

Several letters were found at Bunting's residence and are in officer Stevens' possession. One to Clark Payne ran as follows:

MR. PAYNE.

Dear Sir—I left all my business to you. I think the best way would be to sell off everything and let the place. There is a few small debts besides the mortgage or I would like to have Fred Davenport work the place. Yours,

J. L. BUNTING.

Another letter to his daughters ran as follows:

CORA AND MABEL.

My dear Cora and Mabel—I hardly know what to say in this trying hour. I hope you will be good girls and forget you ever had a father to leave such a stain behind. But I cannot help it. I am drove to it. If my body is ever found I hope you will let it lay where it is. I don't want a cent spent on me. I hope Mabel will keep on with her music lessons. I hope you will accept my love and give it to the rest. Children, this is the hardest day of my life to leave you, but I hope you will get along all right. Be good girls and not follow in the footsteps of your mother. From your father. Good bye.

Bunting seems to have been a terror to his family and all stood in mortal fear of him with the exception of one daughter, Altha, who was the only one that could manage him. He has [illegible] are married. He is said to be a pleasant man in his business relations, but was consumed by the green eyed monster, jealousy, and his wife has been in fear of her life constantly. A few weeks agoit became unbearable and in fact dangerous for her to remain under the same roof with him as he repeatedly threatened to shoot her, and she went to live with a daughter, Mrs. Tobias Modgett. Mr. Bunting is a man about 55 years old, short, full sandy beard, long hair and brown eyes. Sheriff Whitmore has offered a reward of $200 for his capture. Sheriff Whitmore, Deputy Aten and officer Stevens started about seven o'clock this morning in search of him. They with a party of 15 scoured the country in that vicinity and returned at 3:30 this afternoon without finding any trace of him.

CLIPPINGS AND CONDENSATIONS.

The contract has been let for the new Lake Shore depot at Hudson. A new depot this summer is a fixed fact.

The Blissfield Advance says there is no probability of the depot in that village being moved at present.

In the graduating class of the college at Hillsdale this year two members of the same family are rivals for class honors. One is C. H. Jackson, 53 years of age, and the other is his son, aged 22.—Hudson Gazette.

Daily mail service has been ordered for Rome Center, beginning last Monday. This is an accommodation that the people of that section are entitled to, but which they couldn't get under a republican administration. The event was celebrated by firing cannon and indulging in fireworks.—Adrian Press.

The Republicans had anticipated the band would draw the crowd for their meeting Saturday evening. They waited and waited but no band. It was finally ascertained that their leader had or was about to get married that evening, and which was accepted as a perfectly satisfactory reason why he should be absent.—Blissfield Advance.

The society of spiritualists, of Toledo, begin a three-day's grove meeting at Devils Lake to-day. A large number of spiritualists and mediums will be present from Southern Michigan and Northern Ohio, and an effort will be made to arrange a seance in which medium Peardsell will communicate with the ghost of the Mohawk brave who stole the Wyandotte chief's bride, and was shot by the chief as he was attempting to cross the lake with the maiden. George R. will agree that if he will come back, steel no more brides, and remain on exhibition at Lake View, during the summer months all will be forgiven.—Hudson Gazette.

The Blissfield Advance, a neutral paper run by a Republican editor, says: "The Democrats seem to believe that Michigan will be carried for Cleveland and Thurman this fall. They have some grounds for the belief, and if the Republicans win it will be only by the 'skin of their teeth.' Michigan is a debatable State this year, made so principally because of the temperance movement and because of the large foreign element in the cities who favor free trade. But there will also be a large increase in the number of voters over that of four years ago, and where the majority of them go, will decide the contest. All three of the parties will put in their best licks and it will be a red-hot campaign, as soon as the State officers have all been put in the field."

Tom Hunter, of Adrian, is a wag and also, incidentally, a lawyer and justice of the peace. He insists that Frank Teachout, a Lenawee deputy sheriff, is the thriftiest officer he knows. "The other day," he relates, "I issued a warrant for a chap out in the country, and gave it to Teachout. The prisoner didn't show up right off, and I says to Frank, 'why in blazes don't you bring that man in?' 'That's all right' says Frank: 'I dropped him a card to come in to-day, but he's probably busy; be in to-morrow or next day.' 'All right.' There you have it. The fellow came the next day and Frank's fees might be set down like this: Travel, 20 miles, $2; service, 75 cents; copy, 25 cents; total, $3; expense one cent, and I'll be darned if I don't think he borrowed the postal card from me. He's a Democrat, and if we beat him when he runs for sheriff next fall we'll have to get up before daylight.—Evening News.

Among the patents issued to Michigan inventors Tuesday was one to Church Bros. the agricultural implement dealers of this village, on a harrow. They have produced a very ingenious device, and practical men who have given it a careful test assert that it is a superior article of its kind, being easy to handle and doing thorough work. There is a flattering prospect that it will have a wide sale in the farming community.—Monroe Observer.

SOME PLAIN TALK.

Mrs. Emma Obenauer, State W. C. T. U., Supt. for missionary work among the lumbermen in Michigan, gave two lectures at the Opera House in Tecumseh, Friday afternoon and evening, July 6th, under the auspices [illegible] noon meeting was to the mothers. The evening meeting was for the general public. Although the eve was quite warm, and other meetings were being held in the village, G. A. R. and society, an appreciative audience assembled to hear this much noted Michigan lady. Her lecture gave some of the details of how it came about to establish her department of the W. C. T. U. work among the 25,000 working men in the lumber camps of the North woods. Through the efforts of the state W. C. T. U. a good work had been done in distributing literature and holding meetings among the different localities where these lumber camps were located.

While she had with other ladies visited some of the towns in the lumber districts, most of the work in the camps had been done through an employed evangelist, a gentleman who was quite successful in reaching and interesting this class of isolated citizens. She regretted very much that so much had gone into the newspapers about the stockades and dens of Northern Mich. and Wisconsin, was aware that much had been credited to her, which she never said. Felt thankful that the proper authorities were giving the matter such a thorough investigation and believed that great good would come from their efforts. She had great confidence in the intelligence and patriotism of the people of Michigan and with them would ever labor for the welfare and advancement of its citizens. She felt it the duty of Christian people everywhere to do all they could to inform themselves and others of the true condition of the society in which they live and use their efforts to have the great enemy of our State, the legalized dram shop, forever banished from our land. Much of the crime, and low condition of manhood as found in the region of these dens of disgrace in the North woods, was on account of the use and abuse of intoxicating liquors. Drive out the saloons in that section and these other attending evils could not exist as they had done in the past. Mrs. Obenauer had several other appointments in Lenawee County to fill during the past week and no doubt is an effective worker in her department of the W. C. T. U. work, and will receive a hearty co-operation from the people of Michigan in her efforts to benefit the class for which she is laboring.

Geo. Pocklington is having a good trade this year with the Milwaukee, Jr. binder. He sold three machines last Monday, and has been putting in good time every day since. This machine is giving good satisfaction to purchasers. It is easy of draft, cuts clean, ties a good knot and uses less twine than any other machine. Many farmers here about have had a new binder this year and to all such we say, you had better see the Milwaukee work before buying.

Rev. D. R. Shier told an audience at the Cong'l church, Sunday evening, that the reports concerning infamous dens in the north woods were true, but he said the Governor was in no way responsible for such a state of things. Just the same the Governor seems to be evincing a lively interest in the subject since it has been agitated by prominent ladies of the W. C. T. U., and appears to be acting for all the world as if the chief executive might have some responsibility in the matter. If it is not the Governor's place to see that the State is free from such a disgrace, whose is it?—Hudson Gazette.

Without doubt the most pleasantly situated of all the resorts at Devil's Lake is the Stoney Grove Hotel, at Frazee's landing. T. J. Hills, of Adrian, Mich., has recently assumed the proprietorship of this Hotel, and under the management of Harry E. Feldman, of Chicago, the clerk, it is becoming deservedly popular. The Chicago Italian orchestra, consisting of five excellent musicians, has been engaged for the season and will give free concerts every afternoon and evening from the hotel balcony. This with the additional attractions of excellent rooms, courteous treatment, fine boating facilities and an excellent table, makes Stoney Grove Hotel a particularly desirable place to visit. Commencing Saturday evening, July 14th and every Saturday evening thereafter during the season, a grand dance will be given.

Tecumseh people and all others who visit Devil's Lake will please remember that they will find the steamer G. A. R. at Allen's dock, ready to take them to all points on the lake with neatness and despatch. Capt. Deuel is always on board.

It is amusing to hear the different reasons given for the decrease in the price of wool this year. The chief reason is purely a business one. The middlemen got badly nipped last year and this year they are paying a price which will enable them to make something on their purchases.

The Democratic State Convention will meet at Detroit on Thursday next July 19th. Half fare rates have been obtained on the railroads. Tickets will be sold July 18 and 19, with limit to return on the 20th. This rate applies to all who may desire to go whether delegates or not.

Dr. Bennett will be at the Lilley House, Monday, July 16th, and every 4 weeks thereafter. Hay fever, asthma, head and back aches, dyspepsia, are the difficulties he never fails to cure. No talking for talk sake, always proven in every case. You better go and look his wish up and see how it is done. Hernia (Rupture) he fails not on the dozens he has operated on. Only one week of rest then no more truss, be the age 5 or 75 years.

Mr. L. K. Mead died at Cleveland Ohio, on Sunday evening last. When taken sick he telegraphed for his friend, D. P. Anthony who remained there until business called him away. Mr. Anthony then telegraphed for James Boyd, who arrived there before Mr. Mead's death. The remains were brought home for interment. The funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon and were conducted by the Masonic Lodge, of which the deceased was an honored member. He was 34 years of age. He was in the employ of the Davis Platform Wagon Co., at Cleveland, and the manager did everything that could be done for him during his sickness and sent a fine floral memento as a mark of his esteem for the deceased. Mr. Mead was a quiet, unassuming man, but had many warm friends among those who knew him best.

Asa Howe's stage to Sand Lake has a good load every trip.

Miss Jennie Heck left this morning for South Bend, Ind., and will remain several weeks visiting relatives and friends there.

Rev. J. A. DeSpelder, of Iowa, was the guest of Henry Nyland last Sunday. He is spending a few days with his old Tecumseh and Macon friends.

We are indebted to Bert Temple for a Sunday edition of the St. Paul Globe. The Globe is one of the ablest and richest papers in the Northwest.

A young lady near Morenci has been presented with an organ, upon the condition that she sign a contract not to get married in five years. She signed.

A Seneca farmer is going to know how much it costs to bring up a girl, as he has kept an account of every dollar paid out for one's benefit since her birth.

Co. C. is drilling twice a week preparatory to going to camp which begins on the 18th. Capt. Wood expects to take his company to Mackinac with full ranks and in fine discipline.

Mr. Giles Cleveland is quite seriously ill. His son, Dr. Cleveland, of Detroit, is attending him. As he is 83 years of age, his recovery is somewhat doubtful.

Wm. H. Osborn Jr. of Milwaukee, was in town the fore part of the week. His stay was rather brief as he was out on a business trip, but his friends were glad to meet him just the same.

Sunday's Free Press contains an interesting sketch of a visit to Mrs. Kate Cleveland, the clairvoyant. She is the daughter in-law of Mr. Giles Cleveland, of this village and frequently visits Tecumseh.

Mrs. Obenaur gave a very entertaining lecture at the Opera House last Friday evening, but the attendance was not what it should have been. Her lecture in the afternoon was a private one to mothers only.

We acknowledge the receipt of a complementary ticket to the July races of the Detroit Driving Club, which will take place on July 24th to July 28th inclusive. One of the best meetings ever held is anticipated.

Our old friend, Brock Anderson, sends us a copy of the San Jose Mercury, containing a history of Santa Clara County and a discription of the great Lick Observatory. It shows the wonderful growth of that county during the past thirty six years.

The September and November numbers of Harper's Magazine, belonging to the Ladies' Library are missing. The person who has them is requested to return them at once. The Librarian is anxious to get all the numbers together in order to have them bound.

S. P. Hosmer is making quite a specialty of furnishing private libraries with sets of books. He recently purchased for Dr. Jenkin's private library, 100 volumes of "Ancient and Modern Classics." This set would be a valuable addition to any library and it was furnished very cheap.

The Albion College year-book is gotten up on a new plan. It is divided into four parts. The first two treat of important educational questions of a general character; part three treats of the appliances and work at Albion College; part four contains the catalogue of the college. Teachers will find it a valuable book to peruse.

We are indebted to the author, Henry C. Wiesinger for a copy of his latest composition entitled "Soudaness," à danse moderne for the piano forte. It is dedicated to Miss Octa E. Wise, and published by Ollie Hunt. It is wholly a Lenawee County production and our musically inclined citizens should all take a pride in it.

Here is a hint to path masters, taken from the Highway law.

Every overseer shall cause the obnoxious weeds within the limits of the highways within his district to be cut down and destroyed twice in the year, once before the first day of July and again before the first of September, and the requisite labor shall be considered highway work; once in every month, from the first day of April to the first day of December, shall cause all the loose stones lying on the beaten track of every road lying within his district to be removed. Any overseer who shall refuse or neglect to perform the duties required by this section shall be liable to a penalty of $25.

Miss Clara Woodard, died at her home in Tecumseh, July 4th, 1888. Miss Woodard was born in Vienna, Oneida County, N. Y. June 17, 1844. In consequence of a severe and long continued strain, in caring for an invalid sister, her constitution became seriously impaired at the age of fourteen, and she never regained good health. The last three years of her life she was unable to walk or to converse except in whispers, and was a great sufferer. Her friends had her taken to Detroit, and subsequently to Ann Arbor for medical treatment, and she appeared to be rapidly improving until a few days before her death. Miss Woodard became religious in early life, and united with the Methodist Episcopal church, of which she continued a faithful member until her death. Her faith was strong, her experience clear, her spirit meek and resigned to the will of God. The funeral services were held in the family home, conducted by the pastor of the M. E. church and were largely attended by relatives and friends. The aged mother, now in her ninety-third year, feels very lonely, but manifests wonderful fortitude.

DEATH OF HON. JOHN J. ADAM.

Another honored citizen and pioneer has stemmed the tide of time and entered the realms of eternity. On the 4th day of July 1826, John J. Adam, [illegible] sail from his native Scotland to seek his fortune in the New World, and on the 4th of July 1888, just 62 years thereafter, he was gathered to his fathers. What eventful years they have been!

In forty six days after he embarked and bid his native land farewell, he landed at Baltimore, Md., having been forty two days out of the sight of land. Although still a mere boy in years, without friends and in a strange land, still he was endowed with a large fund of Scotch tenacity and pluck and he resolutely set to work to carve out his fortune. He had graduated with honor at the University of Glasgow and possessed an education far above the average of young men in that day. His first employment in this country was that of a teacher of languages and mathematics in Meadville Academy, Pa. In 1827 he returned to Scotland to assist in the settlement of his father's estate. A few months afterward, his elder brother, Thomas C. and himself returned to America and became connected with a paper published at Wilkesbarre Pa. In 1831 Mr Adam drifted West and took up land in the present township of Franklin. He taught the first school organized in Clinton. Upon the outbreak of the Black Hawk war, he became Lieutenant of a Franklin company, and was subsequently appointed division paymaster with the rank of Major. In 1835 he was elected one of the eight delegates from this county to the constitutional convention, and for three years thereafter he served as Secretary of the Senate. In these capacities he established a reputation of being an ardent worker and a man of excellent legislative and executive ability. In 1839 he was elected a member of the Lower House, and at the expiration of one term he was chosen to the State Senate. In January 1842 he was elected State Treasurer and held the position four years, when he resigned at the request of Gov. Barry to accept the position of Auditor General. After serving another term in the legislature, he was again chosen Auditor General and held that office until 1851. In 1853 he moved from his Franklin farm and took up his abode in this village, which has ever since been his home. In 1837 upon the establishment of the University of Michigan, he was appointed a member of the first Board of Regents. He was chiefly instrumental in establishing a branch of the University at Tecumseh, and when that was fairly started, he resigned his position in the regency to Dr. M. A. Patterson. No man in Michigan took a deeper interest in getting the University planted on a solid foundation than Mr. Adam, and he always felt an especial pride in that portion of his official life. His name is enrolled among the early friends and honored founders of that institution.

In 1853 Mr. Adam's life was diverted from a political into a business channel. In that year he became connected with the Mich. Southern Railroad, first acting as agent of the company in building the Jackson Branch, and afterwards in a similar capacity, supervising the construction of the Air Line and Detroit branches. He was then appointed auditor of the company, and served in that responsible position until 1868, when he resigned the trust and retired to his village home to spend the remainder of his days in comfort. Up to this time his life had been one of remarkable business and intellectual activity. Since that time he has led a more secluded and domestic life, although he has always taken much interest in public and village affairs, and gradually descended into a hale and hearty old age, respected by the entire community and beloved by all his friends. In the fall of 1870 he was again elected to the legislature and served one term in the Lower House. During this session he introduced many important measures and served upon some of the principal committees. He has always taken pride in historical and pioneer matters, having served frequently as an officer of the State Pioneer Society. In 1878 he was President of the State Society and was instrumental in bringing about a joint meeting of the State and County Societies in June of that year at Tecumseh which resulted in the largest pioneer gathering ever witnessed in this section of the state. In February 1878 he read before the state society a "Historical Sketch of Lenawee County," which has since been recognized as authority. It was the most exhaustive history of this county ever prepared by any one. In August 1838 the deceased was married to Armenia Bradley, daughter of Deacon William Bradley, of Franklin, who departed this life in July 1859. In November 1873, Mr. Adam married Mrs. Cornelia Wimple, a sister of his first wife. Of the first union were born two children, both of whom are now living and were present at their father's bedside during his final illness, Mrs. Mamie Blanchard, who lives at Lake View, a suberb of Chicago, and Chas. H. Adam, who lives in the city of Adrian.

Until within the last few months Mr. Adam was in the full enjoyment of his mental and physical powers, but during the present season he has been [illegible] weeks it has been apparent to all that the sands of his life were rapidly ebbing away. On Sunday July 1st, he suffered a stroke of paralysis, and continued to fail until Wednesday evening at 10 o'clock, when the spirit of the old pioneer bid a final adieu to its frail tenement of clay. The funeral services were conducted at the family residence on Friday afternoon by Rev. Wm. H. Babbitt, assisted by Rev. J. M. Gretchell, and were largely attended. E. J. Bidwell, N. M. Sutton, Wm. Hayden, John Whitenack, Geo. Heesen and Wm. H. Mather, officiated as pall bearers. The remains were deposited in the family lot in our beautiful evergreen cemetery.

In his domestic and business relations Mr. Adam was a model man. He was a gentleman of the old school. The Scotch tenacity and integrity, born within him, shaped his life's course to the end. He was faithful and upright in all official positions. He was a kind husband and an indulgent father at home. He was the soul of integrity and exactness in business affairs. He was an honored and enterprising citizen. How truly could the words of a noted author be said of him—"Age is not all decay; it is the ripening, the swelling of the fresh life within, that withers and bursts the husk." The last decade of his life—until a few short weeks before the end—was but a ripening and mellowing of the sturdy manhood which marked his earlier years. His name will be enrolled in the archives of Tecumseh's noblest citizens and his career will serve as an exemplar to the young men of this and future generations.

THE BAND REUNION.

The arrangements for the band reunion to be held here Aug. 16, are being perfected and the indications are that Tecumseh will listen to the music of about 20 bands on that date. The citizens are responding liberally to the call for aid and no trouble is anticipated from that quarter. The following committees have been appointed to act. The refreshment committee will, beside soliciting for eatables, have charge of the tables, and may appoint more help for that purpose.

President of Day—Capt. Fred B. Wood.

Chief Marshall—Capt Chas. Bidwell.

Aids—Geo. Burroughs, F. L. Silvers.

Finance Committee—S. W. Anderson, S. P. Hosmer and Ben J. Garlinghouse.

Decorating Committee—S. W. Bordine, W. C. Jordan, J. J. Orr, E. N. Satterthwaite and M. E. Conklin.

Transportation Committee—N. S. Satterthwaite, A. E. Kennedy.

Refreshment Committee—South of Chicago street and west of Evans street, Mrs. N. M. Sutton and Miss Etta Conklin; North of Chicago street and west of Evans street, Mrs. M. E. Corey and Mrs. A. P. Coddington; South of Chicago street and east of Evans street, Mrs. C. A. Wright and Mrs. F. Davidson; North of Chicago street and east of Evans street, Mrs. J. D. Shull and Mrs. F. C. Rector.

The Morenci roller mills have been shipping flour to Norfolk, Va.

Geo. W. Knapp and family, of Mt. Pleasant, are spending several days at the old home.

Mrs. Wm. Hayden and Mrs. Geo. Tiffany with a portion of their families took possession of their cottages at Sand Lake last week.

"What can I do for Monsieur?" he asked, smiling and rubbing his hands.

"I would like to see some wedding robes," replied the reporter.

"Thinking of getting married, eh?"

With an eye to business the dressmaker threw open the doors of several large wardrobes and the reporter gazed his fill admiration upon the number of magnificent wedding gowns.

"What do you charge for these dresses?"

"Well, they all bring different prices. This one," and the modiste lifted out a beautiful garment of white satin trimmed with lace, "is very beautiful. It cost $200, but all I charge for the use of it is $30. You see, I am content with small profits. This dress I have realized $150 on now, but it will stand six or seven more ceremonies."

"Of course I have cheaper gowns, but they are not much required, because when one gets married one may as well get a good article when it costs so little."

His Duty as He Saw It.

It was hard to decide whether the boy's companion was his mother or older sister, but pleasantly the former. At any rate the little fellow was in good company and the lady, whoever she was, was apparently pleased with her charge.

The conversation was about a book, and after they had been talking a little while, the lady said to him:

"I am very sorry you lent that book of papa's. You know he is very careful of his books and that one came home in such a dreadful condition. You should never lend what is not your own."

"I know," said the little fellow, "but what in the world are you going to do when you have got to do as you would be done by?"

Little Girls at Weddings.

The custom of having little girls in picturesque costume attend the bride to the altar is a charming fashion of English origin, but it may be attended with serious consequences, as a recent wedding proved.

Two small relatives of a bride were added to the bridal procession with pretty effect and all went well until the place in the ceremony was reached when the bride gives her bouquet to a bridesmaid. Then each of the small girls demanded the bouquet.

Concealed the flowers from the other, and a genuine nursery quarrel arose, which lasted until the two bridesmaids were deprived of the contested bouquet.

As an incident, it was decidedly unique.—Boston Journal.

BEAUTY AND HEALTH.

A Belle's Successful Means of Preserving Them.

A famous Canadian beauty who boasts that she has never applied a particle of any cosmetic to her face, yet can keep her [illegible] some [illegible] attributes the secret of her good complexion the fact that her bathing is regular, methodical and judicious, that she never washes her face during the day, but cares for it thoroughly at fixed stated times.

On returning from a walk or drive she wipes every particle of dust from her face with a soft chamois leather and takes particular pains not to sit too near a fire or in a draft after exercise.

Another point upon which she dwells very strongly is the arrangement of her dressing room. There is nothing over luxurious to the eye in the simple, well-ventilated and unadorned room.

Miss — understands thoroughly the advantage of not bathing in her sleeping apartment and having her sponges, towels, etc., as well aired as though they were articles of dress. Her tub is cleansed thoroughly each day, the water used is always fresh as possible and the shelf containing the articles used in her toilet is in a well-ventilated high part of the wall, and only a small quantity of any article is kept at a time, since almost anything too long corked loses its best qualities, even distilled water absorbing some germs of unpleasantness if retained too long.

The sponges in this room, three in number, are hung from a projecting strip of wood. They are never exposed to the sun by way of sweetening them, according to the erroneous notion of so many people, and they are never left in the water after use, except a short one in two weeks, when they are boiled in a basin of fresh water, then a single [illegible] added for purposes of thorough cleansing.

Now let us see what are the toilet articles in this fairy beauty's dressing room. First, a [illegible] water, [illegible] and [illegible]. [illegible] Very [illegible] water and [illegible] the [illegible] completely wash and [illegible] the [illegible] work of [illegible] would make the hands sad, and then [illegible] over hands.

Before dressing for dinner or an evening [illegible] sponge. Not one speck of the [illegible] being left on the skin, [illegible] quickly [illegible] the pores [illegible] chill.

Returning to her dressing room, the night bath is taken, with which glycerine and rose water are mingled, and the ablution is followed by a gentle friction, the face after being thoroughly washed—especially about the roots of the hair—is subjected to a rapid and soft rubbing, after which a sponge soaked in very hot water is quickly passed over it for the purpose of reopening the thoroughly cleansed pores.

A CHOICE OF EVILS.

One Way of Getting a Railroad Pass.

The heavy-hearted villain of the stranded Comedy Company walked boldly into the office of the railroad superintendent, and greeted that responsible dignitary with a familiar nod.

Undaunted by the unmoved look in the eyes of the stiff-necked official, he introduced his business without waiting to be prompted.

"Say! I want you to give me a pass to Boston."

"A pass?—to Boston? What for, sir?"

"Because I live down that way."

"That may be, sir; but what claim have you in this road? We can't do it for you?"

The villain hesitated, but was not lost.

"See here! Where are the overseers of the poor in this town?"

"Well, I happen to be one of them my self. Why?"

"Then I want you to send me to the poorhouse. I'm a pauper, and I'm just going to put myself on this town. Show's busted; I haven't a cent, and if you can't give me a pass I can't get away. Guess I'll go to the poorhouse until the season opens and I can get another job. Look after me as soon as you can, please, because I want to wash up and get something to eat. What do you say?"

"Mr. Pentholder, give this man a pass to Boston."

Anecdote of Lincoln.

President Lincoln was asked what he would do with Jeff Davis if the latter was caught.

To which Lincoln replied:

"I should feel very like the boy with the raccoon."

"What was that?"

"Well, I once saw a boy crying with a raccoon, and I asked him what was the matter. He said it was about the raccoon; that he didn't want to sell it; that he couldn't give it away; that he didn't want to kill the darned thing; and that mother wouldn't let him take it home."

Ready-Witted Devotions.

An amusing story is told of the Rev. Myron Reed, of Colorado, who once ran as the Democratic Congressional candidate in that State.

It seems that during the canvass the reverend gentleman was interrupted in the midst of a public prayer by a man who shouted "Louder!"

Reed stopped short, looked at the interrupter and said coolly:

"I wasn't addressing you, sir. I was addressing the Almighty."

Then he went on with his prayer.

Dry and Dusty.

Brown—"Have you got a quarter about you, Robinson?"

Robinson—"Certainly."

Brown—"Thanks, I'm just back from the races, and I want to get a drink and have my boots shined."

GOD'S GREAT PROMISE.

LESSON III, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JULY 15.

The Text of the Lesson

EXODUS, CHAPTER XXXIII. Golden Text, Matt. xxiii, 20—Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Moses is now for the sixth time in the mount with God. After the Levites had slain about three thousand because of the sin concerning the golden calf Moses said: "Ye have sinned a great sin, and now I will go up unto the Lord. Peradventure I shall make an atonement for your sin." (Ex. xxxii. 30.) How glorious to see Jesus Christ, the prophet like unto Moses, ascending up to God, having made atonement for the sins of the whole world (I John ii. 2), a sufficient atonement for all, but efficient only for those who truly receive Him. In verse 11 it is writtten, "The Lord spake unto Moses face to face as a man speaketh unto his friend," not that Moses saw God, for "no man hath seen God at any time" (John i, 18), and verse 20 of our lesson today, "There shall no man see Me and live," but the intercourse of Moses with God was as a man with his friend. Since Jesus has died and risen again, and is at the Father's right hand for us who believe in Him, our intercourse with God through Christ ought surely to be as with a friend; but how few seem to know Him thus intimately; even His own redeemed seem more interested in decking these mortal bodies and in becoming intimate with sinners like themselves.

12. "Bring up this people." When God sent Moses unto Pharaoh, and Moses said, "Who am I that I should go unto Pharaoh, and that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt?" God said unto him, "Certainly I will be with thee" (Ex. iii, 10-12); but because of their sin, God had now said that He could not go up in the midst of them, lest He consume them (v. 3), and it is for this reason that Moses now pleads for a guide and a deliverer. He pleads what God has said: "I know thee by name, and thou hast also found grace in my sight." This is safe pleading, and sure of success. In Isa. lxii, 6 (marginal reading), we are called "the Lord's remembrances," and are urged to plead His promises; and again, in Isa. xliii, 26, He says: "Put me in remembrance: let us plead together." The promises of God are bank checks which we are to indorse and present for payment, sure that they will be honored; for "all the promises of God in Jesus Christ are yea, and in Him Amen, unto the glory of God by us." (II Cor. i, 20.)

13. "Show me now the way, that I may know thee." It seems strange to hear one with whom God spoke face to face, praying to know Him; it seems strange to hear Paul praying "that I may know Him" (Phil. iii, 10); but there is more in "knowing God" than appears at first sight, and it is only those who know Him best, as we think, who feel in their hearts that they know Him so little. Jesus said: "This is life eternal, to know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." (John xvii, 3.) Not to know about Him, but to know Him personally, intimately, as our own God and Father, and Jesus as our own Saviour and Brother.

14. "My presence shall go with thee, and I will give thee rest." "The angel of His presence saved them; in His love and in His pity He redeemed them." (Isa. lxiii, 9.) Faithfully remarked that if the promise contained in our Golden Text for today was more fully understood and appreciated, believers would be filled with power to serve Christ and would prove true fellow laborers with God. His presence means fullness of joy and perfect peace and rest. Why, then, have we not this power and joy and rest? Simply because Israel's sin is our sin; "they tempted God, they spoke against God, they believed not in God, and trusted not in His salvation." (Ps. lxxviii, 18, 19, 22.)

15. "I and thy people." Twice in this verse we have this expression showing how Moses identified himself with the nation. The Spirit of God identifies Himself with us by becoming a man, partaker of flesh and blood, and in all points tempted like as we are, calling us His brethren. (Heb. ii, 11.)

16. "Thou hast found grace in my sight, and I know thee by name." This is the fifth time in this lesson for the first part of this sentence, and the second time for the last part. The name in Scripture, seems to indicate character, what the person is, and that implies capacity, or what the person does. The name of the Lord in xxxiv, 6, 7, confirms this view, also Gen. xxxii, 27, 28, where Jacob supplanter becomes Israel, a prince of God; and many other passages might be referred to.

19. "Gracious to whom I will be gracious." "He doeth according to His will in the army of heaven, and among the inhabitants of the earth; and none can stay His hand, or say unto Him, What doest thou?" (Dan. iv. 35.) It is not for the clay to find fault with the potter; but oh, how we should rejoice that He is not willing that any should perish (II Pet. iii, 9), and has said: "Him that cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out." (John vi, 37.) "Whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." (Rev. xxii, 17.) I know of nothing to prevent any one receiving His grace now and His glory by and by but their own unwillingness.

20. "Thou canst not see My face; for there shall no man see Me and live;" "Dwelling in light unapproachable, whom no man hath seen or can see." (I Tim. vi, 16, R. V.) "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." "They saw God and did eat and drink." (Matt. v, 8; Ex. xxiv, 11.) There are some apparent contradictions in the book, but no real ones; some things hard to be understood, which many wrest to their own destruction. There is milk for babes and meat for those of full age, and abundance of light for all. "Now we see in a mirror, darkly; but then face to face; now I know in part; but then shall I know fully, even as also I have been known fully." Let us yield our bodies a living (I Cor. xiii, 12, R. V.) sacrifice, not conformed to this world, separated unto Christ and His service, having clean hands and a pure heart and an eye to His glory in everything; thus will our whole bodies be full of light and soon shall we see Jesus.

21. "Thou shalt stand upon the rock." (R. V.) "He set my feet upon the rock and established my going." (Ps. xl, 3.) "The Lord is my rock." (Ps. xviii, 12.) "That rock was Christ." (I Cor. x, 4.) If we are doers of the word we are building on the rock, but if we are only hearers we are building on the sand and shall surely perish. (Matt. vii, 21-27). We cannot help others out of the mire unless our own feet are firmly planted on the rock; and if the mire is still on our feet, while we may not fall off we are apt to slip.

22. "In a cleft of the rock." The name "Rock of Ages" is found in the marginal reading of Isaiah xxvi, 4. To see the rock, or know of it, is not sufficient; we must stand on it, relying wholly upon the merits of the Lord Jesus Christ. Then we are taught that we are also "in Christ," chosen, accepted, blessed with all spiritual blessings in Him. (Eph. i, 3-6.) "Preserved in Jesus Christ." (Jude 1.)

Newspapers can no more exist without patronage than the merchant can without trade. That's the reason why The Homer Herald came to an early and untimely death.

Three lisping boys, [illegible] from 8 to 12 years old), named Grass, seem to have been turned out to pasture early in life, as they were detected in trying to rob a house there one day last week.

A $12,000 fire played smash with Kenyon's dry goods business and the grocery stock of L. L. Flint, two of Dundee's merchants. Light insurance.

Stark Durfee, who died at Plymouth at the age of 74 years, had been a Wayne county citizen for sixty-one years. He never had a lawsuit, although one of his ten children was a capable attorney.

Let those who seek office just for the "honor" of the position beware of the fate of John Pridgeon, Jr., mayor of Detroit. By virtue of, his official position Mr. P. was obliged to attach his autograph to city bonds that made it necessary to write his name 30,500 times. Think of an official task like that.

Good common sense seems to be terribly scarce in spots in this world. A couple of Lenawee county farmers couldn't agree as to which one of the two should repair a gap in a line-fence, and so they've been indulging in lawsuits over the matter.

John Prince, a Whitehall denizen, gave his wife a drubbing because she preferred to attend a different church than the one at which he worshiped. Seems as though we had read somewhere about religion making its followers "first pure, then peaceable."

A Lakeview dealer was comforted during the hot June wave by an order from Pennsylvania for 20,000 snow-shovels, a sort of happy reminder of the coming January blizzard.

John Murphy, the bad boy of Grand Rapids, who assaulted two little girls, has been given a steady job of ten years at the Jackson prison.

Leslie's Baptist church has struck a new light. It will be kept radiant by a $125 chandalier.

The sidewalks of Muskegon, the city of sawdust, slabs and sand, are said to be so poor as to be positively dangerous for pedestrians.

Mr. Westfall, the Ithaca man accused of taking money not his own from the American Express company at that place, was honorably acquitted by a jury of his peers.

Mrs. William Pettit, of Grand Rapids, showed her wifely devotion by pawning her sewing machine to raise money with which to pay a fine imposed upon her husband for cruelly beating her. There's some things that are beyond the ken of our philosophy, and this is one of 'em.

Mary Jane Miller, a resident of Grand Rapids, has been granted a divorce because her liege lord was too almighty stingy to feed and clothe her. Here's hoping that Mary Jane may have better luck the next time she tries the matrimonial lottery.

Dunham, Peters & Co., East Saginaw lumbermen, have been informed by a jury that a $3,500 cash payment to Will E. Smith, who lost his hand in their mill a year or so ago, will be a just and proper thing to do.

A Manistee man is the owner of a cute cat. The feline discovered its master's store on fire the other night, and by a succession of nocturnal screeches, as only a healthy cat can make, awoke him in time to give an alarm and save his property.

Robert Hunt, a Hohe River farmer, bored a deep well and got such a bad smelling article (good enough water for that it is not claimed) that it is not claimed to be almost every form of disease. At any rate, a number of his sick neighbors drank of it and were quickly cooled on the double spot, but were necessarily cured of all other ailments.

The preliminary contestor of Poppinaw, who [illegible] twenty years ago, used to take the prizes in a tannery and lodge in the pauper cemetery. A great fate is doubtless in store for him.

Fire got in $3,000 worth of work on R. C. Gravel's south block and cooper shops at Port Huron. The proprietor was in Washington territory at the time. No insurance.

Dr. Kendal Brooks, formerly of Kalamazoo, is in demand. Alma college wants him for a professorship, and Oakland (Cal.) university has a similar position it would gladly have him fill.

Charles Freeber, a young man working on a farm in Washington county, took along a gun when going to his work the other morning, for the purpose of bagging some red squirrels, but the gun shot the wrong way, and Charles, and not the squirrels, was killed.

Weddings do not always pass off as "merry at a marriage bell." One at Crystal Falls ended in a murderous row, Jacob Bender being fatally injured.

Anthony Grohman, a farmer of Saginaw county, is the owner of a calf that closely resembles a sheep. Its pelt is covered with wool instead of hair.

More and more the people are coming to appreciate the value of a season of rest during the heated term. Fifty new cottages have already been built at Bay View this season.

Columbiaville thinks herself a right lively wood market, her buyers taking in 100,000 pounds in a single week.

A 3-year old colt, the property of William Rolfe, of Vevay, had a fit of the "blues," and going to a creek near by, waded in, lay down and held its head under water until the last spark of life had fled.

The principal street of Ironwood is used as a race track, the common council voting money for its improvement for that purpose.

A colored child carried off the first prize at a Boyne City baby show, and the ma's of the white entries are sad beyond expression.

A wild man is rambling around loose in St. Clair county, greatly to the dismay of the small boy who has a moonlight eye on the watermelon patch.

At Harbor Springs man, a namesake of David of old, narrowly escaped lynching for assaulting his little niece, 8 years old. The time may come when such brutish practices will be decidedly unhealthy.

Lansing has a model mayor who evidently considers a "public office is a public trust." A resolution of the city council to increase certain salaries, including his own which was to be doubled, was promptly vetoed by that official.

A Kalamazoo man who captured an escaped lunatic from the asylum there, was rewarded by the payment of a single dollar. And the Kazoo man says that the next time [illegible]

Three years ago Noah Rupie, of Ypsilanti, lost his barn by lightning and [illegible] ward rebuilt on the same site. A year or so later the electric fluid struck the new barn, reducing it to ashes. Still another barn was built on the same spot and the other day lightning got in its work on the end of the third building. Rupie seems to be located in a streak of bad luck.

The family of C. H. Butler, of Alma, is in mourning. Death entered the household and carried away their pet cat, 21 years old.

Ishpeming has a lady barber and she has proven that there is another avenue to a livelihood that's open to women. But the male members of the craft there are having a hard row to hoe, which shows that the lady is appreciated in her new position.

A Girl Ruined by Her Mother.

DETROIT, Mich., July 9.—A girl named Ismie Martin, 16 years old, the daughter of a builder until recently prosperous, has recently been detected in the passing of a forged check upon M. S. Smith & Co., the leading jewelers of this city, and in other irregular transactions. The total amount involved is not great, but the youth of the girl and the great ingenuity shown indicated an older head behind the child. It has been developed that the mother has for years been in the habit of ordering goods from merchants on approval or other pretexts, and retaining them, and that the girl has been her agent in many of these purchases.

Death of Hon. John J. Adam.

ADRIAN, Mich., July 6.—Hon. John J. Adam died at his home in Tecumseh, aged 80. He was born in Paisley, Scotland, educated at Oxford, came to America in 1826, taught languages and mathematics at Mendelville academy, and came to Michigan in 1831. From 1834 to 1845, when he resigned, he was general auditor of the Lake Shore road, and during his [illegible] has been member of the legislature, state senator, auditor general, and regent of the university. He was both an able and universally popular man.

Lake City, Mich., Nearly Wiped Out.

LAKE CITY, Mich., July 8.—Fire started in Cairns' livery room at midnight and soon spread and practically wiped out the business department. Aid was promptly sent from Cadillac and the fire controlled after a loss of $75,000 had been sustained. A pile of kindling, well soaked, was found in the rear of the Vanderside building, giving rise to a strong suspicion that the school was set on fire. Most of the merchants will rebuild at once. Lake City is the county seat of Missaukee county.

A New Railway in Michigan.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 8.—The new Grand Rapids, Lansing & Detroit railroad is completed and the first train with Manager Munik and a party of friends arrived in this city Saturday, traveling one stretch of eleven miles in twelve minutes. Regular trains, three daily, will begin running July 15.

Burned to Death in Her Bed.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., July 6.—Mary Paine, an Englishwoman, was burned to death while asleep in her room in her house on the outskirts of the city. The burning took fire from a smoking pipe in the house and was quickly extinguished. The woman's husband escaped, but [illegible] the flames of his wife.

Called an Extra Session.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 9.—Governor Hill [illegible] Alma session of the legislature [illegible] 1 o'clock p. m.

It is understood that the sole object of the extra session is to provide an appropriation to prevent prisoners in the various state prisons remaining in idleness after July 15, when the appropriations now available for the purpose of their employment will have been exhausted, the last legislature having neglected to make the necessary appropriations.

Robert Garrett Coming Home.

NEW YORK, July 7.—A special from London says that Robert Garrett and party left for Liverpool, their party having taken passage on the Umbria, which sails for New York. Garrett looked in better health than he has appeared for years, and has thoroughly enjoyed his trip around the world, which has been so beneficial to him. He looks ruddier now than at any time since the death of his father, when the management of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad devolved upon him.

Train Wreckers Kill Three Men.

JOLIET, Ill., July 7.—The Elgin, Joliet & Eastern railroad has a line from Joliet to Aurora, and is building a branch from near Plainfield to Elgin. While the construction train was bringing in its employes to Plainfield, the train struck some planks supposed to have been placed on the track by persons who oppose the road. Three Italians were killed, and Engineer Tom Knight went over with his engine, being scalded on back, breast, and neck.

An Old Lady Walks Off a Train.

KINGSTON, Can., July 7.—An old lady, 73 years of age, en route to Detroit in charge of her granddaughter, walked off the Grand Trunk road express between Prescott and Cardinal. The train was making forty-five miles an hour. She was found and removed to Prescott. She is greatly injured. Her name can not be obtained.

Killed in a Saloon Brawl.

LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., July 7.—A crowd of drunken roughs tried to force an entrance to the saloon of Thomas Tierney at 2 o'clock in the morning for the purpose of getting liquor. Tierney appeared on the scene, and, in defence of his property, fired into the crowd, killing Richard Owens and fatally wounding Cornelius Walsh.

A Measure Gladstone Supported.

LONDON, July 7.—In the commons Fenwick, Liberal, introduced a resolution in favor of paying salaries to members, which Gladstone supported. It was rejected by a vote of 192 to 135.

Election Riots in Belgium.

BRUSSELS, July 10.—Election riots have occurred at Boom, Belgium. The gendarmes fired upon the mob. Many persons received bayonet wounds.

A PLAIN ANSWER

Lord Palmerston's Method of Silencing Troublesome Questioners.

When assailed by inconvenient questions [illegible] even though he seem for the moment at a disadvantage.

While electioneering on one occasion, Lord Palmerston was greatly annoyed by a butcher who wished him to support a specified Radical policy. At the end of one of his lordship's speeches the butcher called out:

"Lord Palmerston, will you give me a plain answer to a plain question?"

"I will."

"Will you or will you not support that measure?"

Lord Palmerston hesitated, and then replied, with a twinkle in his eyes, "I will—" There he stopped, and the Radicals cheered tremendously.

"Not—" continued his lordship, and loud Tory cheers arose.

When these ceased Lord Palmerston finished his sentence—"tell you."

And they were all as wise as before.—Youth's Companion.

Recognizing a Good Article.

A story is told of a certain ex-member of Congress from a Western State, which comes under the classification of interesting if true. A number of his colleagues who had undertaken to entertain him shortly after he took his seat in the National Capitol took him down to one of the leading hotels of Washington, where elaborate arrangements had been made for a dinner.

The courses were served, but nothing seemed to strike him with especial force until a bottle of champagne was brought in. He emptied the glass, handed it back for more, and as he set it down again remarked:

"By gosh, boys, that is without doubt the best ginger ale I ever sampled."

ALUM BAKING POWDERS.

There are doubtless many other brands of alum baking powder besides those so far examined and named by the authorities. Most of the baking powders sold in bulk, by weight, and all sold with a gift or present, are said to be of this description.

Prof. H. A. Mott, United States Government Chemist, says: "In my opinion the use of alum as a constituent of a baking powder should be prohibited by law."

Inherited Diseases.

No fact of nature is more prominent with awful meaning than the fact of the inheritance of disease.

Modern science, which has illuminated so many dark corners of nature, has shed a new light on the ominous words of the Scriptures, "The sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children unto the third and fourth generation." Fifty percent of cases of consumption, cancer and scrofula run in families through inherited tendency, sometimes in a manner direct, but more frequently some other seemingly unrelated disease, lying in wait for the victim, comes to wear itself out, the stock becoming extinct. A distinguished scientist truly says: "No organ or part of the body is exempt from the chance of being the subject of hereditary disease." Probably more chronic diseases, which permanently modify the structure and functions of the body, are more or less liable to be inherited. The important and far-reaching practical deductions from such facts are obvious to reflecting minds, and the best means for preventing or curing these diseases is a subject of intense interest to all. Fortunately nature has provided a remedy, which experience has attested as infallible, and the remedy is the world-famous Swift's Specific, a pure vegetable compound—nature's antidote for all blood poisons. To the afflicted it is a blessing of inestimable value. An interesting treatise on "Blood and Skin Diseases" will be mailed free by addressing

Vines grow winding round sticks, and it is, therefore, no wonde that a man who takes too many sticks should go zigzag home.

Until the blood is cleansed of impurities, it is useless to attempt the cure of any disease. Rheumatism, which is traceable to an acid in the blood, has been cured, in numerous cases by the use of Ayer's Sar-aparilla, external treatment being of no avail.

Experience has demonstrated that Ely's Cream Balm is the best catarrh remedy in use. My daughter, who is a sufferer from that miserable disease, is much better by the use of one bottle.—Dr. R. A. Schouten, Druggist, 758 So. Division St. Grand Rapids, Mich.

For twenty years I have suffered from catarrh. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm of J. Dawson & Son, which has so effectually cured my headache that I feel altogether a new man. I have recommended it to many with like good results.—M. M. Rez, D. D. S., Rochester, Ind.

A FAVORITE WITH THE FAIR SEX.

Papillon (extract of flax) Skin Cure is superior to all the much-advertised skin beautifiers with the advantage of being beneficial, and not like the mineral preparations usually sold which are very poisonous. It will remove all inflammation, chafing and roughness of the skin, sunburn, freckles and unseemly blotches, and leave the cuticle fair and soft as an infant's. An actual necessity for the complete toilet table. Large bottles only $1.00.

ALLEGED DYNAMITERS.

A Plot to Blow Up the C. B. & Q. Office Building at Chicago.

THREE MEN CAUGHT WITH DYNAMITE

They Are Arrested on a Train and One of Them Throws a Letter Out of the Window—It Is Recovered and Is Said to Contain Damaging Evidence Involving the Engineers' Brotherhood.

Chicago, July 9.—Three men who were arrested on a Burlington train, are suspected of a plot to blow up the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy office building, and these suspected have been arrested. Positive information is said to have been received yesterday of a scheme to blow up the company's property, and a detective was put on the case. Mr. Stone, of the company, was notified, and the three men were shadowed. They were arrested on a train within the city limits, and there suspected have been carefully watched. [illegible] July 5 [illegible] of the town. During all this time the two men were in possession of full credentials from the brotherhood—letters of introduction, etc.—and such were found on them when arrested.

Broderick, on going to the train at Aurora on Thursday afternoon, went to the hall of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, [illegible] was met and taken by him, [illegible] and [illegible] the train was [illegible]. This [illegible] dynamite had been taken by John A. Bauerson, spoken of as being the chief engineer of the brotherhood on the Aurora division, to the Brotherhood hall for Broderick. He was therefore arrested by the United States marshal as an accomplice.

Mr. Stone then gave the press the following circular, which he said was issued as it purports to have been:

[illegible]

[illegible] July 10.—The sixth man has been added to the list of accused, the United States marshal having gone to Aurora and arrested George Golding, a [illegible] engineer, on the same charge as the others. He was put under bond of $[illegible], and not being able to supply it was committed. [illegible] being taken there he was [illegible] for a long time with the companies' officers and railway officials, but what was said is a profound secret. Golding, [illegible] actually put in jail. He was [illegible] of a marshal, and says he did get [illegible] and this fact has started the rumor that he has made a "statement" to the officers. The railway people say nothing further which is known until the trial Friday.

[illegible] says he does not know Golding. He also said that if the men under bond are really the brotherhood has nothing to do with them, but if they are not guilty they will be defended by the brotherhood.

He was asked: "What is there in your association [illegible] that there may be a general [illegible] of the engineers?"

[illegible] further than that if the [illegible] brotherhood would be a complete success [illegible] Arthur [illegible] would have [illegible] in the country. I think [illegible] will be arrested. They [illegible] further and [illegible] Saturday, and that's far enough.

SHERIDAN REACHES NONQUITT.

The Voyage Leaves Him in Good Condition—His Disembarkation.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., July 9.—The Saxonia came to anchor off the village at 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon after a run of seven hours from New London. About two hours afterward Gen. Sheridan was brought ashore without any apparent discomfort, and is now in his own cottage. He was somewhat restless Saturday night, and consequently was rather nervous yesterday, nevertheless his circulation continues good and his general condition is quite as favorable as when he left the Capes of Delaware.

A large crowd of citizens and visitors watched the transfer of Gen. Sheridan from the Swatara to the shore. The general lay on a couch on a small boat which was towed by the Swatara's steam launch. When the boat reached shallow water a dozen sailors waded out and lifted the bed, bearing it carefully to the shore. Mrs. Sheridan and two Sisters of Charity, who have faithfully attended the general, were brought ashore first, and were ready to receive and care for the patient as soon as he was safely borne to the cottage. The general is much pleased with his new quarters. He wanted to inspect the whole cottage as soon as he arrived, but the doctors would not let him leave the bed.

Nominations Sent to the Senate.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 10.—The president sent the following nominations to the senate yesterday: John A. Keatley, of Iowa, for judge of Alaska; Elliott Sandford, of New York, chief justice of the supreme court of Utah, and Charles H. Berry, of Minnesota, associate justice of Idaho. Postmasters: Indiana—Patrick H. Wilson, Worthington; W. Swain, Connersville; J. R. Williams, Danville. Iowa—W. Marshall, Farmington; D. H. Carroll, Cobden. Iowa—M. Cooper, Forest City; J. R. Savage, Marshalltown. Wisconsin—C. F. Kalk, Cumberland; F. Swain, Washburn; J. R. Matthews, Menomonee.

Hewitt Has No Bee in His Bonnet.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Mayor Hewitt, when shown the San Francisco dispatch stating that the American party state convention of California favored his nomination for president, said: "I would not accept any nomination for the presidency under any circumstances."

A QUESTION OF HEALTH.

What Baking Powder Shall We Use?

This plain question comes home to every housekeeper. We all desire pure and wholesome food, and this cannot be had with the use of impure [illegible] cannot be longer a question of cost, as the cheapest, most grateful of baking powders, cream of tartar alum, lime or phosphatic acid. As much as we may be to admit so much against what may have been some of our household gods, there can be no gainsaying the unanimous testimony of the official chemists. Indeed, it would seem to find no bank powder entirely free from some one of these objectionable articles. Adopt the test and then you may report to others your judgment. We find some of the baking powders advertised as pure, to contain, under the tests of Professors Chandler, Mater-haw and others, nearly twelve per cent. of lime, while others are made from alum with no cream of tartar. This, we presume, accounts for their lack of leavening power as sometimes complained of by the cook, and for the bitter taste found in the biscuits so frequently complained of by ourselves.

But aside from the inferiority of the work done by these powders, the physicians assure us that lime and alum taken into the system in such quantities as these are injurious. Their physiological effects are indigestion, dyspepsia, or worse evils.

The question naturally arises, why do these cheap baking powder makers use these things? Alum is three cents a pound, lime still cheaper, while cream of tartar costs thirty-five or forty. The reasons for the chemical purity of the Royal Baking Powder were recently given in the New York Times in an interesting description of a new method for refining crude, or argolic cream of tartar. It seems that it is only under this process that cream of tartar can be freed from the lime natural to it and rendered chemically pure; that the patents and patent for this cost the Royal Baking Powder Company about half a million dollars, and that they maintain exclusive control of the rights.

Professor McMurtrie, the chief chemist of the Department of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C., made an examination of this process, and reported upon the results attained in the refined cream of tartar. The following extract from his report would seem to answer the question repeated at the head of this article, and which is so frequently propounded by the housekeeper:

"I have examined the cream of tartar used by the Royal Baking Powder Company in the manufacture of their baking powder, and find it to be perfectly pure and free from lime in any form. The chemical tests to which I have submitted the Royal Baking Powder prove it perfectly healthful and free from every deleterious substance. The Royal Baking Powder is purest in quality and highest in strength of any baking powder of which I have knowledge."

One Cent a Day.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

announces the reduction of its price from Two cents to ONE CENT per copy.

It is fitting that the pioneer of low-priced journalism in the West should lead in placing the American newspaper of to-day upon the basis of the lowest unit of American coinage. Twelve years ago that unit was the nickel in Chicago and throughout the Northwest. The founding of THE DAILY NEWS at a lower price was regarded by the journalistic profession as inviting certain failure. But they were wrong. To-day there is not a nickel paper in Chicago, and the circulation of THE DAILY NEWS averages, as shown by its published sworn statements, 175,000 copies a day—with a single exception the largest daily circulation in America, and greater than the circulations of all other Chicago dailies combined.

THE DAILY NEWS has prospered beyond the most sanguine hopes of its founders. For this it has more than once made its grateful acknowledgments to an appreciative public. It believes, however, that the time has now come when, acting entirely within the limits of a wise commercial progression, it can give its thanks more practical expression. It proposes henceforth to "divide" as to its friends—and to multiply as to its circulation. To-day it reduces its price to One Cent—and expects to double its circulation.

And anticipating the questionings of the doubtful let it be briefly said that the thing can be done. THE DAILY NEWS—all that it has been in the past, as well as all that is rightly expected of it in the future as a leader in progressive American journalism—can be produced and sold for one cent a day and this by reason of those common principles of trade which make possible larger prices just in proportion as the aggregate volume of sales increases. THE DAILY NEWS now [illegible] million papers a week, as shown by its [illegible] sworn statements of circulation, and it can afford to sell at a smaller profit per paper than any other dailies, no one of which has as much as one-third the average daily circulation of THE DAILY NEWS. The large addition to its present million-a-week circulation, which will surely come with its reduction to one cent a day, will fully compensate for the reduced profit at which each paper is sold. All this concerns the reader only as assuring him that THE DAILY NEWS can reduce its price and at the same time maintain its high character as the foremost newspaper of the Northwest—that a million-a-week circulation makes the otherwise impossible entirely possible.

The present is peculiarly the time to inaugurate this popular departure in American journalism. The approaching Presidential election widens immeasurably the field and opportunity for THE DAILY NEWS as an independent, impartial, fearless newspaper—one free from all the entanglements of mere partisan allegiance. The demand is more and more for a newspaper which shall give all the political news free from partisan coloring, and which shall tell the absolute, unvarnished truth about things, regardless of its effect upon the fortunes of this or that political party or candidate. This demand THE DAILY NEWS aims to meet, and at its reduced price it combines all the elements which should make it literally everybody's paper.

To the thousands of new readers whose attention is now for the first time directed to THE DAILY NEWS it is proper to say that they will find it complete in all the essentials of the best American journalism of to-day. Its quality as a newspaper proper is best indicated in the fact that it is the only low-priced paper in Chicago or the Northwest, which is a member of the "Associated Press." The other "Associated Press" papers in Chicago, the Tribune, the Times and Inter-Ocean all cost three cents. THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS prints all the news and sells it for one cent a day. Sold by all news dealers. Mailed, postage paid, at $3.00 per year, or 25c. per month. Address VICTOR F. LAWSON, Publisher, THE DAILY NEWS, CHICAGO.

"Think of a Family

having the habit of daily converse with all the knowledge that is old enough to get into books"—your family!

You can bring that about, if you want to. Possibly some father or mother may read this, to whom it isn't true; but we doubt it.

Consider what it means. It means that you have a Cyclopedia in your living room, your evening family-room, the handiest place to get at when you want it; and when a subject comes up that one of the family wants to know more of, you turn to it in your Cyclopedia, just as you turn to a word in your dictionary.

This set of books can be the means of constant growth in knowledge, in use of the mind, in the habit of seeking light on whatever is dark, for you and your family, if you will have it so. Or you can neglect it as many neglect their dictionaries. All we said was that you have your choice.

You are thinking, "Can I get it?"

If you really want it, the very fact that you want it almost certainly puts it within your reach. We should like to see an exception or hear of one. We don't believe there is any.

If you desire the end, let us hear from you. You shall know the means.

The International Cyclopedia is one for you. Latest, most comprehensive; briefest, cheapest. These words lean on one another a little.

ADOPTED IN HOSPITALS AS THE BEST FOR INVALIDS.

Speer's Port Grape Wine!

FOUR YEARS OLD.

This celebrated wine is the pure juice of the dead ripe Oporto Grape, raised in Speer's vineyards, and left hanging until they shrink and become partly raisined before gathering. Its invaluable are unsurpassed by any other wine. Being produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal hospitals and boards of health who have examined it. The youngest child and the weakest invalids use it to advantage. It is particular beneficial to the aged and debilitated and suited to the various ailments that effect the weaker sex.

TONIC AND STRENGTHENING PROPERTIES

It is in every respect a WINE YOU CAN RELIED ON.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice.

Is the juice of the Oporto Grape preserved in its natural fresh, sweet state as it runs from the press by fumigation and electricity, thereby destroying the exciter of fermentation. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits and will keep in any climate.

Speer's (Socialite) Claret.

Is held in high estimation for its richness as a Dry Table Wine, especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry.

Is a wine of superior character and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's P. J. Brandy.

Is a pure distillation of the grape, and stands unrivalled in this country for medicinal purposes. It has a peculiar flavor, similar to that of the grapes from which it is distilled.

See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is over the cork of each bottle.

ESTATE OF JOHN BECKLEY.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—ss.

At a session of the Probate Court, for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Wednesday the 11th day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of John Beckley, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition duly verified of Margaret Beckley, widow of said deceased, praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that administration of said estate may be granted to George Smith the executor in said instrument named, or some other suitable person.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 6th day of August next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

Chas. Sturm has greatly improved the looks of his buildings on Jackson street.

Sunday was the time set when a general search was to be made for John Bunting, the would be murderer. Nearly 150 men were promptly on hand at the appointed hour and tho' every available spot was searched nothing was discovered, save that he was seen Wednesday by Martin Gray, crossing his farm. As Mr. Gray knew him well there can be no doubt but what he has left for unknown parts.

Instead of the expected game of ball Saturday, between what was called the Regulars and Has Beens, the spectators were given a fine exhibition of the popular game by the Manchester base ball players and the Clinton boys. Whilst the clubs were not wholly composed of members from the first nines, still they predominated. Girarden and Scofield was the battery for Manchester and Rogers, Sinclair and Seagrave for the Clinton's. The game abounded in brilliant plays. Seagrave caught a fine game making some phenomenal catches of foul tips and flies. When considered that this was his first game as catcher he played a wonderful game. The score was 7 to 4 in favor of Clinton. Manchester made her four runs in the first inning off Rogers, who was out of condition. Oley was then substituted and succeeded in giving them eight straight goose eggs. VanDuyn umpired a square game and gave perfect satisfaction.

NORTH EAST FRANKLIN.

The excitement here was at its height on Sunday. Upwards of two hundred people gathered, and under the lead of Sheriff Whitmore, Deputies Teachout, Smith and Aten, and officer Stevens, scoured the country for traces of John Bunting. They formed in line on the west side of section thirteen, the one on which Bunting's house stands, the men being about two rods apart, and went straight east through that and the next section, then turned and explored the two sections north in the same way. They found nothing. He is doubtless hundreds of miles away, having had plenty of time to escape before any alarm was given. Besides the searchers, throngs of people visited the scene, buggies coming and going all day.

In your last week's account some doubt is expressed of the criminal's sanity. In the immediate neighborhood he is considered as of sound mind, but jealous and revengeful in disposition. True he walked in the middle of the road where his footprints would show, but the blunder was in keeping with his whole character. He probably did not think about them. That the same man is guilty of all the misdeeds is evident from the tracks that were plainly traced to the different places where outrages were done or attempted. They were made by rubber boots and his are missing from the house. They have another peculiarity—that of pointing straight ahead, not having the toes turned out. It is well known that John Bunting walked that way.

At Mr. Eddy's the tracks, in going away, are sidewise as though he was looking back to see that his malignant attempt did not fail.

The relatives on both sides and the wife and children are people of the highest respectability, and much sympathy is expressed for them in this affliction, so much worse than death.

Some think that when Bunting started out, it was with the intention of killing himself, after disposing of those he considered enemies. He was certainly not liked in the neighborhood, but no one was an enemy, in the sense of desiring to injure him. Perhaps his courage failed, and perhaps he wanted to wait till he could finish his deadly work.

The question arises, What has he gained?" He has made himself an outcast on the face of the earth, with all the guilt of murder on his soul, yet without the satisfaction it would be to such a nature to have wrecked vengance on the objects of his hatred. Mr. Eddy alone is injured, so far, and he not in life or person, but all Bunting's old neighbors will breathe easier when the cowardly miscreant is safely lodged behind iron bars.

Since writing the above your correspondent has learned that dynamite to the amount of five pounds, has been found on a pile of stones on Bunting's west forty. What next?

WINE PURIFIED BY ELECTRICITY.

Captain Winchell, a well-known New York newspaper writer, lately returned from a two years trip to Florida, has been sojourning in Passaic for the past week. He dropped into Mr. Alfred Speer's wine vaults one day this week, and became enthusiastic over the purity and great popularity of his wines. Mr. Spear has achieved a success that is marvelous, and he is justly entitled to a reputation well earned after a long and experienced career. Over 20 years ago Mr. Speer, knowing the famous reputation of the grape wines of which the genuine port wine is made from the Douro Valley, in Portugal, obtained at considerable expense, 5,000 of the vines which he set out. He had great trouble in acclimatizing the vines, and finely, after eight years of much trial and labor got 200 under successful cultivation all others having died. From these he obtained layers from which he has propagated and formed his 40 acres of handsomely laid out vineyards. The Oporto grape is a small black variety very much in the shape and appearance of our native wild grape, sometimes called frost grapes. They are only fit for making wine, being too small for table use, as they contain iron and other medicinal properties, giving the wine a dark color and body, it has become valuable to physicians, who have always recommended it to invalids and others when it could be obtained pure. An article, labelled Port Wine, is extensively sold, but it is a dangerous liquid, and more injurious than beneficial, when adulterated with logwood and a hundred other drugs that are used to counterfeit the genuine article. Mr. Speer also makes a speciality of unfermented grape juice from this Oporto grape, for communion purposes, which he refines by electricity—a recent discovery of his own—which destroys the germ that scientists decide is the cause of fermentation, and the means by which alcohol is produced in wines. He also fumigates his barrels with sulphur, and by his process produces a pure, nutricious, unfermented wine, that has neither the taste nor smell of alcohol. His wines are sold in Dresden, Vienna and other parts of Europe, and are recommended by all leading physicians in this country. D. Cyrus Edson, Sanitary Superintendent of New York city, recommends it as one of the best and purest brands of wine that he uses. Doctor D. W. Bliss of Washington, our late President Garfield's physician J. G. Auber, A. S. Cozner and others speak of it in the highest terms. Mr. Speer, while showing Capt. Winchell through his vaults, brought him to a musty looking apartment, from which the cobwebs hung in such profusion as to almost impede locomotion. Here choice wines, thirty years old, were sampled from dingy and dirty looking bottles. While testing some 20 year old Port, Mr. Speer told a story about the late lamented Horace Greely, who had received some bottles of Scuppernong wine, made from the native grape in South Carolina, which Mr. Greely asked Mr. Speer to open and give his opinion of. Mr. Speer in drawing out the plugs, as the bottles were stopped with plugs instead of corks, saw that they were made of pitch pine, and knew that the pitch would destroy the flavor. Handing a glass of the wine to Mr. Greeley, the latter smacked his lips, and said, "Speer, what a queer taste it has. Take it away; I want my turpentine pure."—Passaic Daily News.

UNDER THE OCEAN'S WAVES.

A New Field for the Photographer—The Secrets of Nature Exposed to View.

"It will not be long," said a well-known scientific man to a reporter, "before we shall know almost as much about the bottom of the ocean as we do of its surface."

"What means will be employed to bring this about?"

"By means of the photographic camera, experiments with which are now being made.

"Thus far the best results have been obtained by the Swedish government, which has recently sent to Lieut. Arthur Haviland, at Washington, several specimens of deep-sea photography, which are the best yet obtained.

"The method of exposing the plates to the objects at the bottom of the ocean is decidedly ingenious. A camera strong enough to resist the pressure of the water at great depth is prepared, and an appliance for throwing out a strong electric light is connected with it, thus doing away with the necessity for sunlight, which, of course, could not be had at any great depth.

"Thus far the results obtained have not been of any real value to science, except to open up the possibilities for the future. Most of the plates display simply a tangled mass of vegetable growth, as if the camera had been put into a thick lot of underbrush and the plate had been exposed.

"Still, the comparatively unsatisfactory result is encouraging, and leads all scientific men to believe that before many years the floor of the ocean will not be an unknown land, as to a [illegible] at the present time."

Utilizing Pea Pods.

Dr. Jacobsen is authority for a ready method of utilizing the delicious marrow that lies among the fibres of the pea pod, and which is sweeter and better than the peas themselves.

He directs to boil the shells well in water, to which has been added a little carbonate of soda, then strain through a cloth, and, after adding some sugar to the liquid, boil it down till thick.

The extract thus obtained will keep for any length of time without becoming mouldy, and a teaspoonful of it added to a bowl of soup gives to it the flavor of fresh green peas, besides adding to its material quality.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, JULY 19

Strikes and lockouts were never known before the days of the present war tariff.

Thousands of dollars for capital and one dollar a day for brawn and sinew, is the present position of the Republican party.

The mugwump crop has grown prodigiously since the Chicago convention and the harvest will be a bountiful one in November.

President Cleveland keeps right along with his face to the future. His recent order extending the civil service rules is another long step towards genuine civil service reform.

One-tenth of the people only are protected by the present tariff while nine-tenths are unprotected. Tax reformers would not injure even the one-tenth, but they want justice and equity for the nine-tenths.

What has the American workingman to sell? His labor, and labor comes in without paying a tax of any kind. What does the American workingman buy? Taxed clothing, taxed tools, taxed lumber for his house, taxed stoves for his kitchen. This is the way the tariff protects labor.—Ex.

The Indianapolis Labor Signal says it will prove by ten creditable witnesses that Gen. Harrison did say "one dollar a day was enough for a workingman," but it wants something more than John C. New's word for the $1000 reward.

Mr. McKinley wishes to put the Chicago platform into operation at once and so urges an increase of the duty on pig iron. That's the talk. Plows, harrows, tools and implements are altogether too cheap now. By all means let the duty on pig iron be lifted ten per cent and thus protect the starving mill owners.

"Templeton," the Boston correspondent of the Hartford Courant, says that the tariff plank in the platform is a severe dose to the Massachusetts Independents, and while they respect Gen. Harrison's character, most of them will vote against him on this ground. He adds that there is a new class of mugwumps made by the tariff who perhaps will be more active in this campaign than they were in the other.

This is not a pedigree campaign but a campaign of square issues. The American people don't care what your grandfather was, or whether you ever had one. They want to know what you are going to do about the surplus. That fact can no more be concealed than a small boy can conceal the whooping cough.—Ex.

The New York Christian Union thus frankly states the relative positions of the two parties on the tariff:

	REP.	DEM
Tax on tobacco.	Abolish.	Modify.
Tax on alcohol	Reduce or abolish.	Retain
Tax on raw materials.	Retain.	Abolish.
Tax on necessities.	Retain.	Reduce.
Tax on luxuries.	Retain	Retain.
Chief object of tax.	Protection.	Revenue.
Expenditures.	Liberal.	Economical

If the voters were to hear hundreds of campaign speeches and wade through thousands of pages of campaign literature, they would know no more about the exact attitude of both parties on the tariff and revenue question that is presented in the foregoing brief lines. People who want the exact truth in few words, have it there.

"The free whiskey" plank of the Chicago platform was probably inserted to hold the Prohibitionists. Will it have that effect? On this point the Detroit Evening Journal very aptly says: "Some Republicans are hoping that the 'free whiskey plank' in the Republican platform will prevent any stampede of the prohibition Republicans from the party to the Prohibition ticket. But the 'free whiskey plank,' passed as an economical measure, will not compensate for the absence of all moral protest against the liquor traffic. This assence of all hostility to the traffic takes away the merit of the 'free whiskey' proclamation. The Prohibitionists do not favor the repeal of revenue taxes on liquor in order to reduce the surplus and retain the duties on importations as the Republicans do, but because they do not think the traffic ought to be recognized by the government as a legitimate business to be taxed at all. The Republicans treat the question as one of economic expediency; the Prohibitionists as a question of right and conscience.

A REPUBLICAN REVOLT.

I claim the privilege, as an old fashioned Lincoln Republican, to enter my earnest protest against its reactionary "plank" on the most controverted question of the hour. In 1884 the Re- [illegible] in favor of the revision of the tariff and the reduction of the enormous and dangerous surplus. But this year's Convention has strangely, declared in favor of the practical maintenance of the present exorbitant and oppressive war tariff, and in order to provide against the accumulation of a surplus, it suggests a repeal of the taxes on whisky and tobacco. Instead of taking off the burdens from many necessaries of life, it would give us free pipes and free whisky!

Six months ago Mr. Blaine, in his so called "message from Paris," very sagaciously said: "I would not advise the repeal of the whisky tax. There is a moral side to it. To cheapen the price of whisky is to increase its consumption enormously. There would be no sense in urging the reforms wrought by high license in many States, if the national Government neutralizes the good effect by making whisky within reach of every one at 20 cents a gallon. It would destroy high license at once in all the States." Very true, Mr. Blaine; and it would bring in a carnival of Beelzebub and Bacchus all over the land.

I am not the only dissentient against the extreme high tariff heresies of the late Convention. Many of the most powerful Republican journals are protesting against them, and such stanch and thoughtful Republicans as ex-Mayor Seth Low and R[illegible] Storrs, and many others of our [illegible]tizens, are in open revolt. [illegible] Dr. Storrs said to me yesterday, as he could not turn De[illegible], he should imitate Sambo in the story, and "take to the woods." If all of us Republicans who are opposed to free trade and free whisky, and yet are strenuously in favor of reducing the present outrageously oppressive tariff, should follow the example of Dr. Storrs, the "woods" will be pretty full by next November. The immense surplus in the national Treasury is fraught with increasing evils and dangers. There is a growing discontent among the intelligent working classes with high taxes on the necessaries of life. The many are now burdened for the benefit of the few. It is in the power of the Republicans in the present Congress to correct immediately many of the unjust features of this odious "war tariff," if they will act resolutely and boldly about it. They will thus "spike the guns" of the Free Traders. They will neutralize the unhappy effect of that pronunciamento in favor of free whisky as an alternative. They will prevent a political cyclone that will gather volume as the season rolls on. This is a question that deeply concerns both the financial stability and the public morality of the nation. For party politics in the narrow sense I care but little; for principles that alone can make parties effective for the public weal, I care a great deal. Thirty years ago I used my tongue and pen zealously for the Republican party in its early conflicts with the monster of chattel slavery. Its name and fame are dear to me; and I trust that it may not become its self enslaved to the reactionary rule of those who would build up monopolies at the expense of the great mass of the people. As this is a question of absorbing interest, and touches great moral issues, I do not hesitate to discuss it in these columns.—Dr. Cuyler, in the Evangelist.

ONE FREE TRADE LUMBERMAN.

Hon. A. V. Mann, of Muskegon, went to the national Democratic convention as one of the delegates from the Ninth congressional district. He is a wealthy lumber man, and is thoroughly in accord with President Cleveland on the tariff question. "It is all nonsense," he says, "to claim that putting lumber on the free list will bring ruin to the Michigan lumber interests. I am a lumberman, and I am in favor of free trade. It is my candid opinion to-day that had lumber never been protected it would have been a good thing, not only for the lumbermen, but also for the state. The tariff has over-stimulated manufacture and we have recklessly slashed into the forests regardless of consequences, wasting all most as much as we have made up. The consequence is the resources of Michigan have in many sections been exhausted. We have endeavored to supply the demands of the entire country, instead of sharing the burden with Canada. We have grown rich in the business, a feature to which, of course, I do not object, but the state is denuded. We will leave lots of money for our children to spend, whereas, had we been a little more conservative in the cutting we could have left just as much money as we will now and at the same time our children would have had forests to cut down after we are dead.

"The Canadian lumber product is not large. If the entire output should be unloaded on our market it would make no difference in the prices. The cost of manufacture is really cheaper here than on the other side of the line. The wages we pay do not differ materially from the Canadian scale, while our methods, appliances and machinery are superior to theirs. We can more than compete with them in the open market. If we had free trade our lumbermen to-day would not be seeking the pine would be standing in Michigan and every year increasing in value. It will be at the present rate of cutting a very few years before the lumber will all be cut and then the interest in protection will disappear. It will be a necessity when our forests are gone to import from Canada, and the Canadian lumbermen of the next generation will reap all the benefits. Where had a wiser policy been pursued in this country the Michigan lumber wealth would still be in existence.

"I am in favor of free lumber, and it is my candid opinion that in the long run protection has had far from a beneficial result on the lumber interests of Michigan, although many men have been aided in the accumulation of millions by reason of it.

THE FARMERS OF AMERICA.

Robert Ingersoll, the great disseminator of sweetness and light, in addressing the republican convention said amid great applause:

"The labor that raises raw material is ignorant labor."

That means that the farmer, who all over this land is at work in the fields planting corn and wheat and cotton is steeped in ignorance, and thus falls below the protecting care of the government. Then the great infidel added:

"But the moment the raw material is fashioned into fabric that requires intelligence,"

This is the key note of the republican doctrine of protection. The farmers, the laborers in the field are ignorant producers of raw materials, are ground to the earth with taxes.

Mr. Ingersoll is the leader of a school of philanthropists, the members of which have so little confidence in God and so much in themselves, that they propose to overthrow all the works of Providence, and set up new principles and bring about a new condition of society.

In most countries agriculture is highly esteemed. The American farmer has redeemed a continent from waste and barbarism and made it serve the uses of civilization. It has not been the work of ignorance, but of intelligence, industry and patriotism.

Taking him, man for man, the American farmer, whose manners perhaps lack polish, whose hands are hardened by toil, whose back is bent by the burdens of taxation—the American farmer will compare, man for man, by any genuine test of intelligence, with the men who transform wheat into bread, wool into blankets, or cotton into cloth. There is as much genuine manhood, there is more sturdy independence on the farm and ar more genuine patriotism than Mr. Ingersoll, with all his methods, encouragement and protection, can develop in the mines, mills, and factories of the New England and Middle states.

The assumption of superiority for the men who work in mills was not a mere mistake of words: it is the philosophy of protection. Ingersoll and McKinley alike have a contempt for the masses: they spell the word without the m, and then impose on them all the burden of maintaining as a "superior class" the men who work in mills and factories.

A few years ago the republican party insisted that every man who lived south of Mason and Dixon's line was a rebel and entitled to none of the rights and privileges of American citizenship; now they declare the farmer to be steeped in ignorance and fit only to pay taxes to the trusts and syndicates which are laboring to develop an intelligent class of mechanics as though they were exotics.

Let the farmers think on these things. The republicans declare for an increase in the tariff; the democrats insist on a reduction. The reason for increasing the tariff is to check competition; the purpose is to tax the "ignorant" farmer in order to encourage the "intelligent" Bohemian imported to work in the coal mines or in Carnegie's mills.

"Ill fares the land to hastening ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates and men decay:
Princes and lords may flourish and may fade;
A breath can make them, as a breath has made;
But a bold peasantry, their country's pride,
When once destroyed can never be supplied."
—Louisville Courier-Journal.

FREE WOOL AND FREE HIDES.

The following double leaded editorial in the Philadelphia Times has attracted a good deal of attention. The Times has been regarded as Mr. Randall's organ. This strong argument [illegible] a good deal of weight. The Times says:

The avowed purpose of putting wool, bres, lumber, salt, etc., on the free list is to cheapen them to manufacturers and consumers. Hides were made free some 15 years ago at a loss of about $1.50 per hide to every farmer who butchered his own beef, and it was done avowedly to cheapen the raw material needed by our leather and shoe industry.

The result was the rapid growth of the leather and shoe industry, until now we make all our own shoes, furnish them cheaper and of better quality and export from eight to ten millions of our products, while the farmers, who lost a few dollars on their hides, have gained vastly more by cheapened and better shoes and leather. No one would now think of restoring the duty on foreign hides, as it would greatly cripple one of our most important and successful industries.

There was no need of free wool ten years ago, and 20 years ago a high tax upon wool and all woolen goods worn was a necessity for revenue; but now our manufacturers are confronted by a new condition that demands the cheapest production of fabrics in common use, and free wool has become a practical necessity to aid our productive industries and cheapen the necessaries of life.

Large wool growers would lose more than they could gain by free wool, but the average farmer wool grower would be more than compensated by cheapened articles which he must consume, and the great mass of the people, and especially of industrial people would largely profit by it. This is the plain, practical presentation of the question, and the changed necessities of the present clearly demand the largest free list of raw materials for our productive industries.

We have received from the Board of Trade of Beatrice, Nebraska, a pamphlet of forty pages containing an illustrated discription of Beatrice and Gage County. Beatrice is now the third city in the state and is booming right along. A perusal of this pamphlet shows what a little enterprise on the part of a few leading men will accomplish in building up a town. Among their big factories is the canning company which was organized in 1883 with a capital of $20,000 and has been increased every year since. Which prompts us to inquire—Is there a finer fruit and vegetable section in the Northwest than the farms around Tecumseh? Why wouldn't a canning factory pay here? Dr. Stewart took his chances in his celery speculation and he is now reaping the reward of his industry and enterprise. Who will take the lead in starting a canning factory?

W. C. Jipson reports a little experience he had with a patent paint. He started to paint the inside of a large tank Saturday morning, and had been engaged in this work but a short time when he began to feel rather queer and lost no time in getting out of the cistern. Thinking it was only his breakfast that wanted to go the wrong way, he employed George Frost to finish the work. George had been at work but a short time when he experienced the same kind of feeling. A little fresh air made him feel all right again. In about fifteen minutes after he had again been at work, he broke out into loud laughter, and although Mr. Jipson talked to him he appeared totally oblivious of everything, and was unable to stir. Help was quickly secured and the man hauled out into fresh air, where he revived in a few minutes. The effect was produced by the gas from the paint settling down in the tank and driving out all the pure air. Had Mr. Frost been left alone at the time, he undoubtedly would have perished.—Blissfield Advance.

ATTACKED A "Q" ENGINE

Desperate Work of Strikers or Their Sympathizers.

ENGINEER AND FIREMAN BEATEN.

A Mob of Seventy-Five Infuriated Men Play Havoc with a Burlington Engine and Assault the Men in Charge—The Police Disperse the Mob but No Arrests Are Made—The Conspiracy Case.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Two employes of the "Q" road are at the County hospital, while valuable property belonging to the company lies badly damaged and guarded by police at Western avenue and Kinzie street, the results of an attack made on a "Q" engine and train by a mob of seventy-five infuriated men at 6 o'clock in the evening.

Engine No. 291, Fred Heal, engineer, and D. T. Barbyle, fireman, drawing several cars and a caboose, was sent over to the St. Paul road to do some switching. At Kinzie street a yelling crowd of strikers or their sympathizers appeared, and, armed with stones, attacked the engine and the caboose. Great missiles were thrown into the cab, smashing windows and breaking delicate parts of the machinery. The engineer and fireman were struck at the first onslaught, but stood to their places, fighting off the rioters, who endeavored to obtain possession of their machine.

Engineer Heal put on steam and dashed ahead, but one of the mob threw a switch and derailed the engine. Heal and Barbyle fled down Kinzie street, pursued by half the party of rioters. They were captured and beaten brutally. The rest of the party remained behind and satisfied their rage by doing further damage to the engine and cars. Every window in the caboose was broken, and twenty stones were hurled through its roof.

Some one had turned in a police alarm, and when Lieut. Pelgri of the West Madison street station, with a wagon load of officers, appeared the rioters scattered in all directions. There were no arrests made. Heal and Barbyle were taken to the County hospital. Neither is seriously injured. Squads of police were called from the West Madison street and West Chicago avenue stations and stationed in Kinzie among the tracks. The deportation and hearing the next morning were the first protest offered against the precautions recently commenced by the "Q" company.

THE "Q" PLOT OUTLINED.

Damaging Evidence Against the Alleged Dynamiters.

CHICAGO, July 13.—The preliminary examination of J. H. Bowles, John A. Bauresen, J. A. Wilson, Thomas Broderick, Alex Smith and George Boling, accused of conspiring to blow the Burlington company's property with dynamite, was resumed before Judge Gresham in Criminal court. The hearing was before United States Commissioner Hoyne. Bauresen and Boling arrived shortly before 10 o'clock in a company with their attorneys, Lincoln and Davis. Broderick, Wilson and Bowles were in attendance the previous morning and offered in the [illegible] Mr. Lawrence [illegible] the prosecution concerning the conspiracy.

United States District Attorney King began by giving a statement regarding the jurisdiction of the United States courts under which the conspiracy Act, sworn out by Mr. Lawrence, was laid to the different parts of the conspiracy, for after reading the statute he said: "I think it will appear from the evidence that on or about the 25th of May last, near the town of Eola, there was placed on the track of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy a dynamite cartridge, and exploded by a train passing over it, that at South Aurora on June 5 a similar cartridge was so exploded. Several days prior to the first explosion Bowles went to the room of Hoge at the Grand Pacific hotel and showed him a number of dynamite cartridges and talked with him about their use. A few days after Bowles met Smith and talked to him of the use of dynamite and told him how it could be used. The evidence will show that at about 9 o'clock on May 26 Bowles got a buggy at Aurora and took Smith with him to the town of Eola, and while on the road Bowles showed Smith a dynamite cartridge and fulminating cap, and arranged them for explosion, and that Bowles got out of the buggy and placed the cartridge on the track, and shortly afterward the explosion took place. [illegible] that he was going away to get more dynamite, and that he would give him some. Bowles went away without giving Smith any dynamite, and a few days after Bauresen met Smith and told him that Bowles had left a package for him at Heck's hotel. A day or so afterward Bauresen again met him and asked him if he had 'set off any of that stuff yet?' On Smith's reply that he had not, Bauresen suggested that that night would be a good time to do it, and Smith acted on the suggestion and the result was the explosion near Aurora. For the next two weeks, it seems that Bowles was away on some 'secret business' and on a letter to John Bauresen was addressed to the really thought a man whom he thought to be following him, to meet the [illegible] Alex Smith [illegible] Broderick, [illegible] and two other men. He [illegible] for Bowles and [illegible] Smith got [illegible] a note by Bowles to Boling's wife to give him some cartridges and fulminating caps. Later in the day, July 3, Boling and Smith went to Boling's house and Boling gave them four cartridges and some caps. Smith took the explosives to the third street hall at Aurora and there met Broderick, Wilson, Bauresen and Bowles. They told Broderick that 'that package was in the ante room.' Broderick, Wilson and Bowles took the dynamite and got on the train on their way to Chicago, when they were arrested."

Mr. Ewing had in his fingers two shells of the fulminating caps, which he twirled in his fingers while talking. The story he told of the conspiracy acted strangely on the defendants [illegible] Bauresen and Boling themselves did not seem much affected or surprised, but the lawers were evidently not prepared for such a revelation. Mr. Ewing's story was the substance of Smith's confession.

The examination of witnesses then began. Samuel C. Madden, of the Atlas Dynamite company, took the stand and swore that the explosives captured was dynamite. John J. Kelley, Hoge's secretary, was the next witness. When asked if he had ever seen dynamite at the headquarters of the brotherhood at the Grand Pacific, he replied that he had seen a package which was said to contain dynamite; that Bowles said it was dynamite, and showed him several cartridges which he had with him.

CHICAGO, July 16.—The Burlington conspiracy case seems to be full of sensations and surprises, and the latest of these took place Saturday, accompanied with a highly exciting scene in court. The developments of Friday which fixed upon Bowles the purchase of dynamite seem to have had a weakening effect upon him, and there were some proceedings before court opened that probably made counsel for the defense uneasy. The three prisoners—Bowles, Wilson and Broderick—were taken before Commissioner Hoyne Saturday at 9 a. m., and the two latter took their places by their counsel, but Bowles walked into the room with the railway counsel and took a seat apart. He had just been having an interview with the railway people, and it was evident that he had broken down during the same, as there were tears in his eyes as he sat down, resting his head on the back of a chair.

There was an exciting scene in court soon after the opening of the case. Bowles arose and said that he would confess his share in the plot. In a very dramatic manner he declared that his statements would be made in the interest of public justice. He was excited and the tears flowed from his eyes.

When he ceased the court declared the case adjourned to Monday at 10 o'clock. Bowles was taken to Marshal Marsh's afterward and released on $5,000 bail by Commissioner Hoyne.

A defiant smile was on Broderick's lips as he walked back to the marshal's office in the custody of Marshal Barchard. He looked at Bowles, who passed him in charge of another man, with a look of mingled pity and contempt.

Barchard and Detective Bonfield had a long talk with Broderick in the marshal's office, but the big engineer kept up his smile. Broderick is the nerviest man in the affair.

It was rumored around the building that a number of other arrests would be made on United States warrants, among them being Hoge and Murphy. After adjournment the engineers who had listened to the case gathered in little knots in the corridors and discussed the affair.

When the cases of Stewart F. Hoge and John H. Murphy, charged with conspiracy, were called before Justice D. J. Lyon, Judge Barnum stepped forward and said: "If it please the court, in the case of the people against Hoge and Murphy, I appear for the defendants. I was not called into the case until night before last, and have not had an opportunity to see my clients. I ask that the case be postponed."

Mr. Frank Collier, who appeared for the prosecution, said he had no objections to a continuance, as some of the witnesses in the case were before Commissioner Hoyne. A continuance was granted, and the hearing was set for next Saturday morning.

DROWNING ACCIDENTS.

A Number of People Lose Their Lives in Different Localities.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., July 16.—While three of the most prominent businessmen of this neighborhood—Lee Hayes, Thomas Watts and James Tirck—were attempting to pass one of some rafts of logs in the Little Kanawha from floating out they were drowned. A few hours before at a point a little further up the stream a man named John Francis, also a lumber merchant, was drowned while attempting to protect his property.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 16.—On Friday nine employes of the Eau Claire Lumber company, attempted to cross the Bow river Cannon rapids, near Calgary, in a row boat. While making a landing on the other side they lost their oars and drifted down over the rapids and six of them, four Scandinavians and two Canadians, were drowned. The other three managed to reach the shore.

BALTIMORE, July 16.—A party of twenty-one young men from this city went down to North Point to spend the afternoon. Arriving there ten of them put out in a row boat to fish. The boat was capsized in the stream, and Joel Lutz, William Finn and Frank Vera were drowned. Lutz was married and had one child.

DETROIT, Mich., July 17.—A special to The Journal from Battle Creek, says: Frederick Gleason, aged 24, John Williamson, aged 18, and Louis Burnam, aged 16, were drowned at Wilkes lake while bathing. Gleason got into deep water and the other two were drowned while attempting to save him. The bodies were [illegible]

FORT SMITH, Ark., July 17.—John Logan, Jesse Morris, Tom Davis, Miss Sallie Jackson, Mrs. Pary, Miss Mary Potts and Mrs. Cornie Davis, all colored, were drowned while crossing the Arkansas river in a skiff about five miles from this city.

The Nonquitt Bulletin.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., July 17.—The following bulletin was issued by Gen. Sheridan's physicians last night at 8 o'clock: "Gen. Sheridan did not rest well in the early part of last night, having a slight gastric disturbance. This passed off, however, and after midnight he was more easy. He has rested well to-day, sleeping frequently. He has retained his food and digested it well. His pulse has been regular all day, his respiration natural, and his temperature normal."

Most Justly Hanged by the Sheriff.

CLEVELAND, O., July 13.—Ephraim Stanyard was hanged in the Ohio penitentiary at 11 o'clock this morning for the murder of his daughter, Alice Hadsock, at Youngstown, March 24, 1887. Stanyard was an Englishman and had led a varied life. At the gallows he said he was a member of the Salvation Army. Hadsock was an habitual drunkard. He [illegible]

QUEEN OF THE SADDLE.

A Half-Breed Beauty as Seen in Oregon.

The jar of heavy feet was heard. Some young horses came down a steep hill at full run. Behind was a reckless rapid rider. The loose stock dashed past.

The horse that bore the rider was tossing his head madly and slinging white foam in flakes from his mouth. He was a rearing, restless, heavy built, regulation broncho, but it was remarked that he was well under control, for he seemed to be fairly lifted from side to side by the reins at the will of the rider, who drew up to our resting place.

We stared in a way that was not mannerly, even in the wilds of Oregon. The rider of the restless pony was a young girl. She waited with embarrassment for us to tell our errand.

"Who lives here?" we asked.

"I do," she replied, in a tone that did not make us feel any more at home.

"Whose garden is this?" was the next question.

"Mine."

After a pause she added:

"Can I do anything for you, gentlemen?"

"Well, well, no," was about the only intelligible answer at command.

"Will you come to the house?" she added; "it is near dinner time."

As she rode before we looked upon a graceful rider, a well rounded, neat figure, a brunette, with the languid beauty so much admired in the Castilian women, clad in coarse, strong, short skirts, below which showed a small boot and a keen, bright spur. Her rich saddle was new, strong and double rigged.

Her horse had not stopped at the gate till she sprang to the ground. My companion stepped forward with a Chesterfield bow, but too late to assist her.

She asked us to go to the house while she led her horse to the stable. When we were within a rod of the door we both started with surprise. A repulsive, sullen, scowling Indian was at each window.

We were greatly surprised to learn that our hostess was a half breed. In her features or actions we had observed not one trace of the Indian. Her demeanor was modest, while at the same time she was fully imbued with that Western liberality that allows no man to pass without an invitation to partake of a meal or night's lodging.

We bade her good-bye reluctantly, and continued our hunt, thinking how much more appropriate such grace and such wealth would be in the circles of society than on the back of a broncho.—San Francisco Chronicle.

THE FIRST HUSBAND'S FAULT.

Woman's Logic—Reasoning of Which a Man Is Incapable.

Mrs. Tuttles, a widow only recently married a second time, was visiting her friend Mrs. Johnson in her elegant freestone front on the avenue yesterday, and, of course, recounting her woes.

Mrs. Johnson was astonished at the news she heard, and exclaimed:

"My dear, you amaze me. I thought you were one of the happiest women in the town."

"I!" screamed Mrs. Tuttles, at the bare idea of happiness in her life, and she broke into tears.

"Yes. Why, look at the house you have, and the carriages and horses and servants and diamonds."

"And you call that happiness?"

"I don't see what else you could desire."

"I could desire a man that would give me some comfort in life."

"Man? I thought he was a good man and an old friend of your first husband."

"Ah, I had a terrible life with him, and it's all the fault of my first husband, the mean old wretch."

"Why, how is that?"

"How? Why if he hadn't been so stupid as to have gone and died, I never would have been such a fool as to marry again."

LIVING FOR OTHERS.

Society Must Rise or Fall as One Body.

No one liveth to himself, and no one dieth to himself. When we realize this fact, and live in the spirit of brotherhood, we are all doing something to put an end to war in all its forms—international war, social war, party and sectarian war.

No nation can live to itself, or die to itself. Its prosperity and decay must influence other nations for good or ev[illegible] nation can be independent of other nations. No body of men in society, no industrial or professional class, can be independent of other classes.

Society must rise or fall as one body. When the poor are oppressed the righ suffer, too. The contagion of ignorance, of immorality, of disease or crime, passes into every part of social life. We are members of a great body, sharing its joys and sorrows.—James Freeman Clarke.

The Wild West As It Is.

Many people have false ideas on the subject of Indians, cowboys, and life generally in the boundless West; especially is this true of boys and young men who reside in the Eastern part of our country.

A story, true to nature, is that of an Eastern boy who came into a cattle ranch anxious to engage in that kind of life. He carried a Winchester rifle, wore two or three pistols in his belt, and told the leading spirit of the party that he wanted to be a cowboy.

The man sullingly looked at him and said:

"Now, young man, you take off that armory, show us what you know about bookkeeping and double entry, and maybe we can give you a chance.—W. F. Cody in the Epoch.

His Fatal Error.

"Nellie, dear, will you marry me?"

"Oh! It is so sudden, George. But—well—assure me that you are not addicted to gambling, play and such like, and—I will think about it."

"That is easy. I detest billiards; I abhor games of cards of all kinds; I regard pugilism and horse racing with disdain."

"Then—George—I—think you may hope."

"I despise base ball, and——"

"You don't, George, I can never, never be your wife, but I will always be a sister to you."—Lincoln Journal.

THE TRIANGLE CAMPAIGN SONGS.

BY JOSHUA GUMBO.

[Copyrighted 1888.]

We are coming, Uncle Grover,
Five million men, and more;
From the valleys of Missouri,
And from Louisiana's shore.
From Georgia's fertile rice farms
From Jersey's dales and bowers
From the Granite hills of Hampshire
And the land of figs and flowers.

CHORUS.

We are coming, Uncle Grover,
We hear thy bugle call;
We'll swing the red bandanna
For that "Roman" of them all.
"Wipe out the war taxation"
We'll shout, from sea to sea;
We'll strike the shackles off from trade
And make the people free.

We are coming, Father Thurman,
From the wooden nutmeg state;
From the mines of Colorado,
And from Frisco's golden gate—
From the broad Nebraska prairies,
From the Appalachian chain,
From Carolina's cotton fields,
And the pine clad hills of Maine.

CHORUS.

We are coming, Father Thurman.
From wild Niagara's roar;
And from Calumet and Hecla,
On Lake Superior's shore;
From the forest wilds of Texas
Where the red men still do roam;
From the palaces of Gotham,
And the old Kentucky home.

CHORUS.

We are coming, Father Thurman.
~~The mechanic from his lathe;~~
The bishop from his pulpit
And the miner from his spade.
The man who rents a shanty
And the man who owns a mill;
The student from his midnight lamp
And the knights of the grey goose quill.

CHORUS.

We are coming, Father Thurman.
The farmer from his plow
And the smithy from his anvil
Both fight with Grover now.
The banker from his counting room
The joiner from his plane.
The short-hairs and the swallow-tails
All join the glad refrain.

CHORUS.

We are coming, Father Thurman,
Both the Gentile and the Jew,
The peace inspiring Quaker,
And the gallant boys in blue:
The merchant from his counter,
And the weaver from his loom,
The lawyer from his office desk,
All swell the Cleveland toom.

CHORUS.

There is no denying the fact that Dr. Jones Red Clover Tonic is the most successful blood purifier ever put on the market. Its wonderful cures in all stomach, kidney and liver troubles has brought out many imitations. It restores debilitated nerve tissues, restoring the force lost by sickness, mental work or excessive use of liquor, opium and tobacco. Dr. Geo. Furguson will supply the genuine at 50 cents a bottle.

Cold, cough, coffin is what philosophers term "a logical sequence." One is very liable to follow the other; but by curing the cold with a dose of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, the cough will be stopped and the coffin not needed—just at present.

THE MICHIGAN CROP REPORT, JULY 1st. '88.

For this report returns have been received from 812 correspondents, representing 629 townships. Five hundred and forty of these reports are from 381 townships in the southern four tiers of counties, and 142 reports are from 125 townships in the central counties.

The following figures relating to the wheat crop of 1887 and to the acres in wheat in May, 1888, are compiled from the returns of supervisors who have made a house-to-house canvass. They are subject to further revision, though no material changes will be made.

The number of acres of wheat harvested in 1887 was 1,675,098, yield 22,723,350 bushels, an average of 13 and 56 hundredths bushels per acre. The total yield was 91,603 bushels less than the October estimate of this Department. The total area was 22,075 acres greater than reported last year. This increase is all in the central and northern counties, and is doubtless largely due to spring wheat sowings after the supervisors had completed their canvass in 1887.

The yield per acre in the southern counties averaged 13 and 45 hundredths bushels, which is 13 hundredths bushels less than the October estimate. In the central counties the average yield was a trifle more than a bushel less, and in the northern counties nearly identical with the October estimate.

The number of acres in wheat in May this year was 1,504,611. Multiplying the acres in each county by the average yield as estimated by crop correspondents, and footing the products, gives 15,911,653 bushels as the probable total yield in the State. This is an average per acre of 10 and 85-hundredths bushels in the southern counties, 8 and 59-hundredths in the central counties, and 12 and 30-hundredths in the northern counties.

More than one-fourth of the area seeded to wheat last fall is reported winter killed, ruined by insects, or otherwise destroyed.

The number of bushels of wheat reported marketed in the State in the seven months, August–June, is 13,879,490.

It is safe to estimate the amount purchased at elevators and mills from which reports have not been received each month at 350,000 bushels, making a total of 13,729,000 bushels as the total amount marketed since August 1. These figures warrant the statement that on July 1, there was not to exceed 1,200,000 bushels of the 1887 wheat crop in farmers' hands in excess of their own requirements. By the estimates of correspondents the amount in farmers' hands is 1,094,000.

The total number of bushels of wheat reported marketed during the month of June is 368,913, of which 102,189 bushels were marketed in the first or southern tier of counties; 105,791 bushels in the second tier; 49,344 bushels in the third tier; 89,453 bushels in the fourth tier; 20,807 bushels fifth and sixth tiers; and 1,320 bushels in the northern counties. At 56 elevators and mills, or 21 per cent of the whole number from which reports have been received, there was no wheat marketed during the month.

The condition of other crops compared with vitality and growth of average years, is for the State, as follows: corn, 91 per cent; oats, 97; clover meadows and pastures, 60; timothy meadows and pastures, 80; and clover sowed this year 93 per cent.

Apples in the southern counties promise 82 per cent, in the central 85 per cent, and in the northern 89 per cent of an average crop; and peaches in the southern counties promise 72 per cent of an average crop.

The number of sheep sheared in the State in 1887 was 2,012,292; pounds of wool 12,327,647, an average of 6 and [illegible] hundredths pounds per head.

The number of sheep in the State in May, 1888, was 1,977,562. At the same average per head as in 1887 the wool clip this year is 11,898,047 pounds.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

C. H. Hopkins, of Battle Creek, is in town a few days.

It has been beautiful harvest weather so far this week.

Campaign hats are becoming quite plentiful in this town.

Farmers are in the midst of their harvesting this week.

Mrs. Will Chiverall visited friends in Jackson over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Tribou were visiting in Detroit last week.

Burglars went through several houses in Hudson last week.

Tent meetings will be the fashion with the prohibitionists this year.

Geo. S. Tiffany returned from a business trip through Ohio last week.

The picnic season has arrived. So has the pesky fly and the festive musketer.

Co. C. started off with full ranks and in the best of humor Tuesday noon.

The State Fair will be held at Jackson this year, Sept. 10th to 14th inclusive.

It is astonishing how many Tecumseh people had business at Adrian last Tuesday.

Carl Burton, formerly of Clinton, was in town Saturday and gave the HERALD a call.

Both of Asa Howe's stages were filled with a big load bound for Barnum's show last Tuesday.

Miss Ada Gallatin has gone to Chicago to enter the Homeopathic training school for nurses.

E. N. Avery is making extensive improvements in his dwelling house, corner of Pearl and Logan streets.

Several hundred full sheet posters in blue and red have just been turned out from the HERALD job rooms.

Prof. Hammond was at Charlotte last week and rented a house and will move his family to that city this week.

Geo. Heesen has a new advertising card this week. He has inaugurated a quarter off sale and now is the time for bargains.

[illegible] until adopted, got the wages of firemen and watchmen raised from $400 to $600 per year, and Conger of Iowa secured an amendment giving preference to honorably discharged soldiers. The house adjourned at 11:30 p. m.

The Prohibition County Committee met at Adrian last Tuesday. Whether they made brother Barnum a call in the evening, deponent saith not.

Mrs. L. H. Maltby and daughter, of Cattaraugus N. Y., are visiting the former's sisters, Mrs. S. M. Smith and Mrs. A. Hardenburg, of this village.

They had a red hot time at the west side Blissfield school meeting last week Monday evening. A report occupying nearly three columns appears in the Advance.

Mrs. Will Wooden, of Battle Creek, has gone to Colorado for her health and may remain a year. She is stopping for the present at Longmont. Mr. Wooden went out with her and returned last week.

An early train has been put on the Michigan Central which enables people to get their Detroit morning dailies at 8 A. M. via Jackson. It will be a great convenience to people on the Jackson Branch.

The Tecumseh City Band have been engaged for the Knights Templar encampment which will begin August 6th, at Coe & Vance's landing, Devil's Lake. The Adrian, Hillsdale, Coldwater and Monroe Commanderies will join in the camp which will continue one week.

The International yacht regatta will be held at the Island of Mackinac Aug. 14, 15 and 16. There will be three classes, A, B, and C, one of which will sail each day. The first prize will be a solid silver cup, valued at $350. Yachtsmen throughout the country are looking forward to a grand time.

During a business trip up through Franklin last Friday we made a hasty call at Sand Lake. Found Mr. Geo. Tiffany at his cottage home at work on a new boat house. Will and Levi Hayden were installed at the Hayden cottage. Will was acting as chef and was preparing coffee for dinner. His kind invitation to dine was declined—as we had just partaken of a square dinner at mine host Wells's—with tears in our eyes and a promise to accept his coffee and hospitality at some future time.

The fire department was called out about four o'clock Sunday afternoon to put out a small blaze on B. J. Bidwell's farm in the northern part of the village. A hay stack containing about four tons had in some unaccountable manner caught fire and was nearly consumed. The department responded promptly and saved the adjoining barns and straw stacks. It is thought that some one had been smoking on the premises and threw a cigar near the hay. The damage was about $50 and was insured.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Orr Sundayed at Manchester.

An Ann Arbor lady has a rose bush that contains over 700 flowers and buds.

C. D. Bills' trotting horse Hunter is making some fast time and some big money down East.

The Ypsilanti Commercial, hitherto a neutral paper, has come out for Cleveland & Thurman.

Mrs. Will C. Blood, after a very pleasant visit among old friends, left for her home in Lansing yesterday.

The Clinton—Tecumseh base ball game which was to have taken place last Thursday was postponed indefinitely on account of the rain.

Hon. B. L. Baxter, who has been down at Deerfield lately looking after his property there, was in town yesterday, on his way home to Battle Creek.

Hall's Hudson Grocer for July is at hand, and is running over with good things as usual. It is still sound on the great issue of tax reduction and tariff reform.

—SPECIAL.—All persons indebted to the late firm of W. & S. W. Anderson & Co. are cordially invited to settle at once, and greatly oblige
ANDERSON & Co.

Services at the Universalist church next Sunday morning at 10:30. Subject of sermon "Trifles." Text—John 7:24. No service in the evening. Evening services will begin with Sunday evening, August 5th.

An exchange puts it this way: A new version of the hen and half puzzle that has been going the rounds of the press, "If a delinquent and a half should come up and pay a dollar and a half, an editor and a half would stand a chance of getting a meal and a half in a week and a half."

A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend a pink social next Tuesday evening, at the residence of D. P. Anthony. The principal articles of refreshment will be ice cream and cake served up in the pink of perfection by young ladies wearing pink dresses and pink roses. Put on your pink clothes and come.

Everyone can be a boomer. Keep money at home. Patronize those who patronize you. Spend your money among home institutions, where you stand a good chance to get it back. Every dollar you spend with home men finds its way back to your pocket. A dollar spent in another town goes to build up that town. Figure the thing down fine and you lose money by buying away from home, even if you get the article for one-half what it cost you at home.—Ex.

Get Heck's flour, mix it in water and you will have good bread. If you have a wedding be sure and get Heck's flour; if you want to represent our county with good bread get Heck's flour; if your girl has poor bread get Heck's flour, then you will have pleasant faces when you sit down to meals. Heck's flour never fails in getting good bread. Don't forget to ask for Heck's flour, then your mind will be at ease. Bread made from Heck's flour takes the cake.
HECK BROS.

Our friend, A. J. Kempton, of the Addison Courier, is a hustler. Only a few weeks ago he enlarged his paper to a seven column folio, and now proposes to put in a press end do his own printing. Besides that Brother Kempton has a sister who has worked at the case but six weeks and now puts up about two columns of type a day which is a fair average for most men of years experience. "Who says the women ought not to vote?"—The Lance.

Garlinghouse Bros. sold their livery business last Monday to Frank Parks and Charlie Bennett, of Plymouth, and they expect to take possession next week. Mr. Parks has been in the livery business for ten years past and the public will undoubtedly be served with the same excellent care and promptness that has characterized the old management. Although the many patrons of the stable will view the retirement of Garlinghouse Bros. with regret, they can rest assured that it has passed into the right hands. The building is still retained by the original owners.

Macon Grange will meet in regular session on Friday, the 27th at 7:30 o'clock P. M. The following is the programme.

Joe Wilson & Son have a new card this week, calling attention to their 30 day sale.

The Tecumseh fire department put [illegible] day afternoon.

Leon J. Dutton is visiting Raisin friends. He is now located at Gautamala, Central America.

Miss Alice Tilden, of Lansing, arrived home last Tuesday to enjoy a two weeks visit among relatives and friends.

Mrs. Ezra F. Blood left home yesterday for Mt. Morris, N. Y., to spend a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Jacob Tallman.

E. T. LeBaron arrived in town this morning from Toledo, having drove the entire distance. He stopped over night at Blissfield.

The Tecumseh 2d. nine played a game of ball with Adrian's 2d nine last Tuesday at that city, and came off victorious by a score of 7 to 6.

Bert Baker and Roy DeWolf, are gaining quite a reputation as pedestrians. They walked over to Detroit to celebrate the 4th. After a few days visit there, Roy walked home alone. He had a pleasant journey back and was none the worse for the trip.

A grand colored camp meeting will be held at Beardsell's Landing, Devil's Lake, from July 23d to August 1st. Presiding Elder Pope, of Ann Arbor, will have charge of the meeting, assisted by several other clergymen. Wallace's Tennessee Jubilee singers will furnish the music.

The officers have got no trace whatever of John Bunting. Squads have been in search of the missing man ever since the night of his disappearance, and on Sunday last nearly the whole township turned out to help the officers. A full account of this day's work appears in our Franklin correspondence.

Ben Laur, of Cambridge, has purchased the entire stock in the Cambridge cheese factory and is running the factory himself. He is making two large cheese a day now, but could make five times that number if he could get the milk. He expects to be able to increase the output very largely another season.

Mrs. S. G. Yarnall and her grandson Theodore, are spending about two weeks with old friends in Tecumseh and Raisin. Mrs. Yarnall was formerly Mrs. Sherman and the family lived in the John Rosebrough house on Kilbuck street away back in the forties. She is now a widow and is keeping house for two sons and three grandsons in Philadelphia.

The Brownville bridge is repaired and many of our scientific and professional citizens viewed the structure last Sabbath, and all pronounced it a bridge. One man remarked that it should be painted green, but he don't live in the township, and is color-blind. Eugene says the bridge will be connected with the sidewalk on the hill with a plank walk, which will be appreciated by many who have waded that spot so many years.

The temperature of the dog-days has had no depressing effect on the conductors of Harpers Magazine. The Number for August is as fresh and vigorous as May or early June. Most of the staff of well-known contributors are represented in its pages with here and there a new name. From an artistic point of view, there is no chance for fault finding. Abbey, Parsons, and Thulstrup furnish some of their best work. In fiction many strong chapters are offered, while the supply of solid reading is in no way diminished. The frontispiece is a hay making scene by Abbey, drawn to illustrate the old rhyme about "The Leather Bottel."

SEND IT TO BLAINE.

We clip the following from the Gaylord, Kansas, Herald, which indicates that our old friend "Ketch" still holds to the Democratic faith:

"Last week we attempted to mail a paper to Emmons Blaine, general passenger agent Santa Fe R. R., Chicago, but neglected to write more than the name on the wrapper. Postmaster Ketcham returned the paper to our office with the following note. Just the name of Blaine is enough to scare the average democrat out of his senses.

GAYLORD, Kan., July 7, 88.
PUB. GAYLORD HERALD:
SIR—The accompanying paper is respectfully returned to publisher for completion of address, with the information that on or about the 25th of June, the father of the party addressed was in Europe and at the time had his eye firmly set on the presidential chair. But, owing to the forunes of war, and unreliability of republican delegates, the last vestige of any other portion of his anatomy ever sitting on said chair has been destroyed. I might forward the paper, incompletely addressed as it is, trusting to its getting through on the 'old man's record.' But after the disastrous result which followed the attempt one year ago to send a boy to Albany on his paper record, I fear that the paper might share a similar fate and therefore return it.
Respectfully,
G. T. KETCHAM, P. M.

PROHIBITION TICKET AND PLATFORM.

Below we give the platform in full adopted by the Prohibition State Convention, and also the ticket placed in nomination. They were crowded out last week.

THE TICKET.

For Governor—Amherst B. Cheney, of Kent.
For Lieutenant-Governor—Stewart B. Williams, of Saginaw.
For Secretary of State—Peter M. Hagel, of Lapeer.
For State Treasurer—Albert Wist, of Ingham.
For Auditor-General—D. A. Waterman, of Wayne.
For Superintendent of Public Instruction—J. Montgomery, of Kalamazoo.
For Commissioner of State Land Office—Guernsey P. Waring, of Lenawee.
For Attorney-General—Lemuel Clute, of Ionia.
For Member of the State Board of Education—William Hart, of Tuscola.

THE PLATFORM.

The Prohibitionists of Michigan in state convention assembled, with firm reliance upon the source of all power and with unshaken faith in the ultimate triumph of the great principles of right and justice, respectfully submit to the voters of the State the following declaration of principles:

We hereby renew our pledges of fealty to the National Prohibition party by heartily indorsing the platform adopted and the candidates placed in nomination by the Indianapolis convention.

FINANCES.

All money, whether gold, silver or paper, should be issued and its volume controlled by the national government.

LAB[illegible]

We believe the [illegible] be the greatest [illegible] society, [illegible] and moral enemy of the working classes. Therefore, [illegible] the washing[illegible] of Michigan to co-operate with us in our efforts to abolish the liquor traffic.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

We favor woman suffrage on equal conditions with men, based on intelligence and good citizenship without distinction of sex or color.

TARIFF REFORM.

We favor a revision of the tariff laws so as to reduce the revenue of the government to meet its wants, as economically administered, while at the same time protecting reasonable industries, and with a view to cheapening the necessaries of life in preference to the luxuries.

THE DOMINANT ISSUE.

Recognizing and declaring that prohibition of the liquor traffic has become the dominant issue in national and state politics, we invite to full party fellowship all who on that one dominant issue are with us agreed, in full belief that the party can and will [illegible] national unity and insure the best welfare of the entire land.

MORAL BLINDNESS.

Local option is a policy of moral blindness and political procrastination. With equal indifference it votes intemperance up or votes it down. In principle it is the old doctrine of popular sovereignty, and as it then meant slave sovereignty so now it means ultimate liquor sovereignty. And we hereby declare our opposition to the enactment of such laws by the legislature as the policy of the state, although wherever such laws exist we endorse all efforts to secure closing the open grog shops therein under, at the same time well knowing that the result will be unsatisfactory. We especially condemn the course of the last legislature in enacting such a law in the face of the strong prohibition sentiment indicated by the vote of the people upon the amendment, and we hold the party in power responsible for the great loss of time, energy and money incurred in the futile effort to close the open saloon in 38 counties in this state under the unconstitutional local option law.

THE BLUE AND THE GRAY.

We endorse the movement of the organization of the prohibition army of the Blue and Gray as a measure well calculated to harmonize the different sections of our country and promote the cause of prohibition.

OBITUARY.

The funeral of Mrs. Edith E. Chapman, was held at the residence of her husband's father, on Sunday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. J. M. Getchell officiating. Her maiden name was Edith E. Conklin, was born in Fulton, N. Y., January 15th, 1860. Her first marriage was in 1877. Married again to Silas F. Chapman in 1886. Died of consumption, July 6th, 1888 aged 28 years, 5 months and 20 days. Two children by her first husband, a sister and a husband, S. F. Chapman, mourn her departure. Her suffering over and heaven help us to say to the relief which death must have given.—Amen.

On Thursday, July 12th, Rev. J. M. Getchell was called to Wolf Creek, Lenawee County, Mich., to attend the funeral of Miss Harriet Armstrong, who passed away suddenly on Tuesday evening, July 10th 1888. She was born in Norwich, Conn., Oct., 1822, and would have been 66 years of age next Oct., 1888. She lived in the community where she died nearly 37 years. Her own family all passed on before her, save one sister. She was an excellent woman. She was termed in her faithfulness and friendship "the salt of the earth."

The funeral of Dwight P. Bowers was held at the residence of his father, J. W. Bowen, Lenawee Junction, Mich., on Tuesday afternoon, July 17th, Rev. J. M. Getchell, of Tecumseh, Mich., officiating, Rev. Humphrey, of Lenawee Junction, assisting. He was born at Janesville, Wis., January 6th, 1855. Died at Lenawee Junction, Mich., on Monday morning, July 16th, 1888, aged 33 years, 6 months and 6 days. Has lived in that section over 12 years, was out of health for some time the last six months unable to leave his room or the house. Consumption, like death, seems to select "many a shining mark." A father, mother, two sisters, three brothers and other relatives mourn his departure. For him death had no terrors. This was his trust: "Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me." He fell asleep peacefully, the first of a loving home transferred to heaven.

THE PROBATE COURT.

Following is the record of business transacted at the probate court for the week ending July 19, 1888:

PLEADING FOR A SON'S LIFE.

"Maxwell's" Mother Makes a Personal Appeal to Governor Marchand.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., July 5.—Mrs. Harry Brooks and daughter accompanied by P. W. Fountleroy, Maxwell's attorney, arrived here Sunday morning. Mrs. Brooks and her daughter [illegible] at the house Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Brooks presented her plea in behalf of her son in a few words. She implored the governor to save her son's life, assuring him that he never killed Peddler with malicious intent. Mr. Fountleroy also presented a letter from Mr. Freeman, of England, Peddler's former employer, which stated that Peddler's parents were anxious that Maxwell's sentence be commuted, as they believed his execution would be the cause of the death of one or both Maxwell's parents. The attorney of Maxwell stated that he expected yesterday to be able to get affidavits for some further facts in the case.

A Big Iowa Saw-Mill Burned.

CLINTON, Iowa, July 7.—David Joyce's saw-mill, at Lyons, was burned with some lumber in the yards. The fire caught in the planing room, and within ten minutes the mill was in flames. Nine streams of water with heavy pressure were kept on the fire by the firemen but the mill could not be saved, and only after 150 hours of hard work was the fire confined in the yard. The loss is [illegible] though it may fall below that figure. All the expensive machinery of the saw and planing mills was destroyed except the gallery machines. Prohibition

Of the LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

By Rev. S. M. VERNON, D.D.

The most active and aggressive period ever known in temperance work renders timely the appearance of this crisp, original and vigorous volume. It is a book quite out of the beaten track, newsy and pquant, bristling with telling points, brief, clear, sprightly, candid, earnest, convincing, fair, dispassionate, full of ringing facts and bright with sterling truths.

It popularizes the burning question of Prohibition, brings it down to every mind and conscience, marshals its many startling facts in new and surprising forms, clarifies and invigorates its arguments in vivid and impressive boxes the monster whose daily victims but increase its hunger, and the poison of whose breath blights whatever it touches. Cloth $1.00. Paper 30 cts. Supplied by Agents, Booksellers and News Dealers, or mailed postpaid to any address by

MORTGAGE SALE.

ON the 15th day of December, 1881, David A. Steaner and Hannah A. [illegible] mortgaged to Albert Hyde Sr., all that parcel of land situate in the township of Cambridge, Lenawee county, Michigan, described as follows, to wit: Beginning at a stone one hundred and sixty-six rods south and fifty links west of the north east corner of the east half of the north quarter of section twenty-eight, [illegible] north eight rods to south line of street; thence twelve rods to place of beginning, [illegible] street; thence [illegible] per plat of the village of Onsted, so called, bounded [illegible] and [illegible] of which has been named [illegible] the one of which [illegible] of Albert Hyde, Sr., deceased, [illegible] the other of said two lots [illegible] the south half of said lot [illegible] the north side of the lots and premises above described, [illegible] the other of said two lots [illegible] appurtenances [illegible] to the [illegible] and [illegible] to the premises above described, to secure the payment of six hundred dollars, with interest [illegible] 15th day of December, 1881, [illegible] County of Lenawee, Michigan, in Liber [illegible] of mortgages on page 205, and said mortgage contains a provision that in case of default in payment of any principal or interest at the time limited therefor, then after sixty days the whole amount shall become due and payable.

Default having been made in the payment of interest and principal on said mortgage to the amount of one hundred eighty five 75-100 dollars, and the same having remained unpaid for a period of more than sixty days and by reason of such default the whole amount of principal and interest has thereby become due, amounting at the date of this notice to the sum of Four Hundred Eighty five and 75-100 dollars. And no proceedings at law or in equity have been commenced for recovery of said sum or any part thereof.

Notice is therefore hereby given that by virtue of the power and provisions in said mortgage contained, and of the statute of the state of Michigan in such case made and provided, the said above described land and premises will be sold at public vendue to the highest bidder, at the north door of the court House in the city of Adrian, Lenawee county, Michigan, that being the building in which the circuit court for said county of Lenawee is holden, on Friday, the fifth day of September, 1882, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage, the costs and expense of the foreclosure and sale, including an attorney fee allowed by law.

Dated June 21st, 1882.

CHARLES BURRIDGE, ALBERT HYDE Sr., Attorney. Mortgagee.

ESTATE OF JOHN BECKLEY.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Wednesday, the 12th day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of John Beckley, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Margaret Beckley, widow of said deceased, praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that administration of said estate may be granted to George Smith, the executor in said instrument named, or to some other suitable person.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 8th day of August next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS.

DOINGS OF THE NATIONAL LAWMAKERS AT WASHINGTON.

of the National Legislature Summarized for the Busy Readers—Record of Bills and Resolutions Introduced and Action Taken Thereon.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 11.—Sherman offered a resolution in the senate yesterday directing the finance committee to investigate trusts and report measures to control, restrain or prohibit the same. The resolution was adopted. Vest introduced a bill to prevent the evasion by debt collecting agencies of the law prohibiting the use of the "bad debt" envelope. Evarts offered an amendment to the sundry civil bill appropriating $32,000 for the completion of the monument at Washington's headquarters, at Newburg, N. Y. Hoar then got the floor and spoke four hours against the fisheries treaty, declaring it inimical to the interests of the United States. The conference report on the District appropriation bill was then agreed to, and the senate adjourned.

The house spent the day on the Mills bill in committee of the whole. The amendment restoring the duty on starch was rejected. The duty on rice flour and rice meal was fixed at 15 per cent. ad valorem. A number of changes were proposed, but rejected, and then the bill was amended by fixing the duty on flax, hackled, at $10 per ton. A motion to increase from 25 to 40 per cent. ad valorem the duty on flax and linen thread, etc., was pending when the committee rose, and recess was taken to 8 p. m., at which time right of way to various railways was granted through a number of Indian reservations.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 12.—The conference report on the postoffice appropriation bill was presented to the senate yesterday, the house insisting on its disagreement to the clause appropriating $800,000 for South American mail service. A motion was made that the senate insist, and a long debate ensued, but the motion was agreed to—28 to 16. The senate bill providing for seacoast defenses was next taken up, and another long debate took place, but without action the senate, at 5:30 p. m., adjourned.

The house ordered a conference on the land forfeiture bill, and after some debate concurred in the senate amendment to the agricultural bill appropriating $100,000 for sorghum experiments, which had been the cause of disagreement. This passed the bill. The conference report on the District bill was agreed to, and then in committee the Mills bill was resumed on the amendment fixing the duty on flax and linen thread, etc., at 40 per cent. ad valorem. After a long political debate it was rejected. The rate of duty on bags and bagging was changed from 15 per cent. ad valorem to ⅝ of a cent a pound. The wool section was then taken up and Caswell of Wisconsin offered an amendment substituting the schedule of 1867 for the one in the bill, but the matter was laid over and the house took a recess until 8 p. m. At the evening session the bill providing for taking the eleventh and subsequent censuses was passed. O'Neil, by an ingenious amendment which was not noticed until adopted, got the wages of mechanics and watchmen raised from $400 to $600 per year, and Conger of Iowa secured an amendment giving preference to honorably discharged soldiers. The house adjourned at 11:30 p. m.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 13.—A resolution was introduced in the senate yesterday providing for the printing of extra copies of the pensions committee's report on vetoed private pension bills. The resolution resulted in quite an acrimonious debate, during which Blair said the president's messages were not gentlemanly. Butler of South Carolina thought Blair a poor judge of gentlemanhood, and Blair retorted that he at any rate was not a traitor and indebted to his country for his life. Then George took the floor to speak on the fisheries treaty, and stopped the war of words. When George had concluded a bill to pay Mrs. Sarah L. Latimer $5,000, for giving important information in 1864 as to hostile intentions of the Sioux Indians, was passed, and the senate adjourned.

The house passed the resolution for a special committee to investigate alleged evasions of the contract labor law after speeches recounting the evils of too much immigration, especially of Italians and Chinese. The Mills bill was then taken up and the rest of the day devoted to a political discussion, until at 5 o'clock the house took a recess until 8 p. m., the purpose being the consideration of antagonized private pension bills. The opposition, however, was continued at the night session, and nothing was accomplished, the house adjourning at 10:15.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 14.—A protest was presented in the senate yesterday signed by a large number of wool manufacturers and dealers against the Mills bill. A bill appropriating $50,000 for a public building at Waubesha, Minn., was reported, and bills were passed authorizing a bridge across the Mississippi at Waubesha and appropriating $200,000 for a branch soldiers' home in Grant county, Indiana. Dolph then occupied most of the remainder of the session in a speech against the fisheries treaty. When he concluded some uninteresting business was transacted, and the senate adjourned until Monday.

The conference report on the postoffice appropriation bill was presented in the house. It agrees on everything except the subsidy amendment. The rate of postage on seeds, bulbs, etc., was fixed at 1 cent per each two ounces. The report was agreed to and Bingham moved to concur on the subsidy feature, but to reduce the appropriation from $800,000 to $450,000. The matter was debated at length, Bingham, Dingley and Owen of Indiana favoring it and Blount, Holman, Dockery and Nelson of Minnesota opposing. The debate was pending when the house at 5 p. m. took recess to 8, at which time private pension bills were considered and twenty-four passed, including one in behalf of Muck-A-Pee-Wah-Keu Zah, or "John." The house adjourned at 10:30.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 16.—The house Saturday rejected Bingham's proposition relative to a mail subsidy in the postoffice appropriation bill, insisted on a disagreement, and ordered a new conference. The tariff bill was then resumed, the wool schedule being the subject of debate. La Follette of Wisconsin antagonized the remarks made on the tariff by Carlisle at the opening of the debate, and the discussion was continued by Scott, Grosvenor, Ford of Michigan and others. At 5 p. m. the house took recess until 8, at which time consideration of private bills was taken up, and nineteen passed, adjournment being reached at midnight.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 17.—The senate passed a bill appropriating $25,000 for a monument to Gen. George Rogers Clark, to be erected in Louisville in recognition of his services in the conquest of the northwestern territory during the revolutionary war. Pugh spoke in favor of the fisheries treaty and Chandler against it, and these two speeches, with some unimportant routine work, occupied the whole session.

The house took up the tariff bill immediately upon assembling, the motion to strike wool from the free list being pending. After some debate a division on the motion was had, and it was defeated—yeas, 93; nays, 122—Sowden, Wilkins and Foran, Democrats, voting aye, and Anderson of Iowa, Republican, nay. Mills offered an amendment fixing the duty on certain carpetings, mattings, etc., which was adopted, and after the rejection of a motion to restore the wool of. Then some committee amendments fixing the duty on kaolin, marble, etc., were adopted, and the tariff part of the bill was done. The tobacco section being reached, Wise wanted the tax on cigars, etc., repealed, but his proposition was defeated, and Johnston of North Carolina moved the repeal of all tax on spirits distilled from grain or fruit. The motion was defeated—27 to 135. A motion was then made to repeal the taxes on fruit spirits, and this was pending when the house adjourned. Oct. 1, 1888, was the date fixed for the tobacco clause to go into effect.

BASE BALL ATTRACTIONS.

CHICAGO, July 11.—Base ball playing in the National league yesterday gave the following results: At Chicago—Boston 1, Chicago 6; at Pittsburg—New York 2, Pittsburg 0; at Indianapolis—Philadelphia 2, Indianapolis 1; at Detroit—Washington 0, Detroit 4.

CHICAGO, July 12.—The playing of the two leading clubs in the National Base Ball league has been remarkably uniform this week. When Chicago lost Detroit very magnanimously lost also, and when one captured a game the other did likewise. The scores yesterday were: At Detroit—Philadelphia 4, Detroit 6; at Chicago—Washington 5, Chicago 7; at Pittsburg—Boston 6, Pittsburg 8; at Indianapolis—New York 5, Indianapolis 2.

CHICAGO, July 13.—The National Base Ball league played [illegible] those at Detroit and Pittsburg being stopped by bad weather. The scores were: At Chicago—Washington 22, Chicago 9; at Indianapolis—New York 6, Indianapolis 9.

CHICAGO, July 14.—That score of 22 to 9, with which the Statesmen mopped the earth with Anson's athletes Thursday, was evidently a little too much of a good thing for the ex-champions, and they rather got away with the Washingtons yesterday. A peculiar feature of the day's playing in the league was that out of six games five developed a goose egg for the losers. The scores were: At Chicago—Washington 0, Chicago 9; at Indianapolis—New York 4, Indianapolis 0; at Pittsburg—(morning) Boston 0, Pittsburg 4; (afternoon) Boston 0, Pittsburg 6; at Detroit—(first game) Philadelphia 2, Detroit 3; (second game) Philadelphia 0, Detroit 2.

CHICAGO, July 16.—The base ball schedules at the close of the playing yesterday were as follows:

League.	Won.	Lost.	Per cent.	American.	Won.	Lost.	Per cent.
Chicago	42	21	.666	Brooklyn	47	22	.680

Saturday's playing in the league gave the following scores: At Chicago—Chicago 5, New York 1; at Pittsburg—Pittsburg 0, Philadelphia 1; at Indianapolis—Indianapolis 5, Washington 2; at Detroit—Detroit 9, Boston 9—eleven innings; game called—darkness.

CHICAGO, July 17.—The Chicago club put Baldwin in the box yesterday to pitch against New York, but in the first inning Daly essayed to throw to second and struck Baldwin in the back of the head, disabling him for the remainder of the game, and Van Haltren took his place, finishing the inning and game in that position. The New Yorkers scored six runs in the first and three in the second inning. League scores were: At Chicago—New York 12, Chicago 4; at Indianapolis—Washington 0, Indianapolis 2; at Pittsburg—Philadelphia 1, Pittsburg 0; at Detroit—Boston 2, Detroit 3.

MARIETTA'S CELEBRATION.

A Gorgeous Street Pageant Led by Governor Foraker and Staff.

MARIETTA, O., July 16.—The thunder of heavy artillery from the hill tops about Marietta and the screaming of several hundred steam whistles announced the dawning of day, the beginning of the regular exercises of the celebration of the centennial anniversary of the origin of civil government in the west. The sound of the salutes seemed to summon this part of the world to life, for the sun had hardly risen before the picturesque river valleys converging at Marietta began to team with people journeying toward this lovely and historic old city. The crowds that gathered here early in the morning were entertained by a glittering street pageant led by Governor Foraker and staff with a detachment of United States regulars, under Col. Kellogg, U. S. A. The Ohio militia was present and a large number of civil organizations took part in the parade.

At 11 o'clock the spacious Auditorium building was thronged, and the 7,000 or 8,000 people in it heard a pleasant address from Hon. B. Wilson Smith, who represents the state of Indiana. He was followed by Charles Reemih, of Cincinnati, who addressed himself to the German citizens.

Judge Cassidy, of the Wisconsin supreme bench, one of the great lawyers of the northwest, made a brief but powerful speech, pregnant with points of humor and common sense. He was followed by Professor J. D. Butler, of Wisconsin, who was the orator selected by his state at this celebration. Senator Evarts, of New York, arrived at noon, and was escorted to the temporary residence of Governor Foraker, whose guest he is.

RANDALL A VERY SICK MAN.

His Physicians, However, Feel Much Encouraged and Hopeful.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 16.—Representative Randall's physicians say their patient is better, but he is still a very sick man. There has been no recurrence of hemorrhage since Saturday night. Mr. Randall slept considerably since early yesterday morning, and at midnight last night was resting comfortably. Dr. Martin, who, with Dr. Malan, remained at the Randall residence Saturday night, returned to Philadelphia yesterday and will not visit Mr. Randall again for several days, unless summoned here by some unlooked-for emergency.

The physicians and household felt so much encouraged and hopeful of continued progress during the night that Dr. Malan and Mr. Randall's oldest daughter and her husband, Mr. Lancaster, went to their homes to spend the night. Leaving Mrs. Randall and the attendants to care for the congressman, Mr. Randall will not, in any event, resume his congressional duties this session, and as soon as he can stand the journey will go to his Pennsylvania home.

Gagged the Jailer and Flew Out.

WORTHINGTON, Minn., July 16.—As Jailer Edwards was giving the prisoners in the county jail their supper, they attacked, bound and gagged him, and all of them, six in number, made their escape. One or two were very crate criminals.

THE TABERNACLE BUILT.

LESSON IV, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JULY 22.

The Text of the Lesson Is to Be Found in Ex. xxxv. 20-29—Golden Text, II Cor. ix. 7—Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Condensed from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, Philadelphia publisher.]

Moses had returned from his seventh visit to God in the mount; for the second time had he spent forty days and nights there, and did neither eat bread nor drink water, and when he came down from the mount the skin of his face shone, but he wist it not (xxxiv. 28-30).

V. 20. "And the congregation departed." Moses had received a command to take from all the willing hearted among the children of Israel an offering unto the Lord of the materials named in verses 5 to 10 that with them he might build a sanctuary in which God might dwell among them (xxv. 8). A full account of this tabernacle, with all its vessels and the garments of the priests, is found in chapters xxv to xxx; and repeated in chapters xxxvi to xxxix. The building and its significance will come before us in our next lesson, today we have the willing hearted people and their offerings.

21. "And they came, * * * and they brought the Lord's offering." They did not forget to return, they did not object to that sort of preaching, neither did they seem to consider it a grievous thing to be thus called upon to contribute toward this building; it was "an offering unto the Lord" (vs. 5, 21, [illegible] vs. 5, 21, 22, 29), because their hearts were stirred up (vs. 21, 26), and they brought in such abundance that there was soon sufficient for all the work, and too much, so that the people had to be restrained from bringing (xxxvi. 4-7). There was no entertainment or fair or sacred concert by which to raise the money or bring in the material; it was all a willing offering unto the Lord.

22. "And they came, both men and women." Thank God for the women, willing hearted, wise hearted, and with hearts stirred up (vs. 25, 26), who are found everywhere ministering unto Him, not only in Dorcas societies and in district visiting, in prayer meetings and as Bible readers, but as actual missionaries at home and abroad. In the China Island mission alone, out of its 233 missionaries at the beginning of this year, 55 were married women and 96 unmarried women. Surely Ps. lxviii. 11 is being fulfilled. "The Lord gveth the word; the women that publish the tidings are a great host." (R. V.) He who permitted many women to follow Him and minister unto Him, who hindered not the women of Samaria from running to tell the glad tidings, who commissioned a woman to bear the first resurrection message from Himself, has nowhere that I can find forbidden women either to minister unto Him, or to lovingly testify of Him either in private or in public.

"Every man an offering of gold unto the Lord." Their hearts must have been wonderfully stirred when every man brought an offering of gold. It is seldom that such metal finds its way into an offering unto the Lord in these days; pennies or nickels are apt to predominate, perhaps a fair sprinkling of dimes with a few larger silver pieces, but the gold is not abundant. There are those whose hearts are really set upon the Lord's work, and who give their best and give abundantly both as to time and money, but why are not more hearts thus stirred?

24. If one had not gold, there was silver and brass and wood needed, and if brass or wood was all that a person was able to bring it was as acceptable as gold, "for if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not." (II Cor. viii. 12.) Out of the silver was made the hundred sockets for the boards of the tabernacle and the pillars of the veil, also the hooks and chapiters and fillets for the pillars; out of the brass was made the sockets of the court, the sockets of the court gate, the sockets of the door, and all the pins of the tabernacle and court, also the grate of the brazen altar and all its vessels, and the covering of the altar (xxxviii. 27-31). The wood was used for the pillars and boards and bars and also for the framework of the two altars, the table, and the ark. The gold was used to make the lid of the ark and cherubim, also the golden candlestick; and it was used to cover the ark, the table, the altar of incense and the forty-eight boards of the tabernacle; it was also beaten into thin plates and cut into wires and worked into the High Priest's ephod, as well as to form the settings of the precious stones, and the crown upon his forehead.

25, 26. "The women did spin with their hands," and for this also they had to be wise hearted and stirred up. The work was for the house of the Lord, and they must have wrought zealously and cheerfully. It is just grand to let Him have our hands to work with them, and our feet to run for Him, and to say in all things, "Jesus, I do this for Thee." When our eyes delight to behold His glory and our ears to hear His word, so that we have eyes and ears for Him above all others, then shall we know the joy of His service.

27. The onyx and other precious stones were for the shoulder stones and breast plate of the High Priest's dress, on which were engraven the names of the twelve tribes; on the shoulder stones according to birth, and on the breast plate according to the tribes (xxviii. 10, 21). They tell us of the Garden of Eden in the past (Gen. ii. 12, Ez. xxviii. 13), and the New Jerusalem of the future (Rev. xxi. 19, 20), besides many precious lessons concerning our Lord's present work on our behalf.

28. A full account of the holy anointing oil and sweet incense, which was compounded of these spices, and the like of which no one was to make for his own use upon pain of death, is found in xxx. 22-38.

29. "Every man and woman whose heart made them willing." Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart, and, therefore, we are to serve Him with a perfect heart and a willing mind, for He searcheth all hearts and understandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts of the heart, (1 Sam. xvi. 17, 1 Chron. xxviii. 9.) A very old but appropriate prayer runs thus:

Wash, Lord, and purify my heart,
And make it right in every part;
And with a willing, Lord, keep it too,
For that is more than I can do.

"For all manner of work." A heart right with God is ready for any or every work, that He may appoint, seeking not our own will for our own glory, but to be emptied of self and filled with the spirit for His honor and His glory.

The best thing that will make us willing workers for God is a more intimate acquaintance with our Lord Jesus Christ, for the more clearly we see His great love to us the more we will love Him and want to serve Him in any capacity.

An Unselfish Life.

QUEEN OF THE SADDLE.

A Half Breed Beauty as Seen in Oregon.

The patter of heavy feet was heard. Some young horses came down a steep hill at full run. Behind was a reckless, rapid [illegible]

The horse that bore the rider was tossing his head madly and slinging white foam in flakes from his mouth. He was a rearing, restless, heavy built, regulation broncho, but it was remarked that he was well under control, for he seemed to be fairly lifted from side to side by the reins at the will of the rider, who drew up to our resting-place.

We stared in a way that was not mannerly, even in the wilds of Oregon. The rider of the restless pony was a young girl. She waited with embarrassment for us to tell our errand.

"Who lives here?" we asked.

"I do," she replied, in a tone that did not make us feel any more at home.

"Whose kettle is this?" was the next question.

"Mine."

After a pause she added:

"Can I do anything for you, gentlemen?"

"Well, well, no," was about the only intelligible answer at command.

"Will you come to the house?" she added; "it is near dinner time."

As she rode before we looked upon a graceful rider, a well rounded, neat figure, a brunette, with the languid beauty so much admired in the Castilian woman, clad in coarse, strong, short skirts, below which showed a small boot and a keen, bright spur. Her rich saddle was heavy, strong and double rigged.

Her horse had not stopped at the gate till she sprang to the ground. My companion stepped forward with a Chesterfield bow, but too late to assist her.

She asked us to go to the house while she led her horse to the stable. When we were within a rod of the door we both started with surprise. A repulsive, sullen, scowling Indian was at each window.

We were greatly surprised to learn that our hostess was a half breed. In her features or actions we had observed not one trace of the Indian. Her demeanor was modest, while at the same time she was fully imbued with that Western liberality that allows no man to pass without an invitation to partake of a meal or night's lodging.

We bade her good-bye reluctantly, and continued our hunt, thinking how much more appropriate such grace and such wealth would be in the circles of society than on the back of a broncho.—San Francisco Chronicle.

THE FIRST HUSBAND'S FAULT.

Woman's Logic—Reasoning of Which a Man Is Incapable.

Mrs. Tuttles, a widow only recently married a second time, was visiting her friend Mrs. Johnson in her elegant freestone front on the avenue yesterday, and, of course, recounting her woes.

Mrs. Johnson was astonished at the news she heard, and exclaimed:

"My dear, you amaze me. I thought you were one of the happiest women in the town."

"I!" screamed Mrs. Tuttles, at the bare idea of happiness in her life, and she broke into tears.

"Yes. Why, look at the house you have, and the carriages and horses and servants and diamonds."

"And you call that happiness?"

"I don't see what else you could desire."

"I could desire a man that would give me some comfort in life."

"Man? I thought he was a good man and an old friend of your first husband."

"Ah, I lead a terrible life with him, and it's all the fault of my first husband, the mean old wretch."

"Why, how is that?"

"How? Why if he hadn't been so stupid as to have gone and died, I never would have been such a fool as to marry again."

LIVING FOR OTHERS.

Society Must Rise or Fall as One Body.

No one liveth to himself, and no one dieth to himself. When we realize this fact, and live in the spirit of brotherhood, we are all doing something to put an end to war, in all its forms—international war, social war, party and sectarian war.

No nation can live to itself, or die to itself. Its prosperity and decay must influence other nations for good or evil. No nation can be independent of other nations. No body of men in society, no industrial or professional class, can be independent of other classes.

Society must rise or fall as one body. When the poor are oppressed the rich suffer, too. The contagion of ignorance, of immorality, of disease or crime, passes into every part of social life. We are members of a great body, sharing its joys and sorrows.—James Freeman Clarke.

Cure of Cancer and Ulcers.

Judge T. C. McLeaden writes to the Swift Specific Co.: "About three years ago, Jerry Bradley had a cancerous sore on his face, near the right eye. It caused him a great deal of pain, and he lost the sight of the eye, but was finally cured by the use of Swift's Specific. This case is well known in Wilkes Co., Ga., where he lives."

Mr. L. Cox, of Arkabutla, Tate Co., Miss., writes: "I suffered a great deal from old ulcers for years. Your medicine was recommended, and after using six bottles I was completely cured. Your medicine does even more than you claim for it. I have known it to cure cases which were thought hopeless."

Mrs. A. M. Goldsmith, No. 64 Warren St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "I commenced using S. S. S. about three years ago. I had suffered from a sore throat for over a year. I used a great many other remedies with no good results. My little girl had a scrofulous sore finger; it commenced from the quick and then the nails would come off. We doctored her for nearly two years, and when I commenced using S. S. S. I thought I would see what it would do for her. I am thankful to say that it entirely cured her. It is the best remedy I know of for the blood. I feel as if it was the means of saving my life." The doctor told me I had a cancer. Cancers similar to mine, I cheerfully recommend to all who are suffering from discolored blood."

PREPARING HIS SPEECH.

The Average Congressman's Wife's Part in This Operation.

The wife of a Congressman does not [illegible] the happiest of lives. Fancy the preparation of her husband's speech. The history begins at home.

Perhaps it is a humorous speech. Heavens! how much domestic suffering has been caused by each well "worked-up" joke! No one else knows how those jokes, or those bursts of eloquence, wear upon the ties of domestic happiness.

It is a terrible test of the devotion of a wife to sit and listen to her husband, while, with wild gesticulation and varied tones, he reads over and over again some high-sounding sentence, committing it to memory and practicing its effects. Ordinarily the preparation of a speech is the result of, many days'—perhaps weeks'—work. During this time the wife is a thing to be practiced upon. Night and day, at all times, some fragment of that speech, either in sound or in manuscript, is somewhere about the house.

When the husband is at home he is either reading it, talking about it or repeating fragments to himself aloud. When he's away the children take it up, and at every turn the wife runs upon a bit of manuscript.

The beginning of the speech is the collection of information. In this the wife may be called upon to assist. She is expected to take an inordinate interest in cyclopædias, statistical abstracts, census reports and bound volumes of old speeches made by statesmen in the florid days of Roman oratory.

A comparative statement of imports and exports, of home production and domestic consumption, is expected to fill her soul with excitement.

Each new discovery made by the new member is laid before his wife and enlarged upon. He discusses with her the result of his day's labor, reads to her his notes, expands before her the thought that is shaping itself in his mind, and looks to her for applause and approbation.

She must listen while her lord reads passages of old speeches in mimicked oratory. Then he has the skeleton of his speech—the speech unpadded with rhetoric.

He then hurls hard facts at her with all his power of voice, and asks if there is any getting away from that.

After he has read to her several times the skeleton of his oration, he fills it with big fat words and rotund sentences. The wife quietly shuts the window as he reads these over. As a finishing touch he turns to poetry to embellish the oration and make it ornate with apt quotations.

The speech is then complete, and from that moment until he goes over it for the last time after breakfast on the morning it is to be burst upon the public, he delivers it at his wife every time he gets her alone, and she is at his mercy.—Washington Correspondent.

UNDER THE OCEAN'S WAVES.

A New Field for the Photographer. The Secrets of Nature Exposed to View.

"It will not be long," said a well known scientific man to a reporter, "before we shall know almost as much about the bottom of the ocean as we do of its surface."

"What means will be employed to bring this about?"

"By means of the photographic camera, experiments with which are now being made.

"Thus far the best results have been obtained by the Swedish government, which has recently sent to Lieut. Arthur Haviland, at Washington, several specimens of deep-sea photography, which are the best yet obtained.

"The method of exposing the plates to the objects at the bottom of the ocean is decidedly ingenious. A camera strong enough to resist the pressure of the water at great depth is prepared, and an appliance for throwing out a strong electric light is connected with it, thus doing away with the necessity for sunlight, which, of course, could not be had at any great depth.

"Thus far the results obtained have not been of any real value to science, except to open up the possibilities for the future. Most of the plates display simply a tangled mass of vegetable growth, as if the camera had been put into a thick lot of underbrush and the plate had been exposed.

"Still, the comparatively unsatisfactory result is encouraging, and leads all scientific men to believe that before many years the floor of the ocean will not be an unknown land, as it in reality is at the present time."

Utilizing Pea Pods.

Dr. Jacobsen is authority for a ready method of utilizing the delicious marrow that lies among the fibres of the pea pod, and which is sweeter and better than the peas themselves.

He directs to boil the shells well in water, to which has been added a little carbonate of soda, then strain through a cloth, and, after adding some sugar to the liquid, boil it down till thick.

The extract thus obtained will keep for any length of time without becoming mouldy, and a teaspoonful of it added to a bowl of soup gives to it the flavor of fresh green peas, besides adding to its material quality.

Two o'Clock Courage.

Every soldier understands why "2 o'clock in the morning" courage is recognized as courage in its highest form.

At that time many hours of fasting have occurred since the evening meal; enough sleep has not yet been had to restore the nervous system to its normal condition after the fatigue and excitement of the previous day; it is the hour of darkness and silence, when the mind magnifies the slightest sounds.

The stoutest nerves require a great deal of bracing when a camp is startled out of its sleep by an attack at such an hour.

Sisters Enough.

She had promised to be a sister to him.

He thanked her coldly, but said that he already had five sisters.

"Why, Mr. Sampson," said the girl, "I thought you were an only child."

"I am," he responded, "I mean that I have five sisters such as you offer to be," and he tottered to the door.

Loud.

Fisherman—"Go 'way. You're trousers are so loud that they frighten the fish."—Burlington Free Press.

"Think of a Family

having the habit of daily converse with all the knowledge that is old enough to get into books—your family!

You can bring that about, if you want to. Possibly some father or mother may read this, to whom it isn't true; but we doubt it.

Consider what it means. It means that you have a Cyclopedia in your living room, your evening family-room, the handiest place to get at when you want it; and when a subject comes up that one of the family wants to know more of, you turn to it in your Cyclopedia, just as you turn to a word in your dictionary.

This set of books can be the means of constant growth in knowledge, in use of the mind, in the habit of seeking light on whatever is dark, for you and your family, if you will have it so. Or you can neglect it as many neglect their dictionaries. All we said was that you have your choice.

You are thinking, "Can I get it?"

If you really want it, the very fact that you want it almost certainly puts it within your reach. We should like to see an exception or hear of one. We don't believe there is any.

If you desire the end, let us hear from you. You shall know the means.

The International Cyclopedia is one for you. Latest, most comprehensive, briefest, cheapest. (These words lean on one another a little.)

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.

Used in the principal churches for communion. Excellent for females, weakly persons and the aged.

Speer's Port Grape Wine!
FOUR YEARS OLD.

This celebrated wine is the pure juice of the dead ripe Oporto Grape, raised in Speer's vineyards, and left hanging until they shrink and become partly raisined before gathering. Its invaluable are unsurpassed by any other wine. Being produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal hospitals and boards of health who have examined it. The youngest child and the weakest invalids use it to advantage. It is particular beneficial to the aged and debilitated and suited to the various ailments that effect the weaker sex.

It is in every respect a WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice.

Is the juice of the Oporto Grape preserved in its natural fresh, sweet state as it runs from the press by fumigation and electricity, thereby destroying the exciter of fermentation. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits and will keep in any climate.

Speer's (Socialite) Claret.

Is held in high estimation for its richness as a Dry Table Wine, especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry.

Is a wine of superior character and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's P. J. Brandy.

Is a pure distillation of the grape, and stands unrivaled in this country for medical purposes. It has a peculiar flavor, similar to that of the grapes from which it is distilled.

See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is over the cork of each bottle.

$1,500 in Cash Prizes FOR THREE BEST ADVERTISEMENTS.

The Chicago Daily News has reduced its price from two cents to One Cent per copy. For a year past its sales have been over "a million-a-week," and it believes it now sees the way to safely lead in placing an ideal American daily paper upon the basis of the lowest unit of American coinage—ONE CENT.

To successfully accomplish this end two things are essential:

First—To make as good a newspaper as the best, if not a little better; second—to let every man, woman and child in the Northwest KNOW it's being done, and done at one cent a day. THE DAILY NEWS believes that it is competent to take care of the first named condition, and knows of no better way of meeting the second than by general newspaper advertising. To do the latter most effectively it here solicits the co-operation of all who believe themselves competent to write an effective newspaper advertisement. To induce the best effort in its service in this matter THE DAILY NEWS will reward the writers of the three best advertisements submitted, with three cash prizes, aggregating Fifteen Hundred Dollars, divided as follows:

First Cash Prize—For best advertisement,	$1,000.00
Second Cash Prize—For second best advertisement,	300.00
Third Cash Prize—For third best advertisement,	200.00
Total,	$1,500.00

The advertisement may be a single announcement, or a series of announcements not exceeding six in number. The space required must not exceed that occupied by this advertisement—eight inches deep, six and one-quarter inches wide.

For the general guidance of all who enter the competition, the following ten points are briefly stated as being those which THE DAILY NEWS will require to be most prominently brought out. The advertisement must emphasize:

1—That THE DAILY NEWS is first, last and all the time, a news-paper. Because that should be the first and controlling consideration in the production of an American Daily paper,—and it isn't always so. It costs money, enterprise and hard work in unstinted measure to make a genuine news-paper.

2—That THE DAILY NEWS is a daily paper for busy people. Because this is a country of busy people, and the North-west is the busiest part of it. Most people haven't the time or patience to read a "blanket-sheet,"—they absolutely haven't any use for it. Newspaper reading, after all, is but an incident of life, not its chief business. Therefore THE DAILY NEWS is a short-and-to-the-point-paper.

3—That THE DAILY NEWS is an independent, truth-telling newspaper. Because the American people are intelligent enough to prefer honest, impartial journalism to the misleading, truth-discoloring dishonesty of the regulation political "organ." Everybody really wants to know the truth in political matters; the most violent partisan doesn't want misinformation for a daily diet. And as to editorial expression, even the most unreasonable partisan will rarely take lasting offence at an adverse opinion, so long as he is confident of the honesty of purpose back of the opinion. It's not the mere fact of disagreement that makes trouble, it's the suspicion of insincerity. [Make this point very strong and clear. It's because THE DAILY NEWS has won it's way to the confidence of its readers of every political faith that it has a circulation of over "a-million-a-week."]

4—That THE DAILY NEWS is a family paper. Because this is the age of the newspaper,—a time when everybody reads it, and it is all-important that the newspaper should be made with direct reference to the needs of all the members of the family. Woman and her interests never occupied so large a share of the world's thought as to-day—a fact not to be overlooked. The moral tone and influence of a daily paper must also be constantly watched, for children read it. THE DAILY NEWS is for the home, and therefore it follows

5—That THE DAILY NEWS is against the saloon. Because "the liquor interest" arrogantly assumes to dominate in American politics, and THE DAILY NEWS believes that it is not for the country's good that any one interest should thus over-ride all others, much less one which stands as the representative of all that is most un-American among us. THE DAILY NEWS is not the organ of prohibition. It is not sure that prohibition is the best thing. Good people who have made this subject a life-long study do not agree as to the remedy. THE DAILY NEWS has no eutopian hope that it is possible to legislate men into goodness, but it has a very positive conviction that it is entirely practicable, and altogether desirable, to legislate saloon-keepers into their proper place, as being engaged in a traffic which here, as everywhere else in the civilized world, is only tolerated as, apparently, a necessary evil. [There must be no uncertain sound on this point.]

6—That THE DAILY NEWS is a happy paper. Because it believes in the practical wisdom of being good natured; of being generally satisfied rather than everlastingly dissatisfied. The chronic fault-finder is a nuisance, and THE DAILY NEWS will have the least possible of him. The world is better than it used to be, and is getting better every day. It's a good place to live in—let's make the best of it.

7—That THE DAILY NEWS costs a great deal of money to make. Because there is sometimes no way of demonstrating the value of a thing, to some people, so conclusively as by showing, even in part, what it costs to make it. There are 300 people on the regular weekly pay-roll of THE DAILY NEWS, and their salaries range from $5,500 to $6,000 per week, aggregating $300,000 a year. The white paper costs another $300,000 a year. The aggregate expenditures of THE DAILY NEWS for 1888 will vary but a trifle either way from $900,000. And yet

8—That THE DAILY NEWS now costs the reader only One Cent a Day. Because this is the most wonderful thing in modern journalism, and deserves telling o'er and o'er. [There is little danger of making too much of this point.]

9—That THE DAILY NEWS is now literally everybody's paper. Because heretofore metropolitan daily papers have been too expensive, both in price and in time required to read them, to make it practicable for the farmer or the mechanic to take them. Now this is changed. The farmer particularly should take a daily paper now that it costs but little more than the old-time weekly, and is condensed so that he can also afford the time to read it. He'll save its yearly cost over and over again by knowing the market prices every day, instead of weekly as heretofore.

10—That THE DAILY NEWS now inaugurates a newspaper revolution. Because such a combination of values as it now offers the reader is absolutely without parallel among American newspapers, and it is bound to make the dry-bones rattle. The result of this revolution is that every English reading person living within daily newspaper distance of Chicago can now afford, both as to price and time, to have his city daily.

Other points will suggest themselves to the regular reader of the paper itself, and may be introduced according to the judgment of the advertisement writer. Outline illustrations and poetry may be introduced if desired, but they are not necessarily essential to success in the competition. The prizes will be awarded to the three most successful advertisements, the publisher of THE DAILY NEWS being the sole judge, whatever may be the absolute grade of their merit. All advertisements must be received before September 1st next, and the awards will be made at the earliest date practicable thereafter. Intending competitors must apply for the paper's complete prospectus, and advertisements must be submitted under the conditions therein named in detail.

MORTGAGE SALE.

BY a certain indenture of mortgage bearing date the 18th day of June, A.D., 1885, made and executed by Robert N. McCollum and Mehitable D. McCollum, his wife, of Franklin, Lenawee County, Michigan, to Moses Bartlett of Clinton, in said county, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, on the 18th day of June, A.D. 1885, in Liber 114 of Mortgages, on page 174, the said Robert N. McCollum and wife mortgaged to the said Moses Bartlett all those certain pieces or parcels of land situate in the township of Franklin in the County of Lenawee and State of Michigan, and described as follows, to wit: The southwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section ( ) being forty (40) acres, more or less, and the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section twelve (12) being forty (40) acres more or less. Said mortgage was on the 18th day of June, A.D., 1888, assigned by the said Moses Bartlett to Anna Eccles, which assignment was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for said County of Lenawee, on the 24th day of July, A.D., 1888, in Liber 115 of Mortgages, on page 376. Default has been made in the conditions of said mortgage, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative. There is claimed to be due and unpaid on said mortgage at this date the sum of Four Thousand and Fifty nine 50-100 Dollars ($4059.50) and no suit or proceedings at law or in chancery have been instituted to collect the same or any part thereof. Notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgaged premises will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder on the 18th day of October, A.D., 1888, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the east front door of the Court House in the city of Adrian in said County of Lenawee, said Court House being the place of holding the circuit court for said county of Lenawee to satisfy the amount now due, together with all legal costs and charges of this foreclosure.

Dated July 18, A.D., 1888.

A SABBATH ON THE PRAIRIE.

The Big Prairie in Ridgeway, Lenawee County, Michigan, is a large tract of flat land, naturally overgrown with wild grass, varying in fineness from the prairie grass used by the pioneers for hay, to a thicker stalk growing to the height of 5 to 8 feet, furnishing fuel for annual fires, which swept over the globe from time immemorial. When first discovered water stood on parts of the serface, and beaver and otter continued inhabitants of what seemed their original home. This grand meadow was not utilized by the surrounding settlers, only for wild hay and pasture, until about 1855. Rev. Geo. Price adventured on the prairie as a farmer. He demonstrated in a few years by his skill and energy, that very good agricultural results awaited drainage and culture of the long neglected Big Prairie. Mr. Price has long since retired on the fruit of his apparent hazardous enterprise. Since that time others have located and built on the Prairie, and it is now marked in every direction by houses and barns, including one school house.

Mr. I. S. Osborn owns 320 acres of land near the school house, which he has drained, tiled and extensively brought under cultivation, and it is adorned by three dwellings and two large barns. To facilitate the large harvest, Mr. Osborn and lady established a temporary abode on the farm. The approach of Sabbath reminded them that they were distant from any religious services. Notice was given for a meeting at the school house, Sunday P. M. July 22. The people assembled. The house was amply filled. The use of an organ had been secured, which was played by Prof. E. Wilson. A song of praise was followed by prayer by Rev. W. H. Benton, pastor Ridgeway M. E. Church. After another song, a sermon was delivered by Rev. Peter Sharp. The sermon was followed by impromptu addresses, by D. W. Loree, M. D., B. L. Baxter, Esq., Prof. E. Wilson, Rev. W. H. Benton and Rev. Wm. Wright, pastor Christian church at Britton.

The congregation was well deported and evidently impressed by a sense of the Divine presence.

An Interesting Course of Lectures.

The Political Science Association of the University of Michigan has made arrangements for a course of six lecturers to be given during the next year. These lectures will treat of the American Constitution as reflected in the Federal and State Courts, and will be delivered by prominent jurists of the country. Hon. Stanely Matthews of the Supreme Bench; Hon. T. M. Cooley, Chairman of the Inter-State Commerce Commission; Hon. Daniel H. Chamberlain, ex-Governor of South Carolina; and Hon. Henry Hitchcock, of St. Louis, have already signified their willingness to take part in this course. As these lecturers will be both critical and biographical, treating of the lives of the Chief Justices of the United States, they will be of interest to students of American history as well as to students of law.

Notice to Teachers.

The regular public examination of teachers will be held at Dean's Opera House in the City of Adrian, on Thursday and Friday, August 2d. and 3d., 1888, beginning at 9 o'clock, sharp, local time.

Applicants may do work at this examination for 1st. 2d. and 3d. grade certificate, but will have no further opportunity to work for 1st. and 2d. grades until next March.

All who expect to teach during the coming fall or winter should avail themselves of this two days examination, that they may do the work more carefully, thus earning a higher grading than when compelled to write on all the branches in one day.

CERTAINLY THE BEST.

Papillon Clark's extract of flaxy Catarrh Cure, from an experiment, has grown to be the acknowledged superior of any remedy for similar purposes. Purely vegetable and scientifically prepared, it is absolutely harmless, and effects cures where all other known remedies and the most learned medical talent fail. That it is a favorite with all classes is evidenced by the fact that during the past two years, 86,000 gallons have been sold. Positively cures Catarrh, Hay Fever, Colds, etc., etc. Large bottles only $1.00.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, JULY 26

The Democratic State Convention held at Detroit last week performed its work wisely and well. Burt & Moran will make a winning ticket.

Wellington R. Burt is one of the foremost citizens of Michigan. Beginning life a poor boy he has worked his way into wealth and position by his indomitable industry and business sagacity. He will be the next governor of Michigan.

Wellington R. Burt is not one of would run for the governorship simply for the honor of being beaten. The mere fact that he has accepted the nomination is proof that he expects and intends to be elected.

Burt for Governor and Yaple for Congress is evidently the program this fall. The Revenue Reformers need Mr. Yaple in Congress in these days of tariff discussion and tax reduction. Burt will be elected governor and Yaple will go to Congress from the fourth district.

The prospects are favorable that the Custer pension bill will pass. It has been set down for a vote on Friday next and has been championed by Representatives Chipman of the First district and Allen of this district. Mr. Custer is now getting $20 per month and the new bill raises the amount to $50, which is not too much, as he is in rather straightened circumstances financially.

A correspondent who has been interviewing Congressman Mr. Dempsey in Boston, represents that gentleman as expressing great satisfaction with the result of the Chicago convention. Mr. Dempsey thinks the republicans stand a fair chance to elect their ticket, but he is not sure of it. He does not think Cleveland a hard man to beat, but fears Mrs. Cleveland's popularity, and regards it overall as an extremely lucky sort of an individual.

If the taxes are too high, lower them. In doing this, if you are compelled to tax the rich, tax off of clothing and off of whisky, the party that elevates the clothing is the people's friend and the party that chooses the whisky is the people's enemy. If it is better to have a glass of rum than to know how to vote, but if you have any doubt whatever, look into the faces of your wife and children and then vote accordingly.—New York Herald.

The Republican newspaper organs are having a pretty hard time of it this fall. What with explaining the defection in their own ranks and congratulating same about the opposition, they are kept rather busy. Their latest silly invention is that Burt's nomination was displeasing to many Democrats. The fact is that public sentiment in the party was so absolutely unanimous in his favor that no other name was presented to the convention.

The Bourbon Republicans, who never forget anything and never learn anything, cannot understand how the disciples of Ben Butler, the admirers of Geo. L. Yaple, the followers of W. R. Burt and the friends of Bartley Breen can work harmoniously together. Thanks to the courage of President Cleveland he has given the country an issue upon which reasonable men of all shades of opinion can unite. Democratic farmers, democratic manufactures, greenbackers and laboring men can all stand together upon the platform of tariff reduction on the lines of taxing luxuries and cheapening the necessaries of life.

The Mills bill passed the House last Saturday by the safe margin of thirteen. Three Republicans and three Independents voted for it and three Democrats voted against it. Four years ago both parties in national convention pledged themselves to revise the tariff and reduce war taxation. The Democratic majority have now done all within their power to redeem that pledge. The fight will now be transferred to the Republican Senate, and if the Republican leaders in that body shall dare to continue their policy of obstruction, the responsibility for the maintainance of war taxes must rest upon their shoulders, where it rightfully belongs. Will they obey the dictates of the Chicago platform or will they work for the interests of their tax-ridden constituents? We shall see.

DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION.

A Ringing Platform Adopted and a Strong Ticket Laced in Nomination.

The fusion forces have again take the field with a combined state and electoral ticket. The Greenbackers held their convention at Detroit last Thursday and the Nationals held theirs at Grand Rapids on the same day. A fusion ticket was arranged giving the greenbackers three places thereon, and they were also given three electors. C. H. Dewey, of Caledonia, is the elector from this district. The ticket is admirably chosen, both as regards geographical distribution and personal strength. Burt represents the Republican converts, Moran the old time democrat, Breen the bitter element, Ellis the thick and thin greenbacker, all of whom stand squarely on the President's message favoring tariff revision and a reduction of the war taxes. The Democracy of Michigan never had a stronger ticket to vote for. The events of the day at Detroit were the speeches of chairman Wm. P. Wells and of Rev. Lewis, a colored clergyman of East Saginaw.

THE PLATFORM.

The resolutions, in full are as follows:

1. The Democracy of Michigan, assembled in convention for the nomination of State officers, recognizing the fact that its chief duty is to present to the people candidates whose election will bring to the administration of State affairs integrity of character, purity of purpose and sound business methods, reaffirms its adherance to the principles and policies of the Democratic party in respect to national politics.

2. We renew the expression of our approval of the administration of President Cleveland, which has won the respect and confidence of the people, and justified his renomination, in response to the universal sentiment of the Democracy, by his unwearied devotion to public duty, his courageous maintenance of Democratic principles and his enforcement of pure, just and impartial methods of administration in all departments of the government. To him, as the chosen standard bearer of the national Democracy in the present campaign, and to his associate, Allen G. Thurman, the tried statesman, distinguished by a long life of public service, which has been illustrated by high ability and perfect integrity, and fruitful of benefit to the people, we pledge our best efforts, to the end that Michigan may be once more granted in the list of Democratic states.

3. Upon the chief question of national politics, the relief of the people from the burdens of tariff taxation, we declare our unalterable opposition to the present tariff policy of the Republican party. We affirm our approval of the last annual message of President Cleveland as a concise exposition of the distinct political Democratic principles, which should govern the whole question of revenue reform and the reduction of the surplus in the treasury. We declare our adherence to the platform adopted by the National Democratic Convention at St. Louis, and our approval of the action of our Democratic Representatives in Congress in their efforts to secure a reduction of the tax upon imports, thereby preventing the further accumulation of a dangerous surplus in the Treasury and relieving the people from the burdens of a war tariff. We believe that this position can only be the policy of the Government on this subject in harmony with the Constitution, the true interest of the people, the just demands of labor, the prosperity of all industries, and the adequate development of the resources of the country.

4. Though more than twenty-three years have elapsed since the war, we should not forget that a large number of that gallant and patriotic army that preserved to us an undivided country is still among us. With increasing years and increasing disability, the result of their privations and hardships, we believe the general government should deal justly with them and that liberal pensions should be granted to the wounded and disabled, not as a charity, but as a debt due them for honorable services rendered their country, and we point with satisfaction and approval to the liberal construction of existing pension laws by the present administration, resulting in a large increase in the amount annually paid to the veterans, and we urge action by Congress at its present session upon the pending pension measures.

5. The Democracy of Michigan, believing in the dignity of American labor, recognize the right of wage workers to the fostering care of government, that the legitimate industry in every walk of life may be encouraged in its work of building up the material interests of the State.

6. The ownership of real estate in this country by foreign corporations and non-resident aliens is injurious to American interests and should be prohibited.

7. We favor the adoption of measures providing for the health and safety of those engaged in mining, manufacturing and building industries.

8. We demand the repeal of all class legislation under which monopolies have been fostered and protected.

9. We demand that Congress shall restore to the public domain for settlement, all lands granted to railroads or other corporations which have not been earned, and more particularly do we demand the forfeiture of all unearned grants of lands in the Upper Peninsula, that that portion of the State may no longer be deprived of its natural growth and development.

10. The multiplication in the State of petty boards, commissions and officials, with such powers and surroundings as insure neither official responsibility nor the respect of the Legislature or the people, leave the matter of appropriations for State institutions largely controlled by log-rolling combinations, and to this as well as to lack of system we attribute the great and constant increase of expenditures. Therefore we submit that the case is one demanding the election of a Legislature and State officers free to make the changes which economy and good business methods may dictate.

11. The doctrines of home rule and local self-government are cardinal principles of the Democratic party. Therefore we cordially sympathize with the people of Ireland in the grand contest which they are making under the leadership of Gladstone and Parnell for the right to have the management of their own affairs.

THE HOME MARKET.

What interest has the American farmer in a protective tariff? It cannot be maintained a day without his support and if he is going to support it he ought to have some stake in it. He ought to know what that stake is, what it costs him, and what dividends it yields on the investment. With his family to support, his mortgage to pay off, his stock to shelter, and his books, newspapers, schools and churches to provide for, he cannot afford to be contributing of his scant earnings to build factories, for other people unless he is to get something in return which will replenish his earnings as fast as they are depleted. The protectionists say their tariff builds up factories. This means, if it means anything, that the tariff compells the American people to build factories. And this means that the people who own the factories are not to build them, but they are to be built by those who do not own them.

It is not pretended that the farmer owns the factory which the tariff has made him help to build. He does not share its profits. He does not work in it and draw wages from it. He works away on his farm, just as he did before, early and late, plowing, sowing, reaping and mowing amid the snow-drifts in winter.

He seldom or never comes in contact with the factory he has helped to build. He never goes there even to buy the goods it has made. He gets them at the store. He sells his produce at the elevator, or at the grocery, and his stock to the stock buyer. He never knows anything about the financial condition of the factory. His advice is never asked as to its management. He does not even know where it is, who owns it, when it was built, or whether it is still running.

A very able and confiding man, indeed, is this large-hearted and free-handed American farmer, who thus withdraws from his lean purse the money he might bestow upon his toiling wife and dependent babes and hands it over to the merchant from whom he buys his goods, to give to an unknown stranger whom he has never seen, who lives he knows not where, and of whose worthiness or unworthiness to receive the gift he knows nothing whatever.

Who is that stranger, where does he live, or what has he give, or pretend to give in return? We have noted that it is a dividend, an idiot wages. What can it be? It must be something, or the stranger is either a plundering villain or a pauper who will not or cannot support himself, and the farmer either a shocking imbecile or a more shocking robber of his own babes for the benefit of strangers. It must be something—what is it?

"A home market." That is to be the farmer's share in the blessings created by the tariff. "A home market." The phrase hath a taking sound. Analyze it and what does it mean? What is better than a market, unless it be a home? And what does this promise to the farmer mean except that he shall have a market near to his home?

This was indeed the promise, and only as long ago as the 12th of this current April 1888, the father of the present tariff system, Justin S. Morrill of Vermont, arose in his place in the United States Senate, and declared that it was for this home market that the system was adopted. Thus:

But our protective tariff was originated, as it should now be maintained, by the far sighted farmers and planters for their own special benefit, to create a constant and sure home market of consumers, to bring the manufacturer and the agriculturist together and to enable the country to maintain two citizens where only one could otherwise find support.

We shall not stop now to ask whether the tariff has built more factories anywhere than it has hindered or destroyed. That is a big question, a decidedly two-sided question, but it is not our present point. What we want to find out first is, where are those factories, if they are anywhere, which owe their existence to the tariff? Are they at or near the farmer's home, or somewhere else? Remember, the promise was not simply to build factories somewhere, it was to build them near the farm. It was to "bring the manufacturer and agriculturist together," as per the printed words quoted above. That is what the tariff was to have done. Is that what it has done? I put the question to every Western farmer's common sense; if that fails him, I put it to his eyesight; if that fails him, he can put it to his children, and they can read him a lesson out of the primary geography they study at school.

The factory, especially the protected factory, is at one end of the country and the farm at the other. It is a big country, too, and the road between the farm and factory runs the long way of it.

Is Massachusetts a home market for the Kansas or Nebraska farmer? When a system is adopted on the theory that it is to bring two industries, or two persons together, and after twenty-six years they are 2,000 miles apart, shall we call that system a success or a failure?

This is a plain, practical, business question, and not a howling demagogue's effort to stir up sectional animosities. The only "Home Market Club" of any prominence in this country has its headquarters in Boston. There is a reason for this location which is emphasized by recent events. Without any florid rhetoric or polished Bostonese grammar I put to that club the blunt question whether it thinks its home is mine, or the marts of that city a home market for the farmers of my native State of Iowa.

I fancy the answer will be: "No, not exactly, if you are going to put a fine point upon it. But we are nearer to you and your home than Liverpool is. If Boston lacks something of being a home market for the Western farmer, Liverpool, that you talk so much about, lacks more. You cannot deny that."

Yes I can. In these practical days commercial distances are not measured by the rod and chain, nor yet by degrees of longitude or latitude, but by the time and cost of transportation. The nearest market is the one which can be reached the most quickly or with the least expense, or both. It is true that by the line and compass Liverpool is 3,000 miles further away than Boston. But how do they compare in transportation?

The latest news on this subject is highly entertaining. The statistician of the Department of Agriculture, who ought to be good authority among the farmers, and who is a well-known protectionist philosopher of the home-market" school, issues a monthly report in which he gives the rates of freight on the leading railroad and steamship lines. For the last three months he has reported rates from Chicago to Boston 2 cents higher per 100 pounds, which is 3 cents a bushel on grain, than from Chicago to New York. In his last report he says:

In order to ascertain the rate to Boston add 5 cents to these rates, excepting dressed meats, which are the same to Boston as to New York. The rate to Philadelphia are found by deducting 2 cents and Baltimore 3 cents from New York rates.

And what are the rates from New York to Liverpool? From the same reports I find that on the 24 of January they were 11 5 cents a bushels, on the 1st of March 7 cent by the Anchor line to Glasgow, 5 by the Inman and the Guion to Liverpool, and 2 cents by the White Star line. On the 12th of April, the day on which Senator Morrill made the speech I have quoted, grain freights to Liverpool were reported entirely free in the New York quotations. For the average of this year to date, the sum of the rates from there to Liverpool has been less than the through rate from Chicago to Boston.

The common sense, business way of putting it is that so far this year Boston has been further away from the Western farmer than Liverpool. If either place is a home market to him it is Liverpool, and not Boston. It would seem that the Boston Home Market Club has plenty of business on hand.

And if Massachusetts is farther away from Illinois than England is what about the state the senator Morrill hails from? Which manufacturer and which agriculturist was it pray, that the "far sighted farmers and planters" of his younger days "originated the protective tariff" to bring together?

And if it be really proper for the government to compel Western farmers to patronize the factories located at their nearest selling market is it not bound by the logic of events to reverse its present policy and tax them to support the nearer British, and not the more distant New England factory? Anyhow, why not at at least gracefully permit them to choose the nearest market if they want to?—Chicago Daily Herald.

Americans are breaking down under high pressure application to business and duties at the desk; they are losing nerve force. Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic restores lost nerve force by supplying food for the nerve tissues, and by its gentle aperative action removes all restraint from the secretive organs, hence, curing all diseases of the stomach, liver and kidneys. Dr. Geo. Ferguson will supply the genuine Red Clover Tonic at 50 cents a bottle.

Vintage of Grapes for Invalids.

The Port Grape wine of New Jersey is the best medical wine in the market, and it is said that the vintage of Alfred Speer far exceeds any other product. It is heavy in body, rich in flavor and well adapted for sickly persons and for general family use. It makes new blood and gives color to the pale and sickly. Leading physicians prescribe this wine in their practice and use it at their own homes. Druggists sell it.

Itch, mange, and scratches of every kind on human or animals cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. This never fails. Sold by Baker & Hall, Druggists, Tecumseh Mich.

Mrs. Dart's Triplets.

President Cleveland's Prize for the three best babies at the Aurora County Fair, in 1887, was given to these triplets, Mollie, Idie, and Ray, children of Mrs. A. K. Dart, Hamburgh, N. Y. She writes: "Last August the little ones became very sick, and as I could get no other food that would agree with them, I commenced the use of Lactated Food. It helped them immediately, and they were soon as well as ever, and I consider it very largely due to the Food that they are now so well." Lactated Food is the best Food for bottle-fed babies. It keeps them well, and is better than medicine when they are sick. Three sizes: 25c., 50c., $1.00. At druggists. Cabinet photo. of the triplets sent free to the mother of any baby born this year. THE WEEK IN CONGRESS.

SUMMARY OF THE PROCEEDINGS IN BOTH BRANCHES.

A Condensed Report of the Work of the National Law-Makers.

Six Days—The Tariff Bill Reported Favorably by the House in Committee of the Whole.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 18.—Blair moved in the senate yesterday that a place be provided in the capitol to test Craig's improved telegraph scheme, the object being to have the government buy it if it was a good thing. The resolution went over. The sundry civil bill was reported back, and a bill to place John C. Fremont on the retired list with the rank of major general was passed. Butler, Call, Gibson, Hearst, and Gray, Democrats, voting aye. The senate then receded from its subsidy amendment to the postoffice bill. The bill to pay government workmen for overtime since the eight hour law went into effect was taken up, and after debate, passed—yeas, 25; nays, 22. The senate then adjourned.

The house adopted a resolution asking why ex-Confederates were refused Mexican war pensions, and then resumed the tariff discussion. All amendments repealing the tax on cigars, etc., and fruit spirits were rejected, as were several proposing to strike out the modification of the revenue laws relating to the collection of taxes. Lawler offered an amendment abolishing the oleomargarine tax, and that was rejected—101 to 3. The last section of the bill was acted upon, leaving only those sections that have been passed over to consider. A motion was adopted that the bill go into effect October 1 next, and Mills said he would call the previous question [illegible] at 11:00 [illegible] took recess to 7 p. m., at which session bills establishing lighthouses at a number of Atlantic ports and in the lakes were passed. The house adjourned at 9:45 p. m.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 19.—Bills were reported to the senate yesterday to establish a bureau of harbors and waterways in the war department; reducing postage on third and fourth class matter to one cent for two ounces, and Spooner's bill placing the telegraph service under the supervision of the interstate commerce commission. Cullom offered a resolution instructing the interstate commerce committee to inquire into the propriety of extending the interstate law to telegraph and express companies, and to all railways. Blair's resolution to give the Craig telegraph system a test in the capitol was agreed to. The bill to admit Washington territory and part of Idaho as a state was debated without action, and the senate, after an executive session, adjourned.

The house continued the consideration of the Mills bill. The first paragraph discussed was that putting on the free list iron and steel hoops used for baling cotton, not thinner than No. 20 wire gauge. It was amended to read "all iron and steel hoops," etc., and then adopted. The existing rates of duty on cement, whiting and Paris white were restored, and the pottery section was taken up. The duty on decorated china, porcelain, parian, earthen, stone or crockery ware, was increased from 45 to 50 per cent. ad valorem. Buchanan failed in an effort to restore existing rates on all pottery, and the glass section being reached the duty on glass bottles, cylinder, crown and window glass was slightly increased. This section was adopted, and in the tobacco section Mills proposed the restoration of present rates on leaf tobacco. A dispute as to how much time should be allowed to debate this motion resulted in filibustering by the Republicans, leaving the house without a quorum, and an adjournment was carried at 4:05 p. m.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 20.—The senate yesterday passed the bill amending the "3rd Debt" envelope law, making such envelopes unmailable; also the house bill requiring the Pacific railways operating telegraph lines to take all business on the same terms. At 2 p. m. an executive session was begun, which lasted until 5:30, when the senate adjourned. Justice Fuller's nomination was not taken up, but the nomination of Samuel J. Bigelow to be district attorney of New Jersey was rejected. Evarts, Edmunds and others vigorously opposed it.

The house refused to pass the bill for a public building at Allentown, Pa., over the president's veto, and then resumed the Mills bill in committee of the whole. The amendment restoring the present duty on leaf tobacco and one doing the same thing for pipes and smokers' articles were agreed to, and speeches in favor and against the bill by Springer, Dingley and Reed closed the consideration of the same in committee. It was then reported to the house amid hearty applause by the Democrats, and further consideration postponed until Saturday at 11:30 a. m. A recess was then taken to 8 p. m., at which session a bill was passed providing for monthly payments to the army at the discretion of the war office. A point of no quorum stopped consideration of a bill to appropriate $100,000 for a monument to the memory of the victims of British prison ships in the days of '76, and the house, at 12:50, adjourned.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 21.—The naval appropriation bill was reported in the senate yesterday. The senate went into executive session at 12:30 and continued therein until 3:15, during which time the nomination of M. W. Fuller, of Chicago, to be chief justice of the United States supreme court, was confirmed. Chandler offered a resolution declaring that the president has no constitutional right to appoint plenipotentiaries to negotiate treaties without the concurrence of the senate. The bill to prohibit Chinese laborers entering this country was called up and debated until 5:05, when, without action, the senate adjourned.

The house passed the senate bill appropriating $250,000 to aid the states in maintaining homes for disabled soldiers, and then adopted the conference report on the river and harbor bill. The bill as agreed to appropriates $22,277,116, or $2,377,333 more than the house originally put into it, and carries the provision for surveys between Lake Michigan and the Mississippi river—the Hennepin scheme. Bills for the retirement of Gen. W. F. Smith and A. J. Smith, with the rank of colonel and Gen. W. W. Averill, with the rank of captain, were passed. A bill for the relief of Samuel Noble, for the loss of 800 bales of cotton, was debated without action until 4:30 p. m., when the house took recess until 8 p. m. At the night session twenty-four private pension bills were passed, and at 10:30 the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 23.—The senate Saturday held a short executive session of no special importance, and then passed the bill to reimburse the depositors in the Freedmen's Savings and Trust company for losses incurred in the failure of the company. Teller then made a speech against the fisheries treaty. A bill was passed appropriating $200,000 for an apprasiser's building at Chicago, and bills were passed for bridges across the Missouri, near Winona and Fort Pierre City, D. T., and Sioux City, Iowa, and across the Mississippi at Burlington, Iowa. The senate then adjourned.

The house occupied Saturday in listening to Mills close the debate on the tariff bill and in voting on that measure, which was passed by the following vote: Yeas, 162; nays, 141. After this business was completed an attempt was made to adjourn until Wednesday, but failed, and instead the house took a recess until 8 p. m., at which session a bill was passed providing for the payment of claims arising from Indian depredations, such claims to be adjudicated by three commissioners to be appointed by the president, and to be known as the court of Indian depredations. [illegible] adjourned.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 24.—The senate yesterday agreed to the conference report on the river and harbor bill. Consideration of the fisheries treaty was then resumed and Dawes made an extended speech against the treaty. The report of the committee on judiciary on the matter of the Jackson, Miss., election, was received and ordered printed. A presidential message on the subject of civil service reform was read and referred. The house bill for the relief of the Southern Illinois Normal university was passed and the senate adjourned.

Barely a quorum was present in the house and little business was transacted. Many requests for leave of absence were granted. The senate bill to perfect the quarantine service and some bills for the benefit of the District were passed. The conference report on the bill to compel the Pacific railways to do all telegraph business on equal terms was agreed to and the house adjourned.

BASE BALL ATTRACTIONS.

Scores of League Clubs in the Contest for the Pennant.

CHICAGO, July 18.—If Anson's "colts" can do as well for the remainder of this week as they have done so far they will succeed in putting Detroit in the lead for the pennant. It only needs the first game lost with the Detroits to do it, and Chicago must win two out of the three games to keep in front. The scores yesterday were at follows: At Chicago Philadelphia 2, Pittsburg 0; at Detroit—Boston 6, Detroit 7; at Indianapolis—Washington 5, Indianapolis 11.

CHICAGO, July 19.—The Chicagos got there yesterday, and now have a grip—firm or infirm—on second place. Detroit did it, 5 to 0. Baldwin pitched for Chicago and Conway for Detroit. There were no other league games played.

CHICAGO, July 20.—Anson put Van Haltren in the box at Detroit yesterday, and had the satisfaction of taking the lead in the league contest again by a narrow margin. The league scores were: At Detroit—Detroit 5, Chicago 4; at Washington—Washington 2, Boston 0; at Indianapolis—Indianapolis 3, Pittsburg 5; at Philadelphia—Philadelphia 7, New York 1.

CHICAGO, July 21.—With Krock in the pitcher's box yesterday Chicago took a still further lead in the league contest by beating Detroit in a close game. The scores for the day were: At Detroit—Chicago 2, Detroit 1; at Indianapolis—Pittsburg 4, Indianapolis 0; at Washington City—Boston 1, Washington 2; at Philadelphia—New York 7, Philadelphia 6—ten innings.

CHICAGO, July 22.—Chicago dropped back Saturday to one little game ahead of its base ball rivals, the Detroit champions. Van Haltren was in the box and those dude suits were worn again. The schedules of the different base ball combinations are as follows, including the playing of yesterday:

League.	Won.	Lost.	Per cent.	American.	Won.	Lost.	Per cent.
Chicago	41	25	.621	St. Louis	46	22	.676
Detroit	44	25	.632	Brooklyn	48	26	.649
New York	40	26	.577	Cincinnati	44	27	.618
Philadelphia	34	34	.500	Athletic	41	28	.594
Boston	36	35	.507	Baltimore	33	37	.471
Pittsburg	25	39	.390	Cleveland	23	44	.362
Indianapolis	25	42	.373	Louisville	25	47	.347
Washington	21	45	.318	Kansas City	21	48	.304

Western.	Won.	Lost.	Per cent.	State.	Won.	Lost.	Per cent.
St. Paul	30	18	.625	Davenport	30	15	.722
Des Moines	32	21	.604	Peoria	37	16	.698
Omaha	28	26	.518	T. Haute	25	26	.490
Chicago	28	26	.518	Bloomington	22	23	.488
Kansas City	26	28	.481
Sioux City	23	31	.444
Milwaukee	28	32	.466
Minneapolis	21	35	.375

Saturday's league playing gave the following scores: At Detroit—Chicago 6, Detroit 3; at Indianapolis—Pittsburg 13, Indianapolis 4; at Philadelphia—New York 6, Philadelphia 1; at Washington—Boston 3, Washington 2.

CHICAGO, July 24.—Pfeffer of the Chicago club waxed wrath over the umpire's decision of a point in the game at Indianapolis yesterday and deliberately gave away the game. But Detroit was amiable and lost a game to Pittsburg, and that's why Chicago still holds a lead of one game. The scores were: At Indianapolis—Indianapolis 2, Chicago 1; at Detroit—Detroit 1, Pittsburg 5; at Philadelphia—Philadelphia 3, Washington 4; at New York—New York 2, Boston 0.

INTO THE UNKNOWN.

Death of Superintendent James T. Clark of the St. Paul Road.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 23.—The death of Superintendent James T. Clark, of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St Paul railway, removed one of the most conspicuous railroaders in the west. Mr. Clark was ill only a few days. While returning from Ohio he was stricken with inflammation which caused his death after a two days illness. He was a handsome, portly man, of rugged health and fine habits and the news of his sudden death was a great shock to all who knew him. Mr. Clark had been general superintendent of the great St. Paul system for six years. Before he held a similar position with the Union Pacific railway. He was 56 years old, a native of Ohio and was considered one of the most promising railroaders in the west. His death is a great loss to the St. Paul.

"Telephone" Bell Victorious Again.

CHICAGO, July 23.—In the case of the Bell Telephone company against the Cushman company for infringement of the patents granted Bell, Judge Blodgett Saturday morning decided in favor of the Bell company. The defense was that Bell was not the inventor of the telephone; that in 1861 Dr. Cushman made a talking box, through which he heard the croaking of frogs half a mile away, and that in 1873 he held conversation over a wire six miles long. The court held that the testimony failed to show that Dr. Cushman in 1861 invented a telephone. "Whatever was done by Dr. Cushman," the judge said, "should be considered an experiment. He did not believe the machine made by him was perfected so as to be of any practical value." The judge therefore entered a decree for the plaintiff.

WHAT THE WOMAN SAID.

The Ingenious Cement Seller.

"Madam," said a man with a crushed hat and dilapidated clothes, as he appeared at the basement door of a Harlem house, "I have here some little bottles of my own genuine patent indestructible cement, for mending broken china and [illegible] indispensable to any well regulated—

"Don't want it, [illegible]

"It's [illegible] madam, and it will pay—"

"No use for anything of the kind, I say—wouldn't have it."

"It is warranted to mend anything in the line of broken dishes, or—"

"I tell you I don't want it, and you needn't stand there talking any longer."

"All right, madam, all right; don't want to intrude. Fine morning, madam. The lady next door made a little remark about you, madam, but I don't suppose you would care anything about hearing it repeated. Good-bye, madam."

"Hold on a minute, won't you? She said something about me, you say?"

"Yes, ma'am, let fall a little remark concerning you—but I don't think you would care to hear it. I've got to hurry along."

"Just a moment. I believe I'll take a bottle of that stuff."

"The lady I was speaking of took three bottles for a quarter, madam, but I—"

"Give me four bottles, please; half the dishes in the house are broken. The idea of her saying anything about me, the mean thing!"

"Yes, certainly. Accidents will happen to valuable china. Apply it with the brush as directed. Also, I have large bottles of furniture polish, fifty cents a you are. There's your change, madam. Hope everything will be all satisfactory. Good morning."

"But wait just another moment—you didn't tell me what that woman said about me. I'll teach her to talk about me behind my back!"

"Oh, yes, I most forgot it. You see it was this way: I asked her if the lady in the next house, meaning you, you see, was at home?"

"Yes, yes, I understand. What did she say then?"

"She spoke up quick like and said she didn't know. That was all, madam—I told you it wa'n't much. Be sure and apply the cement with the brush, as directed. Good bye!"—New York Tribune.

ABOUT KISSING.

A Clean Face a Necessity to the Woman—Various Kinds of Kisses.

In the old days, when powder and rouge were indispensable, a gallant gentleman kissed the hand of his fair lady. And her hand was kept immaculate, that this kiss might mean much to him.

Nowadays men don't stoop down to kiss your hand; it would get their trousers out of shape. So a clean face becomes a necessity to a woman who has any liking for that expression of affection which is generally approved of and seldom well dot[illegible]

[illegible] kiss worth having is that of a [illegible] and if the baby doesn't give it, [illegible] submits to it, and keeps its sweet, [illegible] perfumy little mouth, shaped like an O, as it waits for you to discover just how delightful it is. Men's kisses are like Scotch whiskey—they're apt to be smoky. Children's kisses are inclined to cover one's entire face; but a baby simply exists and lets you take a mouthful of the breath of Araby.

Men have an idea that their kisses are appreciated—they are most immensely mistaken. The average man gives a kiss just as he throws a baseball—with too much force. It ought to be as delicate as a roseleaf. Almost a memory in a second. It need not suggest a postage stamp, nor a porous plaster.

Dolly, I think I could write a book on kissing; but mankind is so determined that I don't think he'd take any advice on the subject, and yet, as it is the women who receive the kisses, they certainly ought to know more about them than the great, big, stupid creations who give them.—New York Star.

A Truly Honest Man.

A well-known man of millions living on the avenue was sent down town the other day by his wife to purchase some little things.

Being fancy articles, the money came out of her purse, so she gave it to him and he started.

He was out the greater part of the day, but returned with the parcels and handed the change to the good lady.

She counted it over carefully, grew red in the face, and said:

"Heavens, James, there's a bad dollar!"

"It can't be possible!"

"Lead! Look! Oh!"

"So it is. I picked up the change too quickly. The cursed thieves!"

"It isn't hard to be a thief with a fool like you. Why did you pick up the change in such a hurry?"

"Because I thought they were giving me a dollar too much."

Hard Times.

"Missus O'Brien, how do yez foind the toimes?" asked an Irish lady as she leaned over the fence, which separated her yard from her neighbor's.

"The toimes is very harrud, t'ank yez. How's yer husband?"

"Oh, praise the Lord, hes' very poorly, an' its meself that don't be knowin' phwat's going to become av us."

"Phwat seems to be the trouble?"

"Its timprance, so it is. He's joined sivin different timprance societies in the last mont', an' he had to get good and dhrunk to swear off, an' for aich inishashun it's took all the money we could git hold of. C. A. Wright & Co.

—A Boston gentleman recounted a case illustrating the quaint way colored preachers in the South have of presenting their ideas to their assembled brethren. The informant while in Old Dominion attended a colored meeting, at which the presiding clergyman, who was discoursing upon "Man," delivered the following epigrammatic description of human gradation: "First, man is nuffin; second, he is somefin, and third, we can make somefin' uf him."

—Levi Kohl, the twelve year old son of a farmer of Elk township, Pa., in going home from Sunday-school recently, passed through a piece of woods said to be haunted by the ghost of a man who was murdered there years ago. Three boys, his playmates, for a joke hid there and groaned, and, when the boy ran, chased him, yelling. When young Kohl got home, he went into convulsions and died in great agony in a few days.

—It is told that a Lyons drummer for a Boston wholesale clothing house, on his way to Burlington, Vt., for orders, was stopped near the altitudinous village of Ludlow, highest point on the Central Vermont Railroad, by the snow blockade, and found his way to a farmhouse, where he made himself so welcome that he was urged to prolong his visit even after the snow embargo was raised. He wrote to the firm and was given permission to stay out a week of his vacation, and in the Spring he expects to be married to one of his Vermont host's fair daughters.

—Three years ago the two Draper sisters, who owned a little farm about 18 miles from Boston, gave up school teaching to see what they could make from their land. They started out with the idea, of selling nothing but the very best products of their farm, and to make what they did sell appear to the best advantage. They began with fowls and eggs, and stamped each egg with the date of its laying. They never made a misstatement, and now they are making money, for they can get double the market rates for most articles that they offer for sale.

A prompt source of relief from every symptom of indigestion is found in Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic. This elegant and efficacious remedy is prompt and thorough in its action, acceptable to the taste and stomach, curing dyspepsia, jaundice, bad breath, piles, pimples, low spirits, headache, ague, malaria, scrofula, salt rheum, eczema, boils, tetter, rheumatism and all chronic diseases of the blood, stomach and liver. Fifty cents of Dr. Geo. Ferguson. Cures many who vainly seek relief of physicians.

—I. T. Harper of Victor, Iowa, owns a St. Bernard dog that stands twenty nine inches high, is sixty two inches long from tip to tip, and weighs 200 pounds. The other day he saw a little toddler making its way toward two angry foars that were fighting, and walking in front of the baby he pushed it away, and repeated this several times until the child's mother came.

—The Jasper News of Georgia tells of Mr. Henry Lewis's thrilling adventure with a "ferocious goat." It says that by "some means the goat got under him and was treating him very roughly, when his son ran up and pulled the goat down. Mr. Lewis was unhurt, with the exception of momentary anger, which took possession of him, and we are told he punished the goat very severely for his behavior."

—A cat whose general appearance indicated great feebleness and general ill-health walked into a drug store in Van Buren, Mo., the other day and began biting and scratching at a paper package of catnip. A quantity was poured on the floor, and the cat ate greedily and rolled on the leaves. She was a daily visitor to the store, and got the medicine regularly, until to all appearances she was quite well.

The evils resulting from habitual costiveness are many and serious; but the use of harsh, drastic purgative is quite as dangerous. In Ayer's Pill however, the patient has a mild but effective aperient, superior to all others, especially for family use.

—Leroy Tucker, who died in the poorhouse at Athens, Tenn, a few days ago, was 103 years old. He had lived in the county sixty-one years and at one time was well off. He went to the poorhouse when 100 years old, and a year later married an inmate of the house, who survives him at the age of eighty-one years.

A Narrow Escape.

Mrs. L. S. Pickerell, of Middlebury, Ind., had a very narrow escape from the insane asylum. For years she was subject to headache, palpitation, spinal pain, sleeplessness and nervous prostration. For three years she had convulsions, often as many as fifty a night. Able physicians failed to help her. At last after taking that wonderful remedy, Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine for six weeks she was entirely cured. It is a recent discovery by one of the greatest of living physicians, and is working wonders. Trial bottle free at Baker and Hall's Drug Store.

D. A. RANSOM'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, speaks at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Prices 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

THE MYSTERY SOLVED.

JOHN BUNTING'S LIFELESS BODY FOUND IN GEORGE W. ALLEN'S SUGAR BUSH IN THE TOWN OF FRANKLIN.

Tecumseh and a Verdict Rendered that He Came to His Death by His Own Hand.

(Special Correspondence.)

FRANKLIN, Wednesday, July 25th, 1888.—At last the summer breezes have told the awful secret of the spot where John Bunting committed his last crime. Early this morning as Fred Bunting was cutting down a field of wheat in the south part of his farm, assisted by Albert Deming, they noticed a dreadful stench coming from the adjacent woods. There is at this point a large tract of woods, Chester ter VanDoren's sugar bush joining G. W. Allen's and Fred Bunting's on the north. Bunting and Deming at once left their work and began a search; several times they lost the scent, but at last coming to a point in the northeast part of G. W. Allen's woods, where it was very strong, Deming said, "you go west and I'll go east." Bunting had gone but a short distance when he came to a large stump and a few feet beyond he saw the mortal remains of John Bunting. What may the son at the awful sight of his father's body, must be forever hidden in his own breast. With white face he turned away and hastened to Wm. Witherell's to send a dispatch to the officers. The body lay in a low rather open spot, in the midst of a growth of swamp weeds, on the left side, the lower limbs extending out straight, except that the right leg was crossed over the left one, the left arm was extended, the little finger nearly closed, the right arm was crossed over the breast, the hand resting but a few inches below the left arm socket, and on that left arm, as it had dropped from the fingers of the right hand, lay his revolver. He was dressed in a short brown frock of sack cloth, blue very dark or black trousers, rubber boots and black hat. The fleshy parts of the face and neck were entirely decayed, the hands were but bones and the dried black skin the arms but shrunk away and gave the legs relative something of the roundness of a human being. From the fact that his revolver lay upon his arm it is argued by some that he lay down before he died, as otherwise it would have dropped from his hand and been under him. His hat also was upon his head and it seems scarcely possible it could have remained there had the body fallen after death. The revolver was a 32 caliber and four of the chambers were full. There is one fact connected with this affair not generally known to the public and regarded as of no significance, to the few who did. On the Tuesday night of the attempted assassination it has been mentioned that Mrs. Pawson and her daughter Melissa, passed the remainder of the night after the shooting, upstairs, never closing their eyes in sleep. About 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning, Melissa said she heard the report of a revolver. "I know" she said in speaking of it the following day "it was a revolver, for it sounded differently from a shot gun and it seemed to be somewhere south there."

THE INQUEST.

Justice Charles Burridge started for Franklin as soon as the news reached him, for the purpose of holding an inquest. The following men were impannelled as the jury.

Martin Whelan, Smith N. Munger, C. E. Williamson, George W. Allen, William Witherell, Edward Wisner.

Only four persons were sworn and the testimony given by them was more than sufficient to establish the identity of the body.

The first witness sworn was Wm. H. Haughn, Bunting's hired man. Said he had known John Bunting since July 18, 1887, and worked for him since that time. Saw him the last time the night he went away, July 10, at his house 9:30 o'clock. Nobody in the house but me and him. Before he went to his room said he had a couple of letters to write. He wrote two letters that night, found two letters next morning. He told me his two brothers-in-law were going to whip him. Said he calculated to shoot his own wife and Bridge Wells. I have seen the body and recognize it as the body of Mr. Bunting. I also recognize the clothing on the body as the clothing worn by Mr. Bunting. I think the pistol found near body is the same he showed me. I have examined the body. Find a hole in the right temple, caused I should say, by a bullet fired from a pistol held in his own hand.

Cora Bunting—I am 17 years old. Have always lived at home. Saw my father last on the day he went away from home, between 7 and 8 o'clock in the evening. He sent us to say brother-in-laws, me and sister Mabel. Said he heard that day that my two uncles were coming some night that week to mob him, and if he had to die he didn't propose to stay there and die that way. Wished us to take his pocket book and watch. Have seen the body and recognize it as my father's. Father wore false teeth. He had but one tooth of his own in his head.

Fred Bunting—Am the son of John Bunting. Have lived near him all my life. I have seen the body, lying there and recognize it as the body of my father. Last time I saw him alive was on July 10, 1888, about noon. He said nothing of any plans and purposes. I found the body this day about 9 o'clock, as myself and Albert Deming were cutting wheat. We discovered it by the smell. From appearances, should think that he caused his own death by his own hands, by means of the revolver found near the body, which I did not recognize as his.

Henry W. Stevens sworn, said he found on the body a full set of false teeth, save one tooth, also one foot rule, five number 32 caliber cartridges, two number 12 cartriges for number 12 gun, one number 32 caliber revolver with one chamber empty and four loaded, one two bladed knife. Have examined and found a hole made by a pistol shot in his right temple, which am satisfied was the cause of death.

The following is the verdict of the jury.

The jurors being sworn do say that the said John Bunting came to his death in this county, on the 11th day and there being in the peace of God, and of the people of this state, feloniously and voluntarily and upon himself of his own malice and aforethought made an assault, and that the said John Bunting then and there with a certain pistol of the value of one cent, which he, the said John Bunting, held in his hand, himself then and there did shoot and wound, and did then and there give himself one mortal wound, of which wound the said John Bunting on the 11th day of July, 1888, died. And so the said jurors, upon their oaths aforesaid, say that the said John Bunting then and there, in the manner aforesaid as a felon of himself voluntarily and of his own malice aforethought himself killed and murdered against the peace of the people of the State of Michigan.

The body was interred last evening, and thus was completed the last act of this awful tragedy. Whether the man was insane or not is a mooted question. That he possessed an ungovernable temper is certainly true but it hardly seems possible that any man in his right mind could deliberately plan murder and suicide on such a scale. The charitable view is that he was not wholly responsible for his acts, but he was certainly a dangerous man in the community and the neighbors will all breathe easier since they know that he is beyond the power of doing further harm. The family have the deepest sympathy of all their acquaintances in this awful visitation.

American and English Cars.

The American car and the English carriage run on two different principles. The English railway manager expects you to do a great deal for yourself. He expects you to buy a rug to wrap around your legs, and you do it. He expects you to buy a shawl to put around your shoulders, and you do it. He expects you to buy a reading lamp if you are to travel at night, and you do it. He doesn't provide you with any drinking water, as he expects you to buy a glass of beer if you feel thirsty, and you do it. A traveler in an English carriage sits muffled up so that he can hardly move. He dresses for the occasion as I would if I were going to enjoy an afternoon sit down on the banks of the river with the thermometer below zero.

Now, an American doesn't like that sort of a thing. If the car is not hot enough for him to sit in his seat in the same costume he would use in his own house he travels by some other road. If the lamps are not bright he blows up the conductor, and if there is no water in the tank all that section of country will hear from him.

The Old Man's Level Head.

A young man married a maiden. There is nothing strange about that. The man and the maiden quarreled very soon after marriage. There is nothing unusual about that, either. The maiden's father, being tolerably wealthy, had made his son-in-law a wedding present of a fine house and lot, and when the row came on and the matrimonial team found it very difficult to pull along together the young man considerately offered to let the maiden return to her parental roof, and to make no fuss about it.

"I don't care," he said with a smile, "for I'll hang onto the house and lot you were kind enough to give me, just the same."

"Oh, you will, eh?" the papa-in-law replied, smiling in turn and appearing to be very cool. "You will, eh?"

"Yes, I guess so. Didn't you deed me that property yourself?"

"Yes, I made out a deed and as soon as you had looked and seen that your name was in it you were satisfied. Yes, I did make such a deed and your name appeared in it."

"Then what's the matter with the house and lot being mine?"

"Nothing, except that I didn't sign the deed; that's all."

A BIG SCHEME IN OIL.

A PIPE LINE FROM THE LIMA FIELDS TO CHICAGO.

It Will Have a Capacity of 40,000 Gallons [illegible] Barrels of Oil to Fill the Pipe—How the Laying of the Pipe Was Accomplished—Monster Storage Tanks.

CHICAGO, July 23.—For a little over three months the National Transit company, of which W. T. Schedler of Oil City, Pa., is general manager, has been engaged in laying a pipe line from the oil fields at Lima, Ohio, to South Chicago, where the company is erecting two vast tanks for the storage of crude oil. The pipe line is nearly completed. It is composed of eight inch wrought iron pipe in lengths of about twenty feet, the joints being made with a six inch screw collar. From Lima to Highland, twenty-six miles from this city, the line uses the right [illegible] the Calumet river just above Gibson's, on the Michigan Central road, and runs due north to the intersection of the Indiana boulevard and One Hundred and Forty-first street, where it turns to the northwest and follows the boulevard to the crossing of the Chicago & Calumet Terminal railway, thence along the right of way to the Baltimore & Ohio tracks, and on the right of way of the latter to Taylor's addition to South Chicago, on which are erected the huge receiving tanks. The main pumps are at Lima, and have a daily capacity of 15,000 barrels. Pumping stations and tanks having a storage capacity of 30,000 barrels have been erected at Preble and Laketon, the former being 108 miles and the latter 122 from this city. At Huntington, which is about half way between the two points named, a T has been put, with the ultimate intention of having a branch line along the Wabash right of way to Fort Wayne, twenty-four miles distant.

The work was done in four divisions, and about 600 men were employed. They were divided into seven gangs: First, the pipe distributors; second, the graders; third, the general levelers; fourth, the pipe joiners; fifth, the ditchers; sixth, the pipe sinkers, and seventh, the back fillers. In addition there were used three steam ditchers and three machines for screwing the pipes together. The modus operandi of laying the pipe may be thus described:

The pipe was first distributed along the side of the rails at track from the cars in which it had been transported from the factory in Pennsylvania. The planing gang next followed and placed the pipes end to end in a continuous line. The leveling gang of the graders were next in order, and their work resembled the grading of a railroad bed. The pipe line does not use any of the railroad bed. It occupies the northern edge of the right of way and sometimes cuts across lots to avoid the sharp curves on the railroad line. As fast as the general leveling was completed the pipe joiners followed with their steam machines and screwed the pipes together. The ditchers came next in the procession. They excavated a trench from four and a half to twenty feet in depth, according to the nature of the ground. The pipe sinkers followed and their work resembled that of gas pipe layers. The back fillers were the last in the division of labor, and their work is indicated by their name.

In crossing streams a sufficient amount of pipe was screwed together to reach from bank to bank. It was then pulled across. An anchor weighing 700 pounds was then attached to each joint and the whole was dropped into the river. The anchors are expected to hold the pipe in place on the river bed.

The cost of the work is estimated at $8,000 per mile. To fill the pipe will require 72,000 barrels of oil, and it will require about seventy-two hours for the oil to pass from the pumping works at Lima to the storage tanks at South Chicago. This gives the line a capacity of about 1,000 barrels, or 40,000 gallons per hour.

Successful Launch of Uncle Sam's New Boat "Charleston"—Thousands Witness the Event.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—Every avenue leading in the direction of the ship yards of the Union Iron works presented a most animated appearance. Long before 6 o'clock thousands of persons began to wade through the dirty thoroughfare in the outskirts of the city, all eager to witness the launch of the new cruiser, No. 5, commonly known as the "Charleston," the first government vessel ever built on the Pacific coast. Half past 7 was the hour set for slipping the vessel from the ways, and by the time that hour arrived there was hardly a point within range of of vision that was not occupied by speculators, and the several hills overlooking the yard swarmed with people. Very little time was lost in preparations and the ceremony was brief. The artillery band started up an inspiring strain as Mr. Scott, the general manager of the Union Iron works, gave the signal. Miss Alice Scott, his daughter, broke a bottle of wine over the side and christened the new cruiser "Charleston," and amid the booming of cannon, the screeching of whistles and shouts from thousands of throats the vessel glided slowly off the ways and out into the stream. The noise for a few minutes was deafening, and could be heard in the most remote part of the city. The launch was in every way successful.

Sheridan's Symptoms All Favorable.

NONQUIT, Mass., July 24.—The bulletin issued by Gen. Sheridan's physicians at 8 p. m. yesterday says: "No notable change has taken place in Gen. Sheridan's condition during the last twenty-four hours. His symptoms are all favorable."

Devastating Windstorm in Ohio.

SANDUSKY, Ohio, July 24.—A severe windstorm accompanied by rain and hail struck this city yesterday afternoon, uprooting trees and doing much damage to crops and other crops. The damage in Erie county will exceed $10,000.

Randall Makes Good Progress.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Mr. Randall was stronger and better yesterday than on any day since he was taken sick. He slept long and well Saturday night, and during the morning called for and was allowed to read the newspapers.

THE TRIANGLE CAMPAIGN SONGS.

BY JOSHUA GUMBO.

(Copyrighted 1888.)

DEMOCRACY'S FLAG.

[illegible]
And let us emblazon thereon
The names of our candidates true.
Who many a battle have won,
Grover Cleveland, the bravest of brave,
And the sturdy old Roman of all;
Who would lighten the laborer's yoke
And heed Miss Columbia's call.

CHORUS.

Our watchward and motto shall be
The bond of the States none can sever;
'Tis Cleveland and Thurman to-day,
And the Union forever and ever.

They've stood in the thick of the fight
And as statesmen their record is made:
Who dare to stand up for the right
And strike for the freedom of trade.
The friends of monopoly rule
Are beginning to quake in their shoes;
For the people are rising en masse,
And the robbers are getting the blues.

CHORUS:

Our watchword and motto shall be
The bond of the States none can sever;
'Tis Cleveland and Thurman to-day,
And the Union forever and ever.

We are coming from office and shop
We are coming from anvil and plow,
The merchant and farmer alike,
Are swinging the bandanna now.
We will strike down the war tariff tax
We will haul down monopoly's rag;
We will vote for the men, good and true.
[illegible]

CHORUS.

Our watchword and motto shall be
The bond of the States none can sever;
'Tis Cleveland and Thurman to-day,
And the Union forever and ever.

The opening article in the August Magazine of American History is an interesting and valuable study of the career of "Roscoe Conkling," from the pen of the Rev. Isaac S. Hartley, D. D., the eminent Utica divine. The text is richly illustrated with pictures of Mr. Conkling's beautiful home in Utica, including its grounds, entrance hall, and interiors, while an uncommonly fine portrait of the statesman forms the frontispiece to the number. The second article is a graphic and intensely readable sketch "About Philadelphia in 1750," by the editor, with anecdotes brightening every page. This is followed with "Personal Recollections of General Grant," by Hon. Charles K. Tuckerman, whose varied reminiscences of Lincoln, Seward, and other public men have appeared from month to month in this periodical, to the delight of all classes of readers. Then comes a chapter of Washingtonia, which will attract wide attention, with an unpublished portrait of Washington, from a sketch made on the back of a king of clubs and fac similes of two letters addressed to his nephew, George Augustine Washington. The notes furnish curious data, and the editorial and other departments abound in riches as varied and entertaining as they are substantial and instructive. Price $5.00 a year. Published at 743 Broadway, New York.

Admission 50c. Tecumseh takes a strong team, and it will probably be an interesting game. Game called at 3 P.M.

It becomes our painful duty to record the death of Mrs. Geo. Berry, nee Lena Brown, which took place at her home in Wilburn, Kan., Saturday, July 14, at the age of 22. She was a lady of estimable character and disposition and a large circle of Tecumseh friends mourn her death. She was a former resident of Raisin, and the daughter of J. W. Brown.

On the west bank of the river Raisin, about 30 rods north of Railroad street bridge, stands a large balsam poplar tree, its kind being rarely found in this latitude. Its branches extend, from one extreme to the other, about 125 feet. Its trunk, near the ground, measures 18 feet, and is about 80 feet in height. Its leaves, though longer, resemble the balm of Gilead, and it buds like it. Professors of our agricultural college pronounce it one of the most interesting trees in the state.—Adrian Times.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Remember the band reunion on the 16th of August.

Samuel Fielder lost a valuable work horse last Saturday.

Miss Carrie Hand has gone to Rome, N. Y., to spend the summer.

Ex-Congressman Eldredge has received an increase of pension.

A good many of the farmers in this section are still holding their wool.

W. J. Kies and family have returned to their home in Elkhart, Ind.

James W. Patterson's house has blossomed out with a new coat of paint.

Mrs. A. W. Slayton and children are visiting a few days with friends at Erie, Pa.

A. C. Preston and Ed. Gray represented the HERALD office at the camp on Mackinac Island.

The Lenawee County Republican Convention will be held at Adrian on the 6th day of August.

Prof. Irvin Chase, of Roscommon County, was visiting Tecumseh and Raisin friends last week.

[illegible] furniture and fixtures are being put in position this week in the new rooms for Bill's bank.

J. H. Smith is still battling with the rheumatism. He is at Battle Creek this week at the sanitarium.

Dr. Stewart's new house on Chicago street is about enclosed and the lathers have commenced work.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Russell are spending two or three weeks at Mackinaw and other Northern resorts.

The Blue Ribbon trotting meeting is in session this week at Detroit. The races thus far have been a grand success.

Arrangements are progressing satisfactorily for the band reunion August 16th, and Tecumseh can make her calculations for a big crowd on that day.

The annual reunion of the supervisors and ex officers of Lenawee County will occur on Wednesday, Aug. 22d, at Devil's Lake. This is the day preceding the big farmer's picnic.

A new broom sweeps clean is exemplified in the case of Street Commissioner Hodges. In addition to some excellent work on the streets he is making some much needed improvements in the public parks which will add very much to their appearance.

The Harrison Log Cabin song book of 1840 has been revised for the present campaign and published by A. H. Smyth, of Columbus, Ohio, the successor of the man who published the original book. Sample copies sent to any address by mail for ten cents each. This book will undoubtedly have a big run.

The telegraph pole on which St. John was hung in effigy is now being made into canes, the retail price of which is three dollars. One half the proceeds go to the clergyman's fund of The Voice and the other half to the local campaign fund where the canes are made, in Kansas. They will be valuable keepsakes.—The Lance.

"Adela," G. W. Larwill's song, promises to become quite popular. The melody is "catchy," and the lines adapt themselves very smoothly to it. At one of the leading city churches last Sunday morning the clever young organist dexterously introduced the theme in an organ voluntary. Every Lenawee county musician ought to possess at least one copy of it.—Adrian Times.

Co. C. arrived home from camp on the Jackson freight last Tuesday about supper time. Yesterday but few of the boys put in any appearance, as they were "resting up" after a weeks hard work. As we find it impossible to prepare a proper report of their doings for to-day's paper, we have concluded to defer the entire matter until our next issue. The boys all echo the sentiment, "We had a splendid time."

Get Heck's flour, mix it in water and you will have good bread. If you have a wedding be sure and get Heck's flour; if you want to represent our county with good bread get Heck's flour; if your girl has poor bread get Heck's flour, then you will have pleasant faces when you sit down to meals. Heck's flour never fails in getting good bread. Don't forget to ask for Heck's flour, then your mind will be at ease. Bread made from Heck's flour takes the cake.

HECK BROS.

Buckeyes will be glad to learn that the Michigan authorities decide that where neither party to a marriage resides in the state, no license is necessary. This will make business lively in Morenci, and the Morenci ministers and justices ought to get out big circulars and circulate all over northern Ohio, booming Morenci as the Gretna Green of the section. Esq. Retan, of Weston, should put a card in the Fayette and Wauseon papers, and send greeting to Ohio lovers.—Adrian Press.

V. P. Cash, of Portland, was in town Monday.

Miss Josephine Frost, of Chicago, is the guest of Mrs. H. B. Root for a few days.

D. C. F. A. Wilkinson came in town the first of the week looking for a suitable house to rent.

P. W. Adams leaves this afternoon for Delaware, to be gone about two weeks to see to his business interests there.

A. L. Brewer has left home for an extended trip through the Eastern states. He will probably be gone about a month.

The ladies of the Tecumseh W. C. T. U. have lately placed us under obligations for words of approval and acts of kindness.—Thanks.

Asa Howe makes his trips to Sand Lake three days each week and takes a good load every trip. His new stage is a very easy vehicle to ride in.

Mrs. C. Money and daughter, of Rochester, N. Y., are visiting the former's sister, Mrs. Jacob Everhart, and other friends in this vicinity.

Dr. Lemon Barnes has moved his office to his residence at No. 27 East Pottawatamie Street. Calls by day or night, from village or country, will receive prompt attention.

The State Teachers' Institute will be held in Adrian during the week beginning Aug. 13. Conductor, H. R. Pattingill, editor of the Moderator. Every teacher should attend.

L. F. Wheeler has two late portraits in Adamson's show window—one of Alba Heywood and one of Dr. C. M. Woodward. They are both fine pictures, natural likenesses and well executed.

We have received from Secretary Mills the premium list for the next County fair which will be held Sept. 25 to Sept. 28 inclusive. The premium list is larger than ever before, and the officers confidently expect a good fair this fall.

Tecumseh people and all others who visit Devil's Lake will please remember that they will find the steamer G. A. R. at Allen's dock, ready to take them to all points on the lake with neatness and despatch. Capt. Dead is always on board.

The annual catalogue of the State Normal School is at hand. Under the superintendency of Prof. J. M. B. Sill, the institution has gained a high state of efficiency. The fall term will begin on Monday Sept. 3d. 948 students were enrolled during the past year.

On Saturday evening last a large company assembled at the residence of A. M. Keeney in Cambridge, numbering over 150. Refreshments were served in abundance. The party was for the benefit of the Episcopal church and resulted in a generous donation.

The eclipse of the moon took place last Sunday evening according to program. Many a swain prolonged his Sunday evening visit with his best girl on that night to enable him to enjoy the show with agreeable company, and some of the older heads deferred the hour of retiring until the "wee sma' hours," to inspect the beautiful phonomenon of astronomy.

A daughter of Emanuel H. Custer's, Mrs. Calhoun, is spending a few days at Lt. Elliott Gray's. During her visit at Mr. Gray's last year several of our citizens had the pleasure of listening to a few of her parlor recitals and were carried away by her elocutionary powers. Mr. Custer himself is also at Lt. Gray's and is likely to remain for some time.

E. L. Wells will inaugurate a series of ten cent dances at the Sand Lake house on Saturday next, July 28th. The dance will be held both afternoon and evening. Bill for the afternoon, ten cents a set. For the entire evening, fifty cents. Music by Teachout's orchestra. The series will consist of three parties which will be continued Aug. 4th and 11th. Young man, take our advice and engage your best girl for all three.

"The Battlefield of Gettysburg: Its memories and memorials" is most interestingly treated in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for August. The famous points of the great battle, the visits paid to it by the commanders and by officers and soldiers of both armies, the monuments that now mark the ground where regiments held their own under withering fire—all these come before the reader vividly.

Frank Cook, of Lincoln, Nebraska, now here on a visit, tells of a circumstance that happened last winter in Gage county, that state, where his brother Dan lives. The farmers in a certain locality in that county had a debating society, and among other things decided to discuss the tariff question. There was not a free trader or tariff reformer in the whole society; so they appointed one of the brightest of the young fellows to post himself up and make as good an argument as he could on that side. He hunted up some books and documents on the subject, began to study, and soon became a free-trader in earnest; and before they got through discussing the question, the whole society was converted to the same opinion.—Hillsdale Democrat.

Addison is greatly in need of some kind of fire protection.

"Riley" Suffin is rejoicing over the possession of a new bicycle.

Wm. Totten started for Petoskey today for a few weeks' stay.

The big farmer's picnic at Devil's Lake has been fixed for August 23d.

Mail service has been established at Rollin and Geneva over the Mackinaw line.

The Wolf Creek and Rome Center clubs indulge in the national game on Sunday.

Mrs. Chas. Woodruff, of Chicago, visited Tecumseh relatives the first of the week.

Marshall Kyle was at camp last week, but he will be found at the HERALD office to morrow to receive taxes.

H. D. Lamar, of Macon, Georgia, a brother of Justice Lamar, of the U. S. Supreme Court, is a guest at the Battle Creek Sanitarium.

Ice cream and cake, doughnuts and coffee, will be served on the lawn of the Baptist church, this (Thursday) evening by the ladies' society.

The band did not give their usual street concert last Saturday evening owing to the fact that so many of the members were in camp with Co. C.

Mrs. Shell, of Louisville, has been a [illegible] past two weeks. She goes from here to Big Rapids to visit friends there before returning South.

A man who recently moved to Adrian drank from a spring of cold water while he was heated, and death occurred. The old residents of the county seat do not die from drinking water in fact they are not even exposed.—Hudson Post.

The young gentlemen who have introduced the popular game of lawn tennis in Hudson have styled their organization, the Bachelors' Tennis Club. They have a strong aversion to getting into the net and making "double faults," and the fact that there is "love" in the game does not disturb them, for "love" in tennis stands for nothing.—Hudson Gazette.

A Republican M. E. minister was overheard saying to a workman that there was a man in Blissfield who hurrahed for Fisk but would vote for Cleveland. To which the workman replied: "There is but one thing, perhaps, as bad as that and that is for a preacher to hurrah for prohibition and vote the Republican ticket."—The Lance.

The man who goes fishing Sundays and sits in a cramped position on the sharp edge of a rail until dewy eve and calls it fun, is the same man that never goes to church because the pews aren't comfortable. He lives here.—Plymouth Mail. Here too.—Saline Observer. And here also.—Clinton Local. He sojourned here once upon a time, but with three churches and a tent in sight, where religious services are wont to be held, besides a sermon each week in the newspaper, he is compelled to get off the rail and "tumble to it."—Addison Courier.

"Whoa! Whoa!" yelled Jonathan Burroughs as his mustangs sped down Main street yesterday. The old man was on a load of hay, and with one hand was clinging fast to a jug, while with the other hand he tried to hold the flying team. Will Hawkins sprang in front of the conveyance, grabbed the animals by the bits, whirled them around, tipped over the hay, Mr. Burroughs sliding to the pavement. Just as he struck terra firma he let go of the jug, which was smashed, spilling the water. The excitement was great, but the damage was slight.—Hudson Post.

Surely there can be no one who would object to an increase of the pension of Emanuel H. Custer from $20 to $50 per month. Mr. Custer is a resident of Michigan and the father of the famous General George Custer, who, with his command, was massacred at the Big Horn. Mr. Custer lost his two sons, George and Thomas, and three sons in-law at the battle of the Big Horn. Keeping in view the distinguished services given to the country by General Custer, it seems unreasonable to oppose the small increase, especially when it is borne in mind that Mr. Custer is 80 years of age and with reduced circumstances.—Detroit Free Press.

The W. F. M. S. will hold their annual meeting in connection with their quarterly tea meeting, in the M. E. church parlors, on Wednesday afternoon, Aug. 1st. A business meeting will be held in room No. 1, promptly at three o'clock, at which time the officers of the society will be expected to bring in their annual reports, and all persons holding mite boxes are requested to present them at the same time. Tea will be served at six o'clock by the members of the society and as there is a special demand for money from this auxiliary, the executive committee have thought best to charge the moderate sum of ten cents for supper tickets. As this is to be the last tea meeting this conference year, let every one feel that they are personally invited to attend.

MRS. HARDING, Sec.

ONE DAY'S OUTING AT DEVIL'S LAKE.

A days rest and recreation at the lakes will refresh and recuperate a man wonderfully this hot weather, and even one day snatched from work [illegible] urday evening we boarded the Mackinaw train and after a pleasant run of about an hour, alighted at Allen's Hotel where we found a clean bed and enjoyed a splendid night's sleep. The sultry nights which we experience at home are unknown near a body of water. There the nights are cool and refreshing, and nature's sweet restorer can reinforce the jaded body with that best of all tonics, a pure and cool atmosphere. During the day on Sunday the weather was all that any pleasure seeker could ask for. Light fleecy clouds obscured the sun most of the day and a gentle breeze made fine sailing. After a palatable breakfast, prepared by Allen's cook, and an hour or so to settle the same, the G. A. R. steamed up and the guests took a boat ride to the south end of the Lake in time to meet the train on the Ohio division of the Mackinaw. After the arrival of the train, a load of passengers was conveyed back to Allen's, where dinner was served to a dining hall full of guests. In the afternoon the G. A. R. made two trips across [illegible] Justice Burridge's cottage to convey the inmates over to Beardsell's landing. During the afternoon we spent about three hours on the south side. The new village of Manitou is well started. The streets have been graded and several hundred maple trees set out, but the depot and dock are not yet built. Two stores and two cottages have already been erected on the new plat.

Last Monday the colored people began a ten days camp meeting at Beardsell's grove. The Wallace Jubilee Singers will furnish the music and several clergymen of note will participate in the exercises. A large attendance is expected during the week.

We took supper and passed the night Sunday at the Stoney Grove House. This house is now managed by Mr. T. J. Hill, who has leased the place of the Brazee estate for this season. Although late in getting started, Mr. Hill has already gathered a good patronage and his house is rapidly filling up with guests. Adrian, Hudson and Morenci were all represented with visitors the day we were there. One of the attractions is the Chicago Italian Band. The boys execute beautiful music, and they are utilized every afternoon and evening. Every Saturday evening, a free dance is given on the spacious porch of the hotel. Mr. Hills expects the Supervisors's reunion to be held at Stoney Grove. He sets an excellent table, his sleeping rooms are large and pleasant, while the house itself occupies one of the most attractive sites on the entire lake. Stoney Grove is certain to gain friends under its present management.

The old stand by at the North end, "Allen's," is fully maintaining its former reputation. Hope Welch is always around and all the attendants are gentlemanly and efficient. Their register during the past week had received the names of guests from Toledo, Hillsdale and several towns in Ohio. They have a good daily run of transients and a fine lot of weekly boarders besides. The Island Grove, which is run in connection with Allen's hotel, has received several improvements during the past year and is better adapted than ever for large picnic gatherings. The picnic season has now fairly opened and this grove will be well patronized during the next few months.

Fred Deuel's steamer, the G. A. R. is now located permanently at Allen's Hotel. He has entered into an arrangement with Mr. Allen by which he makes that hotel his headquarters hereafter, but he runs to all the docks and to all the trains at both ends of the lake. There are six steamers on the lake now, and Fred's boat is the best of the lot.

Justice Burridge of this village owns a neat cottage on Cedar Point, about half way down the lake on the East shore. It occupies a beautiful location on a bluff and at the base of the bluff is a fine gravelly beach. John L. Anderson and Burt Conklin with their families are spending the present week there and will remain until about the first of August.

H. E. Anderson is putting in most of his time at the lake now. He owns property there and is improving the same. The day is coming when there will be quite a settlement at the North end of the lake.

Pioneer Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Lenawee County Pioneer Society will be held Wednesday August 15th at Grange Hall, Madison, at 10 o'clock A. M. A cordial invitation for both young or aged to attend. A picnic dinner with a cherished wish for a few to bring baskets to assist to spread the table. Time honored speeches with good music on that day.

F. A. DEWEY, President.
Cambridge, July 23d 1888.

Blissfield is afflicted this week with the Cantata of Queen Esther.

CHEAP EXCURSION.

A cheap excursion train will run to Devil's Lake next Sunday over the Mackinaw line to accommodate people who would like to attend the color- [illegible] following will be the rates of fare for the round trip and time of trains:

Leave Toledo,	8 39 A.M.	Fare,	75cts.

Arrive at the Lake 11:00 A. M. Returning train will leave the lake at 5:00 P. M. Standard time. Children between 5 and 12 years, half fare. No fare less than 15 cents.

THE BAND REUNION.

The arrangements for the band reunion to be held here Aug. 16 are being perfected and the indications are that Tecumseh will listen to the music of about 20 bands on that date. The citizens are responding liberally to the call for aid and no trouble is anticipated from that quarter. The following committees have been appointed to act. The refreshment committee will, beside soliciting for eatables, have charge of the tables, and may appoint more help for that purpose.

President of Day—Capt. Fred R. [illegible]
Chief Marshal—Capt. Chas. Bidwell.
Aids—Geo. Broughs, F. L. Silvers.
Finance Committee—S. W. Anderson, S. P. Hosmer and Ben J. Garlinghouse.
Decorating Committee—S. W. Bordine, W. C. Jordan, J. J. Orr, E. N. Satterthwaite and M. E. Conklin.
Transportation Committee—N. S. Satterthwaite, A. E. Kennedy.
Refreshment Committee—South of Chicago street and west of Evans street, Mrs. N. M. Sutton and Miss Etta Conklin; North of Chicago street and west of Evans street, Mrs. M. E. Corey and Mrs. A. P. Coddington; South of Chicago street and east of Evans street, Mrs. C. A. Wright and Mrs. F. Davidson; North of Chicago street and east of Evans street, Mrs. J. D. Shull and Mrs. F. G. Rector.

Uncle John Davenport's Cane.

There are surprises and surprises but if ever one saw a genuinely astonished man it was Uncle John Davenport, last Wednesday evening as he received at his old homestead in Hardin township—a place historic in Green county for inexhaustible entertainments—a magnificent gold headed cane from a circle of his choice friends. This extra fine staff of ebony and gold, was handsomely engraved upon its broad top as follows: "To Uncle John Davenport, from his neighbors and friends." Uncle Billy Anderson made the presentation speech at the close of one of the finest spreads ever enjoyed in the township, and the recipient was so overcome by the token of kindly regard given on his seventy-second birthday, he could hardly find words to express his grateful acknowledgment. Of course, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Davenport, who occupy the old homestead, did all in their power to make this a pleasant affair for all concerned, and Mr. G. B. Kendall of this city, was also an active worker in its behalf. After a pleasant chat, all returned home, happy in the thought of having contributed to the comfort of a worthy man. The following were present: William Anderson and wife, Mr. Joseph Anderson and wife, Mr. T. J. Locker and wife, Mr. Patrick Reynolds and wife, Geo. Thompson, John Reeder and wife, G. B. Kendall and wife, John McNeil and wife, E. L. Locker and wife, J. Zar. uhlen, Simon Harker and wife, Will Noyes and wife, Matt. Noyes and wife, John C. Harker and wife, Mrs. Welford and others.

The above is taken from the Jefferson, Iowa, Bee, which shows that "Uncle John" has a good many friends in that neighborhood as well as here. Mr. Davenport is now spending a month or so among his Michigan friends.

Prof. Hammond and family took their departure for Charlotte on Monday.

THE REFORMED ROMANCER.

I was a spinner of shivery tales,
Spectres from churchyards, graves, jails,
Rose at command, I my pen at will
Mouthed from the doorway and jibed from the sill.
Children? I daily sold dozens or more
Murders? My pen was ever inured with gore.
Nothing too ghastly or grim for me.

It pleased me to think people quaked and grew pale
When they came to the cold, crawly part of my tale.
Why, the wildest long story that ever I wrote
Started off with Sir Marmaduke cutting his throat.
This Haggard and Stevenson stuff anywhere
Force, time, John Bloodyx for raising your hair.
I'm sure that no writer that lived in my time
Gave half so much horror as I for a dime.

But one gloomy midnight as I sat down to split
The blood of my fellows with only a quill,
Little thought I this fiercest tale of my life,
With its terrible plot, was to lose me a wife.

My very pen shuddered while tracing it phrase,
And I read it when done I was fearful I swear.
So I hid the dread thing in a nook out of sight,
And my dreams were disturbed with strange shadows that night.

For the hand of my sweetheart a rival I had!
Who, scorned in his suit, had grown jealously mad;
And by cunning device he got hold of that tale,
With its ghouls, its ghosts and its spectres so pale.
And he sent it to her with my compliments, think!
Oh! accursed be the day that I dabbled in ink!

She read and she read to the end of the plot,
Then with one awful cry she went mad on the spot!

In a lonely asylum a figure of woe,
That pearl among women, wild-eyed, to and fro,
Wails so long having forever. "Oh, see how you
"The Bride of Vampire, or, The Bride of the Dead!"
"And tell me if truly the ghoul of the green
"Connived with Sir Percy to murder the queen."

So, to undo my work I've endeavored since then
To be funny as ever I can with my pen.

PRESENCE OF MIND.

Pawnbroker's Coolness Rescues a Young Lady from a Fix

"We have some queer experiences at times, and are placed in situations that require all of our coolness," said a clerk in a pawnbroker's shop.

"About a month ago a fashionably dressed young woman came in to pay the interest due that day on a diamond ring which she had pawned a year before.

"I calculated the interest, and she was about to hand me the money, when a well-known lawyer—quite a society man, too, by the way—came in to examine some goods before he bought the ticket.

"I saw the young lady turn pale, and knew something had gone wrong. The lawyer raised his hat politely, and did not conceal his astonishment when he said,

"'Why, Miss ——, what are you doing here? Can I do anything for you?'

"Then he called the young lady's name I knew it at once, and so would you, and I saw I had to get the girl out of a scrape somehow, so I just called her familiarly by her name, which I had heard the lawyer—for the first time, for people rarely give their real names when they pledge jewels, and I asked her to step into the private office and I would show her the goods she had asked about.

"She was clever, and took up my cue at once, and said:

"'I thought of buying a diamond ring. It is such a lovely thing, and so cheap.'

"Our combined stroke of diplomacy saved her. I showed her her own ring. She looked at it, admired it, and said she would call the next day and get it. I put it to one side, and the next day she came and paid the interest."

THE HEALTHINESS OF PROFESSIONS

What Cuts Men Down in Middle Life and the Secret of Longevity.

All professions are healthy as compared with trades. What men are longer lived than scientists, archæologists—there is no profession of archæology, but let that pass—lawyers, clergymen, physicians, actors?

In some professions, notably the bar, to which might be added the stage, the early training is said, in a half-serious manner, to kill off the weaklings. To some extent this is true of all professions. Men without self-control die, as a rule, young, whatever their occupations.

In other cases, however, the conditions under which the classes named exist are the most favorable.

The two things that most readily kill men, who attain middle age are anxiety or loss of interest. The man who goes to bed not knowing whether a turn in the market may elevate him to wealth or steep him in ruin dies of softening of the brain.

He who has made his fortune and retired, feels, unless he has cultivated a hobby, that he has no place in the world, and dies of inanition.

A TON OF COAL.

The Variety of Things Found in This Commonplace Object.

It is found that, besides gas, a ton of ordinary gas coal will yield 1,500 pounds of coke, twenty gallons of ammonia water and 140 pounds of coal tar.

Now, destructive distillation of this amount of coal tar gives about seventy pounds of pitch, seventeen pounds of creosote, fourteen pounds of heavy oils, about nine and a half pounds of naphtha yellow, six and one-third pounds of naphthaline, four and three-fourths pounds of naphthol, two and a fourth pounds of alizarine, two and a fourth pounds of solvent naphtha, one and a fifth pounds of aniline, seventy-nine hundredths of a pound of toluidine, forty-six hundredths of a pound of anthracine, and nine-tenths of a pound of toluches—from the last named substance being obtained the new product, saccharine, said to be 230 times as sweet as the best cane sugar.

The Real Russian Bath.

The Russian Bath is a vapor bath, and is intended more particularly to reach the mucous membranes of our bodies, that is as it is given in this country.

It is a necessity to the inhabitants of Russia and is given in a rude wooden building, where the necessary vapor is secured by throwing water upon glowing hot pebbles. An atmosphere of 140 degrees can easily be got in this manner and after perspiring freely for a time and whipping themselves with small twigs the bathers will go out and plunge into the ice cold river or roll in the snow.

JOY FOR THE IMPECUNIOUS.

How To Be Married in Style for $30.

While wending his way through the busiest of all business thoroughfares, the Bowery, the other day a New York reporter's attention was attracted by a placard over the door of a dressmaking establishment.

Entering the hallway he mounted a flight of stairs and opened a large door upon the glass in which were signs indicating that a modist held forth inside. A pretty little French girl greeted the reporter with a bewitching smile, and with just the slightest accent asked his business. Upon being told that the visitor desired to see the proprietor, she hastened away and in a few moments a tall, good-looking Frenchman made his appearance.

"What can I do for Monsieur?" he asked, smiling and rubbing his hands.

"I would like to see some wedding robes," replied the reporter.

"Thinking of getting married, eh?"

With an eye to business the dressmaker threw open the doors of several large wardrobes and the reporter gazed in silent admiration upon the number of magnificent wedding gowns.

"What do you charge for these dresses?"

"Well, they all bring different prices. This one," and the modist lifted out a beautiful garment of white satin trimmed with lace, "is very beautiful. It cost $200, but all I charge for the use of it is $30. You see, I am content with small profits. This dress I have realized $150 on now, but it will stand six or seven more ceremonies.

"Of course I have cheaper gowns, but they are not much cousined looking when compared with the more costly ones. You can be married in style when it costs so little."

"Who are the people who patronize you?"

"People whom you would least expect. Most of my customers in wedding gowns have been persons who could well have afforded to buy their dresses outright. It is seldom that a lady wears her wedding dress more than once, and it is, so far as utility is concerned, a dead loss after the ceremony."

Just then a showy turnout stopped at the door and a very handsome young woman, accompanied by a more matronly looking person, alighted.

They knocked timidly at the glass door, and as the reporter was leaving the enterprising dressmaker was showing them the same dress which he so much admired and which seemed to suit their fancy also.

THE POOR WOMAN'S OPERA.

Something Noted on the New York Elevated Rail Road.

A tired looking woman of middle age entered a south bound train at Fifty-ninth street. Her clothes were shabby and had been mended in many places, but they were as clean as soap and water could make them. She carried a bird cage, which was covered with a piece of linen as white as snow. Only a few brass bars at the top of the cage were exposed, and through these the woman frequently cooed and murmured baby talk.

Suddenly there burst upon the air a wonderful thrill of melody. It rose and fell, was soft and harsh, soothing and piercing, and was so long drawn out and rich that everybody in the car seemed to be entranced.

When the notes died the woman looked around proudly. A stern-visaged old man near by asked:

"Is that your bird?"

"Yes."

"Is he for sale?"

The woman angrily replied that he was not. "He is all I have to care for," she said. "All he costs me are the few seeds he eats, and in return he gives me better music than any of you can enjoy at the opera. Sell him indeed!"

The woman left the train at Bleecker street. She carried the cage close to her lips as she walked away, and cooed and murmured into it.—New York Sun.

His Duty as He Saw It.

The editor was much interested recently in a small boy, his opposite in one of the uptown horsecars.

It was hard to decide whether the boy's companion was his mother or elder sister, but presumably the former. At any rate the little fellow was in good company and the lady, whoever she was, was apparently pleased with her charge.

The conversation was about a book, and after they had been talking a little while, the lady said to him:

"I am very sorry you lent that book of papa's. You know he is very careful of his books, and that one came home in such a dreadful condition. You should never lend what is not your own."

"I know," said the little fellow, "but what in the world are you going to do when you have got to do as you would be done by?"

Little Girls at Weddings.

The custom of having little girls in picturesque costume attend the bride to the altar is a charming fashion of English origin, but it may be attended with serious consequences, as a recent wedding proved.

Two small relatives of a bride were added to the bridal procession with pretty effect and all went well until the place in the ceremony was reached when the bride gives her bouquet to a bridesmaid. Then each of the small girls demanded the bouquet.

One seized the flowers from the other, and a genuine nursery quarrel arose, which lasted until the two bridesmaids were deprived of the contested bouquet.

As an incident, it was decidedly unique.—Boston Journal.

Prohibition

Of the LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

By Rev. S. M. VERNON, D.D.

The most active and aggressive period ever known in temperance work renders timely the appearance of this crisp, original and vigorous book, newsy and piquant, bristling with telling points, brief, clear, sprightly, candid, earnest, convincing, fair, dispassionate, full of ringing facts and bright with sterling truths.

It popularizes the burning question of "Prohibition," brings it down to every mind and conscience, marshals its many startling facts in new and surprising forms, clarifies and invigorates its logic, paints in vivid and impressive hues the monster whose daily victims but increase its hunger, and the poison of whose breath blights whatever it touches. Cloth $1.00. MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT having been made in the payment of principal and interest on a certain mortgage bearing date the 18th day of June, A. D., 1885, made and executed by Robert N. McCollum and Mehitable D. McCollum, his wife, of Franklin, Lenawee County, Michigan, to Moses Bartlett, of Clinton, in said county, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, on the 18th day of June, A. D. 1885, in Liber 114 of Mortgages, on page 174, the said Robert N. McCollum and wife mortgaged to the said Moses Bartlett all those certain pieces or parcels of land situate in the township of Cambridge, County of Lenawee and state of Michigan, and described as follows, to wit: The southwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section one (1), being forty (40) acres more or less, and the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section twelve (12), being forty (40) acres more or less. Said mortgage was on the 18th day of June, A. D., 1885, assigned by the said Moses Bartlett to Anna Eccles, which assignment was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, for said County of Lenawee, on the 27th day of July, A. D., 1888, in Liber 125 of Mortgages, on page 556. Default has been made in the conditions of said mortgage, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative. There is claimed to be due and unpaid on said mortgage at this date the sum of Four Thousand Five Hundred Fifty-three 50-100 Dollars ($4,553.50), and no suit or proceedings at law or in chancery have been instituted to collect the same or any part thereof. Notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale, and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgaged premises will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder on the 13th day of October, A. D., 1888, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the east front door of the Court House in the City of Adrian, in said County of Lenawee, said Court House being the place of holding the circuit court for said county of Lenawee, to satisfy the amount now due, together with all legal costs and charges of this foreclosure.

MORTGAGE SALE.

ON the 15th day of December, 1884, David A. Sickner and Hannah A. Sickner mortgaged to Albert Hyde Sr., all that parcel of land situate in the township of Cambridge, Lenawee County, Michigan, described as follows, to wit: Beginning at a stake one hundred and sixty-six feet south and thirty three feet west of the north east corner of the east half of the southeast quarter of section twenty-eight (28), thence south sixteen rods to a stake; thence west sixteen rods to a stake; thence north eight rods to a stake; thence east four rods to a stake; thence north eight rods to south line of street; thence east twelve rods to place of beginning—containing seven village lots as per plat of the village of Onsted (so called), numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 26. Excepting and reserving from the lands and premises above described two parcels thereof, which have been released from the lien of said mortgage. The one of which released parcels is described as a parcel of land forty-eight (48) feet wide north and south, by twelve rods long east and west to be taken from off the south side of the lands and premises above described, and the other of said two released parcels is described as a parcel of land three rods wide north and south, by eight rods long east and west, to be taken from out the southeast corner of the lands and premises above described, to secure the payment of six hundred dollars, which mortgage was on the 18th day of December, 1884, recorded in the Register of Deeds' office for the county of Lenawee, Michigan, in Liber 97 of mortgages on page 268, and said mortgage contains a provision that in case of non-payment of any principal or interest at the time limited therein, then after sixty days the whole amount shall become due and payable.

Default having been made in the payment of interest and principal on said mortgage to the amount of one hundred eighty-five 75-100 dollars, and the said having remained unpaid for a period of more than sixty days and by reason thereof the whole amount of principal and interest has thereby become due, notice is hereby given that the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the principal and interest due thereon, with the costs and expenses of this foreclosure, and an attorney fee of twenty dollars stipulated for in said mortgage, to be paid in case of foreclosure by sale, which said premises are described as follows, to wit: Lot 1 in block 1 in the village of Onsted, according to the recorded plat thereof, excepting and reserving therefrom the south sixty feet thereof, and the south sixty feet of lot 2 in said block 1 in said village of Onsted, according to the recorded plat thereof, and the south sixty feet of the west half of the east half of the southeast quarter of section 20, town 5 south, range 2 east, in the township of Cambridge, Lenawee County, Michigan, containing one acre of land more or less, except the south 33 feet thereof, and the south 33 feet of the west half of the southeast quarter of said section 20, town 5 south, range 2 east, in the township of Cambridge, Lenawee County, Michigan, containing 77 acres

Constipation

Demands prompt treatment. The results of neglect may be serious. Avoid cathartics and drastic purgatives, the tendency of which is to weaken the bowels. The best remedy is Ayer's Pills. Being purely vegetable, their action is prompt and their effect always beneficial. They are an admirable Liver and After-dinner pill, and everywhere endorsed by the profession.

"Ayer's Pills are highly and universally spoken of by the people about here. I make daily use of them in my practice."—Dr. I. L. Fowler, Bridgeport, Conn.

"I can recommend Ayer's Pills above all others, having long proved their value as a cathartic for myself and family."—J. T. Hess, Leitholville, Pa.

"For several years Ayer's Pills have been used in my family. We find them the best."

Effective Remedy

for constipation and indigestion, and we never without them in the house."—Moses Grenier, Lowell, Mass.

"I have used Ayer's Pills, for liver troubles and indigestion, during many years, and have always found them prompt and efficient in their action."—L. N. Smith, Utica, N. Y.

"I suffered from constipation which assumed such an obstinate form that I feared it would cause a stoppage of the bowels. Two boxes of Ayer's Pills effected a complete cure."—D. Burke, Saco, Me.

"I have used Ayer's Pills for the past [illegible] no better remedy for liver troubles, and have always found them a prompt cure for dyspepsia."—James Quinn, 90 Middle st., Hartford, Conn.

"Having been troubled with costiveness, which seems inevitable with persons of sedentary habits, I have tried Ayer's Pills, hoping for relief. I am glad to say that they have served me better than any other medicine. I arrive at this conclusion only after a careful trial of their merits."—Samuel P. Jones, Oak st., Boston, Mass.

AS TO THE TABERNACLE.

LESSON V., THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JULY 29.

Text of the Lesson, Ex. xl. 1-16. Commit Verses, 1-3. Golden Text, Rev. xxi. 3.

Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

1. "And the Lord spake unto Moses." How often we read this sentency and how little we are apt to think of the meaning of it or of the "Thus saith the Lord" of the prophets, or the "I say unto you" of Jesus Himself, who was the Lord that of the prophets. We cannot give too much heed to the word of God, nor heed it too reverently, and unless we really hear God speaking to us in His word it will not profit us.

2. "On the first day of the first month." It was the second year (verse 17) and just a year since the great passover night on which they left the land of bondage (xii. 2; xiii. 4). That month was ever to be a memorable month to them because of the great deliverance. Although it was the seventh month of their civil year, they were henceforth to count it the first month, for it was the first month of the first year of their history as a redeemed people. Every Christian has two birthdays, the day of his birth into this world and the day of his birth as a child of God.

"The tabernacle of the tent of meeting." (R. V.) God has delivered the nation from the bondage of Egypt and brought them unto Himself that they might be unto Him a peculiar treasure, a kingdom of priests, a holy nation (Ex. xix. 5, 6), to make him a name (II Sam. vii. 23), and now He will dwell among them by a visible presence in this tabernacle specially prepared for Him (xxv. 8). The tabernacle after some 500 years gave place to the Temple of Solomon, which, with some rebuilding, continued until Christ came the true tabernacle (Heb. viii. 2), but He, being rejected by the nation, rejected them also for a time, and their temple and city and land became a ruin and desolate because of their rejection of their king. When He shall return in power and glory to sit on David's throne and reign over the house of Jacob forever (Luke i. 32, 33), and to restore all things of which the prophets have spoken (Acts iii. 19-21), then there shall be a new temple according to Ezek. xl to xlviii, and Jerusalem shall be a city of truth and peace and righteousness, and to it the nations shall go up from year to year to worship the King, the Lord of Hosts (Zech. viii and xiv. 16). Meantime, between the scattering and regathering of Israel, God is adding to the seed of Abraham from all the nations of the earth and building a temple of living stones (Eph. ii. 19-22; I Pet. ii. 5; Gal. iii. 29), which accepting Jesus as your golden stone and the chapter in which it is found, will come down from God out of heaven, to be a light to all the nations of earth, and the dwelling place of Christ and His saints in connection with this earth when the kingdom comes.

3. "The ark of the testimony." The dimensions of all the vessels except the candlestick and tabernacle are given in previous chapters. I can only refer to the most real, situation and size of each. The ark, table and altar of incense were each made of shittim or acacia wood, covered with gold, representing as of incorruptible humanity and divinity of Christ. The ark was the only vessel in the Holy of Holies, a room ten cubits long and wide and high, the sides of which were boards covered with gold; the fourth was the veil, a type of the body of Christ (Heb. x. 20); the ceiling was the beautiful curtains, and the floor was the earth. The cover of the ark, called the mercy seat or propitiatory (Heb. ix. 5, R. V., margin), was of pure gold, and out of it was beaten at each end a cherub overshadowing it. Over the mercy seat, between the cherubim, in this Holy of Holies, was the place of the manifest presence of God (Ex. xxv. 17-22). The ark was made to contain the tables of testimony, and there they were kept. The people could not keep that holy law, but Christ, the true ark, kept it perfectly, and of Him it is written, "A body hast thou prepared for me."

4. "The table," on which was placed every week—every Sabbath day—twelve cakes of bread in two rows, with frankincense upon each row (Lev. xxiv. 5-9). The table and the bread and the incense all speak of Him.

"The candlestick" was made of a talent of pure gold (xxv. 39), and would therefore be worth about $2,000. It was more like a lamp than what we understand by a candlestick. Each of its seven branches held a lamp which every day had to be trimmed and filled with oil so as to burn continually before the Lord. Christ is the light of the world, the true light, and He is pleased to say to us "Ye are the light of the world."

5. "The altar of incense." On this the priest was to burn incense every morning and evening while he trimmed the lamps (xxx. 7, 8), teaching us that although nothing that we do can be acceptable in itself because of our sinfulness, yet whatever is heartily done in His name with a sincere desire for His glory is made acceptable by the incense of His merits, which is ever a sweet perfume to God.

These three vessels, the table, the candlestick and the altar of incense, were in the holy place or first room into which the high priest went every day, but into the holy of holies he went only once a year.

6, 7. "The altar of burnt offering and the laver." These were the only two vessels in the outer court of the tabernacle, the first was made of wood covered with brass, and was just inside the gate of the court, it speaks to us of the Godman, our sacrifice for sin, and tells us that if we are unwilling to accept the blood of the Lamb as our ransom, there is no possibility of our coming to God. The laver was made out of the brazen mirrors of the women (xxxviii. 8), and contained water with which the priests washed their hands and feet, reminding us that he that is washed in the blood needeth not, save to wash his feet (with the water of the word), but is clean every whit.

8. "The court and gate." Curtains of fine linen hanging upon sixty wooden pillars standing in brass sockets, and kept upright by cords fastened to brass tent pins, formed a fence five cubits high around the court, which was 100 cubits long by 50 broad (xxvii. 16-18). The linen fence, the court gate, the pillars with their brass sockets, silver chapiters and hooks, the cords and pins, all speak to us of the righteousness, atonement and power of our Lord Jesus, and how we may become partakers thereof.

9-11. "The tabernacle and all its vessels anointed." A full description of the holy anointment oil is found in xxx. 22-33, and speaks to us of the varied graces of the Holy Spirit found in divine fulness in Christ.

12-15. "Aaron and his sons anointed." First washed, then clothed and then anointed; our sins forgiven, then clothed with the garments of salvation, and then anointed with power to minister unto Him. If we realized our need of this power and waited upon Him more earnestly for its anointing we would be holier and happier people and more used by Him. Whatever we may now enjoy of His service is, however, but a foretaste of the more glorious service when our golden text shall be fulfilled.

"LET HER GO GALLAGHER!"

Last Words of a Murderer on the Gallows—A Cool Subject for Jack Ketch.

MONTICELLO, N. Y., July 21.—"Good-bye, sheriff. Let her go Gallagher," were the last words [illegible] as [illegible] yesterday. The gallows were erected in the court house. Religious services were conducted in the cell at 10 o'clock. Allen was taken to the court room at 11 and walked with military tread. He then took his place under the rope, only twenty-eight persons being present. He said he would make a confession if he knew what to confess. He had no recollection of the crime. He had eight or ten drinks on the morning of the murder and half a pint of whisky in his pocket. He had no other crime to confess and begged all persons to beware of rum. In conclusion he said: "I am a true Englishman and never felt fear in my life." He then thanked every one for their kindness to him, and said he hoped to meet them in heaven. He sang with the clergyman "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." He adjusted the noose, at the same time remarking that he was a sailor and knew all about ropes. He talked fully twenty minutes.

The crime for which Allen was hanged was committed on the 8th of last October. His victim was an aged German widow, Ursula Ulrich, who lived alone a short distance from Jeffersonville in Sullivan county. On the afternoon of the day of the tragedy one of her neighbors went to the house to get a jug of cider, and, upon entering the kitchen door, found the old woman—she being upwards of seventy years of age—lying on the floor surrounded by a pool of blood. She had been shot in the head, and there were several wounds about her body. The neighborhood was at once aroused, and excitement ran high. He was arrested and held by the coroner's jury to await the action of the grand jury. He was indicted, and he thereafter confessed, but said that the murder was an accident.

FUSION IN MICHIGAN.

DEMOCRATS AND GREENBACKERS HOLD STATE CONVENTIONS.

DETROIT, Mich., July 20.—The Democratic and Greenback state conventions held in Detroit and Grand Rapids respectively, concluded their labors at 10:30 o'clock at night, having conducted their business with a degree of harmony surprising to everybody. The opposition in the Democratic convention to Burt's candidacy for governor by his declaration on the tariff was almost entirely overcome before the nominations were reached, the only evidence of it being an attempt by about 100 delegates headed by Gen. Rutherford to postpone the Democratic convention an other day. This move was supposed to be in the interest of Yaple for governor.

WELLINGTON R. BURT.

Fusion between the two parties was accomplished without any friction. In the division the Greenbackers get three district electors—namely, from the Second, Eighth and Eleventh districts—and the auditor general and commissioner of the land office. Bartley Breen, Greenback oil baron, champion, was nominated by both conventions for auditor general. The ticket nominated follows:

For governor, Wellington R. Burt, of Saginaw; for lieutenant governor, William B. Moran, of Wayne; for secretary of state, Thomas D. Hawley, of Ionia; for state treasurer, J. W. Norton, of Oakland; for superintendent of public instruction, Stuart McKibbon, of Manistee; for member of state board of education, Charles E. King, of Waseotonawa; for attorney general, A. A. Ellis; for auditor general, Bartley Breen; for land commissioner, S. W. Fowler; electors at large, J. D. Sterling, of Monroe, and Edward Ryan, of Houghton; district electors, First district, L. Dew Elwood, Second, C. H. Bewer; Third, William B. Thompson; Fourth, William Kilbefer; Fifth, William B. Couters, Sixth, Josiah W. Legget; Seventh, Thomas N. Crocker; Eighth, Dr. A. W. Nichols; Ninth, George Goodsell; Tenth, William McArthur; Eleventh, J. C. Blanchard.

The Democratic platform is conspicuous for generalization on the various issues. It is briefly as follows: It indorses Cleveland's message and the St. Louis platform; denounces ownership of real estate by foreign corporations, and declares that unearned land grants to railroads in the upper peninsula should be forfeited. A pension plank commends the liberal construction of existing pension laws by the administration. The greenback platform is of the usual character as regards the currency. It thanks Cleveland for Commissioner Black's services to pensioners, and the fusion congressman for uniting with Weaver against the Wilkins bill. It declares for service pensions; for the repeal of the dat claim of the arrearages of pension act; wants taxation reduced to the needs of the government, and claims that workingmen need less protection by import duties and more protection by penal statutes forbidding imported labor, railroad wrecking, stock watering, trusts, and pools.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH ARRELL?

He Serves an Extraordinary Legal Document on Certain of His Brethren.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 21.—Probably one of the most extraordinary legal documents ever issued in this state was the service of a notice yesterday afternoon on certain members of a Presbyterian church at Poland, in this county. There has been some trouble in the congregation, and yesterday Walter S. Arrell, a wealthy member, employed counsel and the result was the delivery by the sheriff of the following document to the persons named:

To Rev. J. Fulton Boyd, Samuel Boyd, John Haverstick, Edward Lee, William Cowden, H. K. Morse, and James Saxton, Session of the Presbyterian Church of Poland, O.:

GENTLEMEN: You, and each of you, are hereby legally notified to abandon your visits as men's is of said session by person or proxy to my beloved wife at her home, and to keep off my premises. No visits by either of you as members of said session will hereafter be permitted. Realization that your sessional visits have already done me much personal injury is the reason for resorting to the use of this legal business.

W. S. ARRELL.

The Burlington Conspiracy.

CHICAGO, July 23.—Matters were tolerably quiet Saturday in the cases of the alleged conspirators against the "Q" road. John A. Bauereisen's case, in which the state is prosecutor, was heard by Justice Lyon, and he was held in $2,500 to the grand jury. He gave bail. The cases against Hoge, Murphy, Kelly and McGivery were continued to July 28, owing to Hoge's absence from the city. A telegram from Aurora states that ex-Engineer August Koegel, a prominent Frothingham man, was arrested there Saturday, charged with conspiracy, and put under bonds of $5,000. Hedented any complicity with the dynamite conspirators.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

A Saginaw basket factory started in bright and early on a Monday morning for a [illegible] and when Saturday came [illegible] baskets ready for the growing peach crop.

Mrs. Wm. Radsuck horsewhipped Charles Wallace on the streets of Grand Rapids, she claiming that he had maligned her good name and so adopted this course to get even.

Romes' $10,000 elevator and seven freight cars were burned on the 12th. Well insured.

A Chesaning chap applied for a license to marry a 14-years-old girl, and was somewhat crestfallen when informed that he had to wait a couple of years and let her grow up to the legal age.

Frank Hoppin, a Mancelona man, has determined to not let the season of '88 pass away without a fair supply of sauerkraut material. He's raising 17,000 head of cabbage.

Nine young lady graduates of Olivet college, who don't mean to let that fact militate against their usefulness, have accepted positions as dining-room girls at the Resort hotel at Harbor Point.

Newberry's $15,000 shingle-mill at Alanson was cremated on the 11th. No insurance.

Pinckney is to have a pickle factory and thus do her share toward furnishing the sharp things of this life.

A Webberville hen was so high minded that she built her nest in the cupola of a barn thirty feet from the ground where she hatched out a baker's dozen of little chicks.

Hattie Wallace, a Grand Rapids lass, stretched himself out on a grocery counter for a snooze on a recent hot day. Presently he dreamed of a warmer country and rolled off upon the floor, his nose striking a spittbox. The box escaped in good shape, but the nose is laid up for repairs.

A Pontiac citizen offers to hire a parson and buy a marriage license for the couple who'll be married at the county fair in September. As a further inducement he'll give them a ring and pair of shoes apiece to keep them warm during the winter.

A Bellaire firm contracted to furnish water for the high school, and after many trials and much tribulation succeeded in obtaining a good supply at a depth of 215 feet. Shortly afterward the bottom dropped out and the water disappeared, and now the drillers are again going down, in search of another vein.

Edward Harris, of Springfield, is the owner of seven Shropshire sheep that gave him 394½ pounds of wool for which he obtained 28 cents per pound, an extra price for this season. It pays to raise good stock.

A couple of Williamston farmers had thirty-two sheep killed by dogs in one day, but the dogs won't do another job of that kind—not until the resurrection anyway—for they were dispatched to the land where bad canines are supposed to dwell.

There is a balsam poplar tree at Adrian that stands 100 feet in height, its branches covering an area of 125 feet. The trunk is six feet in diameter, and the tree, which is seldom found in this latitude, is a most majestic one.

Eliza M. Fitzgerald wants $5,000 because a section of one of Cassopolis's most popular walks jarred upon her grace for a cruel blow. Eliza means business, for a law suit already stares the record village round.

After a long, long search for hidden treasures, the Marquette gas well struck a small but steady flow of natural gas at a depth of 1743 feet. The well will be tested in the hope of obtaining a "gusher."

T. F. Saltman, a Fourier personage when he's at home, has gone to South America with a lot of blooded cattle, where he proposes to stay awhile and see 'em grow in that genial climate.

Rev. Father Schmittdiel having completed his twenty-fifth year as pastor of St. Michael's Catholic church at Monroe, his parishioners celebrated the event in a manner that showed their appreciation of his services and which must have gladdened the heart of the good dominie.

A hack driver was fined $6 by the Mt. Clemens authorities for leaving his team unhitched. Next time he'll probably tie the hatter.

The Congregationalists have multiplied and become so numerous at East Saginaw that a second society has been formed, with Rev. B. Hunter for pastor.

A Grand Rapids factory has received an order from President Cleveland for a portable cottage 26 feet square, for use at his country place at Washington. It may be proper to add that this isn't a campaign item.

Durand folks appreciate the advantage of having things handy, their three railways occupying union passenger and freight depots.

By a recent decision of the supreme court, local justices can no longer sentence offenders to the Ionia house of correction, that being a state institution.

The land upon which the village of Romeo now stands was first owned by Gen. Lewis Cass. That was some time ago, however.

Mary Crentilli, a Grand Rapids lass, thinks that John Mamowski, ought to pay her about $1000, because John kissed her in jest, matrimonially, as he agreed, and Mary has invoked the aid of the courts, despite the fact that some folks aver that her fickle lover ain't worth half that number of pennies.

An Arab, that belonged to Barnum's circus, got out of whack when the great showman was passing this state, and is laid up at the Jackson hospital for repairs.

C. R. Richardson, of Detroit, the owner of eleven boot and shoe stores in that and other cities of the state, has assigned. Liabilities $55,000; assets not ascertained.

A couple of companies of state troops en route for Mackinac, dropped off at Cheboygan and to show their valor tackled the Salvation Army, hugging and dancing with the army lasses, and finally routing the entire detachment.

Got All Their Stolen Paper Back.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 23.—The Union bank Saturday received all the notes, drafts, and other securities stolen by Teller Charles A. Fitcher and expressed from New York to James A. Roberts in the care of Brown, Shipley & Co., London, and Drexel, Hayes & Co., Paris. The foreign correspondents of the bank had been notified, and when the enclosures addressed to Roberts came to hand identification quickly followed. All the packages returned are intact.

OUR DAILY BREAD.

Heavy and sour bread or biscuit has a vast influence through the digestive organs upon the measure of health we enjoy. How important to our present happiness and to the continuance of possessing of good health and a sound constitution are, we can only realize when we have lost them and it is too late to repair the damages. Notwithstanding these facts, thousands of persons daily jeopardize not only their health, but their lives, and healths and lives of others, by using articles in the preparation of their food the purity and healthfulness of which they knew nothing. Certainly a few cents may have been saved, or it may have been more convenient to obtain the article used, and the housekeeper knows the result, but the husband, parent, relative, friend, or possibly the child, may have lost their appetites, look pale, and the true cause is rarely suspected. The weather, the lack of out door air, some other cause, is given and the unwholesome poisonous system of adulterated food goes on. Next to the flour which should be made of good, sound wheat and not too fine, the yeast or baking powder, which furnishes the rising properties, is of the greatest importance and of the two we prefer baking powder, and always use the Royal, as we thereby retain the original properties of the wheat, no fermentation taking place. The action of the Royal Baking Powder upon the dough is simply to swell it and form little cells with carbonic acid gas, which passes off during the process of baking.

The Royal is made from pure grape acid, and it is the action of this acid upon highly carbonized bicarbonate of soda that generates the gas alluded to; and these ingredients are so pure, and so perfectly fitted, tested and adapted to each other, that the action is mild and permanent, and is continued during the whole time of baking, and no residue of poisonous ingredients remain to undermine the health, no heavy biscuit, no sour bread, but if directions are followed, every article will be found sweet and wholesome.

THE PROBATE COURT.

Following is the record of business transacted at the probate court for the week ending July 17, 1888:

WHAT IS IT AND WHAT IT IS.

Papillon Clarke's extract of flax Skin Cure, like many other inestimable benefits to mankind, was discovered by accident. The proprietor, engaged in the preparation of certain plants, from time to time noticed the effect of working in the pulp vats on the skin. If there was present any cutaneous eruptions, warts, blemishes or scrofulous symptoms, all disappeared as if by magic. After experimenting ten years, it has become a scientific and a process known to the human race. From selling away a few bottles, the demand has increased until the sale of the past two years amounts to 1,062,000 bottles. Large bottles only $1.00.

A Horrible Inheritance.

The transmission of the fearful effects of contagious blood poison is the most horrible thought that any man can bequeath his offspring. Such a legacy is in the majority of cases prevented by the use of that skin and blood purifier, Swift's Specific (S. S. S.), which is the only known remedy for this disease. Mr. J. H. Brown, of Hopewell, Ky., writes: "Three years I suffered with the worst form of blood disease. Swift's Specific cured me completely." Mr. [illegible] writes: "Swift's Specific cured me of a terrible case of blood poison." Dr. R. F. Wright, of Swift's Specific, writes: "Swift's Specific cured me of a severe case of blood poison." D. W. K. Briggs, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "I was a perfect wreck from blood poison. Swift's Specific restored health and hope, and I am well today." A. W. Leland, of Savannah, Ga., writes: "I suffered one year from a blood poison. Swift's Specific has put me perfectly well." A. W. Bogle, of Flower's Hotel, Rochester, N. Y., writes: "It is the best blood remedy on earth. I cured myself with it. I recommend it to a friend and it made him well." Mr. F. L. Stanton, of Smithville, Ga. News, writes that a friend was afflicted with a case of blood poison, and two bottles of S. S. S. effected a complete cure. Treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free. A MINE OF RICHNESS

STRUCK IN A GOLD MINE NEAR ISHPEMING.

The Neighborhood "Wild with Excitement" of Course—The Yellow Metal Found in Nuggets of Absolute Purity—History of the "Diggin's"—Preparations to Prosecute the Search.

ISHPEMING, Mich., July 21.—The whole country here is wild with excitement over a wonderful gold discovery on the Lake Superior Iron company's land, seven miles northwest of here. There was brought yesterday morning nearly 100 pounds of very rich gold bearing quartz, which was dredged by one that sleed Thursday night at the bottom of a shaft which is now twenty-two feet deep. No assay of the rock has yet been made, and none is necessary, for gold is found in large nuggets and small grains. There is also much gold not visible to the naked eye. The value of the rock is variously estimated at from $25,000 to $50,000, and at the lowest estimate the rock now at the Lake Superior office is worth 5,000. One specimen, weighing two ounces, carries $10 worth of gold. The surprising richness of the rock can be estimated from the fact that from 5 to 10 per cent of the entire mineral is gold, nearly twenty-four karat fine. Specimens were placed on exhibition at the Ishpeming National bank yesterday morning, and created a great sensation. The specimens were later taken to the Lake Superior office, where they are now locked in the vaults. Hundreds of people visited the mine during the day, but only a few were able to get into the

The gold find was first discovered on this property three years ago, when a small pocket of rich sugar quartz, worth about $5,000 to the ton, was found. Nothing was done then, as the Lake Superior company, which owned the land, would neither lease nor sell. Last spring a small test shaft was sunk eighteen feet, and at the bottom another "blossom" of rich quartz was struck. This was worth at the rate of $14,000 per ton, but there were only fifteen or twenty pounds of it. After that an ineffectual attempt was made by local parties to secure the property, and work was stopped until six weeks ago, when the Superior company, which had its office at Boston, gave orders to go ahead and pump a mine of the property.

Work was then resumed, and the original size of the shaft was enlarged to 10 by 14 for hoisting and pumping machinery, and several small pieces of rich rock were struck, but not in any quantity until this rich find. Although there have been numerous finds of rich rock, as heretofore have been small in quantity, and have merely been promises of what might follow. The Rodes gold mine has been working for years on a little vein, and occasional rich pockets containing a few hundred pounds of quartz worth a few hundred or perhaps $1,000 a ton. Nothing in Lake Superior is the discovery made of a large amount of gold in one place. Although the Lake Superior shaft is the best for Michigan Mine Gold company has many acres of land and some very rich rock has been taken from this property.

The report of the Michigan mine is so unusual in location and work so special, and can not be accepted until the court renders a decision. The Michigan Gold company, of Detroit, Chicago, George Fry, of Marquette, and John Foley, of Hancock, are other claimants to the property. To the west of the Lake Superior shaft expenditures have been made, but already several others have been secured. Work will soon be at a rapid rate on a dozen prospects near the Lake Superior and Michigan mines. Numbers of prospectors will begin work today, and, many applications for options on lands supposed to be in the gold belt are being considered by land companies and private owners. As many miners as can be employed will be put to work by the Lake Superior company, and operations will be pushed.

TWENTY-FIVE LASHES

An Ontario Doctor Punished for an Assault on His Niece.

TORONTO, Ont., July 21.—Dr. Charles of Whitby was sentenced during the morning session of the assizes in the Central prison. The prisoner was convicted of assaulting his niece, who was sent to St. Thomas to an inebriate asylum, being aged 18 years. Whitby requested the company of his niece to St. Thomas on a trip. She refused to go and, based for her reasons, told of the treatment she had received from her uncle. Her treatment led to the arrest of Whitby and his sentence of twenty-three months in the central prison and fifty lashes, twenty-five to be administered one month after the date of his entering the prison and the remaining twenty-five one month before his release. The prisoner was bared to the waist and at the first cut gave an audible whimper. On receiving cut No. 2 he began howling and kept it up throughout the punishment. His back turned a dull purple and blue color. He received little sympathy from those who witnessed his punishment, his crime having been an atrocious one.

MANY LIVES IN PERIL

Northwestern Indians Threatening Vengeance on the Whites.

VICTORIA, B. C., July 21.—Mr. Borland, a well known packer, has arrived from Hazelton to confer with the attorney general regarding the state of affairs at Hazelton, on the Skeena river, and tells the following story of the trouble: Last year an Indian named Jim murdered an Indian doctor at the forks of the Skeena. A posse of specials arrested the murderer, and he was shot by one of the posse named Green. The posse then returned to Hazelton, where they are at present besieged in by the hostile Indians. They can hold out for a month if the Indians can be prevented from burning the place. Among the whites in the locality where the shooting occurred are Mr. Cufford and wife, in charge of the Hudson Bay store, Rev. Mr. Field and wife and Mrs. Hankin and family. The Indians demand that Green be handed to them and $3,000 paid them. If the specials refuse they threaten to burn the houses and murder every white person in the district.

A Contract Labor Preacher.

NEW YORK, July 21.—In the United States circuit court Judge Wallace, on the application of United States Attorney Walker, signed the decree overruling the demurrer of the rector, church wardens, etc., of the Church of the Holy Trinity, in the action brought against them by the United States, the suit was brought by the United States under the alien contract law to recover the penalty for bringing Rev. E. Walpole Warren to this country from England to preach under contract. A judgment for $1,000 in favor of the United States was entered on behalf of the United States. The case will probably be appealed to the United States supreme court.

BEAUTY AND HEALTH.

A Belle's Successful Means of Preserving Them.

[illegible] that she has never applied a particle of any cosmetic to her face, yet can keep her freshness and brilliancy during a tiresome Washington season, gives as the secret of her good complexion the fact that her bathing is regular, methodical and judicious; that she never washes her face during the day, but cares for it thoroughly at the stated times.

On returning from a walk or drive she wipes every particle of dust from her face with a soft chamois leather and takes particular pains not to sit too near a fire or in a draft after exercise.

Another point upon which she dwells very carefully is the arrangement of her dressing room. There is nothing over luxurious to the eye in the simple, well-ventilated and unadorned room.

Miss —— understands thoroughly the advantage of not bathing in her sleeping apartment and having her sponges, towels, etc., as well aired as though they were articles of dress. Her tub is cleansed thoroughly each day, the water used is always fresh as possible and the shelf containing the articles used in her toilet is in a well-ventilated high part of the wall, and only a small quantity of any article is kept at a time, since almost anything too long corked loses its best qualities, even distilled water absorbing some germs of unpleasantness if retained too long.

The sponges in this room, three in num-

wood. They are never exposed to the sun by way of sweetening them, according to the erroneous notion of so many people, and they are never left in the water after use, except about once in two weeks, when they are soaked in a basin of fresh water, to which a lump of soda has been added for purposes of thorough cleansing.

Now, let us see what are the toilet articles in this famous beauty's dressing-room: distilled water, rose water, glycerine, cold cream, vaseline, eau-de-cologne, orris root and camphor.

On rising she takes a quick, cold bath, using the flesh brush application immediately afterwards. Five minutes' moderate use of the dumbbells follow this, after which Miss —— quickly completes her toilet, breakfasts and remains quite indolently still for fifteen minutes. Then comes a brisk walk.

What the routine of her day is to be is the result of circumstances, but to those so situated they cannot govern their time, let it say that the morning ablutions, exercise and walk need only occupy one hour, and will, by methodical use, lengthen the healthy hour of life tenfold.

During the day Miss —— washes her hands frequently in tepid distilled water, to which some of the rose water is added, and before drying them applies very quickly, and yet thoroughly, some glycerine, taking care, however, to completely wash it off after it has done its work of lubrication, since otherwise it would make the hands sallow and the skin over tender.

Before dressing for dinner or an evening entertainment, strange No. 2—that of the morning being left on its line—is employed with tepid water to bathe quickly the neck and arms, but nothing is done which could possibly promote a chill.

Returning to her dressing-room, the night bath is taken, with which glycerine and rose water are mingled, and the ablution is followed by a gentle friction, the face, after being thoroughly washed—especially about the roots of the hair—is subjected to a rapid and soft rubbing, after which a sponge soaked in very hot water is quickly passed over it for the purpose of reopening the thoroughly cleansed pores.

A CHOICE OF EVILS.

One Way of Getting a Railroad Pass.

The heavy-hearted villain of the crooked County Company walked boldly into the office of the railroad superintendent, and greeted that responsible dignitary with a familiar nod.

Disturbed by the astonished look in the eyes of the stiff-necked official, he introduced his business without waiting to be prompted.

"Say! I want you to give me a pass to Boston."

"A pass?—to Boston? What for, sir?"

"Because I live down that way."

"That may be, sir; but what claim have you on this road? We can't do it for you!"

The villain hesitated, but was not lost. "See here! Where are the overseers of the poor in this town?"

"Well, I happen to be one of them myself. Why?"

"Then I want you to send me to the poorhouse. I'm a pauper, and I'm just going to put myself on this town. Show's busted. I haven't a cent, and if you can't give me a pass I can't get away. Guess I'll go to the poorhouse until the season opens and I can get another job. Look after me as soon as you can, please, because I want to wash up and get something to eat. What do you say?"

"Mr. Penholder, give this man a pass to Boston."

Anecdote of Lincoln.

President Lincoln was asked what he would do with Jeff Davis if the latter was caught.

To which Lincoln replied:

"I should feel very like the boy with the raccoon."

"What was that?"

"Well, I once saw a boy crying with a raccoon, and I asked him what was the matter. He said it was about the raccoon; that he didn't want to sell it; that he couldn't give it away; that he didn't want to kill the darned critter, and that mother wouldn't let him take it home."

Ready-Witted Devotions.

An amusing story is told of the Rev. Myron Reed, of Colorado, who once ran as the Democratic Congressional candidate in that State.

It seems that during the canvass the reverend gentleman was interrupted in the midst of a public prayer by a man who shouted "Louder!"

Reed stopped short, looked at the interrupter and said, coolly:

"I would do it for you, sir. I was addressing the Almighty."

Then he went on with his prayer.

CURIOUS HAPPENINGS.

—A Charlotte Harbor [illegible] has set a hen on alligator eggs. The hen will think she has [illegible] shells break.

—Seven engagements were made at a leap year party at Woodland, Cal., the other night, where only fourteen couples were present.

—An unfortunate Maine baby that happened to be born on the day of her grandparents' golden wedding was named Anna Versary.

—A Missouri man who had conscientious scruples about taking the oath as a juror stole two overcoats and $25 in money from his fellow jurors before the panel was discharged.

—Mr. and Mrs. James O. Robinson are solid citizens of Charlestown, Mass. They have been married fifty years. Mr. Robinson weighs 278 pounds, Mrs. Robinson weighs 226, and of their seven living children none weighs less than 200 pounds.

—Several young ladies of Hamilton, Iowa, have been expelled from the high school of the city because they attended a ball. The Committee of Arrangements will in future see that the Principal of the high school receives an invitation.

—It is said that a popular young woman of Orlando, Fla., has a large and intelligent dog, who, whenever a visitor stays too late, sits down in front of him, yawns, and shows all the signs of being very tired.

—Tramps are quitting the vicinity of Jacksonville, Fla., in great haste. This action is due to a judge of the city who, taking advantage of an old State law, has ordered the sheriff to lay thirty-nine lashes on the bare back of each tramp that he catches.

—An old man was found dead in his cabin in Tryon county, Ga. The coroner summoned a jury, who viewed the corpse, built a big fire of pine knots, emptied a jug of whiskey, and then rendered the verdict: "We, the jury, find the prisoner guilty."

—Wong Chin Foo, the lecturer of New York has entered an action for $25,000 against the Dominion Government, having suffered the indignity of being sent in bond from Clifton to Kingston with a label on his back, in accordance with the customs regulations.

—Justice Joseph Steinert of Vicksville, L. I., found five fine pearls in an oyster among a bushel of bivalves presented to him by a friend in Oyster Bay. He took the pearls to a New York jeweler for valuation, and received an offer of $500 for them, which he refused.

—A citizen of Salina, Kan., saw a big jack rabbit sitting by the side of the road. He ran home, a quarter of a mile, got his gun, ran back, and fired a charge of shot into the rabbit, which was still sitting there. Even then it did not move, and further investigation showed that it was frozen stiff.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at the Newspaper Advertising Agency of Messrs. N. W. AYER & SON, our authorized agents.

There are Two Distinguishing Characteristics

Which, more than anything else, have contributed to the phenomenal growth of The Chicago Daily News, giving it a circulation larger than that of all other Chicago dailies combined. It seems strange that the first practical, combined application of two such common sense principles in journalism should have been left to a paper as yet only twelve years old. And yet true it is that in this fact lies the real secret of the unparalleled success of The Chicago Daily News. Briefly stated these principles are:

First. THE DAILY NEWS
Is a daily paper for busy people.

Of all mankind the people of Chicago and the busy northwest are the busiest. And yet perhaps no equal number of people are to be found who appreciate so keenly the necessity of an intelligent knowledge of the world's daily doings. They recognize that they, more than anyone else, are the world's providers in many of the most important necessaries of life. How important, then, that they should have their daily intelligence of every event, the world over, which by any possibility can affect their diversified commercial holdings. And in all the higher interests of life where can be found a like number of people more keenly appreciative of all that contributes to progress in art, literature, science, religion, politics, and the thousand and one things which make up modern civilization.

And yet, strange to say, right here in this great, busy northwest, in its busy metropolis Chicago, there has taken place the creation and development of that most cumbrous, unserviceable, [illegible] blindness of very fatuity this monstrosity of journalism, this breeder of mental dyspepsia, has steadfastly imposed its mountain of unthreshed straw to the demand of the people for the winnowed grain of fact. It was out of the very incongruousness of such a condition of things that THE DAILY NEWS had its birth. People wanted the news—all the news—but they demanded it apart from the overpowering mass of the trivial and inconsequential. It is because THE DAILY NEWS satisfactorily meets that demand that its circulation is over "a million a week."

R. M. LAWRENCE, Williamsville, Ill., says: "The 'big daily' is too much for me. Not that a person is obliged to read everything printed in the 'blanket sheets,' but one having anything else to do doesn't have time to hunt through the long-drawn twaddle for a few grains of digestible food."

Second. THE DAILY NEWS
Is an Independent, truth-telling newspaper.

The reader can count on one hand the known newspapers whose statements in matters of politics can always be accepted as at least intentionally truthful, and commonly so in fact. On the other hand, it is the all-but-universal rule to praise one's party and candidate to the skies, and to cry down the opposition party and its candidate to the verge of the disreputable. So common have such silly and reprehensible methods in journalism become that they pass unnoticed, and are accepted as a matter of course—as an evil inseparable from practical politics. But this is only another mistake of the thoughtless. The American people are intelligent enough, thoughtful enough, fair enough to appreciate and endorse honest, truth-telling journalism—in truth to prefer it to the misleading, the truth-discoloring dishonesty of the "organ."

The demand is more and more for the fair, impartial, independent newspaper which give the reader all the news, and gives a wholesome free from the taint of partisan bias. This done, or expression of opinion, when given fairly, will commend itself to the thoughtful reader even when he may not find himself in agreement with the conclusions deduced from the premises. Disagreements are of small moment if only confidence in honesty of purpose remains. With no mere political ambition to gratify, no "ax to grind," the impartial and independent newspaper may truly be "guide, philosopher and friend" to honest men holding every shade of political faith. And this is why THE DAILY NEWS has to-day a circulation of over "a-million-a-week."

M. WYGANT, Sibley, Iowa, writes: "I am well pleased with THE DAILY NEWS, although I am a 'bred-in-the-bone' Republican with a carpet bag experience in the South ending in 1872. The extreme fairness of THE DAILY NEWS, giving credit where due regardless of party, meets my approval."

When to two such comprehensive elements of popularity THE DAILY NEWS now adds a third in its unparalleled price reduction to One Cent a day, it offers a combination of attractions at once unique and unapproachable by any other American newspaper, and one which will surely multiply its friends throughout the Northwest by the thousands.

The Chicago Daily News is for sale by all newsdealers at One Cent per copy, or will be mailed, postage paid, for $3.00 per year, or 25 cents per month. The farmer and mechanic can now afford as well as the merchant and professional man to have his metropolitan daily.

"Think of a Family

having the habit of daily converse with all the knowledge that is old, enough to get into books"—your family.

You can bring that about, if you want to. Possibly some father or mother may read this, to whom it isn't true; but we doubt it.

Consider what it means. It means that you have a Cyclopedia in your living room, your evening family-room, the handiest place to get at when you want it; and when a subject comes up that one of the family wants to know more of, you turn to it in your Cyclopedia, just as you turn to a word in your dictionary.

This set of books can be the means of constant growth in knowledge, in use of the mind, in the habit of seeking light on whatever is dark, for you and your family, if you will have it so. Or you can neglect it as many neglect their dictionaries. All we said was that you have your choice.

You are thinking, "Can I get it?"

If you really want it, the very fact that you want it almost certainly puts it within your reach. We should like to see an exception or hear of one. We don't believe there is any.

If you desire the end, let us hear from you. You shall know the means.

The International Cyclopedia is one for you. Latest, most comprehensive, briefest, cheapest. (These words lean on one another a little.)

ESTATE OF JAMES P. WILKINS.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Thursday, the 19th day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of James P. Wilkins, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Alfred Lewis, administrator with the will annexed upon the estate of said deceased, alleging among other things that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of administration have been incurred, and all bequeathed, except two, are ready to close said estate and to render his account which he prays may be allowed, the residue of said estate assigned to the parties entitled thereto, and that he may be discharged and his bond cancelled.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 20th day of August next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County, for three successive weeks, previous to said day of hearing.

Ed. Bunting, a former resident of this neighborhood, is spending a few days in Franklin.

Miss Clara Lamkin, with a gentleman friend, drove up from Ridgeway to attend the Lyceum at her father's.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Youngs of Somerset, with their daughter, visited at Rodman Taylor's Monday night.

The Lyceum was held at Ben. Lamkins on last Saturday evening. The attendance was good, though the busy season kept a good many at home. These pleasant gatherings are scarcely to be distinguished from the farmer's clubs, except that the discussions are not confined to agricultural topics, but embrace a wide range of subjects. Debating, however, is tabooed during the summer, and, after the literary exercises, the evenings are devoted to social enjoyment.

There was a statement last week, in the Clinton department of the HERALD, I think, that does injustice to the family of John Bunting. It was stated that he was buried in the Potter's field. Instead, he lies beside his parents in the family lot at Clinton. Of course no one supposes that the mistake was intentional, and it should be corrected.

BRITTON BUDGET.

The W. C. T. U. will hold a meeting at Mrs. L. E. Hause's, Aug. 9th, at 4 p. m., for the benefit of honorary members. Tea at 5:30. All are invited to attend.

Mr. Glassford, of Ann Arbor, is visiting in the village.

L. Bannister and family, of the Exelby House, started Tuesday morning for Lapeer, where they will make a visit of several weeks. They made the trip by wagon route.

The harvest dance last Friday night was a magnificent success, socially and financially. About sixty couples participated in the "light fantastic," and all report an enjoyable time, good music, etc. We understand that the capable manager, Mr. N. Spaulding, is making arrangements for another party, to take place at some time during the latter part of the month.

The firm of A. Smith & Bro., butchers of this village, has been dissolved, the junior member retiring. Business will be conducted as heretofore, with Ace as the guiding hand at the helm.

At a meeting of the Britton Cornet Band last Monday evening a vote of thanks was tendered the ladies of the village and vicinity, who rendered such efficient aid at the ice-cream social on Wednesday evening of last week. Their services on that occasion places the boys under a debt of gratitude which they will strive to repay by all means in their power.

FOR SALE.—The building known as the Beasley Block in the village of Britton, containing three store rooms, located on the best business site in the village. Also house and lot.

JOHN BEASLEY.

Elder Rupert's appointment here for this week was terminated Monday evening by an unexpected and urgent call elsewhere. He will, however, again commence services on the 6th inst., when a very interesting series of lectures will be started. Everybody is cordially invited to be present.

L. H. Salsbury of Adrian, is announced to speak in this village on Saturday evening, August 11th.

Campaign hats have blossomed out in great shape within the past few days, both of the two great political parties being represented in the cast of characters.

Word from Dundee, states that G. M. Packard and F. H. Parker started Tuesday for the far west, where they will labor in the interests of the Champion Machine Co. Both are well known in this vicinity, and it is needless to say that the best wishes of their friends go with them.

The daily sessions of the Institutes for this year will, as heretofore, be devoted exclusively to topics of special interest to teachers, presented by persons of extended practical experience as teachers, and who have made a special study of Institute work. The evening lectures will be of a popular character.

The Institute law allows teachers, whose schools are in session at the time appointed for the County Institute, held under the direction of the State Superintendent, to close their schools during the continuance of such Institute without forfeiting their wages for as many half days as they are in attendance at the Institute. This provision of law, and the fact that there will be no tuition or enrollment fee exacted, should insure the attendance of every teacher in the county who possesses the true professional spirit.

Full particulars in regard to board, etc., may be obtained upon application to the local committee.

A SAD AND SUDDEN DEATH.

Lansing, July 30.—Miss Esther Ford of Lansing, a young lady of 22 years, a sister of Congressman Ford, was yesterday afternoon and last evening pleasantly chatting on the veranda of the house, where she lived with her sister here, and the half dozen friends who were present, thought Miss Esther was unusually cheerful and agreeable. About 9 o'clock she left the party, bidding them good night. At 10:30 her sister went to their room, for the purpose of retiring for the night. She found Miss Esther lying on the bed, without having disrobed. Her face was buried in the pillow, and she was apparently asleep, but on trying to awake her, the terrified sister found that she was black in the face, and dead. A bottle of chloroform was found near the ill-fated girl's hand, and that told the story. The physicians, however, are of the opinion that she merely inhaled enough of the chloroform to cause unconsciousness, then, before effect could be felt, turned over and buried her face in the pillows. Death followed from suffocation. The coroner's inquest developed the fact that the chloroform was purchased on Saturday, to relieve toothache, and Miss Ford had complained of severe headache on Sunday. Physicians testified that the bottle would not hold sufficient chloroform to cause death. She had inhaled sufficient to cause drowsiness, and, dropping her head in the pillows, she was suffocated. A verdict of accidental death was rendered.

ONE BOTTLE CURED HIM.

A. H. Thompson, Rrockford, Ill., writes: "I have been troubled with Catarrh for years, nothing helped me until I tried Papillon Catarrh Cure. I followed directions, and with less than one bottle, I am cured." Papillon (extract of flax) Catarrh Cure will positively and permanently Cure Bronchial Catarrh, Acute or chronic Catarrh, also Rose Cold and Hay Fever. Large bottles $1.00

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, AUG. 2.

Why is it that nine-tenths of the pauper laborers who land on our shores come from the high tariff countries, like Germany, Austria and Italy?

There are four Independents in Congress: Hopkins of Virginia, Smith of Wisconsin, Weaver and Anderson of Iowa. They all voted for the Mills bill.

To make the people's blankets cheap
Would be exceeding risky.
Oh, never take the tax off wool!
Just as on to the K. O. P.,
And go in for free whisky!
—Boston Globe.

The coal barons can afford to pour considerable "fat" into the Republican campaign bucket this season. They can raise the price of coal 25 cents a ton next fall and thus wholly recoup themselves. In other words they can subscribe liberally now, for the people will foot the bill next winter.

The Central Labor Union of Indianapolis has passed a set of resolutions denouncing Gen. Harrison as an enemy of American labor, and they have been sent to every workingman's association in the United States. A declaration of this character from Gen. Harrison's own home will have a far reaching effect among wage workers.

President Cleveland has approved during his term of office, over 2,000 private pension bills, while during the whole twenty four years preceding the Presidents in office approved only 1,211. And yet the people have the cheek to charge that Cleveland is not a friend of the soldier. He has proven himself to be a true friend of the soldier by vetoing all fraudulent pension schemes, thus protecting the treasury from frauds and promoting the interests of every honest pensioner.

The Chicago platform, followed to its legitimate conclusion, would seriously cripple or destroy our entire farming interest. The oleomargarine tax is a part of the internal revenue system. The Republicans would wipe out the internal revenue system wholly rather than surrender one jot or title from the protective features of the tariff. The country is to be flooded again with cheap bogus butter and our dairy farmers threatened with ruin that a few millionaires may continue to make enormous fortunes out of the tariff. Cheap bogus butter must be added to the Republican bill of fare.

This is the way a New York Mugwump puts the issue: "The present tariff was avowedly a war measure, a temporary expedient for raising a great revenue. For twenty years Republican conventions have been promising and Republican Presidents have been recommending reduction. Now all this is repudiated, and protection, to the extent of making commerce impossible, is actually advocated, and if the surplus still grows, then take off the tax on whisky and tobacco rather than the tax on the necessaries of life. The Republican party has changed front on that question. The Mugwump has not, and the Republican party has blundered.

We are not among those who believe that it is the business of the federal government to lay its taxes for any other purpose than revenue, even though the purpose be a moral one, and if it had no need of revenue it would not be justified even in taxing whisky. But in raising its necessary revenue, it should raise it in such manner as to cause the least possible distress to the people, and, other things being equal, to produce the best moral results. The republican system not only proposes to continue unnecessary taxation for other purposes than necessary revenue, but also proposes to levy them in such a manner as produce the worst moral results, namely: to increase the curse of drunkenness. Mr. Cleveland's proposal has a directly contrary tendency and we should heartily agree with him if he carried the policy much further, and proposed a gradual extinction of all taxes except those on liquor and tobacco, and a gradual increase of those until they sufficed to pay all the federal expenses, a scheme which would be practicable financially, and very wholesome morally; while the republican scheme of cheap whisky and dear necessities is bad finance and worse morals.—Detroit News.

TWENTY PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

1. Why, under the benign influence of our war tariff, are one-third of our wage earners out of work, one-third of the time? [Mass. Labor Rep., 1887, p. 294.]

2. Why did wages in Great Britain go up between 1872 and 1878 nine per cent., while they went down in Massachusetts during the same period five per cent? [Mass. Labor reps., 1885, p. 146.]

3. Why did the cost of living here increase fourteen and one-half per cent. between 1860 and 1878, notwithstanding the tremendous improvements made in cheapening the cost of production. [Mass. Labor Rep., 1885, p. 467.]

4. Why are wages in free trade England from 50 to 100 per cent. higher than they are, in any protected country on the continent of Europe? [U. S. Consular Labor Rep., vol. 1, p. 178.]

5. Why does China, which has nurtured her people under a prohibitory tariff for several hundred years, pay her common laborers twenty cents a day and her skilled mechanics thirty cents a day? [U. S. Consular Labor Rep., Vol. 3, p. 343.]

6. How are we able to sell annually $700,000,000 of the products of our farms against the whole world if, as protectionists assert, "free competition in goods means equality in wages." [U.S. Report on Commerce and Nav. 1887, p. 18.]

7. Why did the wealth of this country increase in the low tariff period, 1850-1860, 126 per cent., and in the high tariff period, 1870-1880, only eighty per cent., even after reducing the census values of 1870 to a gold basis? [Tenth Census, vol. 7, pp. 3, 4, 13.]

8. Why did the value of farms in this country increase from 1850 to 1860, 103 per cent., and from 1870 to 1880 only 37 per cent.? [10 Census vol. Agriculture.]

9. Why was the average annual increase in Massachusetts Savings Bank deposits from 1850 to 1860 11 per cent., and from 1870 to 1880 only 1 per cent.? [Mass. Savings Bank Rep., 1885, p. 39.]

10. Why did American vessels control three-fourths of our foreign carrying trade in 1860, and less than one-sixth of it in 1886? [U. S. Rep. on Commerce and Nav., 1887, p. 89.]

11. Why did Congress, after living seven years under a low tariff, vote in 1867 to make it still lower, and why did all the Massachusetts members support this reduction? Was Henry Wilson, the shoemaker, an enemy of labor? [Cong. Globe, 34 ses., 24th Cong., pp. 971, 1062.]

12. Why did wages in Massachusetts advance from the high tariff decade ending with 1830 to the low tariff decade ending with 1860 fifty-two per cent., while they advanced from 1860 to 1883 only twenty eight per cent.? [Mass. Labor Rep., 1885, pp. 142, 466.]

13. Why should not the Protection-ist Tariff Commission of 1882, John L. Hays, Chairman, who recommended and a tariff reduction of 20 per cent. declared that such reduction was demanded "not by a mere indiscriminate popular clamor, but by the best conservative opinion of the country," be denounced under the new dispensation as arrant free traders? [Rep. of Tariff Com., 1882, p. 5.]

14. How can John D. Long, who declared four years ago that nobody advocated a prohibitory tariff and that "the free list was the honest revenue reformer's hope" any longer support the Republican party? [Massachusetts Republican Convention of April, 1884.]

15. Why, in spite of the fact that land and food are cheaper here, does it cost a family spending $1,000 a year $58 a year more to live in this country than in England on precisely the same scale? [Massachusetts Labor Report, 1885, p. 157.]

16. Why is not $58 a moderate estimate of the tax paid by every family in this country in order that Andrew Carnegie and others of his kind may grow immensely rich and lock out their employes at pleasure?

17. With Poles, Bohemians and Italians swarming into this country free of duty, how much are our wage earners benefitted by the protective tax on lumber, coal, clothing, salt and almost everything they have to buy? How much higher ought the tax to be in order to make us supremely happy?

18. In view of the public assertions of protectionists that the prime object of the tariff is to help the poor workingmen, what does James P. Foster, President of the Republican League, mean by saying in his confidential circular of May 25, that the manufacturers get "practically the sole benefit" from our tariff laws, and that it would be a good thing to "fry the fat" out of the Pennsylvania manufacturers "who are more highly protected than anybody else and who make large fortunes every year when times are prosperous"? Has Mr. Foster given the whole thing away?

19. How do Pennsylvania manufacturers accumulate their "fat," except by preying upon the general public forced by the tariff to buy their products at whatever price they choose to ask for them?

A SELF MADE MAN.

WELLINGTON R. BURT.

Wellington R. Burt is a self made man in all that the term implies. He was born in Genesee county, N. Y., on Aug. 26th, 1832, and early in life he gave evidences of mature thought and earnest self-reliance. When seven years old his parents moved to Jackson county, Mich., and began the work of clearing and making a new home. He was the eldest child of a large family, and when he was only 13 years of age his father died, leaving him to become general manager and provider. All through his youth and early manhood, the life of the farmer lad was one of industry, and he attended the district school in Jackson county, spent one year at the Albion academy, and one year at Michigan Central College at Spring Arbor.

When 22 years of age he left the farm and set out to see something of the world. In the course of his wanderings he visited Australia, Van Dieman's Land, New Zealand, the Chincha Islands and South America, being variously employed as a sailor, a miner and a contractor. After three years he returned to Michigan with large experience and a small purse, but he had seen the world and was satisfied to come home to stay.

Northern Michigan was then just fairly awakening to the importance of her resources as a lumbering country, and Burt, young, full of energy, started in to help. He found employment at lumbering in Genesee county, and began the work of making a farm in what was then a wilderness. The lumbering interests of Gratiot county were in their infancy, but were full of promise, and Burt soon began to think of taking a hand in their development.

In the winter of 1857 he went into a lumber camp with promise of $15 per month for his work. At the end of the first month he was made foreman of the camp with a promise of $20 per month. There he labored five months, where now stands the thriving village of St. Louis. But in those days the men who embarked in the lumbering business were not as "solid" as many of them are now, and, unfortunately for Burt's venture, the men for whom he was working failed. So he lost five months' wages, together with a small sum of money he had loaned them.

Once more he had taken a lesson in the school of experience. He then took the step that settled his future life. In the year 1858 he determined to go into the lumbering business for himself, and with that object in view he located at East Saginaw, and, succeeded in interesting a number of capitalists in the establishment of lumber and salt works, giving him an interest in and the management of a large mill and salt works which were erected at Melbourne, eight miles below that city. These were destroyed by fire 11 years ago, involving a loss of $300,000. The firm then purchased the New York works, mill and salt block at Zilwaukee, which they operated for a year or two, when he disposed of his interest in the concern to Hamilton, McClure & Co. He owns two mills at Grand Marais, Lake Superior; a planing mill and lumber yard at Buffalo; extensive tracts of pine land in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, and a cattle and sheep ranch in Texas.

His interests as a lumberman led him into the shipping business, and he is largely interested in vessel property. As a lumberman he also became a salt manufacturer, and when the development of that interest brought about the formation of the Michigan salt association in 1873, Mr. Burt was elected its president, which office he has filled with marked ability to the present time.

The only political office ever held by Mr. Burt was that of mayor of East Saginaw in 1867. In 1886 his friends in the Saginaw valley made an effort to secure for him the nomination for Governor on the Democratic ticket, but in the convention held at Grand Rapids fusion with the Greenback party resulted, and under that arrangement the Greenbackers were permitted to name the candidate and Mr. Burt's name was withdrawn. Mr. Burt has always been popular with the laboring masses. His early life and struggles as a workingman created a bond of sympathy with the toilers that has strengthened with the lapse of years. No citizen in the Saginaw valley is more easy of access to the sons of toil, and his purse is ever open to the call of worthy charity. He is public spirited and progressive. The elegant academy of music, costing $75,000, was largely the result of his enterprise and energy. He is one of the foremost men at present engaged in giving the Saginaw valley a new railway connecting with the outside world via the Toledo, Saginaw and Mackinac—the iron upon which is now being laid between East Saginaw and Bursand, connecting at the latter place with the Grand Trunk system and with the Toledo, Ann Arbor & North Michigan. He bears a stainless personal reputation, and is held in high esteem by all classes of people of the great Saginaw valley.

REPUBLICANS FOR CLEVELAND.

Last week's Adrian Times publishes a list of former Democrats who intend to vote for Harrison, and calls it a "land slide." If there are any political land slides this year they are in the other direction. The fact is there are changes both ways, but the odds are largely in favor of Cleveland. Can the Times name one Democrat in Lenawee County who voted for Cleveland in 1884 and who has avowed his intention of voting for Harrison this fall? If so, please give his name and residence. The Chicago Times a few days ago published an article 8 columns in length, containing interviews with prominent Republicans in all parts of the country, from which it appears that the Republicans who are disgusted with the Chicago high tariff, free whisky platform, most of whom declared they would vote for either Cleveland or Fisk.

Here are a few more straws. In Grand Rapids the Republican converts are so numerous that they are about to organize a Cleveland and Thurman club composed wholly of former Republicans.

Dr. G. S. Hazeltine, of the extensive wholesale drug firm of Hazeltine & Perkins, a life-long Republican, in an interview says: "I shall vote between the principles of the two parties. I take the Democracy as by far the best. This high protection as declared for by the Republicans is a fraud, and in the interest not of the workingmen of the people, as the Republicans claim, but of a few who reap all the benefit while everybody else suffers. The tariff fallacy was brought home to me by the removal of the tax on quinine. A few years ago quinine was sold at $2.50 an ounce and there was only one firm in the country manufacturing it, and that firm realized millions. The tax was removed and now there are four manufacturers in the country. The product has increased four to six fold. Ten times as many men are employed in the business. Quinine is sold at 30 to 40c. an ounce, and the manufacturers can compete with the world, notwithstanding they are handicapped by the retention of the tariff on the Peruvian bark and a tax of $.9 a gallon on alcohol. In placing quinine on the free list has resulted so beneficially to all concerned, except that one firm who held a monopoly before. I am of the opinion that placing wool and lumber and sugar on the free list will have good results. I believe that Cleveland will be elected by the business men and common sense of the country."

Now, that the 'sober second thought' is reached, the republicans who are disgusted with the platform and ticket are expressing themselves freely. In Chicago, where the convention was held, republicans prominent in business are not pleased with the nomination and platform.

H. P. Hutchinson said: "It's the poorest that could have been made. I shall vote the prohibition ticket. It's time for the republican party to die. I have voted the ticket all my life, but free rum, tobacco and Harrison are too much for me."

Theodore Schwartz said: "I am out of the republican party. Free whisky and tobacco and dear wool are more than I can stand. I shall vote for Cleveland."

Josiah Stiles, a leading packer, says: "I never cast a democratic vote in my life, but cant stand so much protection on clothing and free whisky. I am for Cleveland."

A young leading commission merchant said: "The free whiskey and protection planks in the platform will sink the candidates. Nobody could be elected on such issues."

A. M. Wright, the mugwump, said: "I want the soilers that are for free trade, but not for free whisky." Nobody can beat Cleveland."

W. T. Baker said: "There will be three mugwumps where there was one in 1884; the name is growing in popularity. Science, low tariff and Cleveland."

James H. Walker, dry goods jobber says: "I am a Mugwump herself and so is Robert Hill was a mugwump in '84, and still is one. His partner, John Bradbury, says: "I was a Massachusetts mugwump. Our views have been largely increased since the declaration of the Republican platform. Business men in the republican party will not be afraid of Cleveland as they were four years ago."

Similar expressions were heard everywhere. An intimate friend of Patterson, of the Tribune, said that Medill is disgusted and will leave Chicago until the campaign closes, and leave Manager Patterson to swallow the dose in the post office.

SLUGGED THE WATCHMAN.

Two Negroes Nearly Murder a Man to Obtain His Week's Wages.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 27.—Early in the morning two men entered S. P. Swartz & Co's. planing mill, and, with a slung shot improvised by placing a stone in a stocking, gave Joseph Van Hugten, the watchman, a fearful beating, and at the point of a revolver commanded him to deliver $10, his week's wages, and then left him with his hands and feet tied. Charles Johnson and William Henry Robertson were arrested on suspicion of having committed the crime. Johnson was heavily armed with a revolver and an ugly looking knife, and companions were found whom he had tried to induce to organize a robber's gang, with a bloody oath and other tragical features. Robertson, when arrested confessed to the entire transaction and declared that Johnson led him into it. Johnson is about thirty-five years old.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 29.—The day at Reed's Lake yesterday was nearly perfect for the purposes of the Northwestern Amateur Rowing regatta, The Delawares, of Chicago, won the senior double sculls in 12:49¾. In the senior pairs the Modocs were winners in 14:08¼. The other wins were: Junior singles, Corbett, of the Chicago Fairoaks, in 14:12½. Senior fours, Mohawk Athletics in 13:29¾. Last night the prizes, handsome gold medals, were presented to the winning oarsmen by President Wilson of the Owaghtanong club, and the regatta was over.

The Michigan Abou Ben Ahdem.

DETROIT, July 30.—Advices received from Senator Palmer at Washington make it absolutely certain that he will not be a candidate for re-election by the legislature this winter. The reason he alleges publicly for his declination to run is that he wants his time to do good to his fellow men. It is hinted, however, that he may contest with Gen. Alger for a higher place. James McMillan, on being informed of Senator Palmer's decision, promptly announced himself a candidate.

Sensational Arrest at Toledo, Ohio.

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 30.—Attorney H. P. McKnight, of this city, was defending a prisoner in police court charged with forgery, when Detective Nichler called him from the court room and arrested him on the charge of forging a promissory note and mortgage for $450, purported to be given by Ferdinand and Theresa Wise, to Rosena McKnight, the attorney's wife. The attorney is well known here, and the affair has created a sensation. The state claims to have a sure case against McKnight, who is now in jail in default of $500 bail.

Horribly Mangled by a Harvester.

GREEN BAY, Wis., July 28.—In the town of Montpelier a farmer, George Koney, was driving a team of horses attached to a harvesting machine, when the animals became frightened and started on a run over a piece of rough ground. Koney was thrown in front of the sickle bar and becoming caught on the guards he was dragged twenty rods. The machine passed over a dead furrow and he was released. His right arm and ear were cut off and the right side of his leg and body lacerated in a frightful manner. He is not expected to live.

Will Shut Out Negro Rule.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 28.—The Democrats of Crittenden county, Arkansas, nominated a straight ticket for county officers. Heretofore an arrangement has been effected by which the offices were divided between the Democrats and Republicans, but in consequence of the recent troubles arising from the misconduct of drunken negro officials, the whites have resolved to take charge of the local government. Hence the negroes are given no representation on the ticket.

Posted Bills on a Church.

VINCENNES, Ind., July 28.—The bill-posters of a circus posted a German church several miles east of here with highly colored posters, mistaking the edifice for a school house, which they had permission to decorate. A committee was appointed to prosecute the alleged desecrators, but the special agent who went out there to investigate the case compromised the matter for $15 dollars and a handful of complimentary tickets, which was $5 more than the committee asked.

The Pope Under the Weather.

ROME, July 28.—The pope is suffering from the effects of disordered liver. He is rapidly losing strength, and experiences severe pains. He has been ordered by his physicians to partake copiously of mineral waters before breakfast. Despite his ailment he continues to perform his usual work and gives audience to visitors.

An Undertakers' Black-List.

JERSEY CITY, July 28.—The undertakers of this county have followed the example of the physicians and have established a black list. They will not bury the dead of this delinquent and the delinquent has settled the bill which he has not paid nor made any effort to pay.

A River Steamer Burned.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 30.—The steamboat Edward Gray, belonging to the Planters and Plantation company, was burned to the water's edge while moored at the wharf at the foot of First street. The loss was valued at $40,000 and was insured.

THEIR RULING PASSION.

A True Story of the Influence of the Boston Baked Bean.

Quite a number of years ago a young German came to Boston, settled down here among the Yankees. He prospered, set up in business for himself, prospered some more, and after a time went back to Germany and brought over, from his native village, a young wife.

The young people, living and trading among the natives, became pretty thoroughly Americanized, but did not lose their romantic affection for their native land. Children were born to them; they still prospered in business, and after 15 years the husband retired from trade. His heart still turning to Germany, he determined to take his family there, and place the children in school, leaving it to the future to determine whether he should remain the rest of his life in Germany, or return to Boston after the education of his six children had been well advanced.

The first day after the family had arrived at the parents' old home was Sunday, and the children with their father and mother, were grouped around their grandparents' table for breakfast. Instead of being served with the usual plates of Boston baked beans, the eldest of the children was asked by the grandfather what he would like to have for breakfast.

"Some beans, if you please," said the boy in his best German.

The grandfather showed some surprise and said, a little crustily, that he was sorry that there were no beans. Then asked her what she would like for her breakfast.

"I'd like some beans, please, grossvater," said the girl, as a matter, of course.

The grandfather appeared somewhat vexed, but asked the third child what he would have.

"Beans, please," said he.

The old gentleman here grew decidedly angry. But he asked all the rest of the children in turn down to the youngest tot, and all declared that they wanted some beans. And when they found that they could have none the smallest children overcome all at once by homesickness, began to cry, and the older ones looked very distressed and unhappy. Their grandparents rebuked the father and mother for not rearing their children with better manners. The parents protested that it was perfectly natural, and began to feel decidedly homesick themselves.

"It is no use," said the father to the mother, after the meal was over and they had retired to their chamber. "We have made a mistake, and neither we nor the children can be contented here. It isn't that we can't do without baked beans on Sunday morning exactly, but that we have become such thorough Yankees that we shall be homesick here."

"I think you are right," said the wife, "and now that we have made up our minds to that, ha'n't we better go back to Boston and educate our children there?"

"I think we had," said the husband.

After a short stay, which nobody enjoyed, they packed up their baggage and returned to Boston. And all he[illegible] were no baked beans on Sunday morning.

MAIL ROBBERIES IN THE WEST.

The Most Notable Robbery of Recent Years Not Yet Cleared Up.

"There has been a greater number of mail robberies in the West in the last 12 months than in any other equal period in the history of the mail service," said a Government inspector. "The Government maintains a special service, in which there are about 75 men employed to ferret out all thefts and robberies in the mail service. All lost packages or letters are reported to the chiefs of the several divisions of the inspection service, and they begin their search for the lost matter at the place it entered the mails. The unusual number of losses of the last year is due to the fact that the Western States, where the star route is numerous, is infested with gangs of amateur robbers. Losses of packages and letters are much less freqent in the East, because they are limited there to the theft committed by the employes in the mail service. But in the West there is scarcely a day that some carrier on the star route is not held up—that is, the mail pouch is rifled and the carrier reports that he was overpowered. Frequently, no doubt, the rifling is done by the carriers, but it is difficult for an inspector to make cases on them. About two thirds of the mail lost in the West is lost through robberies on the star routes, and fewer than one-fourth of the robbers are captured. It is not for the pursuit of those cases, but to prevent the employes of the Railway Mail Service and those in Post Offices escaping with a registered letter now and then, that the inspectors are most valuable. A mail clerk cannot prey on the mails long without being trapped. The theft of mail matter is much more difficult than the people generally think, owing to its being handled very systematically. The most notable robbery of recent years was that of a registered pouch dispatched from the New York office for St. Louis about a year ago. Nothing has ever been heard of either the pouch or its contents, but the inspection department is still at work on the case, and it is likely to be solved any day. The bag contained about $20,000 belonging to St. Louis parties. It is their loss if the money is not found. It is thought the pouch disappeared from the mail car between Pittsburg and Indianapolis."

A Clock With a History.

There is a clock at present on exhibition at the California State Mining Bureau which is very curious in construction, and, though over 200 years old, keeps excellent time. It is inclosed in a long glass case on a three-foot stand. The clock is but 12 inches long and about 8 inches wide. It is made of Japanese brass and has two side doors, which are kept open in order to allow visitors to see its unique construction. Instead of the hands moving they remain at a standstill, while the dial continually goes round, and every minute a small weight moves up a peg.

The face is covered with Japanese characters. The clock is wound up daily by putting two small weights which are attached to a cord and move a larger and heavier weight so as to torch the works. This clock has a history. It was the property of the Mikado's household for over one hundred and fifty years. An English trader got possession of it, and brought it to San Francisco where it has been in the possession of various parties at different times.

When a barber cuts a slice off your neck you feel like getting up and lathering him.

The great popularity of Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic is due to its efficiency, agreeableness and pleasant action. It promptly and thoroughly cures colds, fevers, dyspepsia, costiveness, bad breath, piles, pimples, low spirits, sick and nervous headache, ague, malaria, scrofula, rheumatism, salt rheum and all stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Fifty cents of Dr. Geo. Ferguson. It cleanses and tones up the clogged and feverish system. Acceptable to the most delicate stomach. Harmless, prompt and thorough in its action.

"Fine day," said the Judge as the seventy-fifth man went through the mill for "$5 and costs."

Dyspepsia distresses the stomach which many people feel after eating, may be due to improper mastication of the food; but, in most cases, it indicates a weakness of the digestive organs, the best remedy for which is one of Ayer's Pills, to be taken after dinner.

Happiness is only relative, and some people find that it is a very distant relative indeed.

Died of Heart Disease.
Many eminent men among them Mr. Vanderbilt, Mr. Hendricks, Gen. McClellan and Josh Billings died of heart disease last year. Authorities state that one person in four has it, though few know it. The symptoms are shortness of breath, pain or tenderness in side, palpitation, choked or smothered feeling in the chest, tendency to faint, swelling of feet, ankles, etc. If these are any of your symptoms do not fail to try Dr. Miles' New Cure for the Heart. DR. FRANKLIN'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.
The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.
It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.
The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.
WHAT IT CURES.
All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.
It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.
This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.
Prices 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

CO. C. IN CAMP.

THE ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT OF THE FIRST REGIMENT, MICH. STATE TROOPS AT MACKINAC ISLAND.

How the Boys Enjoyed Life at Camp Luce—The Daily Routine, Observed—Scenes and Incidents of Camp Life.

Co. C., with Capt. Wood in command, and with 56 men in the ranks besides camp followers, left Tecumseh at eleven o'clock A. M., on Tuesday, July 17th, bound for their annual encampment on Mackinac Island. They took the Jackson train north, and nothing of special interest occurred until they arrived at that city. Here they were marched to the armory of the Jackson Light Guards and given orders to report at four P. M. sharp. During the three hours intervening, the boys visited the principal points of interest in the Central City. At four o'clock they gathered at the Armory again and were met by an invitation from Capt. Wood to indulge in a good supper which of course was thankfully accepted. After supper the boys marched to the Central Depot where they were met by Co. H. of Jackson, Co. B. of Adrian and Co. A. of Ann Arbor, and at seven o'clock the train steamed out for the North. At Mason Co. F. came on board and at Lansing they were reinforced by Co. E. The journey from that point was without incident, until their arrival at Mackinaw City at eight o'clock on Wednesday morning. Here they waited about two hours for the ferry transfer Algomah, upon which they crossed the straits to the Island, where they arrived about noon, and took up their line of march at once to Camp Luce.

CAPT. FRED'K B. WOOD.

After being mustered in, each man commenced to settle himself in his new quarters. This task was soon completed and then dinner was announced which was partaken with a decided relish. After dinner the boys were allowed the freedom of the camp until tattoo sounded. During this intermission of a few hours every man made the most of his time, to settle his quarters and take in some of the many scenes of interest about the Island. The afternoon was spent very pleasantly and to the best advantage. Contrary to expectation, a guard mount was held on Wednesday evening and the camp was safely guarded against all intruders.

On Thursday morning, July 18th, camp life began in dead earnest. We give the daily program of exercises, which varied but little each day. At 4:30 A. M. every man was aroused from his slumbers by the sound of the cannon. The tents were looped up and quarters were carefully policed. At 5:30 the men were put through a series of setting up exercises which kept them from reposing until the proper time. At six o'clock the breakfast call was sounded which the men responded to with great regularity. At seven o'clock sick call was sounded, when those who were ill—as well as those who wanted to be—might be seen ambling off to interview the surgeon to put in their plea for a respite from duty. By the way, it might be stated right here, before we forget it, that Dr. C. M. Woodward, who was the Regimental surgeon, kept the boys in perfect health, only one member of the first regiment being reported unfit for duty. The Major is a veteran at his business and is thoroughly up to the tricks and contrivances sometimes adopted by the boys to escape active duty, and when a man is actually sick the Doctor knows how to bring him around all right in good season. At eight o'clock guard mount was indulged in which was followed by a sample guard by the regulars. At 9:15 battalion drill took place, which generally lasted about two hours. Dinner was called at 11:30 and after dinner two hours for rest and recreation until 2:30, when the second battalion drill was called which consumed the remainder of the afternoon. Supper was called at 5:30. At 6:30 came dress parade which was considered the swell event of the day, and lasted until darkness called a halt. At 9:30 came roll call. The tattoo was then sounded and all turned in for the night. The above program was substantially the same throughout the week except on Sunday and Monday. On these days came the general inspection, the governor's review and the sham battle. At the battalion drills, Co. C. received her full share of special appointments. Prof. Skinner acted as regimental bugler, D. T. Hall as hospital steward and Thos. R. Kyle was color sergeant for the regiment.

At the close of the drill office on Monday, the men received orders to pack up and break camp. This work was accomplished in short order. At 4:30 all bade farewell to Camp Luce and marched to the wharf where after a delay of some two hours they boarded the Algomah and were transferred to Mackinaw City. The home bound trip was rather tedious, but the latter half through the southern part of the state was made by day light and the train passed through some thriving cities and beautiful farming sections. The Co. alighted from the Jackson train at our depot at 6:30 P. M. on Tuesday, July 23, having been gone from home just one week and looking more like old vets than young volunteers.

MACKINAC ISLAND.

In this connection a brief discription of the historic isle may be of interest to our readers. A more beautiful location for the annual encampment could not have been selected within the confines of Michigan. The island is situated directly in the straits that form the connecting link between Lake Michigan and Lake Huron. It is a geological curiosity. It was first visited by a white man in 1634. It contains 2221 acres of land of which 911 are included in the National Park. It is almost wholly a high table land, affording magnificent views and grand landscapes. The most noted natural curiosities are these:

BLOCK HOUSE BUILT IN 1780.

1. The Sugar Loaf, a huge rock rising abruptly from the level ground surrounding about 125 feet in height.
2. Robinson's Folly, a bluff at the east end of the island that rises 293 ft. above the water.
3. Lover's Leap, another bluff on the South shore, 75 feet high.
4. Devil's Kitchen, a large rock on the South side, 125 feet high.
5. Leading Rock, on the East shore, 65 feet in height.
6. Chimney Rock, on the South shore, 110 feet high.

Camp Luce, so-called in honor of Gov. Luce, was situated near the North West corner of the Island. The first regiment encamped on the hill, the flat near the beach. To the right of the camp on a high hill was perched Fort Mackinac. This fort has a decidedly ancient appearance as most of the buildings are over one hundred years old, having been constructed in 1780. North of these may be seen Fort Holmes, noted in the war of 1812. The entrenchments used then may be seen now. Three of the old block houses, once used for refuge, are still standing. Two companies of U. S. Infantry are stationed permanently at the fort. The old trading post of the American Fur Company is now used as a hotel. Plank's Grand Hotel which was built last year is located on the South side and is the largest hotel in the state. During the two or three hours each day when the boys were off duty they visited the natural curiosities about the Island, took in the different scenes of interest and gathered relics to bring home with them as souvenirs of their week in camp. Their spare time for sight seeing was none too much however.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Among the outsiders who were present at Camp from Tecumseh were John F. Hicks and James A. Boyd. From them we gather a few facts that deserve mention. That the officers and men of the company should be pleased with the trip was to be expected of course, but from "John and Jim" we got an insight into camp life as viewed through a citizen's spectacles. Their evidence can be looked upon as that of disinterested witnesses. They were highly pleased with their camp life experience and did not hesitate to say so in plain English.

The first regiment double-time guard mount was one of the finest displays ever witnessed in camp

ON OF THE TENTS.

The U. S. Fort was very neatly kept. The officers in command were exceeding courteous to all visitors, and free to show them all the points of interest about the fort.

The boys of Co. C. were exceedingly well behaved during their entire stay. There was no drunkenness or rowdyism whatever among the men. In fact there was but little time for spreeing even had the men been so disposed. A lengthy battalion drill twice a day with dress parade after supper, kept the men worked right up to the mark. They only had a brief respite off duty each day.

Col. Bowen is a model regimental commander. He is a strict disciplinarian, rigid in exacting obedience to orders and yet personally he is very kind and obliging to the officers and men under his command.

Chas. F. Patterson, as a quartermaster, hit the mark exactly. He takes to the difficult work of that position as easily as he manages a company of guests in the Litley House dining room. Capt. Wood considers him abundantly qualified to act as quartermaster for the regiment.

Lieut. Em. Doke held up his end of the lever handsomely as 1st Lieut. Whenever the company was left in his care he handled it very finely. He had the first detail as senior officer of the guard.

Lieut. Chas. Heck, although a 2d Lieut. in rank was honored the last day by a detail as senior officer of the guard, a position that is regularly filled, in so large a post, by a 1st Lieut.

There were several lady visitors in camp all of whom were the recipients of marked attention. Col. E. B. Griffith was present during the entire camp and made himself popular with the boys.

Saturday evening after dress parade a lot of singers formed an impromptu glee club and gave the Governor a serenade. The regimental color sergeant, Thos. R. Kyle, joined the procession, armed with a rake. The Governor made a neat little speech complimenting the boys and referred to the rake as one of the weapons of war which he himself knew something about.

Co. C. had a brass quartette, consisting of Prof. Skinner, Charley Skinner, Dr. Woodward and A. C. Preston; which discoursed merry music for the boys on several occasions.

Capt. Wood stands very high among the regimental officers and he is a favorite at head quarters. His promotion is certain to come within a reasonable time. He has made a record among the most efficient and soldierly company officers in the entire regiment and this reputation is certain to bring its merited reward in due time. Not only is Capt. Wood popular with his superiors but he is equally so with the men under his command. The boys all swear by Capt. Wood.

A few words with the Captain revealed the fact that he is equally proud of his men, and he modestly attributes all of his own military success to them. "I can make a first class company" said he, "because I have got first class material to do it with." And it is certainly true that both company and captain are worthy of each other.

Capt. Wood and the boys of our company all speak in flattering terms of Co. B. the Adrian company and her officers. These two companies, B. and C. formed the 2d division in regimental drill, which was the largest in numbers and never behind in its movements.

In addition to the members of Co. C. who belong to the HERALD force, we are indebted to Will Hastings for valuable assistance in preparing this report. Also to John F. Hicks and Jas. A. Boyd for their version of camp life as seen from a citizen's standpoint. The camp of 1888 at Mackinac Island will long be remembered by Co. C. as a red letter day in the company's annals.

Tecumseh people and all others who visit Devil's Lake will please remember that they will find the steamer G. A. R. at Allen's dock, ready to take them to all points on the lake with neatness and despatch. Capt. Deuel is always on board.

THE DOG AND THE SHADOW

A DOG, crossing a bridge over a stream with a piece of flesh in his mouth, saw his own shadow in the water, and took it for that of another Dog, with a piece of meat double his own in size. He therefore let go his own, and fiercely attacked the other Dog, to get his larger piece from him. He thus lost both. —Æsop's Fables.

IT ALWAYS PAYS to hold on to a good thing. People who have tried Santa Claus Soap hold on to it because it is good. Some may think that because there are other Soaps that give more in bulk for the money, that they are cheaper; but such bulk is made up with rosin. When quality is sacrificed for quantity, such soap is not cheap at any price. Santa Claus Soap is the best, and is sold by all grocers. It is made only by

Remember the band reunion on the 16th of August.

Mrs. M. A. Freeman would respectfully call upon all persons indebted to her to call and settle without delay.

Miss Frane Baker, the Morenci girl who delivers such nice lectures on China, although she has never been within 10,000 miles of it, is going to write Bay View letters for some Chicago papers this summer. She is going to Bay View, too, although she could write 'em just as well at Chicago.—Detroit News.

The band boys have received an invitation from the Tecumseh band to attend a band reunion to be held in Tecumseh, August 16th. The boys all have a longing desire to accept the invitation, but unless they succeed in getting their uniforms, in time, they will be obliged to stay at home.—Brooklyn Exponent.

The August meeting of the Lenawee county Horticultural society will meet at the residence of Peter Coller, at 10 A. M., August 8. Mr. Coller will have a paper on "The NEW in pear and plum culture." There will also be a question box. The greater portion of the afternoon will be devoted to exercises given by the children. The usual picnic dinner will be served. All are invited.

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR.

The Adrian Press is responsible for the following comments, which will be heartily seconded by every man who has been honored by Col. Eldridge's friendship and acquaintance in years past:

Among the pensions increased last week was that to Hon. N. B. Eldredge of this city. Certainly, the honorable recognition of the government, is no more worthily bestowed than upon the old 11th infantry. If equally good service to his country in a civil office were to have further recognition than the approval of a satisfied constituency and be rewarded by the government, he would be a double pensioner. Few men can look back over a life of more than three score and ten years and have better reason to be congratulated over his achievements, as civilian and as soldier, and in private or in public life, and in these years of his old age, life's decline has the halo of a sunset, made golden by the esteem and respect of a wide circle of friends, for his genial good nature and his unswerving integrity and fidelity to principle. Long may he continue in health to enjoy the honors he has won not only for himself but for those he has so ably and so faithfully represented.

The special train on the Mackinaw last Sunday carried about five car loads of people with two coaches and a smoker.

Marshall Kyle took nearly $1800 in taxes last Friday, the heaviest day's collections he ever made since he held that office.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam A. James and Mr. and Mrs. Alf. W. James, of Detroit, all spent last Sunday at the old home in Tecumseh.

Chas. Henry, of York, has just threshed out 750 bushels of wheat from 27 acres. We call this a pretty good starter.

The Tecumseh base ball club has finally got down to work. We shall expect some good playing from the boys hereafter.

The premium list for the next State Fair is at hand which will be held at Jackson, Sept. 10th to 14th inclusive. This fall's exhibition will be the fortieth annual fair.

We have received a letter about the Bunting matter signed "Methusalum." We cannot deviate from our accustomed rule of declining all anonymous communications.

Alva Coddington is selling A. W. Mill's new book—Protection or Free Trade. He has taken the County of Lenawee to work in. He ought to get a big list in this territory.

Our old friend, L. F. Wheeler is in luck. On the 26th a bouncing boy baby arrived at his house, weight 9 pounds, 14 ounces. Mother and child are both doing nicely and Laverne is wearing his high heeled boots.

D. D. Sinclair, of Adrian, was in town Monday on business connected with the officer's reunion which is to occur, Aug. 22d, at Stoney Grove Hotel, Devil's Lake. He is bound to make the Reunion a big success this year.

The following delegates were appointed at the caucus last Saturday night to attend the Republican county convention at Adrian. Dr. Geo. Howell, Dr. L. Barnes, A. W. Mills, J. D. Shull, M. E. Conklin, Lester Clemens.

Miss Jennie Root left home last week for a trip to the Lake Superior region. She takes the steamer Oscar Townsend to Milwaukee, thence to Escanaba and thence to Marquette by rail. She expects to be gone from home about six weeks.

The annual picnic of the Commercial Telegraph Co. will be held at Putnam's Grove, Sand Lake, Thursday, Aug. 9, 1888. All operators on the C. T. or other lines, are cordially invited to attend. By order of the board of directors. L. G. NORTH, Sec.

The Center, which is the state Prohibition organ, has been sold to Wm. W. Wise. The paper will be removed to Lansing at an early day and will be vigorously pushed during the campaign. Wise is an old hand at the business and will make a red hot paper.

We understand that Prof. F. R. Hathaway, of Raisin Valley Seminary, is a candidate for County School Examiner. The Professor is well fitted for that position and if chosen we believe he would fill the place with credit to himself and satisfaction to the public. We hope he will be chosen.

Dr. Geo. Ferguson, of this place, has handed us the following. The young lady was a cousin of his. While Miss Florence Seymour, of Independence, Texas, was riding on horseback, the horse became frightened and running threw her against a barbed wire fence, cutting and lacerating her in a terrible manner. Death soon followed the fearful accident. The mother was expected at the Doctor's in about two weeks to spend a couple of months.

C. J. Moore has our thanks for a late copy of the Winthrop News.

The weather prophets are all agreed that [illegible] us.

It is quite likely that last Monday will be recorded as one of the three hottest days.

Tecumseh was represented by a good crowd at the Devil's Lake camp meeting last Sunday.

J. H. Smith returned from Battle Creek last Tuesday with his attack of rheumatism broken.

The Episcopal social will be held at the residence of S. W. Temple next Thursday afternoon.

Wells' 10c dances at Sand Lake prove to be a drawing card. The next one will take place Aug. 4.

The shooting gallery man is giving prizes for the best shot, and our Eddie is walking off with the most of them.

Ladies if you want a white hat at REDUCED price, call at Mrs. N. R. Brown's millinery rooms. She also makes a specialty of stamping.

Henry Mensing was in town Tuesday. He is at Bowling Green most of the time this summer, engaged in the erection of several buildings there.

The Knights Templar encampment will begin on Monday next, Aug. 6th, at Coe & Vance's landing, Devils Lake and continue one week. The Tecumseh City Band will attend.

Sand Lake rises and falls for a period of seven years alternately. The lake is very low now and an island made its appearance last week that has not been seen for thirty years.

The Chicago Daily News has an agent in Tecumseh who will deliver the paper at your door for 6 cents per week. Call on or address J. Paul Brown, at the Art Gallery.

Three minute race, - - Blanket.
Three year old, - - "
Free for all, - - "
Running race, Saddle and Bridle.

Entries will close at 12 o'clock on day of the races. No entrance fee for horses. Admission 25c. Ladies free. A good number of horses will be present and a large attendance is expected.

The dog days, which have commenced, were so named by the ancients, because the sun, being in the same part of the heavens with the dog star Sirius, obscured it from view. The time in which the star is lost to sight was reckoned as forty days. Sirius was called the dog star from its being utilized by the Egyptians in early times as a celestial sentinel or watchdog which, by its place in the sky, gave warning of the rise and fall of the floods of the Nile.

Our old friend Charley Totten sends us a copy of the Belding Star, from which we take this item.

C. E. Totten, living near Smyrna, is the possessor of a valuable relic. It is a Harrison badge of 1840. On one side are the words, "W. H. Harrison, born Feb. 9, 1773," and a picture of the President. On the reverse side is a picture of a log cabin and the inevitable cider barrel also the words "The people's choice in the year 1840." The badge has been in the possession of Mr. Totten over forty years, and as a relic he prizes it very highly.

About five weeks ago a physician brought a patient to Dr. Woodward for the removal of an epithelial cancer situated on the upper lip and quite extensive in its development. Dr. Woodward decided that the best mode of removal was by electricity. In the presence of two other physicians he performed the operation successfully, and without drawing a drop of blood. The operation occupied only fifteen minutes. In ten days the wound was entirely healed and the cure perfect. The patient is now perfectly well.

The attendance at the Devils Lake camp meeting last Sunday was away up in the thousands. All the hotels about the lake were filled to overflowing Saturday night and all day Sunday. The crowd at Beardsell's in the afternoon must have numbered over 6000. It was fully as large as some of the big picnics held there in years past. Special trains ran to the lake on both branches of the Mackinaw. A permanent camp meeting association was organized and arrangements made to hold a July meeting regularly each season.

N. B. Bradley and Mr. Crane of Bay City are in town.

S. P. Hosmer, of Tecumseh, runs a card in the Addison Courier.

O. P. Bills & Co. will occupy their new quarters the last of the week.

Several of Tecumseh's sporting men attended the races in Detroit last week.

Tecumseh's colored population went to Jackson yesterday to celebrate emancipation day.

Jud. DePuy, of Detroit, is circulating around among his old friends three or four days this week.

Mrs. Crowell and daughters, left this morning to spend the Sabbath with friends in Detroit.

Miss Jennie McClure has been visiting friends at Brooklyn and Cambridge during the past week.

Mrs. L. G. North, Mrs. E. S. Tate, Mrs. L. B. Stevens, and Mrs. B. F. Reynolds visited Clinton friends yesterday.

The Democrats of Palmyra held a rousing meeting last Saturday evening which was addressed by Stearns and Salsbury.

About 12 o'clock to-day young Willie Love was playing around a hay knife and accidentally cut off three fingers of his left hand.

E. J. Smith, former editor of the Adrian Record, is spending a few days at Chautauqua for the benefit of his health and we are glad to learn that he is on the mend.

Favorable reports continue to come in from the bands invited to attend the reunion. Letters have been received from over 20 signifying their intention to attend.

Miss Elizabeth Whitney, an old resident of this village died at the home of Mrs. Mary Pennock last Monday night, aged 62 years. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon.

Giles Cleveland, who has been seriously ill for several weeks, passed over to the better land on Tuesday. The funeral was held at his residence this forenoon and was largely attended.

As the time for the band reunion is drawing near, and the attendance promises to be large, the committee on refreshments should hold a meeting at an early day, as a thorough canvas should be made at once.

Will Spayde has resigned his position as secretary of the base ball club. His business duties conflict with the ball business to such an extent that he has concluded to resign the latter. The club will regret his resignation.

"Necessity's Demands," subject of sermon for next Sunday morning, Aug. 5th, at 10:30 at the Universalist church. Text, Matthew 12.1-6. In the evening at 7:30 a sermon on "The Consecration of Death." Text, Hebrews, 2:15 and 10:20.

The Raisin Valley Reunion association will be held at the Seminary on Friday, Aug. 10th, in the forenoon. In the evening the Alumni society will hold their meeting which was postponed from June 22. These are two distinct organizations but both connected with the Seminary school.

Hon. P. Darden, grandmasier of the National Grange died at his home in Jefferson Co., Miss. last week. The delegates from Lenawee Co., who attended the session of the National Grange held at Lansing last winter got acquainted with him and were very strongly impressed with his intellectual ability and worth. His death will be a serious loss to the grange.

Two itinerate lecturers held forth on the corner last evening, dispensing Prohibition doctrine in favor of Fisk & Brooks. Campaign songs were sandwiched in between chunks of third party truths in an entertaining manner, although it was nip and tuck between them and the city band which was practicing in their room, and it was difficult for the audience to tell whether they were listening to a red hot prohibition song or to "Harrison's March." The gentlemen were sent from Chicago to stump the state.

We clip the following notice from the Tuscarawas, Ohio, Chronicle.

Mrs. M. H. Taylor, of Tecumseh, Mich., has been in town the past week giving instructions in brush painting on plush, velvet, etc. Mrs. Taylor has been teaching in the principle towns of Tuscarawas county. She had a class of 25 in Canal Dover, 18 in Dennison, 15 in Uhrichsville, 12 in Port Wasington, 12 in this place, also, had classes in New Philadelphia and Newcomerstown. The work needs no comment, as it speaks for itself. Mrs. Taylor is an excellent teacher and her pupils are all delighted with the work.

Macon Grange met in regular session July 27th, with a fair attendance. For various reasons it was thought best to carry the program over until the next meeting, which will take place Friday, Aug. 10, at 2 o'clock P. M. Program the same as announced for July 27th with the following additions:

Reading—Mrs. W. R. Wilson.
Dec. M. J. Martin.
Subject for Discussion—Why is it that so large a percentage of the inmates of our asylums are farmer's wives. Response by Drs. Geo. Howell, R. H. Nelson and D. W. Loree.

MATRIMONIAL.

The Whitney residence on Main st. was the scene of a quiet wedding yesterday afternoon at 1:30 when Miss Mytrene Whitney was united in holy wedlock to Mr. H. H. Snell, of Tecumseh, Rev. Mr. Phelps, of Tecumseh, officiating. With the exception of the families of the officiating pastor and Rev. G. S. Bradley, only the immediate relatives of the contending parties were present. The twain departed on the afternoon train for an extended trip through the state, after which they will return to Hudson and commence housekeeping in the old homestead. It is a sweet privilege, not given to all brides, that Mrs. Snell will enjoy in continuing to reside amidst the scenes and associations of girlhood, of school days, of development into bright and lovely womanhood. Mr. Snell's business arrangements make this plan possible and feasible, and it will gratify the young lady's friends to know they are not to lose her. Mr. Snell is an enterprising and successful young business man, and all will be happy to number him among the citizens of our village.

We clip the above from the Hudson Gazette of the 27th. The groom has resided in Tecumseh all his life, is a graduate of our High School and began his business career in this village. The bride filled a position as teacher in our high School for two years with excellent acceptance. In behalf of their numerous friends here in Tecumseh the HERALD extends its heartfelt congratulations and its sincerest wish for the connubial happiness and business success which their merits deserve.

THE BAND REUNION.

The arrangements for the band reunion to be held here Aug. 16, are being perfected and the indications are that Tecumseh will listen to the music of about 20 bands on that date. The citizens are responding liberally to the call for aid and no trouble is anticipated from that quarter. The following committees have been appointed to act. The refreshment committee will, beside soliciting for eatables, have charge of the tables, and may appoint more help for that purpose.

President of Day—Capt. Fred B. Wood.
Chief Marshall—Capt Chas. Bidwell.
Aids—Geo. Burroughs, F. L. Silvers.
Finance Committee—S. W. Anderson, S. P. Hosmer and Ben J. Garlinghouse.
Decorating Committee—S. W. Bordine, W. C. Jordan, J. J. Orr, E. N. Satterthwaite and M. E. Conklin.
Transportation Committee—N. S. Satterthwaite, A. E. Kennedy.
Refreshment Committee—South of Chicago street and west of Evans street, Mrs. N. M. Sutton and Miss Etta Conklin; North of Chicago street and west of Evans street, Mrs. M. E. Corey and Mrs. A. P. Coddington; South of Chicago street and east of Evans street, Mrs. C. A. Wright and Mrs. F. Davidson; North of Chicago street and east of Evans street, Mrs. J. D. Shull and Mrs. F. C. Rector.

A CARD.

ED. HERALD.—"The Evening News" wishes to state a few plain facts in regard to its recent change of agents. There seems to be some misunderstanding and we should like through your paper to close it up.

The money paid our special agent, Mr. H. by our present agent, for the purpose of paying the boys for their losses in first taking up our paper, it being at that time in debt to its subscribers, he pledged himself to pay over before witnesses, but avarice seems to have got the better of his principles; for, after receiving this money, he refused a settlement till we interfered and did the best we could then under the circumstances.

In order to shield himself, Mr. H. told deliberate falsehoods, respecting our receiving letters, regarding our former agent here. We did receive one letter, but from an entirely different source than from what he represented. We were decidedly surprised by Mr. H., indeed, and his dismissal followed his return to Detroit. We deeply regret that anything of this sort should have happened and think it our duty to take this step to clear one who has been blamed for his dishonesty.

DETROIT EVENING NEWS.
July 31st, 1888.

A TECUMSEH MAN GETTING THERE.

The Evening News July 19th, says:

Cadillac is once again successful in securing an extensive manufacturing establishment. For several months past the Michigan flooring and handle factory company have been considering the advisability of moving their factory from Summit City, where it is at is at present located, to Cadillac, where the supply of hardwood is almost inexhaustible. However, the secretary of the company was unwilling to come. The other two partners have finally bought out this gentleman, Mr. Bowerman, and will move the factory. The firm employ at present 26 to 40 men in the manufacture of chair stock, and upon the removal to Cadillac the capacity will be increased to require the employment of at least 50 men. The superintendent has arranged at Cadillac for a site for the works and for the erection of a large building to accommodate the machinery. The location chosen is near the Cammer rubber company's mill yards.

The Detroit Tribune referring to the same firm says:

Messrs. Slayton & Todd of Summit City have made arrangements to move their flooring and handle factory to Cadillac. Concern has capital of $30,000 and will employ 50 men.

This Slayton is our wholesale lumber merchant, A. W. Slayton. We congratulate him. He has secured a fine business and deserves it.]

BASE BALL NOTES.

The Tecumseh club went to Clinton last Friday and played a close and exciting game with that team, winning by a score of eight to nine. The game was won by our boys hitting hard at the most opportune time. No little credit is due to Heidenrich. He occupied the pitcher's box and his delivery was a puzzle which the Clinton sluggers had some difficulty in solving. He pitched a fine game, striking out 13 of their heavy hitters. Coddling also struck out 13 men. Dixon, of Jackson caught a good game for Clinton, and Palmer caught his cannon ball delivery almost perfectly.

The second game of the series will be played on our grounds tomorrow (Friday) at 3 P.M., and a fine game may be looked for. Admission, 15c. The following is last Friday's score:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Tecumseh,	3	0	0	1	4	0	0	0	1	9
Clinton,	0	0	0	3	1	0	3	0	2	8

Tecumseh's added nine won fresh laurels last Saturday by defeating the Holloway club by a score of 1 to 3. Ed. Loomis occupied the box for the home team and struck out 18 of the Holloways. The second nine are making a good record, having won 4 games and lost 1.

Wolf Creek, Onsted, Adrian and Manchester will probably play our first nine here in the near future.

There will probably be two games here on the 16th of August, the day of the band reunion, between Norvell and Ridgeway, and Adrian and Tecumseh.

The Cone Station and Evan's Lake clubs will play on Well's Sand Lake grounds, Saturday, Aug. 11.

The second nine went to Manchester this morning and will try to win back that game lost on the home grounds several weeks ago.

For the relief and cure of the inflammation and congestion called "a cold in the head" there is more potency in Ely's Cream Balm than in anything else it is possible to prescribe. This preparation has for years past been making a brilliant success as a remedy for cold in the head, catarrh and hay fever. Used in the initial stages of these complaints Cream Balm prevents any serious development of the symptoms, while almost numberless cases are on record of radical cures of chronic catarrh and hay fever after all other modes of treatment have proved of no avail.

COUNTERFEITING POSTAL NOTES.

The First Attempt Made by Their Four Years of Life.

The postal note has had recently a a rather novel experience. It has fallen a victim to the clever art of the counterfeiter. This is the first attempt of the kind made during the four years the postal note has been in use. The post office officials, however, have a very small opinion of the cleverness of this effort. It was the work of a young man in the Sixth Auditor's office, where the accounts of the postmasters are examined. Postal notes came in as vouchers. The young man discovered that on two of the notes the paying postmaster had failed to stamp the date. He thought he saw a chance of making something for himself. He changed the date of the notes so as to bring them within the three months allowed by law for the notes to run, and presented one at the city post office and the other at one of the branch offices. In the hurry the notes were paid. But when the clerk came to punch the notes he discovered that these particular notes had already been punched. At once he knew a fraud had been committed. Within a few hours after the notes had been presented the deception had not only been detected, but traced to the guilty person. The notes themselves showed that they had come from the auditors office, and so it required but a short time for the law to place its hands upon the guilty person. He was soon under arrest.

This little episode in the history of the postal note induced a reporter to ask Dr. McDonald, the superintendent of the Money Order office, who also has charge of the issue of these notes, whether there was danger of the postal note falling into the clutches of sharpers.

The doctor was emphatically of the opinion that there was not the slightest danger. "The postal note," he added, "has been in circulation for over four years. It was designed, you remember, to take the place for fractional currency. There was needed some medium for transmitting through the mails small amounts of money. The postal note supplies such a medium. For three cents you can send any sum less than $5, for 6 cents you can send a money order for any similar amount. The only difference is that the latter is obtained upon application, the former is paid to be sent. The postal note was intended to supply a place of the money order. It was said, perhaps, the money order system."

"The postal note, then, can be paid to the wrong person only through the clerk?"

"Yes," assented the doctor, "but our experience shows that this does not often occur. You know that the person to whom the postal is issued is required to sign his name in the presence of the postmaster, and the latter in any reason demand it. The government is not responsible for the loss or destruction of the postal note any more than it was for the treasury note. But the fact is that losses seldom occur, and the reports to our office show that complaints of losses are about the normal percentage. If there was any systematic or persistent theft of postal notes the percentage of losses would show it."

"The popularity of the postal note," continued the doctor, "is due to its convenience in the transaction of business; that it can be given away and passes for money anywhere. It is handsomely engraved and surrounded by many of the devices which protect the national currency and serve to prevent counterfeiting. The postal note in my opinion is entirely secure from the arts of the counterfeiter, at this writing."

"What amount of money was sent through the mails by this medium last year?" inquired the reporter.

"I can give you that, and also the amounts in round numbers of the preceding years," responded the doctor. "I have a table here which also shows the average amount of each note."

The table referred to by the doctor is as follows:

	Amount.	Av'ge Am't of note.
1884	$ [illegible]	$2.01
1885	[illegible]	1.98
1886	[illegible]	1.96
1887	[illegible]	1.95

How to Smoke a Cigar.

1. Never buy cheap cigars. There is no economy in it. If you can't afford good cigars smoke less and enjoy your smoke. It is folly to think that little cigars are the best.

2. You cannot tell whether a cigar is good or bad unless you light it properly, that is, thoroughly. A good cigar will not be much better than a poor one if badly lighted.

3. If your cigar goes out be sure to blow through it as soon as possible to that when you light it there will be no dead smoke in it.

4. Leave the ashes on your cigar as long as possible. Your cigar will burn straighter and taste sweeter if you do.

5. If you think smoking injures to your health, stop smoking in the morning. A great many people have stomachs out of order, and no man ailing in that way can smoke before or immediately after breakfast. The best time to smoke is after dinner and after supper. Smoking would not hurt a baby if this rule was adopted.

6. Never give anybody a light from your cigar. Carry matches.

7. In buying cigars select those that are fresh, or in a condition that when rolled between the thumb and finger no cracking sound is heard, or if you buy a dry one, place it in a refreshing box, one in which the whole box of cigars can be placed preferred, so as not to be in contact with metal.

Blasted an Aspirant's Hopes.

This story is going the rounds. Booth, so it is said, was walking down one of the streets of Chicago during his engagement there when he was met by an ardent young man, who proclaimed himself a born tragedian.

"Have you any choice parts?" inquired the born actor.

"Oh, yes," responded the unmade tragedian. "I have decided to begin at once with Julius Cæsar."

"With Cæsar?" exclaimed Booth, taking in at once the shallowness of the man.

"Yes, Cæsar," explained the other. "You know the great Cæsar that Brutus killed."

"Also yes," was the response. "But Brutus finished the work. Why slaughter Cæsar again?"

The young man cast one look at the impenetrable face, and then slowly and solemnly moved on.

THE BERLIN STOCK EXCHANGE.

The Brokers and the Great Money Kings of Germany.

The Berlin Stock Exchange is erected on the lines of a Greek temple. It is a marble edifice, with Corinthian columns, archways and statues overlooking their pure outlines in the shadowy waters of the river. Thirteen doors give access to the vestibule, which is the enormous hall is reached, supported by lofty pillars of granite, and decorated with fine frescoes. Statues of Mercury and Vulcan appear beside a fiery Jupiter, symbolical of Steam, and a group representing the adoption of paper currency.

On the numerous inclosures brass plates mount the walls of the adjacent bankers. There does not exist any privileged corporation answering to that of the agents de change in the Paris Bourse, who occupy a special place called la Corbeille. The entrance to the Berlin Stock Exchange is practically free, if not gratuitous, and strangers are admitted on the presentation of a member of the craft. Business houses, however, are obliged to pay a supplementary tax for the admission of each of their clerks. The state exercises no supervision over the operations on Change, especially since transactions on account have been recognized by the legal tribunals.

The hierarchy among the frequenters of the Exchange is fixed by the importance of the business they carry on. It consists of several classes, the first paying an annual tax of $200, the last of $10 only. This tariff varies according to the expenditures and receipts of the firms, but virtually every stock broker is at liberty to buy or sell for his clients without further guarantee, whether he is interested in it.

The unofficial stock brokers exist under the name of [illegible] and [illegible] representatives, or agents, responsible for their acts to their own particular house. The [illegible] or sworn stock brokers, contrary to the first impression, fix the [illegible] or average price of stocks. It is not even permissible to buy and sell at the Bourse without employing the intermediate of these brokers. Contrary to the Paris Bourse, that of Berlin has a place set apart for speculating on the fall, and in its vestibules the wolves of Wall Street, which in its green meadows wantonness constantly roams.

At noon on Change the hall is filled by about 300 men, chiefly on their feet, in groups of twenty and thirty persons, with a curious exhibition of violent gesticulations, contortions, frenzied looks, and a babel of voices. For a while to be having choices escaped from the wildest inmates of the strait jacket and the madhouse of their lucid intervals.

An exception to be observed by women and gentlemen is found in the ball that hovers over the heads of the assembled with tireless energy and at random. Not an item of the movement is the telegraph office where a thousand or more dispatches are dashed off over the world. The whole service of the Berlin Stock Exchange cannot be sufficiently commended. It is well nigh perfect in all its ramifications, and should serve as a pattern to similar institutions in other countries.

The great magnates of finance, the great potentates, are frequently seen on Change. They constitute a species of Senate, of which the most powerful and influential are Bleichroder, the confidential and passionate admirer of Prince Bismarck, Hausemann, Warschauer, Mendelssohn, and others, all or nearly all Israelites. Around them gravitate a legion of partners, clerks, and employees. They are the head and apex of the whole society of German bankers, and in the midst of the tempest let loose around them maintain their grave and impassible serenity. One of them having made a slight error in dictating a message, the result was a loss to him of 30,000 marks; the discovery did not even ruffle his unconcern.

A certain number of small speculative industries live on the Stock Exchange and lighten the tedium of the rare inactive moments. Some Meldeers offer to the lucky gambler theatre tickets for a special star performance of Nilsson or Lucca, and make a considerable percentage on them. Others carry on the original business of selling jewelry for premiums so that it is often said of such or such an actress or dancer in Berlin that her jewels are at premium. The most characteristic type, however, of the Berlin Bourse is the old fellow who has become rich in selling chocolate tablets to the habitues, which he keeps hidden in the pockets of his long overcoat. He goes by the name of "Chokoladen-Fritz."

The press, to whom a special office is devoted, is represented by about thirty reporters. Their dean is Herr Julius Schweicer. Ladies are admitted to the gallery, but their appearance is always hailed by shouts of merriment and laughter. At a quarter before 3 the tolling of a big bell announces the official closing of the exchange. The officials, shaking small hand bells, pursue the lagards till they have left the building. A few moments later the newspapers give the quotations of 645 different securities, 23 of which are foreign. Formerly a supplementary little Bourse was held, but it no longer exists, although a great many speculators congregate at a large cafe in the city to discuss important news.

It is since the battle of Sadowa, since France lost her European prestige, that the preponderance of the Berlin market has asserted itself and steadily increased. The solidarity of the financiers is great and remarkable. Bankruptcies and even suspensions of payment are very rare occurrences, owing to the existence of an esprit de corps as strong as in the army. Berlin has weathered dangerous commercial moments and perilous settlements with wonderful composure; and yet it must not be supposed that the all-powerful men of money who control the market have no other occupation than the acquisition of wealth. Art and science are no strangers to them. Felix Mendelssohn and Meyerbeer, the composers; Magnus and Landseman, the painters, with some distinguished writers, belonged to the families of Berlin bankers. It is to some of the most audacious speculators that the city owes its broadest avenues, its most handsome palaces, its imperial arcade. It has been proposed to write on the facade of the Stock Exchange, in golden letters, the following inscription: "I am better than my reputation," and the assumption would, perhaps, not be too arrogant.

Nervous Diseases.

There are more keepsakes than blood diseases. Thus, a weakness of the nerves of the brain causes headache, fits, dizziness, sleeplessness, etc.; a weakness of the nerves of the stomach causes dyspepsia, pain, wind, etc.; of the lungs, makes "weak lungs;" of the liver produces biliousness, constipation, etc.; of the womb induces irregularities, sterility, pains, etc.; of the sexual organs, impotency, etc. For all weaknesses Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine surpasses all other remedies. ESTATE OF JAMES P. WILKINS,

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Thursday, the 19th day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of James P. Wilkins, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Alfred Lewis, administrator with the will annexed upon the estate of said deceased, praying among other things that the general expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of administration thereon be allowed, and all legacies, except residuary legacies, have been duly paid, and that he be given day to close said estate and to render his final account which he prays may be allowed, the residue of said estate assigned to the parties entitled thereto, and that he may be discharged and his bond cancelled.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 20th day of August next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks, previous to said day of hearing.

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

(A True Copy.)

A. E. BARAGAR, Probate Register. jy26

MORTGAGE SALE.

By a certain indenture of mortgage bearing date the 18th day of June, A.D., 1885, made and executed by Robert N. McCollum and Mehitable D. McCollum, his wife, of Franklin, Lenawee County, Michigan, to Moses Bartlett of Clinton, in said county, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, on the 18th day of June, A.D. 1885, in Liber 114 of Mortgages, on page 174, the said Robert N. McCollum and wife mortgaged to the said Moses Bartlett all those certain pieces or parcels of land situate in the township of Franklin in the County of Lenawee and State of Michigan, and described as follows, to wit: The southwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section one (1) being forty (40) acres, more or less, and the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section twelve (12) being forty (40) acres more or less. Said mortgage was assigned the 13th day of June, A.D., 1888, assigned by the said Moses Bartlett to Anna Eccles, which assignment was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for said County of Lenawee, on the 11th day of July, A.D., 1888, in Liber 115, of Mortgages, on page 376. Default has been made in the conditions of said mortgage, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative. There is claimed to be due and unpaid on said mortgage at this date the sum of Four Thousand and Fifty nine 50-100 Dollars ($4059.50) and no suit or proceedings at law or in chancery have been instituted to collect the same or any part thereof. Notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgaged premises will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder on the 13th day of October, A.D., 1888, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the east front door of the Court House in the City of Adrian in said county of Lenawee, said Court House being the place of holding the circuit court for said county of Lenawee to satisfy the amount now due, together with all legal costs and charges of this foreclosure.

Dated June 15, A. D., 1888.

ANNA ECCLES,
Assignee of mortgage.

CHARLES BURRIDGE, Attorney. ALBERT HYDE, Mortgagee. Jun29

MORTGAGE SALE.

On the 27th day of December, 1884, David A. Spencer and Hannah A. Spencer mortgaged to Albert Hyde, Sr., all that parcel of land situate in the township of Cambridge, Lenawee County, Michigan, described as follows, to wit: Beginning at a stake one hundred and sixteen feet south and thirty feet west of the north east corner of the east half of the southeast quarter of section twenty-eight, town five south, 3 range two west, running thence south sixteen rods to a stake; thence west sixteen rods to a stake; thence north eight rods to a stake; thence east four rods to a stake; thence north eight rods to south line of street; thence east twelve rods to place of beginning, containing one acre, be less or more, according to a plat of the village of Cambridge, also called Hydeville, made by Abel Lee, and dated November 1st, 1869, and recorded in Lenawee County Records, Liber 67, which land was released from the lien of said mortgage. The one of which released parcels is described as a parcel of land forty-eight feet wide north and south, by twelve rods long east and west, to be taken from off the north side of the lands and premises above described, and the other of said released parcels is described as a parcel of land three rods wide north and south, by eight rods long east and west, to be taken from off the southeast corner of the lands and premises above described, to secure the payment of six hundred dollars, which mortgage was on the 18th day of December, 1884, recorded in the Register of Deeds' office for the county of Lenawee, Michigan, in Liber 67 of mortgages on pages [illegible] and said mortgage contains a stipulation that in case of non-payment of any part of interest at the time stated therein, then after sixty days the whole amount shall be due and payable.

Default having been made in the payment of interest and principal on said mortgage to the sum of one hundred eighty five dollars, and the same having remained unpaid for a period of more than sixty days, and by reason of such default the whole amount of principal and interest has thereby become due, amounting at the date of this notice to the sum of Eight Hundred Eighty five and 75-100 dollars, and no proceedings at law or in equity have been commenced for recovery of said sum or any part thereof.

Notice is therefore hereby given that by virtue of the power and provisions in said mortgage contained and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said above described land and premises will be sold at public vendue to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House in the city of Adrian, Lenawee county, Michigan, (that being the building in which the circuit court for said county of Lenawee is holden) on Friday, the 6th day of September, 1888, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage, the costs and expense of this foreclosure and sale including an attorney fee as provided by law.

Dated June 21st, 1888.

CHARLES BURRIDGE, Attorney. ALBERT HYDE, Sr., Mortgagee. Jun29

ESTATE OF JOHN BECKLEY.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Wednesday the 11th day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of John Beckley, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition duly verified of Margaret Beckley, widow of said deceased, praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this Court purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that administration of said estate may be granted to her or some other suitable person.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 6th day of August next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks, previous to said day of hearing.

Long-Standing

Blood Diseases are cured by the persevering use of Ayer's

This medicine is an Alterative, and causes a radical change in the system. The process, in some cases, may not be quite so rapid as in others; but, with persistence, the result is certain. Read these testimonials:—

"For two years I suffered from a severe pain in my right side, and had other troubles caused by a torpid liver and dyspepsia. After giving several medicines a fair trial without a cure, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It was greatly benefited by the first bottle, and after taking five bottles I was completely cured."—John W. Benson, 70 Lawrence St., Lowell, Mass.

"Last May a large carbuncle broke out on my arm. The usual remedies had no effect and I was confined to my bed for eight weeks. A friend induced me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Less than three bottles healed the sore. In all my experience with medicine, I never saw more

Wonderful Results.

Another marked effect of the use of this medicine was the strengthening of my sight."—Mrs. Carrie Adams, Holly Springs, Texas.

"I had a dry scaly humor for years, and suffered terribly; and, as my brother and sister were similarly afflicted, I presume the malady is hereditary. Last winter, Dr. Tyron, (of Fernandina, Fla.,) recommended me to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and continue it for a year. For five months I took it daily. I have not had a blemish upon my body for the last three months."—T. E. Wiley, 146 Chambers st., New York City.

"Last fall and winter I was troubled with a dull, heavy pain in my side. I did not notice it much at first, but it gradually grew worse until it became almost unbearable. During the latter part of this time, disorders of the stomach and liver increased my troubles. I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, after faithfully continuing the use of this medicine for some months, the pain disappeared and I was completely cured."—Mrs. Augusta A. Furbush, Haverhill, Mass.

AT WASHINGTON CITY.

AN INSIGHT INTO THE WORK OF THE CONGRESSMEN.

A Summary of Important Proceedings in the Senate and House of Representatives During the Past Week—The House, Having Disposed of the Tariff, Turns to Other Matters.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 25.—A sharp debate took place in the senate yesterday over a motion to print 5,000 extra copies of the pension committee's report on vetoes. An amendment was offered to print 100,000 copies of the president's veto messages, but the whole matter went over and the sundry civil bill was reported with an amendment to refund the "direct tax" to the states. The same measure caused the dead lock in the early days of the house this session. The naval bill was then taken up, and an amendment adopted to substitute three 2,000-ton cruisers in place of a 7,500 ton armored cruiser. The bill was reported to the senate from committee of the whole and provides for two steel 3,000-ton cruisers, one 5,300-ton steel cruiser, and three 2,000 ton armored cruisers—all to cost not more than $6,100,000. The bill then went over and Hoar offered a resolution to appoint a committee to consider questions of business in Canada and the United States and the claims we have against Great Britain on account of treaty violations, etc. Without action the senate adjourned.

The house did not have a quorum present. The senate bills for a $200,000 appraiser's building at Chicago and prohibiting the use of transparent envelopes in the mails were passed; also the bill to forfeit the lands granted the Hastings & Dakota railway. The Oklahoma bill was taken up in committee of the whole, but without action the committee rose and a night session was ordered, at which session several bills were passed relating to lands in the west, of no general importance.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 26.—Cullom introduced a resolution in the senate yesterday instructing the inter-state commerce committee to inquire into the steps necessary to prevent the Canadian Pacific railway from rendering nugatory the inter-state commerce law. The bill appropriating $150,000 for an air-ship was reported and referred to the inter-state commerce committee. The naval appropriation bill was then resumed and passed substantially as it was reported from committee of the whole Tuesday. A bill appropriating $75,000 for a public building at Allentown, Pa., was passed. It is in place of the one vetoed, which appropriated $100,000. In less than an hour the senate then passed 127 private pension bills, and at 5 p. m. adjourned.

The house was again without a quorum, not more than 70 members being present at any time. The bill to establish a court to settle land claims in New Mexico, Colorado, and Arizona was amended so as to exempt Arizona, and then passed. The Deficiency bill was taken from committee of the whole, but nothing was done and the committee almost immediately rose. A few private bills were then passed and a recess taken to 8 p. m., at which session an attempt to consider war claims was a fiasco. Bowden of Virginia called out the disorder, and upon it being of justice to be estimated by objecting to the session, and then objections became epidemic, and the house adjourned at 9.20.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 27.—The senate yesterday passed the army appropriation bill, with an amendment appropriating $750,000 for a gun factory at Watervliet arsenal, New York; $5,000,000 for the purchase of steel and construction of coast defense guns, and $900,000 for submarine mines and torpedoes. Wilson of Maryland then defended the fisheries treaty in an extended speech. A running debate on the treaty took place when Wilson had concluded, after which presidential vetoes of a pension to Bridget Foley and the bill giving right of way to the Ft. Smith, Paris & Dardanelle railway through Indian territory were received and read and referred and the senate adjourned.

The house during the morning hour debated the bill to construct postoffice buildings throughout the country on a definite plan, and then went into committee on the Oklahoma bill, which was advocated by Perkins, Symes, and Cannon, and opposed by Hooker, Cobb, and others. Without action the committee rose, the fortifications bill was reported, and the house took a recess until 8 p. m., at which session several bills relating to United States courts were passed, one extending their jurisdiction over the greatlakes. The house adjourned at 9.45.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 28.—In the senate yesterday Salisbury made a speech in advocacy of the fisheries treaty. The sundry civil bill was then taken up and a number of senate committee amendments agreed to, among them appropriations for public building at Bay City, Mich., $100,000; Marine hospital, Chicago, $75,000; statue of Liberty in New York harbor, $50,000; light at Cedar river Point, Mich., $25,000. The appropriations for repairs of light-houses, salaries for keepers and lighting rivers were increased and $50,000 put in to enforce the alien contract law. The committee's amendment to strike out the provision that no more plate printing machines shall be put into the engraving and printing bureau was rejected. The senate adjourned at 5.30.

A plentiful lack of members present was the feature in the house, and the whole day nearly was devoted to the private calendar, a dozen war claim bills being passed. An appropriation of $100,000 was made for a marine hospital at Evansville, Ind. At 5 p. m. the house took recess to 8 o'clock, and on reassembling passed thirty-six private pension bills and at 10.30 adjourned.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 30.—Saturday the senate passed a bill appropriating $100,000 for a public building at Muskegon, Mich. The sundry civil bill was then resumed, and $1,000,000 was put into it to construct the west front of the new library building, the house having provided for six-sevenths of the work and new plans, which was stricken out. Two items aggregating nearly $60,000 were put in for a hospital and repairs of dykes, etc., at Rock Island arsenal, Ills., and $10,000 for an elevator in Washington monument. The appropriation for public printing was increased $105,000, and $50,000 was appropriated to the widow of Prof. Baird, for his services and expenses as fish commissioner. The bill was further amended by the insertion of a number of items for soldiers' homes, military posts, etc., and then laid over, and the senate after adopting the house concurrent resolution making temporary provision for government expenses, adjourned.

The house passed resolutions for the printing of additional copies of the commissioner of labor's report and other documents prepared by government bureaus, and also for 100,000 copies of a comparative statement of the tariff laws with the changes made by the Mills bill. The bill to erect postoffice buildings on a settled plan was debated without action, and then in committee of the whole the deficiency bill was considered, but the house soon got off the track, and Voorhees of Washington territory made a plea for the admission of his territory as a state. Payson defended the Republicans from the charge that they were responsible for the land grants to railways, and denied that Democrats were to be thanked for forfeitures, declaring both actions nonpartisan. Stone of Missouri said the responsibility for legislation depended upon the majority in congress, and antagonized Payson's speech. Pending debate the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 31.—A little real work was done in the senate yesterday, as a preliminary to a long debate on the sundry civil bill. The debate was on an amendment appropriating $200,000 to the purpose of an investigation of the question of irrigation in the lands of the west. Teller said the question covered four-tenths of the area of the whole country, and advocated the bill. So did Jones of Arkansas, Morgan, Henderson, Stewart, and Voorhees. Plumb, Beck and others opposed. An amendment reserving to the government all lands designated for irrigation works was adopted, the proposal as amended was agreed to without further action, and the senate adjourned.

The manufactures committee presented to the house their report on the trust investigation and asked leave to sit during recess, which was granted, and the report ordered printed. In committee of the whole the general deficiency bill came up. An amendment was adopted appropriating $1,000 to pay the official stenographers for extra work this session, which had already exceeded any previous session by 3,500 columns of printed matter. The committee rose with the bill still pending, the conference report on the Omaha public building bill fixing the appropriation at $400,000 was read, and without action the house adjourned.

WOULD NOT ACCEPT IT.

Porter Does Not Want the Nomination for Governor of Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 30.—Through the permission of the gentleman addressed and ex-Governor Porter, the latter's letter in regard to the urgency of his friends in pushing him for the nomination for governor has been made public. After referring to his former declaration to the effect that he was not and could not be a candidate, he writes to State Senator Johnson as follows: "I feel it to be incubent upon me, in reply to your letter, to renew the statement and to give you authority to make it public that I shall not be a candidate before the convention, and I am obliged to add, that I would not accept a nomination even if it were tendered. I have taken an active part in every Republican campaign since the Republican party was organized, except one which occurred while I was holding office at Washington. After this long service, the state convention will, I am sure, refrain from pressing upon me a candidacy to which I would be averse, and which I should feel obliged to decline. But while I shall not be a candidate, I shall not be indifferent to the success of the Republican party, nor shall my voice be silent in the important campaign in which it is about to enter. From the time the campaign shall begin until it shall have closed, by every effort that I can bestow, I shall give aid to the party, and I am able to secure the triumph of the Republican national ticket and the success of the candidates who shall be nominated at our state convention."

EX-GOV. PORTER.

LYNCHED A DEPUTY SHERIFF.

He Shot Down a Young Lady Without Provocation at Wahpeton, Dak.

WAHPETON, Dak., July 27.—Miss Mollie Korbel was shot and killed by deputy sheriff L. S. Ewer. No provocation was given for the deed and the populace became enraged and the town was filled with angry farmers and citizens who threatened lynching. At two o'clock in the morning a masked mob of about 100 men overpowered Sheriff Miller and Deputy Bronte and took the murderer out. They carried him to the bridge over the Red de Sioux river and after asking him if he wanted to pray and receiving the answer "no," he was strung up and left to hang until daylight. The sheriff did all he could to prevent the lynching but would not fire on the lynchers who were all his friends.

A Lynching in Virginia.

DANVILLE, Va., July 27.—Near Meadsville, in Halifax county, Bruce Younger, colored, committed an assault upon Mrs. Robert Dodge, a well known lady of the county. Younger was caught and taken before a justice of the peace who sent him to jail. A party of indignant men went to Halifax court house at night, took Younger from jail, and hanged him to a tree.

Lynch in a New Line.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 27.—A special from Yazoo City, Miss., says there is much excitement in the neighborhood of Eden station over the killing of two white men by a number of negroes.

INCENDIARIES BURN A TOWN.

Eldorado, Ill., Swept of the Best Part of Its Buildings.

CAIRO, Ill., July 31.—At 1 o'clock yesterday morning a fire of incendiary origin laid the greatest part of Eldorado, Saline county, in ashes. The large frame building of C. M. Westbrook, Hargrave's harness shop, Hardesty's barber shop, Sheldon & Westbrook's grocery and implement store, the Masonic and G. A. R. halls and the police magistrate's office were the first to burn. Nothing was saved in the second stories, but the Masonic charter, Hargrave' harness stock, the barber's outfit and most of Shelton & Westbrook's stock were all saved. Charles J. Deweir's produce house and contents were totally destroyed. The Tetrick building was the next to go, and Parrish Bros.'s saloon building came next, though the contents were mostly saved. Byron Anthony's store and Dr. Burk's office adjoining were also burned. On all the property there was only a few hundred dollars insurance. Nearly all property owners will rebuild with brick.

Kansas Republicans.

TOPEKA, Kan., July 27.—The Republican state convention, which began its session Wednesday, continued its work yesterday. The convention nominated I. N. Humphrey, of Independence, for governor, on the third ballot. The ticket was completed as follows: Lieutenant governor, A. J. Felt; secretary of state, William Higgins; auditor, T. J. McCarthy; treasurer, George Hamilton; attorney general, Charles Kellogg. The platform indorses the nominees of the Chicago convention; demands the complete execution of the liquor laws in all parts of the state; denounces the Prohibition party; favors protection in every sense of the word, and heartily indorses the course of Senators Ingalls and Plumb.

The Cases Against Hoge and Murphy.

CHICAGO, July 30.—The conspiracy cases against Stewart E. Hoge and John Murphy, of the striking engineers, and their "clerks," the Detectives Kelly and McGillivary, were called before Justice Lyon at the Armory Saturday morning. They waived examination and the two former were bound over to the grand jury in $1,500, the two latter in $500.

THE BURNT OFFERING.

LESSON VI, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, AUG. 5.

Lev. i. 1-9.—Commit verses 4, 5.—Golden Text, Isa. liii, 6.

Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

We have but three lessons assigned us in this precious book of living pictures of the truth as it is in Jesus. Of the five offerings described in the first seven chapters, we have only this one lesson on the burnt offering, so that we must of necessity glance at the others in order to understand this.

The sin offering tells us what we are, and points us to Christ who was made sin for us (2 Cor. v, 21), the trespass offering shows what we do as the result of the sin in us, and points to us Christ who bore our sins in His own body on the tree. (1 Pet. ii, 24; iii, 18.) The burnt offering shows us Christ perfectly doing the Father's will and giving Himself an offering and a sacrifice to God for a sweet-smelling savor (Eph. v, 2); and thus presenting to God as worshipers those whose sins He has put away; the meat offering shows us Jesus Christ in His pure and holy life, doing always those things that please the Father (John viii, 29); and the peace offering brings before us the blessed result of all His toil and death. (Col. i, 20; Rom. v, 1.)

In this first chaper of Leviticus we have the burnt offering as a bullock, a lamb or kid, and a turtle dove or pigeon, but in each case it is said to be "a burnt sacrifice, an offering made by fire, of a sweet savor unto the Lord" (Vs. 9, 13, 17.) These different grades (so to speak) of offerings were to suit the ability of the person offering; and in the case of the sin offering, if the person was not able to bring doves or pigeons, he might bring a little fine flour, and his sin was atoned for as if he had brought a lamb or two turtle doves or pigeons (Lev. v, 7-13.). Does not this teach us that, though a person may but very feebly apprehend the meaning of the sacrifice of Christ, yet if with true penitence for sin they look to Jesus as their substitute with ever so feeble faith, forgiveness is theirs as much as if they understood more fully?

1. "The Lord called unto Moses and spake unto him out of the tabernacle of the congregation." As He dwelt in the Holy of Holies above the mercy seat between the cherubim (Ex. xxv, 22), so He spake from off the mercy seat; not as He had spoken the words of the law from the burning, quaking Mt. Sinai, but from the propitiatory, a type of Christ.

2. "If any man of you bring an offering unto the Lord." No one is compelled to come, but "whosoever will" may come, and "him that cometh" in the appointed way is assured that he will in no way be cast out.

3. "A male without blemish." Whether it were of the herd or of the flock this it had to be, type of the Lamb of God without blemish and without spot (1 Pet. i, 19), who will in the time present faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy all who put their trust in Him. (Jude 24.) Although sorely tried by men and demons, even Judas Iscariot had to say, "I have betrayed innocent blood," and the demons testified that He was the Holy One of God. Truly of Him, and of Him only, could it be said, "In Him is no sin. He knew no sin, He did no sin, He was without sin."

"Of His own voluntary will." Concerning the laying down of His life he said, "No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself." (John x, 18.)

4. "He shall put His hand upon the head of the burnt offering." Thus fully identifying Himself with it, as if to say, "I deserve to die for My sin, but this sinless sacrifice takes My place, to suffer in My stead for My sin which I have committed."

5. "And he shall kill the bullock * * * and sprinkle the blood." Without shedding of blood there is no remission (Heb. ix, 22), and although it is not possible for the blood of bulls or of goats to take away sin (Heb. x, 4), the blood of Jesus Christ can and does cleanse from all sin (1 John i, 7) all those to whom it is applied, that is, all who become identified with Him by faith in Him.

6. "He shall flay the burnt offering and cut it into his pieces." C. H. M. says on this that "it was no mere surface work with Christ; the more the depths of His being were explored, the more clearly was it made manifest that pure devotion to the will of His Father and earnest desire for His glory were the springs of action in the great antitype of the burnt offering; not only as a whole, but in all its parts, was the offering seen to be without blemish."

7. "Fire upon the altar, * * * wood in order upon the fire." We think of the story of Isaac in Gen. xxii, and see Isaac carrying the wood, while Abraham carried the fire and the knife; then, a little later, we see the altar built, the wood laid in order, and Isaac bound and laid upon the wood ready to be slain and consumed; but the knife descends not upon Isaac, he is spared, and in his stead the lamb is slain and consumed. God spared not his own Son; he carried the wood of the cross, was nailed to it, and actually died both as a sin offering and a burnt offering. The fire on the brazen altar speaks to us of God's holiness accepting the sacrifice as a sweet savor unto Him (the burnt offering, meat offering and peace offering were sweet savor offerings), but the fire without the camp which consumed the sin offering (Heb. iv, 12) speaks to us of the wrath of God against sin. Jesus was both our sin offering, suffering for our sins, and also our burnt offering, making us acceptable to God. It is also worthy of note in connection with the fire that the words used in the Hebrew in reference to the burning on the altar, and the burning without the camps, are entirely different words; the first signifying the burning as of incense, and the latter the burning as of that which is accursed.

8. "The head and the fat." Even the fat of the sin offering was burned upon the altar as a sweet savor (Lev. iv, 31), teaching us God's appreciation of the excellency of Christ even while suffering for our sins. The head indicates the intellect, fully surrendered to God and appreciated by Him.

9. "His inwards and his legs shall he wash in water." The washing with water made them ceremonially what Jesus Christ was in reality.

"The priest shall burn all on the altar." Part of the meat offering and the peace offering was eaten by the priests, but not so in the burnt offering; it was all burnt upon the altar, all for God. One thing in which we cannot have fellowship with God is the true estimate of the excellence of Christ as our sacrifice. That which was consumed on the altar signifies that which only God can fully appreciate.

"A sweet savor unto the Lord." The phrases "Unto the Lord" and "Before the Lord," in verses 2, 3, 5, 9, tell us how we ought to seek to estimate all things, and how we ought to perform all service. It was so with Christ in everything, all was said and done unto God and in His sight, it ought to be so with us.

In connection with this lesson we ought also to study the law of the burnt offering in Chap. vi, 8-13.

Purify Your Blood.

Bodily and mental health depend upon a healthy condition of the blood. The blood particularly in the spring and summer months, becomes clogged with impurities, which poison it and generate disease. A harmless blood purifier is necessary to restore a healthy tone.

Swift's Specific (S. S. S.). Of its wonderful purifying and tonic powers we give a few testimonials:

Mr. Wm. A. Siebold, with George P. Rowell & Co., 10 Spruce Street, New York, writes: "I feel it my duty, for the benefit of others who may be afflicted as I was, to write you this letter, which you can use in any way you choose. I suffered great pain from boils, all over my neck; I could not turn my head without acute pain. After trying all the usual remedies, and finding no relief, I used one bottle S. S. S., and very soon I was entirely relieved of my 'Job's Comforters.' Now not a sign of my affliction can be seen."

Mr. A. S. Hamlin, Marion, N. C., writes: "I use it every spring. It always builds me up, giving me appetite and digest on, and enabling me to stand the hot summer days. On using it I soon become strong of body and easy of mind."

Mr. C. E. Mitchell, West 23d St. Ferry, New York, writes: "I weighed 116 pounds when I began taking your medicine, and now 152 pounds. I would not be without S. S. S. for several times its weight in gold."

President Garfield's Physician.

Dr. Bliss speaking in the highest terms of Speer's Port Wine writes the following from

WASHINGTON, D. C., JAN. 25, 1884.

ALFRED SPEER, Esq., Passaic, N. J.

Dear Sir:—I have to acknowledge the superior quality of Wines of your production, notably your Port Wine, and to say I have prescribe them for my patients for the past two years, with uniform and satisfactory results. I have full confidence in the purity of your wines and that they are uniformly of standard strength, hence prescribe them almost exclusively in my practice. Very truly yours,

THE GREATEST DISCOVERY

Of the nineteenth century, can truly be said of Paputon extract of flax Skin Cure. Thousands testify to its wonderful curative powers in seemingly hopeless cases of Eczema, Salt Rheum, Fever sores and every kind of skin disease. Mr. O. P. Algier, of Hartford, Ohio, tried everything he heard of or saw recommended and suffered five years with Eczema until he found Paputon Skin Cure, which cured him. Large bottles only $1.00.

For a man to think he will live forever is the mistake of a man's lifetime.

Edited by a Committee of the W. C. T. U

LICENSE WRONG IN PRINCIPLE.

BY REV. HORACE M. JOHNSON, D. D.

License—whether high or low—is wrong in principle. This objection to the system is radical and fundamental. It goes to the root of the whole matter. If once persuaded that it is well taken, it ends all advocacy or connivance on the part of him of a good conscience.

The ground upon which the objection is based is this:

The actual saloon is an iniquity. The evils directly traceable to it, and that inevitably in greater or less degree flow out of it, whenever and wherever opened, are absolutely appalling. These evils affect public order, public health, public decency; they increase taxes, imperil property, endanger life. They are by confession the prolific source of crime, poverty, orphanage, disease, death. They are open, public, notorious, civic and social. There is no such assault on health, on life, on property, on liberty, on society, on the home, as that which comes from the liquor traffic. There is not one solitary privilege that can be afforded the dram seller consistent with the public good. The saloon exists as a moral abomination.

Now the government, in issuing its license, virtually says, and without any possibility of question as to its meaning, "Pay me $500 and for one year you may proceed with that moral abomination. You may open a saloon and deal out strong drink, notwithstanding the fact that the saloon in any community is the invariable precursor and cause of social and moral blight and curse." The government thus lends its high sanction to the traffic, gives it a legal status, throws about it its sacred shield, and stamps it with a legitimacy as real as if it were the most innocent and beneficent business of life.

For the government to do that thing whether for five dollars, or five hundred dollars, or five thousand dollars, proves that government—the individuals must forevermore be right. Permits to pursue the liquor traffic are permits to make inroads on him at every interest of life. License to sell intoxicating drink carries with it not only liquor selling, but the known and inevitable consequences of liquor selling. This law of responsibility is true of the individual. It is not less true of the state.

But it is denied by some good men that license carries this fearful implication. It is held by them that license is simply in the nature of a tax, and is, so far as it goes, restrictive and prohibitory, giving no sanction and implying no approval.

Consult any legal authority and see how this begins definition and challenges common sense. Bouvier defines license: "A right given by some competent authority to do an act which, without such authority, would be illegal." He defines tax: "A contribution imposed by government on individuals for the service of the state." Now mark the unmistakable distinctions here made. License is a right given; tax is a contribution imposed. License implies a privilege. Tax implies an obligation. License is a permission, Tax is a command. License gives legal status. Tax gives nothing, but requires. License is for regulation. Tax is for revenue. The very essence of license is a permit to do. The license fee is simply an incident of regulation, and does not affect the nature of license at all. Whether the fee be five hundred dollars or five dollars, or not a dollar, or not a cent, the act is the same, viz., government permission and sanction to do a certain thing. No quibble of words can change this simple axiomatic truth. Tying Esau's hair to Jacob's hands and neck does not change Jacob's voice. The fundamental feature of license abides, whether with high fee or low fee, or no fee.

If license carries no sanction, but is only prohibitive, then why not license prostitution? "No," say the good men who are confounding things that differ. "No; that is a sin per se." But what difference does it make whether prostitution is a sin per se or a sin per circumstance, if the licensing act is simply in the nature of a tax, and purely restrictive? If the position of these men is correct, then the licensing of prostitution carries no sanction, and their running to shelter under "sin per se" is blank cowardice and logical suicide. If their position is not correct, then licensing the drink shop is formal official investment of the drink shop with full right to open its doors and proceed with its work of ruin. One horn of the dilemma or the other, gentlemen. There is no alternative, save to wash hands clean and forever of the whole business of license.

I know the fallacies with which honest and conscientious men strangely delude themselves here. They get their chief expression in this concentrated piece of wisdom, viz., that half a loaf is better than none at all. But is a half loaf better than no bread at all? If in getting the half loaf I must compromise with an iniquity, then let the bread go! It is better to perish with hunger than to do a wrong. If in getting a few saloons closed, I must sanction the saloon business by advocating license, high or low, then let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth before it speaks approval. I must not do evil that good may come.

CLIPPINGS AND CONDENSATIONS.

Adrian is figuring on an electric street railway.

Hudson has organized a large Cleveland & Thurman club.

The Seventh Day Adventists are holding a tent meeting at Blissfield.

Morenci is without a decent hotel and no man there has sand enough to build a new one.

There are three tennis clubs in the county, located at Tecumseh, Adrian and Hudson, and a tournament is talked of next month.

Blissfield has purchased only ten thousand pounds of wool this season, but one firm there has sold the McCormick machines.

The Republican county convention to select delegates to the State and Congressional conventions will be held at Adrian, Monday next, Aug. 6th.

Dr. Cardinez, who run an Indian show at Tecumseh last summer, is operating at Morenci at present. He is organizing a Wild West show for exhibition at the fairs this fall.

George Moore of Adrian was a delegate to the colored democratic convention held at Indianapolis, last week. Mr. Moore studied law with Judge Stacy at one time, and has since been admitted to the bar.

The new premium list of the Morenci fair, now out, is a handsome little pamphlet of 64 pages, and our business men make a good showing therein. The premium list itself is much improved over that of any fair ever held here.—Morenci Observer.

Monday morning last an early train on the Wabash road run into a flock of sheep owned by E. G. Wilson, of Raisin, killing over forty of them. That was free wool with a vengence.—Adrian Press.

The Monroe gas well was "shot" a few days ago, and the people were greatly disappointed because no gas resulted. The latest from the well is that the drill is fast among the loose rock in the bottom of the hole.

The Mackinaw shows its indifference to the charm of historic association by printing the name of the new village at the lake on its time-cards, "Oak Beach." Manitou means more, sounds better, and should be accepted as the established name of the new town.—Hudson Gazette.

Look out for the traveling wholesale grocery swindler. He is abroad in the land and has a new snap this year. He calls upon farmers, carries a fine line of samples, and sells at astonishing low prices. He takes orders for the goods and tells his customers that they will arrive on a certain day in a car, and for them to go and get them. The farmer signs the order, which turns out to be a note.—Caro Democrat.

"Think of a Family

having the habit of daily converse with all the knowledge that is old enough to get into books"—your family!

You can bring that about, if you want to. Possibly some father or mother may read this, to whom it isn't true; but we doubt it.

Consider what it means. It means that you have a Cyclopedia in your living room, your evening family-room, the handiest place to get at when you want it; and when a subject comes up that one of the family wants to know more of, you turn to it in your Cyclopedia, just as you turn to a word in your dictionary.

This set of books can be the means of constant growth in knowledge, in use of the mind, in the habit of seeking light on whatever is dark, for you and your family, if you will have it so. Or you can neglect it as many neglect their dictionaries. All we said was that you have your choice.

You are thinking, "Can I get it?"

If you really want it, the very fact that you want it almost certainly puts it within your reach. We should like to see an exception or hear of one. We don't believe there is any.

If you desire the end, let us hear from you. You shall know the means.

The International Cyclopedia is one for you. Latest, most comprehensive, briefest, cheapest. (These words lean on one another a little.)

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.

Used in the principal churches for communion. Excellent for females, weakly persons and the aged.

Speer's Port Grape Wine!

FOUR YEARS OLD.

This celebrated wine is the pure juice of the dead ripe Oporto Grape, raised in Speer's vineyards, and left hanging until they shrink and become partly raisined before gathering. Its invaluable are unsurpassed by any other wine. Being produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal hospitals and boards of health who have examined it. The youngest child and the weakest invalids use it to advantage. It is particular beneficial to the aged and debilitated and suited to the various ailments that effect the weaker sex.

IT IS IN EVERY RESPECT A WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice.

Is the juice of the Oporto Grape preserved in its natural fresh, sweet state as it runs from the press by fumigation and electricity, thereby destroying the exciter of fermentation. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits and will keep in any climate.

Speer's Socialite Claret.

Is held in high estimation for its richness as a Dry Table Wine, especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry.

Is a wine of superior character and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's P. J. Brandy.

Is a pure distillation of the grape, and stands unrivalled in this country for medical purposes. It has a peculiar flavor, similar to that of the grapes from which it is distilled.

See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is over the cork of each bottle.

$1,500 in Cash Prizes FOR THREE BEST ADVERTISEMENTS.

The Chicago Daily News has reduced its price from two cents to One Cent per copy. For a year past its sales have been over "a-million-a-week," and it believes it now sees the way to safely lead in placing an ideal American daily paper upon the basis of the lowest unit of American coinage—ONE CENT.

To successfully accomplish this end two things are essential;

First—To make as good a newspaper as the best, if not a little better; second—to let every man, woman and child in the Northwest KNOW it's being done, and done at one cent a day. THE DAILY NEWS believes that it is competent to take care of the first named condition, and knows of no better way of meeting the second than by general newspaper advertising. To do the latter most effectively it here solicits the co-operation of all who believe themselves competent to write an effective newspaper advertisement. To induce the best effort in its service in this matter THE DAILY NEWS will reward the writers of the three best advertisements submitted, with three cash prizes, aggregating Fifteen Hundred Dollars, divided as follows:

First Cash Prize—For best advertisement,	$1,000.00
Second Cash Prize—For second best advertisement,	300.00
Third Cash Prize—For third best advertisement,	200.00
Total,	$1,500.00

The advertisement may be a single announcement, or a series of announcements not exceeding six in number. The space required must not exceed that occupied by this advertisement—eight inches deep, six and one-quarter inches wide.

For the general guidance of all who enter the competition, the following ten points are briefly stated as being those which THE DAILY NEWS will require to be most prominently brought out. The advertisement must emphasize:

1—That THE DAILY NEWS is first, last and all the time, a news-paper. Because that should be the first and controlling consideration in the production of an American Daily paper,—and it isn't always so. It costs money, enterprise and hard work in unstinted measure to make a genuine news-paper.

2—That THE DAILY NEWS is a daily paper for busy people. Because this is a country of busy people, and the North-west is the busiest part of it. Most people haven't the time or patience to read a "blanket-sheet,"—they absolutely haven't any use for it. Newspaper reading, after all, is but an incident of life, not its chief business. Therefore THE DAILY NEWS is a short-and-to-the-point-paper.

3—That THE DAILY NEWS is an independent, truth-telling newspaper. Because the American people are intelligent enough to prefer honest, impartial journalism to the misleading, truth-discoloring dishonesty of the regulation political "organ." Everybody really wants to know the truth in political matters; the most violent partisan doesn't want misinformation for a daily diet. And as to editorial expression, even the most unreasonable partisan will rarely take lasting offence at an adverse opinion, so long as he is confident of the honesty of purpose back of the opinion. It's not the mere fact of disagreement that makes trouble, it's the suspicion of insincerity. Make this point very strong and clear. It's because THE DAILY NEWS has won it's way to the confidence of its readers of every political faith that it has a circulation of over "a-million-a-week."]

4—That THE DAILY NEWS is a family paper. Because this is the age of the newspaper,—a time when everybody reads it, and it is all-important that the newspaper should be made with direct reference to the needs of all the members of the family. Woman and her interests never occupied so large a share of the world's thought as to-day—a fact not to be overlooked. The moral tone and influence of a daily paper must also be constantly watched, for children read it. THE DAILY NEWS is for the home, and therefore it follows

5—That THE DAILY NEWS is against the saloon. Because "the liquor interest" arrogantly assumes to dominate in American politics, and THE DAILY NEWS believes that it is not for the country's good that any one interest should thus over-ride all others, much less one which stands as the representative of all that is most un-American among us. THE DAILY NEWS is not the organ of prohibition. It is not sure that prohibition is the best thing. Good people who have made this subject a life-long study do not agree as to the remedy. THE DAILY NEWS has no eutopian hope that it is possible to legislate men into goodness, but it has a very positive conviction that it is entirely practicable, and altogether desirable, to legislate saloon-keepers into their proper place, as being engaged in a traffic which here, as everywhere else in the civilized world, is only tolerated as, apparently, a necessary evil. [There must be no uncertain sound on this point.]

6—That THE DAILY NEWS is a happy paper. Because it believes in the practical wisdom of being good natured; of being generally satisfied rather than everlastingly dissatisfied. The chronic fault-finder is a nuisance, and THE DAILY NEWS will have the least possible of him. The world is better than it used to be, and is getting better every day. It's a good place to live in—let's make the best of it.

7—That THE DAILY NEWS costs a great deal of money to make. Because there is sometimes no way of demonstrating the value of a thing, to some people, so conclusively as by showing, even in part, what it costs to make it. There are 302 people on the regular weekly pay-roll of THE DAILY NEWS, and their salaries range from $5,500 to $9,000 per week, aggregating $300,000 a year. The white paper costs another $300,000 a year. The aggregate expenditures of THE DAILY NEWS for 1888 will vary but a trifle either way from $900,000. And yet

8—That THE DAILY NEWS now costs the reader only One Cent a Day. Because this is the most wonderful thing in modern journalism, and deserves telling o'er and o'er. [There is little danger of making too much of this point.]

9—That THE DAILY NEWS is now literally everybody's paper. Because heretofore metropolitan daily papers have been too expensive, both in price and in time required to read them, to make it practicable for the farmer or the mechanic to take them. Now this is changed. The farmer particularly should take a daily paper now that it costs but little more than the old-time weekly, and is condensed so that he can also afford the time to read it. He'll save its yearly cost over and over again by knowing the market prices every day, instead of weekly as heretofore.

10—That THE DAILY NEWS now inaugurates a newspaper revolution. Because such a combination of values as it now offers the reader is absolutely without parallel among American newspapers, and it is bound to make the dry-bones rattle. The result of this revolution is that every English reading person living within daily newspaper distance of Chicago can now afford, both as to price and time, to have his city daily.

Other points will suggest themselves to the regular reader of the paper itself, and may be introduced according to the judgment of the advertisement writer. Outline illustrations and poetry may be introduced if desired, but they are not necessarily essential to success in the competition. The prizes will be awarded to the three most successful advertisements, the publisher of THE DAILY NEWS being the sole judge, whatever may be the absolute grade of their merit. All advertisements must be received before September 1st next, and the awards will be made at the earliest date practicable thereafter. Intending competitors must apply for the paper's complete prospectus, and advertisements must be submitted under the conditions therein named in detail.

ESTATE OF ALEX. PATTERSON.

STATE OF MICHIGAN County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Monday, the 30th day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Alexander Patterson, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of John Linton, executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, praying for the allowance of his third annual account as such executor.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 27th day of August next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

Oat harvest is a thing of the past.

The rains during the past week makes corn look fine.

Linnie Coryell is improving at present.

The second load of lumber for Agt. Sutton's house arrived Tuesday.

The Clack and Hanenghton brothers visited their parents at Blissfield, Sunday.

Dr. R. Nelson, F. J. Temple and Chas. Culbertson attended the Republican county convention at Adrian, Monday.

The Osgood sisters entertained a company of young friends Friday eve. of last week.

Prof. and Mrs. J. D. Huston spent a part of last week with friends here.

H. J. Williams went to Milan, Saturday to complete the contract for slating the new M. E. Church that is being built there.

Mrs. Morton of Franklin, visited her sister, Miss S. A. VanVleet, Monday.

Prof. E. A. Wilson went to Detroit on Friday of last week.

Prof. Martin Palmer spent the fore part of the week at Detroit and Flat Rock.

A. L. Arner, who has been spending some time in the western part of Kansas, has returned to old Michigan and was calling on relatives and friends in the village Saturday.

Ada Lorce returned Tuesday from a several days visit with her sister, Mrs. Lucking, of Detroit.

Hattie Vreeland of St. John, visited relatives and friends here last week.

Do not forget the ice cream festival at the church next Tuesday evening.

Ed. Palmer caught for the Tecumseh team last Friday in a game with Clinton, and has been engaged to catch for them in a game with Manchester next Friday. Palmer's ease and skillful catching is giving him a fine reputation.

Three weeks from next Monday night is the time for the annual school meeting.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. enjoyed a very pleasant afternoon at the home of Mrs. Sarah Pocklington, on Tuesday.

Misses Lulu and Cora Kenedy of White Hall, Mich., are visiting at their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Miller.

Lyda Miller, who has been in a bad state of mind for the past three years became beyond control last week and Supervisor Lowe took her to Kalamazoo for treatment at the insane asylum.

The ladies church social will hold an ice cream festival at the church on Tuesday eve. Aug. 14. A good program will be provided consisting of vocal and instrumental music. The Britton Band have been invited, and although we have not received a definite reply, we hope they will be present and favor us with some of their soul-stirring music. There will be Anthems from the choir and several pieces of vocal music by Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Houseman and Misses Hall and Barlow. Miss Rose Easlick and Mr. R. J. Bowen are expected to furnish some instrumental music with violin and organ. Also Darius Smith will favor us with a song, and little Fern VanDuyser will be present to add to the interest of the occasion. The musical part of the program will commence promptly at 8 o'clock, in the audience room of the church, and ice cream and cake will be served below. All are cordially invited.

BRITTON BUDGET.

John Britton, John Beasley and E. B. Rogers went to Adrian Monday on business.

We noticed quite an improvement in the playing of the band under the supervision of Prof. Clark.

The store of W. Lenardson & Son was enterell by burglars last Friday night and a small amount of money taken.

Do not forget that L. H. Salsbury speaks at Exelby's Hall, Saturday Aug. 11th, on the issues of the day. Let every one turn out and hear him.

George Exelby has commenced work on his addition to the Hotel. That is what Shamo says, who does the business.

M. S. Hendershot and family left Tuesday for Clinton, where they will remain a few days until he decides where he will locate.

The members of the G. A. R. Post and families spent a pleasant evening at their rooms Tuesday, where ice cream and cake was served to refresh the inner man.

Any one with any news items will please leave the same at Post Office where they will receive prompt attention. The HERALD should contain a good budget of Britton items every week.

HOLLOWAY HASH.

Measels have broken out afresh, the latest cases coming to our notice is at the respective residences of Wm. Calhoun and Wm. McMullen.

Geo. Hoxie has been repairing the engine in his shop, meanwhile he has been using a small threshing engine to run his machinery. Geo. is again in shape for business.

On Saturday morning last, the five o'clock east bound passenger train ran into a flock of sheep, about two miles east of Holloway, owned by Fred Kopke, killing thirty-two. This is the same train that killed forty-three sheep for Ed. Wilson about a week ago.

Last week word was given out that the Britton band would discourse sweet music for the citizens of Holloway and vicinity on Saturday the 4th. Two stores of our burg supplied themselves with abundance of ice-cream for the occasion. A good crowd collected and waited patiently for said band to make its appearance, but they were doomed to disappointment. They tackled the ice-cream however, and made way with quite a few gallons. The query among the citizens now is, "Was'nt the Britton band's coming a hoax in order to dispose of a large amount of ice-cream." Will some one please enlighten us on the subject?

John Campbell was seen on our streets Monday, looking well and shaking hands with his old friends, who always welcome his smiling face.

Wm. Doty and C. A. Satterthwaite, as delegates attended the Republican convention at Aurian, Monday. They report an enthusiastic time and furnished us the names of the delegates from Raisin to the State and Congressional conventions: Abner Galloway for the former and A. G. Hall the latter.

Saturday afternoon the Holloway base ball club, with some outsiders, chose sides and played quite an interesting game. The batteries were Heaney and Satterthwaite, and Kelly and Miller, the latter winning by a score of 14 to 5. Levi Coffin umpired the game and there was no kicking, as Levi always acts on the square.

The Free Methodists will hold their annual camp meeting on the same grounds that they held a year ago, commencing Thursday the 9th. Come, everybody come.

ONSTED ODDS.

Oats all cut.

Threshing is now in order.

The late rains improved all growing crops very materially.

The season of the new apple, the cucumber and the small boy, is at hand.

The Cambridge Sunday School Institute was held at the Junction church last Saturday.

Charles Riley and wife are again parents, and it is a girl.

Mrs. Simmons, an English lady and an invalid for years, was buried in the North Rome cemetery last Thursday.

Our worthy postmaster says if he goes fishing with Cleveland it will be on the Potomac and not up Salt river.

The Spiritualists of this and other localities will hold a two day's meeting in Rexford's grove, Round Lake, on Sept. 1st. and 2d.

Mr. Norman Taylor has been very ill with complicated diseases, but is on the gain at present.

Mr. George Hines is and has been the catcher for the Onsted nine ever since its organization, and the other day his better-half tossed him a bulky ball on a curve which George caught very gracefully, and after unrolling it said "Totally 'tis a girl." It is all home runs now for George.

On Friday afternoon of last week Robbie Glenn was surprised by a goodly number of his associates which reminded him that he was 12 years old that day and a good time was had all around.

After nearly 25 years of married life Mrs. Phebe Smyth presented her husband with a boy of the Swedish-American stamp and John thinks it is a hustler of the first water.

The foundation for Verne Greenlief's new house is being laid.

The frame of Geo. Daniel's, Jr., new house is up and being enclosed.

Miss Rena Maxwell is having very good success in giving music lessons this season.

J. O. Maxwell is with the Knights Templar this week at Devils lake.

O. S. Burcham was reminded of his 47th birthday by some of his intimate friends calling on him July 30th, in the evening and presenting him with a nice hanging lamp.

No preaching last Sunday as Rev. Mowry was away attending quarterly meeting.

Ye local reporter was reminded of his 40th birthday on the 6th inst. by a few friends—good cakes and lemonade—do so more.

CLINTON CLIPPINGS.

Doctor G. W. Kishpaugh of Howell made his parents a visit the first of the week.

Mrs. Geo. Ritz and children of Eaton Rapids, who have been visiting at H. P. Downs left Monday for Biddeford Maine.

Walter Burridge of Tecumseh and Bert Made of Manchester, have been in Mensing's store this week.

Lawyers A. F. Freeman of Manchester, and Fred Wood, of Tecumseh, had business here the first of the week.

Maggie Murphy returned from her visit to Kalamazoo the last of the week.

Kittie Ebbitt is spending the week with friends in Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Flick of Cleveand, Ohio, arrived Tuesday for a visit at Emmett Allens.

J. S. Kies, returned from his eastern trip Saturday and left on another Wednesday.

John Bush and wife entertained friends from abroad the last of the week.

Jacob Sturms' three daughters of Saline were the guests of their Uncle Charles the past week.

Rev. Geo. F. Wright of Chicago. Preached at the Union Services in the Baptist Church Sunday Evening.

The game of ball on our grounds Saturday afternoon between the Wall Street and Iron Creek Clubs resulted in the following score. Iron Creek 22 Wall Street 14.

Phineas Bartlett of Woodstock, visited his brothers Horace and Moses a few days the last of the week.

Mrs. A. W. Stalker went over to Ann Arbor Friday to visit her people. The Rev. drove over after her Monday and returned Wednesday.

Chas. E. Corwin spent Sunday with his people at Grass Lake bringing his family and a sister back with him.

Will Wood and family were the guests of A. G. Cobb's family in Saline over Sunday.

Ed. Kirchgessner is nearly settled in his new quarters.

Quite a number of families from the village and vicinity picnicked at the lakes Wednesday.

Will Wood is putting in a small engine in his shop.

W. W. Hess went to Detroit Wednesday.

Prof. J. Travis went to Detroit Tuesday as a delegate to the Republican state convention.

Mrs. Norman Calhoun was seventy-eight years old Tuesday. A number of her aged friends planned a surprise for her, at her son Henry's, and a grand time was the result.

Mrs. John Switz and children of California, were the guests of Allen Dillingham and Albert VanGeisen families the first of the week

Lina Jones is taking a vacation and will visit friends in Manchester, Detroit and other points.

Saturday will undoubtedly be the great base ball day of the season, as no pains have been spared by the committee to make the tournament a success. The following clubs will take part in the contest: Adrian Straw Works, Norvell, Ridgeway and Clinton. They are all good clubs and some exciting games will certainly be seen. The Manchester band has been engaged. A large crowd is expected.

Blanche Smith returned home Tuesday night.

Miss Carl Corey of Paw Paw, came Friday for a ten days visit with friends here.

The game of base ball on our grounds Wednesday, between Onsted and Clinton was marked in one respect at least. There was little or no kicking against the Umpire, or yelling by spectators; the best of order prevailed; there was a large attendance and the game was called at 4:10. Onsted going to bat: score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Onsted	0	1	0	1	0	0	1	2	0	—5
Clinton	2	6	0	1	0	1	4	0	*	—14

The Onsted boys are gentlemanly fellows and we hope to see them here again.

R. R. Hayslett, of Grand Rapids, who is laboring for the Masonic Home in that city, was calling on his fraters Friday and Saturday.

Gertrude Millspaugh has returned from her visit with Jackson friends.

Mary Fitzgerald has returned from her visit to Mecosta.

Mrs. Ray Blanchard is spending the week with her mother and rapidly gaining in health.

Fred Jackson, of Elkhart, Ind. passed Sunday here.

Miss Fannie Stocking, of Tecumseh, is visiting at N. P. Watson's.

Mrs. T. P. Zellers, of Jackson, has been the guest of J. W. Bradner's family a few days.

Tuesday being Clyde Marsteller's eighteenth birthday, she received from the family a beautiful gold watch and chain.

Uncle John Davenport is visiting among his old friends here this week.

JUSTICE FOR THE "WHITE CAPS."

Active Steps To Be Taken by the Governor to Break Up the Band of Lawbreakers.

NEW ALBANY, Ind., Aug. 4.—News that Governor Gray has taken steps to disperse and bring to justice the lawless band known as "White Caps," whose outrages on citizens of Crawford and neighboring counties have terrorized the community for years, is received with expressions of intense satisfaction by the inhabitants of that region. The outrage of July 23, when Mrs. Wiseman and daughter were tied to a tree, stripped, and lashed with hickory switches until blood streamed from their bodies and the women fainted, created a feeling of savage indignation in the neighborhood of Carne's mill, where the outrage occurred, and retaliatory measures have been set on foot which may result in bloodshed unless some steps are taken by the chief executive. Attorney-General Michener will visit Crawford and adjoining counties probably next week, and confer with the authorities as to the best methods to accomplish the total suppression of the gang and to convict the leaders. Leslie Moreland, who overheard their plans on the night of the 23d and succeeded in badly wounding three of them, will be an important and valuable witness.

TO TAX IMMIGRANTS.

Representative Oats Draws Some Conclusions from the Investigation.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 4.—Representative Oates, of Alabama, a member of the committee investigating Italian immigration has returned to Washington during the recess of the committee. From the facts already elicited Mr. Oates has drawn some conclusions. He says that he favors legislation to restrict immigration by imposing a tax of $200 on every immigrant whether he comes from Italy or any other country. He would also place more safeguard around American citizenship. While he would not go so far as Mayor Hewitt in demanding a twenty-one years residence in this country, he would certainly make it much longer than five years; he would make it an absolute necessity that the applicant should be able to read and write the English language, and he would put the clause about the good moral character in practical operation. He is also of the opinion that it will be necessary to abolish Castle Garden as it at present exists under state control. He thinks it will be necessary to make it entirely a federal institution, governed by such laws as will make it possible to hold the officials to a strict responsibility.

The best on earth can truly be said of Grigg's Glycerine Salve, which is a sure, safe and speedy cure for cuts, bruises, scalds, burns, wounds and all other sores. Will positively cure piles, tetter and all skin eruptions. Try this wonder healer. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Only 25 cents. Sold by Dr. Geo. Furguson's.

A Probate Judge Commits Suicide.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 4.—The Hon. Adin Thayer, judge of the probate of this county, and a well-known politician, committed suicide at his home on Cedar street, about 7 o'clock in the morning, by cutting his throat with a razor. He was suffering from temporary insanity.

A FAVORITE WITH THE FAIR SEX.

Papillon (extract of flax) Skin Cure is superior to all the much advertised skin beautifiers with the advantage of being beneficial, and not like the mineral preparations usually sold which are very poisonous. It will remove all inflammation, chafing and roughness of the skin, sunburn, freckles and unseemly blotches, and leave the cuticle fair and soft as an infant's. An actual necessity for the complete toilet table. Large bottles only $1.00.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, AUG. 9,

The latest new thing is a "soap" trust. Candidate Morton should feel a deep interest in this new business enterprise. "There's millions in it."

A Western exchange has discovered this new trust. Marriage has been incorrectly defined as a partnership. Not so. It is simply a trust for the protection of infant industries.

The bogus butter question is certain to become a leading issue of the campaign. How do the farmers like the Harrison brand—free tobacco, free whiskey, and free oleomargarine?

President Cleveland has shot off another awful pension veto. He has refused to sanction a bill granting a pension to a soldier who deserted and joined the confederate service.

And so Senator Palmer declines to be a candidate for re-election. The Senator is a wise man. He knows that his successor is likely to be a Democrat and he can save his "money and credit too" by declining now.

This campaign is mixing up the party lines rather badly. Last week a tariff debate was held at Media Pa. and whom do you suppose the disputants were? A large Broom of Media, a leading attorney, sustained a high tariff. Behind Potts a woolen manufacturer of Rose Valley sustained the President's message and the Mills bill.

The Ladies say. The Democrats will probably keep up green session and winter. What have they accomplished for the good of the country?

They have succeeded against the combined resistance and opposition of all the monopolies in the country, including the Republican party, in passing the first measure for general tax reduction and tariff revision that has been passed since the war. So far as lies in their power they have fulfilled their platform pledges to relieve the people from the burdens of war taxation.

The Republican party, which now deliberately declares its willingness to make whisky free rather than to lighten the burdens laid upon necessaries by a war tax, has assumed a new position which transforms it into a party of protection for the sake of protection. The demand for modification which produced the inadequate and unsatisfactory legislation of 1883 is stronger and more widespread than ever, and a revision and modification in the direction and manner indicated by the President will not be silenced by the cry of "free trade".—Harper's Weekly.

The editor of the Chisley La. Mercury, is a Republican, but he has a Democratic wife. A few days since he attended a base ball game in an adjoining town, and while he was away his wife managed the paper. As a result the Mercury appeared with the following at the head of the local column: "Cleveland will be re-elected President in November by an overwhelming majority. The Democratic party will win because it is right. Cleveland has made the best President the country has ever had, and if every State in the Union would elect none but Democrats there would be less stealing and meanness going on." What occurred when the editor returned home has not been disclosed, but it may be assumed on general principles that the woman holds the fort.

In the same overwhelmingly Republican House of Representatives, presided over by James G. Blaine, that passed a free salt bill by a more than three-fourths vote, there was introduced on the same March 13, 1871, a joint resolution to put coal on the free list. There was no hesitation on that measure, either. By a vote of 130 to 57 it was decided, so far as they could do it, to abolish all import duties on coal. Again the Ohio Republican members were found voting together for this free trade measure to strike at the "infant industry" of Ohio, coal mining. The Senate objected, as a matter of course, but in 1872 a bill passed both Houses reducing the duty on coal from $1.25 to 75 cents per ton. Were the Republicans of the House who passed free coal measures in 1871 "free traders?" Did the Republicans of both branches of Congress who in 1872 actually cut down the protective duty on coal 40 per cent. "strike a deadly blow at American industry?" If not, why not?—Cleveland Plain-dealer.

A CAMPAIAGN FOR INVESTIGATION.

It has been many years since a presidental campaign was contested upon a principle of government. The younger generation of voters assume a responsibility at a critical time, and it will be well for them to fully understand the situation. The older classes also, who have voted for several presidential candidates, should forget the hurrahs of past campaigns in the endeavor to get at hard rock facts and principles. The fathers of the generation, too, should study present conditions aright, and all classes of voters, old and young, should invoke the best impulses of a free republic in the determination of this political contest. From 1876 to the present time both political parties demanded tariff reform in their platforms. Each party in 1880 and 1884 pledged a reduction of taxes upon imports, and many, very many, intelligent voters could discover no substantial difference between the two parties, and consequently voted for whichever candidate suited them best. The question of personality determined the result in 1884, and Blaine was defeated because he represented elements in his party which the people did not endorse. Now the issue turns upon taxation and the campaign will be decided upon this issue. The democratic party declares for tax reduction. The republican party demands the continuance of the present excessive high tariff. The democratic party declares for a tax to maintain the government. The republican party demands a tariff for protection. The issue joins right here. We must all concede that it is right to contribute by taxation whatever the republic requires for economical administration. There should be no difference on this point, but the republicans ignore the necessity of tariff and build upon protection.

And what is protection? If it refers to the country as a republic, then a tax for revenue secures that. If it refers to individuals, then every man, woman, and child is entitled to its benefiaent influence. Are they enjoying it now? This is a question per well worth to ask, a matter for each person to investigate and determine before next November, because the immediate future policy of the government will be determined by the result of that election. This is a most serious issue. That tax is imposed upon more than four articles of consumption is a fact. That the tax amounts to 47 per cent. of value is a fact. That somebody must pay this tax is a fact. That nobody should pay it without receiving benefit is a fact. Reader, what direct benefit do you receive? Are you a blacksmith, and what benefit is there for you? Are you a painter, or a bricklayer, or a plasterer, what benefit? Are you a baker, or gunsmith, or a tinner, what benefit? Are you a carpenter, or a roofer, or a paper hanger, what benefit? Are you a railroader or a sailor, what benefit? Are you a tailor, or a shoemaker, or a hatter, what benefit? Are you a farmer, what benefit? So continue the pursuits of life and discover who and how many have any claim whatever to protection. This subject has already been covered by expert statisticians and the report is that nine out of ten have not the least shadow of protection. But if the individual is disposed to doubt this apportionment let him apply any possible method of discovery to his own case and determine for himself, and then vote accordingly.

The party which is led by President Cleveland demands that 47 per cent. tax shall be reduced.

The party led by Mr. Harrison declares that not one per cent of the 47 shall be cut off.

Choose between these two declarations. This is the year for the personal application of practical politics. Study the issue.—Toledo Bee.

A VETERAN ON PENSION VETOES.

To the Editor of the Evening Post: It appears to me, and also, I find, to many other self-respecting veterans, that the very point on which some bitter attacks are made on President Cleveland—his pension vetoes—really constitutes one of his best claims to public regard. It may be accepted as a fact that under our present laws any old soldier who deserves a pension can get one, and it is also unfortunately a fact that many get them who do not deserve them. There has not been, so far as I have seen, one of the President's pension vetoes in which any one with experience could not read between the lines that the vetoed bill was a thoroughly unworthy one. Indeed, it may be pretty safely assumed as a rule that the man or woman who goes to Congress for a pension has a case which will not stand honest sifting in the Pension Office.

It so happens that I have seen a good many applications for pensions. For some ten years past I have been the sole survivor of the commissioned officers of two different companies, and my affidavit has been in demand for all the applications made for the survivors of those companies. Some few of these applications were clearly fraudulent, the men who made them having no claim whatever on the Government, a number of others were from men who also had no claims, but who were not conscious of any attempt at fraud. In those cases the [illegible] generally been "worked" by pension agents, who had convinced them that they had a fair prospect of getting a claim through, and that they "might as well have pensions while they were going." There are many men now who served in the army and who are beginning to feel the burden of years, and it is very easy for them to conclude their growing infirmities are the result of their service twenty-five years ago.

The whole pension business has been overdone in a way which is disgusting and disheartening to those men who enlisted during the war and tried to serve the country from a sense of duty. That the men who were really disabled during the war, and cannot earn their own living, should be cared for every one will admit, but the effect of party bidding for the "soldiers vote" has been in the highest degree demoralizing, and no one, I think, recognizes this more fully than the class of old soldiers referred to. I believe, from my own observation, that this class is by no means a small one; but it is not a noisy one, and is far outweighed in the estimation of the politician by the noisy crowd who look only for such profit as they may secure, for themselves.

The President is the first prominent public man who has had the courage to express his convictions and state the honest truth in this matter, and for this he deserves the thanks of all honest men. As the matter stands at present, it is upon his honesty and clearness of sight alone that we depend to save the country, not only from the petty individual steals, but also from the larger schemes which have been well characterized as plots for buying votes with public money. For this alone, if for nothing else, he deserves the support of every honest man.

NEW YORK, July 6. VETERAN.

DID ITS FULL DUTY.

When the war broke out, there were in the Cleveland family three able-bodied young men. It was a typical American family. The father had died untimely, leaving children not yet in their teens. The children had never dissolved the family union. The house was portionless. All the bread had to be earned before it was eaten. The helpless, the non combatants in the battle of life, bereaved of husband and father, had to be cared for and sheltered. So the Cleveland boys found no time to be idle, and in their several ways had wrought from childhood to manhood to replenish in common the household exchequer. We have all seen similar struggles. We may see them every day for the looking.

The sacrifice, the unselfishness, the self-denial they enlist are the qualities of character which build states and perfect institutions. So this family went on unhelped. Its father was an educated man, and these boys educated themselves and their sisters. They were independent. And just as they were in manhood, with no store gathered, no income provided, not owning the roof that sheltered their mother's head, the curtain went up on what the Tribune calls "the sublimest tragedy of the century." They could not all go to the defense of the flag, for that took from the family and its defenseless members all hope of support. So this American family, with three sons able to bear arms, deciding that the country had a claim upon it, by allotment sent two to fight for the Union, while the third stayed back to keep fire on the hearth and food on the table. The struggle went on and on. The country needed more men, and the boy who stayed by lot to care for his mother and sisters took from his earnings and hired a substitute to represent him, while he abided by his duty at home. So much did that humble American family do for the Union, in perfect agreement and at one in patriotic purpose. To accuse any of its members of lack of sympathy for the cause for which it gave so much is to impeach the American character and indict our common humanity.—Ada California.

FREE RAW MATERIALS WANTED.

That intelligent manufacturers themselves see that a wise revision of the tariff is necessary is becoming more evident every day. Men of this class are beginning to speak out plainly. The following letter from the Secretary of the Aultman & Taylor Co. of Mansfield, Ohio, and the one from a manufacturer of North Adams, are not isolated instances. They represent scores of other similar cases in all the States:

MANSFIELD, Ohio May 19.

A reduction in tariff taxes on raw materials will enable us to greatly increase our export trade in the direction of Austria, Hungary, South Russia, India, Australia, New Zealand and South America, as well as add to our Mexican and home trade. It will greatly improve the condition of every farmer in America and therefore while increasing home sales—owing to his added ability to buy—it will also increase his capacity as a paymaster for what he does buy. This year we have abandoned selling Threshers, Engines Horse Powers, etc., through agents and sell them direct to the farmer, allowing the farmer himself all the commissions.

A reduction in tariff taxes, "free trade in raw materials," would give him a still farther reduction in price. It requires no argument to show that under such conditions he would become a larger buyer and a better paymaster. Permit me to add that The Aultman & Taylor Company has written to Mr. Breckenridge, of the committee of ways and means, asking to have all tariff taxes (so called "protection") taken off of threshers, engines, etc., and thus permit the American farmer to buy where he can buy the cheapest.

What you wanted I take it, was a brief expression of opinion. I have given it.

It is needless to add that we are heartily in favor of the passage of the Mills bill as an emancipation measure for the farmer. Once passed the good resulting to the country will make it easy every congress to get still larger reductions each in their turn followed by a steadily rising tide of prosperity, such as marked the repeal of the corn laws in England and the passage of the Walker tariff in 1846.

Respectfully, M. D. HARTER.

A Republican manufacturer in North Adams, Mass., who has received a copy of this interesting circular has written a letter to the Providence Journal explaining why he cannot send Mr. foster any "fat." He says that the company with which he is associated is engaged in the manufacture of cotton goods, and is, therefore, "one of the protected industries of New England," and adds:

"As a manufacturer I see clearly a reasonable tariff is necessary to the life of industrial New England, but being a manufacturer (even a Republican one) does not prevent my also seeing that our present tariff needs reforming, and, moreover, what is more to the point, that reform is bound to come whether we want it or not.

If during the past four months the Republican leaders in and out of Congress had brought to the question a sincere desire to do that which should be best for the country, there could now be no burning tariff issues. And what is this going on in Congress while I write? The Republican members fighting as if for the very life of the republic, to maintain the tax on lumber—to protect the men who are killing the immature and insufficient forests and tax the people to pay for it! Is there a man of sense in New England who believes that the country as a whole will endorse that sort of "protection" when the time comes for them to pass upon it? I repeat that tariff reform is bound to come, and if we will not help to fairly settle the question, it will be settled without our help. How, then, shall we successfully meet the storm and save that which is good? Can it be done merely with a yell against "free trade" and bearing a protection idol in one hand and free whiskey in the other, or by simply talking of the protection of the American laborer while we leave the flood gates of Europe open to pour in "pauper laborers" upon us, or by blindly following the leadership that is leading us straight into the ditch, through opposing anything and everything not originating with the Republican party? Hardly. If we want any part in this matter we must ourselves become sincere and reasonable tariff reformers.

Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic is not a stimulant but a nerve food, restoring nerve force lost by sickness or excessive mental work or the use of liquor, opium, morphine or tobacco. It supplies food for nerve tissues and by its gentle aperative action, removes all restraint from the secretive organs, hence curing all diseases of stomach and liver. Dr. Geo Ferguson will supply the genuine Red Clover Tonic at 50 cents a bottle.

The HERALD and Courier-Journal will be sent to Jan. 1, '89 for one dollar.

Renews Her Youth.

Mrs. Phoebe Chesley, Peterson, Cady Co., Iowa, tells the following remarkable story, the truth of which is vouched for by the residents of the town: I am 73 years old, have been troubled with kidney complaint and lameness for many years; could not dress myself without help. Now I am free from all pain and soreness, and now able to do all my own housework and owe my thanks to Electric Bitters. I having renewed my youth, and removed completely all disease and pain."

A false chord of music is a discord. A false cord of wood is about seven eights.

I have been afflicted with catarrh for 20 years. It became chronic, and there was a constant dropping of mucus matter. It extended to my throat, causing hoarseness and great difficulty in speaking. Indeed for years I was not able to speak more than thirty minutes, and often this with great difficulty. I also, to a great extent, lost the sense of hearing in the left ear, and of taste. By the use of Ely's Cream Balm all dropping of mucous has ceased and my voice and hearing has greatly improved.—Jas. W. Davidson, Attorney at Law, Monmouth, Ill.

NATIONAL LEGISLATURE.

DOINGS OF THE WISE MEN AT WASHINGTON CITY.

The Proceedings of the Senate and House of Representatives Summarized—Compiled [illegible] Makers During the Past Six Days—Bills, Resolutions, Etc.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 1.—A bill identical with the Outhwaite bill in the house was reported to the senate yesterday for the refunding of the Union Pacific Railway company's debt. It provides for the entire liquidation of the debt in fifty years. The resolution to inquire into the effect of Canada's system of railways upon the carrying trade of this country was adopted. The sundry civil bill was then taken up and an amendment appropriating money for a public building at Atchison, Kas., was objected to as a bad idea—the attaching of such measures to the sundry civil bill, they being in the nature of "riders"—and finally rejected on a yea and nay vote—21 to 23. Spooner then offered an amendment to refund the direct tax to the states. This was the bill that caused the deadlock in the house early this session. A point of order was made against it that it was general legislation on an appropriation bill and the point was sustained by the presiding officer, Ingalls. One or two unimportant amendments were then adopted and Call offered one to appropriate $10,000 to be used for the recovery of Confederate property. (This property is the same as referred to in these dispatches recently as having been gobbled by the British government.) Sherman and Evarts spoke of the hope of recovering such property as illusive. Cockrell also opposed the appropriation as an absolute waste of so much money, and said it might complicate the government in troubles from which it might not easily extricate itself. Without action on Call's amendment the senate at 5:30 p. m. adjourned.

A letter from Speaker Carlisle announced to the house that he would be absent for several days, and McMillin was selected for speaker pro tem. An attempt to have Aug. 7 assigned for consideration of labor bills failed. The conference report on the Omaha public building bill was rejected, and a new conference ordered. The bill appropriates $1,200,000. A bill for the revocation of withdrawals of certain Iowa and Minnesota lands was passed. The senate amendments to the army appropriation bill were non-concurred in, with the exception of the Hawley heavy ordnance amendment, and a motion to non concur in this was pending when the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 2.—A joint resolution was reported to the senate yesterday authorizing the president to obtain indemnity from Venezuela for the Venezuelan Steamship company of New York for the seizure of one of their steamers in 1871. Bills for a bridge across the Mississippi at Winona, Minn., and a public building at Jackson, Mich., were passed. Also a bill appropriating $30,000 for a monument to commemorate the revolutionary battle of Princeton. The proposition to appropriate $10,000 to look into the claim that Great Britain holds a large amount of Confederate property was rejected. The sundry civil bill was then passed. The minority report in the Jackson, Miss., election cases was presented and ordered printed, and the senate adjourned.

The house went into committee on the senate amendments to the army bill and non-concurred in the ordnance amendment. A resolution directing that the house will insist on its disagreement to the amendments was offered, but pending the discussion of a point of order against it, the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 3.—In the senate yesterday Chairman Ingalls announced as the committee to inquire into commerce and business between this country and Canada, Hoar, Allison, Hale, Dolph, Pugh, Eustis, and Bodkett. The committee on Indian affairs was instructed to continue its investigation into Indian matters. The fisheries treaty was then taken up and Riddleberger delivered a philippic against it, a notable feature of the speech being great hostility to England. Morgan followed in advocacy of the treaty. A bill was passed to provide an additional associate justice on the Wyoming supreme court, and after a brief secret session the senate adjourned.

A short time was spent in the house on routine business, and then Sayres withdrew his resolution of instructions to the house conferees on the army appropriation bill. The senate amendments were then non-concurred in, and a conference ordered. The general deficiency bill was then taken up, but nearly the whole time was devoted to political debate on pension legislation. Hovey of Indiana charged that the Democracy from the president down was opposed to that sort of legislation, declaring that the committees of the house would not report the bills before them, because they were afraid to be brought to a vote thereon. McKinney of New Hampshire replied to Hovey, and cited statistics to show that 359,000 pension claims had been issued during the last three years of Democratic administration, against 191,000 during the similar period of Republican rule. The "rebel flag" episode also came up, and then a shy was had at the tariff. In the afternoon a little progress was made on the bill, and at 5 p. m. the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 4.—The senate devoted yesterday to the debate and passage of a resolution by Cullom instructing the interstate commerce commission to investigate the alleged invasion of the domain of American commerce by Canadian railways and steamship lines. The difficulty aimed at is the carriage by Canadian lines of commerce that "naturally" should be carried by United States lines, and in some cases the nullification of the inter state law by this invasion, and the resolution provides for an inquiry as to whether any lines on this side are controlled by British companies, and whether discrimination is made on Canadian canals against American vessels, and what legislation is necessary. Cullom, Gorman and Mitchell [illegible] threw cold water on the measure, remarking that goods would be carried over the lines that took them cheapest, and no government could change that. The resolution was passed, and Teller then spoke against the fisheries treaty, his speech being largely an attack on English methods and general commercial cussedness. The senate then adjourned until Monday.

The house debated the general deficiency bill, and an amendment appropriating $1,300,000 for arrears of bounty and back pay was ruled out of order. A long discussion then took place on the French spoliation claims without action, and the house took recess until 8 p. m., at which time thirty private pension bills were passed, and adjournment was taken until Monday.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 7.—As soon as the journal was read in the senate yesterday Edmunds offered resolutions expressive of the sorrow and sympathy of the senate over the death of Gen. Sheridan, accompanying the resolutions with a few words of eulogy of the dead soldier. The resolutions were unanimously adopted. Farwell introduced a bill granting a pension of $5,000 per year to Mrs. Sheridan. Coke introduced a joint resolution requesting the president to open negotiations with Great Britain for the political union of Canada with this country. On motion of Edmunds a resolution instructing the finance committee to inquire into the alleged cotton bagging trust was laid on the table. Vance defended the fisheries treaty in a set speech. A presidential message [illegible] Sheridan's death was received, and Hawley offered a resolution to appoint a committee to attend the funeral, which was adopted, and the following named by the chair: Hawley, Manderson, Cullom, Stewart, Hampton, Gibson and Gray. The senate then, at 1:55 p. m., adjourned out of respect to the dead general.

The chaplain of the house in his opening prayer alluded to Gen. Sheridan's death, and shortly after the house came to order the president's message formally announcing the same was received. Hooker of Mississippi and Grosvenor made short eulogistic addresses, after which Hooker offered appropriate resolutions, including instructions to the speaker to appoint a committee to take part in the funeral. This was adopted, and at 1 p. m. the house adjourned in memory of the deceased soldier.

"BLINKY" MORGAN HANGED.

Executed in the Ohio Penitentiary for the Murder of Detective Hulligan.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 4.—Charles, alias "Blinky" Morgan, the principal figure in the Ravenna rescue and the murder of Detective Hulligan, of Cleveland, Ohio, was executed at the Ohio penitentiary shortly after midnight. The prisoner spent a quiet day, refusing to see visitors except those with whom he had been intimate and who had taken an interest in the commutation his sentence. To all with whom he talked he protested his innocence of the crime. Morgan made out an order turning his body over to Dr. Clemmer, the physician of the prison, with the request that it be used for the benefit of the sciences and afterward cremated. After giving the order he received a letter from Nellie Lowery, of Cleveland, who is reputed to have been his mistress, asking that his body be sent to her. She had been refused the pleasure of seeing him alive, and she claimed that it was no more than right she should see his face after death. Morgan changed his mind after reading the letter and asked the physician to relinquish his claim, which was done.

"BLINKY" MORGAN'S LAST MOMENT.

The execution was witnessed by thirty persons. Morgan was on the scaffold when the spectators entered the execution department. He looked like a high-toned gentleman dressed for an evening ball. The warrant was read, and Morgan refused to say a word, but stood like a statue as the ropes were adjusted. When all was ready, the cap drawn down, and the rope began to tighten, Morgan spoke in a loud tone, "Good-bye, Nellie," and passed through the trap. The work was not a success. The body writhed in the greatest agony and the legs jerked, while the arms swung and the hands clutched. He slowly strangled to death.

BASE BALL ATTRACTIONS.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—League scores yesterday: At New York—New York 6, Washington 1; at Boston—Boston 5, Philadelphia 6—eleven innings; at Detroit—Detroit 5, Indianapolis 6—eleven innings.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—The result of the League base ball playing yesterday was as follows: At New York—New York 5, Washington 4; at Detroit—Detroit 1, Indianapolis 4; at Chicago—Chicago 4, Pittsburg 6—twelve innings; at Boston—Boston 2, Philadelphia 4.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—The Anson aggregation played good enough ball yesterday to break the monotony of the past week or two and win a game. Borchers pitched. The league scores were: At Boston—Boston 3, New York 7; at Detroit—Detroit 5, Pittsburg 6; at Chicago—Chicago 4, Indianapolis 3—seven innings, rain; at Washington—Washington 2, Philadelphia 0.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—The Indianapolis club came over yesterday to play a series with Anson's nine and met defeat, the city papers giving the credit thereof to William Mains, of Davenport, Ia., who is a new pitcher signed early this week. He pitched "good ball" undoubtedly and appears to be an acquisition. League base ball scores yesterday were: At Boston—Boston 6, New York 9; at Chicago—Chicago 5, Indianapolis 4; at Washington—Washington 2, Philadelphia 3. The Detroit-Pittsburg game was called in the fifth inning owing to rain, the score being 3 to 1 in favor of Detroit.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 2.—The new steamship City of New York sailed for New York yesterday with 1,000 passengers, including Mr. James G. Blaine and family.

PICTURES FOR FOND MOTHERS.

One Way in Which Clever New York Girls Make Money with the Camera.

Truly it is of no use to attempt to chronicle the ingenious devices adopted by clever girls to earn a living and leave the girl with the camera out of account. [illegible] the doings of children.

She—the particular girl with a camera to whom this paragraph refers—makes of herself a peripatetic baby taker. She spends an hour, a half day, a whole day with a child, and by dint of successive shots at propitious moments with the handy little detective, looking for all the world like a lady's shopping bag, which she uses, she secures one picture, two pictures, twenty pictures of the urchin in unconstrained attitudes about its play.

The doting mother sends the small boy and the girl with the camera to the park. The girl enjoys a morning's outing and returns glimpses of master boy riding in the goat wagon, skipping stones, rolling heels over head on the grass, smiling up at you over a handful of daisies, peeping through the bars of Mr. Crowley's cage.

The doting mother engages the girl with the camera to preserve for her a chronicle from sunrise to sundown of baby's day. The girl comes to the nursery, watches baby, catches baby splashing in her bath, catches her again rolling in plump infantile nakedness on the floor, chewing her toes, laughing so as to show her first tooth, clutching at the rattle shaken in her face, screaming in colic pangs, dressed for a turn in the perambulator, and laid away asleep in her crib.

The doting mother sends post haste for the girl with the camera the day boy's long curls are to come off. The girl photographs baby in her first short dress and boy in his first knee trousers. She photographs baby and boy together, baby riding about the nursery on boy's back.

It is profitable work, for the girl—she is the only one I know who does, it—charges from $3 to $4 a day for her time, besides the price of the finished photographs. She is seldom without engagements, usually having her time occupied for a week or more ahead.

The pocketbooks of women are at her mercy, for her pictures, showing urchins in ordinary dress, and about their ordinary roguery are spirited and lifelike, and mothers like to make souvenir albums of them, as records of growth to preserve for other days.—New York Correspondent.

HIS PROPOSAL REJECTED.

It Was Not the One She Expected.

Some months since a gentleman had the misfortune to lose his wife, a literary lady of some reputation.

After grieving for a number of weeks, a bright idea entered the head of the widower. He thought he could do something to lessen his sorrow, and for that purpose he called upon a lady of his acquaintance and requested to speak a word with her in private.

Thinking she was about to receive a proposal, the lady prepared to listen with becoming resignation.

"Myrrha," said he, with downcast eyes, as he took her hand, "you knew my wife?"

"Yes."

"It is not good for man to be alone.'

"Perhaps not."

"Did you ever reflect upon that part of the marriage service which requires couples to cleave unto each other until death parts them?"

"I have."

"I have often reflected upon it myself. Now death has parted me from my wife and I feel very lonely."

"I should think it likely."

"I think I must do something to restore to me her kind consolations and the memory of her many virtues."

He pressed the lady's hand and sighed. She returned the pressure and also suffered a sigh to escape her.

"My dear," he said after a long pause. "I'll come to the point at once. I have a proposal to make."

"A proposal?"

"Yes."

"Ah!" she said, blushing, and covering her face with her hands.

"I have concluded to write my wife's biography. Now, I have little skill in literary exercises, and if you will correct my manuscript and write the headings of the chapters, I will give you five dollars."

She sprang from his side and her eyes flashed with anger.

"I'll see you hanged first, and then I won't, you—you—"

She left the room, not being able to express her rage. The widower sighed, took his hat and went home.

Result of a Woman's Whim.

The old city of Stavoren, in Holland, used to be a very wealthy city, and it enjoyed an extensive commerce. The town is now poor, and has lost all its shipping.

The decay of the place is attributed to the fact that the harbor is becoming filled with sand. Right in front of the entrance lies a broad grass-grown sandbank which is called lady-sand, and with which is connected the following story.

The wife of a wealthy merchant once desired one of her husband's captains to bring her from abroad "the most precious thing in the world." The worthy Dutch mariner, in conscientious fulfilment of the request, accordingly brought back a cargo of wheat from Dantzic.

The lady, indignant at his stupidity, ordered the valuable freight to be thrown overboard at the mouth of the harbor. This act of wanton waste ultimately caused the ruin of the proud and luxurious city.

[illegible] and to have formed the foundation of the sandbank, which is daily increasing in extent, and constitutes an insuperable barrier to the entrance of that once excellent haven.

BEEN THERE TOO OFTEN.

THE SIOUX HAVE THEIR WEATHER EYE ON UNCLE SAM.

Chief Grass Not So Green as His Name Might Imply—He Speaks for His People and Intimates That [illegible] Will Do to Watch—A Unanimous Rejection of the Proposition.

STANDING ROCK AGENCY, D. T., July 30.—The Indians Saturday gave their first formal expression of opinion to the commission with regard to the opening of the Sioux reservation. The Indians were in session until daylight Saturday morning. They chose Chief John Grass to reply to the commission and the old Indian, in a dignified yet cunning speech, stated that the Indians refused to sign away their lands. He said the Indians had been listening for five days to the words of wisdom which fell from the lips of the smart men who have been sent out by the great father, and that if all the big words they had heard could be gathered together they would be heavy enough to crush out every Indian on the reservation. He went back to the beginning, spoke of Adam and Eve, and said that the Indians now knew all about that story as the whites had been among them with their Bibles. He alluded to the Black hills treaty, saying that when commissioners were sent to make that treaty they told the Indians that they wanted their consent to a right-of-way for a railroad. This consent was given, but before the commissioners got back to Washington they changed the papers so that the great father believed that the Indians had signed away their lands, and they said to the father: "See what we have got for you."

CHIEF GALL.

This sally on the part of the smiling Indian orator caused much merriment in the crowd. Continuing, Grass said:

"We have talked this matter all over in our councils. You tell us 11,000,000 acres of our land is to be given to the whites, and we are to get 50 cents for every acre sold; that $1,000,000 is to be advanced to us, and that we are to get 5 per cent of that for ourselves. One-half of this is to be used for industrial schools, and we are to get the other half. This would give us about $1 each. (Laughter among the Indians.) We don't think this would make us very rich. You tell us that other Indian tribes are to be brought among us. This we don't want, and it is not pleasing to the other tribes. All these things we have talked over for five nights, and all our people tell me to say to you that they will not sign. The government owes us much under our old treaties, and we hope that when you go back to Washington you will try to get it for us. You have two papers for us to sign—one black, which is for the Indians who say yes, and one red for those who say no. Our people say they will not sign the black nor the red. You have counted us since you have been here. You know just how many we are, and we all say no. You have been with us many days. You have other agencies to visit and much work to do. You had better go on, for you can not get us to sign. This is all we have to say." This was applauded by the Indians.

Chief Gall was then called upon to speak by the commissioners, but he simply said: "Everything that we have to say has been said. That's all."

When Chairman Pratt replied he told them that they would be forced to sign one paper or the other, and reminded them of all the government had been doing for the Indians. In the course of his remarks he made allusion to the time they were fighting and killing the whites.

In reply the dignified John said to Pratt in pointed though courteous speech: "Before you tell us of what the whites have done for us look at the great country which was once ours and pay us what you have agreed in former treaties. Don't speak of that again."

Sitting Bull refuses to return to the agency until the commissioners have left, and it is more than probable that he will be forced in by the police or the military. He says he has talked with many commissioners, that he knows just what they have to say, and that he does not wish to hear them.

The Indians are being kept here in the hope that they may be induced to reconsider their decision, but there is small foundation for this hope. In the council Saturday the Indians spoke strongly against the policy of the commission in keeping them here after they have rendered their decision. They say that they will not sign if kept here for six months. The meeting of to-day or to-morrow will doubtless be the last at this agency, and the commissioners will leave for Pine Ridge or Cheyenne in a few days. An attempt will be made to force the Indians to sign, either yes, or no, but the Indians are suspicious and will not touch the paper. They cannot read, and fear that a trick is about to be played on them.

Their Business Booming.

Probably no one thing has caused such a general revival of trade at C. A. Wright & Co's Drug Store as their giving away to their customers of so many free trial bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Their trade is simply enormous in this very valuable article from the fact that it always cures and never disappoints. Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, and all throat and lung diseases quickly cured. You can test it before buying by getting a trial bottle free, large size $1. Every bottle warranted.

DR. A. TRASK'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States and our confidence in its qualities is so strong that we make no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Prices 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

THE LATE JOHN BUNTING.

His Brother and Sister and Many Others Believe Him Insane.

FRANKLIN, Aug 6th, 1888.

Now that the body of John Bunting has been decently and respectably laid beautiful cemetery at Clinton and the community feel once more safe, it is a fitting time to ask ourselves if we have not been too hasty in our judgment and too harsh in our comments of him. It was a thought of this kind which led me to call on Mrs. Rance Mills, his sister, yesterday. Mrs. M. has been prostrated by the sad occurrence and is almost wild with grief. She believes her brother to have been insane. Their father was subject to fits and John would have very severe headaches after which he would act very unlike himself and his mother would say that John would some day have fits like his father. There were times too when he would get up from his bed at night, rush down stairs and round the room saying there were men trying to get in, and one night he scared them a good deal by discharging a gun at the back door at an imaginary screech owl. He seemed to be unconscious of what he had done or if roused said he must have been dreaming.

he called on his sister and when Mrs. Mills told him he had no cause to be jealous of his wife, he said, "I am not so jealous as they make me out to be: I have never laid those children on to any body, I own them all." He broke down and cried, said he sent his wife all the money he had and would send her more when he sold his wool. That his domestic life was very unhappy there can be no doubt; that much that is said in regard to it is untrue and would be denied by all the members of his family is also certain. About two years ago his sister Adm. Mrs. Carns, visited him. On one occasion John found her in the parlor and began telling her his troubles but Mrs. Carns was frightened at his wild eyes and strange actions and cut the interview short as soon as she could and in talking it over with Mrs. Mills they both expressed the fear that he would yet be crazy and kill himself.

Ed. Bunting, of Henderson, came down to Franklin as soon as he learned of the finding of his brother's body. He too has been terribly shocked, and while he looks with horror at his crimes, he says, "I cannot hold him responsible for I believe him to have been insane." Some of the statements which have in the hours of general excitement drifted into the papers they regard as cruel and untrue. For instance, no $200 was ever offered for his body, no potter's field hold his remains, he was never put under bonds to keep the peace, and as far as being a terror to his family, we learn from several reliable sources that he was a kind and indulgent parent, dressing his children with liberality and gratifying their wishes as much as lay in his power and educating them as well as his means would allow; and to his wife he was a terror only, as we understand, when these insane jealous fits were upon him, and when they passed away he would sometimes weep and express deep regret.

A few words more and my plea will be ended. The vengeful murderer is bred in an atmosphere of crime; there are some exceptions but they are few. But the Bunting family have always been regarded as worthy of trust and confidence in a high degree. John's mother was especially beloved for her kind, motherly ways and many speak of "Auntie" Bunting as a woman of a lovely christian character. John's playfellows, now gray beards, speak of him as uncommonly tender-hearted and sympathetic and in later life he was regarded as a man of truth and integrity. Leading stock buyers say they could depend implicitly on his word and would have taken it as quick as his bond. When, therefore, he said such absurd things as accusing such respectable men as Loren Taylor and Bridgeman Wells, of being intimate with his wife we know he must have believed it, which proves to me at least that his brain was full of insane fancies.

Take again the letters he wrote, it is said that as he sat at the table great drops of sweat stood on his face and dropped on the paper; is it likely that a calculating villian could feel such deep emotion? Then again the letters breathe only deep attachment to his children. "My dear Cora and Mable," he says; and then again humbly, "I hope you will accept my love and give it to the rest. The expressions "But I can't help it. I am drove to it," alluding to his intended crime, are simply wild insane ones. And then strangest of all, in his letter to Mr. Payne, "I heard to-day that I had to go" yet he had seen no one but his family and hired man that day. Bear in mind these are the words of a truthful man. Then again it has been said he could go through the house like a cat, and this is not easily like the insane. A number of people have noticed the peculiar wild expression of the eye, and one of his children has said, "He was frightful to look on." Your humble correspondent firmly believes him to have been a monomaniac and because he was all right on other subjects, people failed to notice he was insanely jealous.

A great ship sinks; there has been a screw lose somewhere, but she has sailed on much the same as usual and no one has noticed it until too late. So human brain; a screw is lose, agravated and fretted by circumstances that would have been so different could we have only known in times, and a human life is wrecked. Much more could be said but I have already used too much of your space.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Republicans held a delegate county convention at Adrian last Monday. Every town in the County was represented. The delegates from Tecumseh were Dr. Geo. Howell, J. D. Shull, Lester Clemens, Dr. L. Barnes, M. E. Conklin, D. T. Hall. T. M. Hunter, of Adrian, was chosen chairmen of the convention and J. D. Shull, of Tecumseh, secretary.

A brief set of resolutions was passed as follows:

Resolved, By the republicans of Lenawee county in convention assembled, that we heartily approve of the excellent administration of state affairs under Gov. Luce, and request our delegates to the state convention

Resolved, That the action, speech and efforts of Capt. E. P. Allen in congress have been wise and patriotic, and that we favor his renomination.

Resolved, That in the death of Gen. Phil H. Sheridan the nation has lost a brave and loyal general, a soldier whose deeds entitle him to a monument of gratitude in the heart of every American, and the Republican party mourns the loss of one who always fought for its principles, and was true in times of peace as he was brave in war.

Resolved, That the democratic party, in passing the Mills bill, has shown itself hostile to any interest of the artisan, and the farmer, and we condemn the bill, and urge the voters of this farming community to stand shoulder to shoulder in defeating the party that is the author of this infamous blow at our industrial and farming interests.

The districts then separated and reported the following delegates to the state and congressional conventions.

FIRST DISTRICT.

To State Convention—Dr. Robert H. Nelson, Ridgeway; Abner Galloway, Raisin; Merritt E. Conklin, Tecumseh; Jerome Travis, Clinton; George R. Cochrane, Palmyra; M. L. Aten, Deerfield; I. W. Robertson, Ogden.

Congressional—Isaac N. Pilbeam, Ridgeway; A. G. Hall, Raisin; Dr. Leman Barnes, Tecumseh; D. M. Bainbridge, Clinton; W. I. Bliss, Blissfield; E. E. Burnham, Deerfield; J. F. Gilmore, Macon.

SECOND DISTRICT.

State—B. F. Graves, First ward; James Gough, Second ward; L. W. Burton, Third ward; Wm. Humphrey, Fourth ward; Nathan Shumway, Fairfield; Chas. Davis, Franklin.

Congressional—Darius Roberts, Second ward; Wm. Jibb, Third ward; C. E. Rogers, Fourth ward; H. C. Pratt, Fairfield; Albert Camburn, Franklin; A. W. Bradish, Madison; J. R. Northrup, Adrian.

THIRD DISTRICT.

State—Warren K. Parker, Woodstock; Lascom M. Chase, Rollin; J. J. Wood, Hudson; Chas. Brown, Medina; J. W. Wightman, Seneca; J. H. Shepard, Dover; Chas. E. Jessup, Cambridge.

Congressional—Manson Carpenter, Woodstock; Frank Kirk, Rollin; J. B. Kessler, Hudson; Edward C. Baldwin, Medina; Vernon Allen, Seneca; H. H. Ferguson, Dover; A. H. Hawkins, Cambridge.

These reports were duly accepted by the convention, and nominations for delegates at large was next proceeded with.

Wm. Jibb arose, and moved that Tom S. Applegate be elected by acclamation as delegate at large to the state convention, which motion prevailed.

Mr. A. D. Gilmore was next chosen as the other delegate at large, in the same manner.

Mr. C. R. Miller then nominated Chauncey Cooper for delegate at large to the congressional convention, and Mr. Sam Draa nominated T. M. Hunter as the other, and both gentlemen were elected by acclamation.

An exchange hits the nail on the head thusly: "Don't say that the paper is dull when it don't contain an item that you expected to see in it, when no one knew anything about it but you. Remember that it is impossible for an editor or reporter to be in every place in a minute, or know everything that is going on. If you know an item that will be of interest to the public, report it. Probably you are the only one that knows anything about it, and you must not blame the paper if you do not inform the publisher of the fact.

Tecumseh people and all others who visit Devil's Lake will please remember that they will find the steamer G. A. R. at Allen's dock, ready to take them to all points on the lake with neatness and despatch. Capt. Deal is always on board.

Owens, $4 38; Clay Owens, $3 75; Geo. Williamson, $6 25; A. Kent, $12 25; Fred Bowers, $7 50; Fred Spafford, $6 06; John Hoy $0 63; W. S. Morse, $5 7.; Wm. McKinney, $4; W. Merritt, $3 13; Wm. Owens, $2 50; E. A. Hodges, $21.

The recorder reported tax duly spread and roll ready for collection.

On motion the Marshal was given to Oct. 1st for collection of tax and directed to deduct 2 per cent from all taxes paid prior to Aug. 1st, 1888.

The Marshal's warrant for collection of the tax was then executed.

On motion the Street Commissioner was given until Oct. 1st for collection of poll tax.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

The finance committee reported favorably upon all of above claims referred. Accepted and adopted and orders directed drawn for the several amounts.

Council then adjourned.

FRED. B. WOOD, Recorder.

"Think of a Family having the habit of daily converse with all the knowledge that is old enough to get into books"—your family!

You can bring that about, if you want to. Possibly some father or mother may read this, to whom it isn't true; but we doubt it.

Consider what it means. It means that you have a Cyclopedia in your living room, your evening family-room, the handiest place to get at when you want it; and when a subject comes up that one of the family wants to know more of, you turn to it in your Cyclopedia, just as you turn to a word in your dictionary.

This set of books can be the means of constant growth in knowledge, in use of the mind, in the habit of seeking light on whatever is dark, for you and your family, if you will have it so. Or you can neglect it as many neglect their dictionaries. All we said was that you have your choice.

You are thinking, "Can I get it?"

If you really want it, the very fact that you want it almost certainly puts it within your reach. We should like to see an exception or hear of one. We don't believe there is any.

If you desire the end, let us hear from you. You shall know the means.

The International Cyclopedia is one for you. Latest, most comprehensive, briefest, cheapest. (These words lean on one another a little.)

SPEER'S GRAPE WINES

ALSO

UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.

Used in the principal churches for communion. Excellent for females, weakly persons and the aged.

Speer's Port Grape Wine!

FOUR YEARS OLD.

This celebrated wine is the pure juice of the dead ripe Oporto Grape, raised in Speer's vineyards, and left hanging until they shrink and become partly raisined before gathering. Its invaluable are unsurpassed by any other wine. Being produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal hospitals and boards of health who have examined it. The youngest child and the weakest invalids use it to advantage. It is particular beneficial to the aged and debilitated and suited to the various ailments that effect the weaker sex.

It is in every respect a WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice.

Is the juice of the Oporto Grape preserved in its natural fresh, sweet state as it runs from the press by fumigation and electricity, thereby destroying the exciter of fermentation. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits and will keep in any climate.

Speer's Socialite Claret.

Is held in high estimation for its richness as a Dry Table Wine, especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry.

Is a wine of superior character and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's P. J. Brandy.

Is a pure distillation of the grape, and stands unrivalled in this country for medical purposes. It has a peculiar flavor, similar to that of the grapes from which it is distilled.

See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is over the cork of each bottle.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

[illegible] was in town over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Milo Dole, of Adrian, visited friends in town yesterday.

Twenty five bands will be present at the Reunion next week.

Col. L. Saviers and family are spending a few days with Mrs. P. Bills and other Tecumseh friends.

The City Band left on the noon train yesterday for Devil's Lake to be gone the rest of the week at the Knights Templar encampment.

A juvenile brass quartette from Ypsilanti paraded the streets yesterday morning. They made fine music and picked up a good many stray nickels.

FOUND—A parasol, between the Brownville bridge and Wm. Bresie's residence. Enquire of Jas. H. Aten, claim property and pay for this notice.

Dr. Woodward has scored another triumph. He has presented to "his coy and bashful friend," Prof. Skinner, a copy of Arban's method for the cornet.

F. A. Dewey, of Cambridge, was in town [illegible] is working up the County Pioneer Meeting which takes place in Madison on the 15th.

All members of Beer's Post G. A. R. intending to go to the National encampment at Columbus, will please report to the commander or adjutant for particulars.

The 15th annual fair of the Morenci U. E. & D. P. Association will be held Sept. 11th to 14th inclusive. We acknowledge the receipt of a complimentary ticket and shall endeavor to attend if possible.

Asa Howe has concluded not to have any regular days for running his Sand Lake stage, as there is not enough travel to warrant it. He will however take picnic parties any day on short notice.

The committee on Refreshments are making extra efforts to have everything in first class shape for the reunion, and the ladies having the matter in charge know no such word as fail.

Will Anderson has started in the campaign early. He raised the first pole at his residence last Tuesday, and of course was adorned with a Harrison & Morrison streamer. No red bandana for Will.

See that your trotters and runners are entered for the blanket matinee at Bills' race track next Saturday afternoon. No entrance fee. Spectators 25c. Ladies free. This will be the best matinee of the season.

The citizens are responding to the call for aid to defray the necessary expenses for the reunion very liberally and the decorating committee will see that Tecumseh is arrayed in a very artistic manner. Everything is being done that can be to make this a day of which Tecumseh may well be proud.

Wm. Cupples, of Raisin, is in the habit of taking his horse out every day for a roll on the ground. Last Friday Mr. Cupples had the animal out but give him a little too much rope, and feeling somewhat frisky the horse began kicking, and one of his hoofs landed in his master's mouth with disastrous results. Six teeth were sacrificed and his upper lip was badly cut.

Dr. Bennett will be at the Lilley House, Monday, Aug. 13th, and every 4 weeks thereafter. Hay fever, asthma, head and back aches, dyspepsia, are the difficulties he never fails to cure. No talking for talk sake, always proven in every case. You better go and look his wish up and see how it is done. Hernia (Rupture) he fails not on the dozens he has operated on. Only one week of rest then no more truss, be the age 5 or 75 years.

The Art Amateur for August contains a very timely and attractive colored plate of Golden Rod and Cardinal Flowers. There are also china painting designs for a plate (roses), a vase (coneflowers) and a fish plate, a pulpit hanging for Trinity, a page of monograms (in "S"), a fine study of Mountain Laurel by Victor Dangon, a variety of specially good designs for carved hanging shelves, and a number of Oriental decorative designs, including a full-page illustration of a vestibule in Turkish style. Price 35 cents, Montague Marks, Publisher, 23 Union Square, New York.

A western farmer writes to the secretary of the county fair association as follows: "Please offer a premium for the biggest fool in the county and I will be there to take it. I stopped my paper and three days later a traveling swindler did me up for $80 in good money. I renewed my subscription and secured all the back numbers, and by the piper that played before Moses, the very first issue after I quit taking it, the paper contained a full exposure of the same trick that got away with me. I want to hire a dozen able bodied men to kick me around my new barn."

One more week till the band reunion.

Mrs. J. J. Orr left yesterday for a visit with friends at Toledo.

Jerome Murray, a leading attorney of Toledo, was in town yesterday on business.

Walter Heck returned from his visit to South Bend last Monday, after a week's absence.

Candidates for County offices are traveling around the country looking after their political fences now.

Rev F. Adkins started for Marietta, O., Tuesday, where he expects to take a two weeks vacation.

Mrs. W. H. Zinn and daughters, Mary and Nellie, of Lafayette, Ind., are spending several weeks at Mrs. A. Fisher's.

John Heesen's little steam yacht "Tecumseh" has been launched on the Globe Mill pond. She is a little tiger to travel.

Strong & McNair have a new card this week, announcing their 30 per cent discount sale. Now is the time for bargains.

Capt. and Mrs. J. R. Cairns, of Raisin, have gone to Mt. Clemens to remain a few weeks for the benefit of the Captain's health.

Remember the blanket matinee at Bills' race track next Saturday afternoon. There will be a good attendance should the weather be pleasant.

Mr. F. A. Guy has been canvassing Tecumseh for the past week taking notes for the forthcoming volume of the Mich. State Directory.

Steger, our old popular photographer, who is now doing a rushing business at Finlay, Ohio, has been tarrying about a week among the scenes of his former triumphs.

Another Democratic boy has been added to the census of Tecumseh. The young man arrived last Friday at A. E. Kennedy's, and is prospering finely as well as the mother.

Word continues to come in that more bands are coming to the reunion. Tecumseh never had as much music to the square inch as she is likely to have on that day.

What does this mean? The Adrian Times says:

The Tecumseh base ball club came over Saturday and was done up by the High School nine, by a score of 21 to 10. They now own the banner for being the boss grumblers.

Uncle Geo. Sheeler, of Cambridge, was in town part of last week, shaking hands with his numerous Tecumseh friends. He retains his health and vigor remarkably well for a man of his years.

O. P. Bills & Co. moved into their new quarters last Monday. They have an elegant banking office. We doubt whether there is a more neatly fitted up room for that purpose in the entire county.

While at Adrian last Monday we dropped into Chet. Haynes' shop on North Winter street, and found him sweating over a span of horses. He is doing well and has a big run of horse shoeing.

The County Pioneer Meeting will be held at Madison Grange Hall, on Wednesday next, Aug. 15th. Exercises will commence at ten o'clock A. M. A picnic dinner will be served after which there will be another program of exercises.

The Ladies' Society of the Baptist church will serve dinner and supper Band Reunion day. They will have a tent on the lot east of Kinney's furniture store. Ice Cream and lemonade will be furnished at usual prices. COM.

A public meeting of the W. F. M. society will be held in the audience room of the M. E. church, on Sunday evening, Aug. 12th, at the usual time service. An interesting program is being prepared. Let every one go and hear what the ladies have to say on Foreign Missions. Remember that there is no collection to be taken.

The meeting of Tecumseh W. C. T. U., for Aug. 10th will be omitted, as several of our members design going to Macon that day to help the Union at that place to reorganize and speak a few words of cheer to encourage them to sustain their organization. It is a favorable sign that they have taken the initiative steps themselves towards reorganizing. Several of their number having visited our Union two weeks ago, and invited us there at this time. Meeting at 2:30 o'clock.

The picturesque valley scene near the York Mills, on the county line road, which was mentioned in The Gazette last week, has invoked artistic appreciation, it appears, as well as the admiration of travelers and casual visitors to that locality. One of the most beautiful and highly appreciated landscape paintings in Detroit has this romantic region for its theme, including the water mill whose wheel revolves to the music of the shimmering stream that winds through the valley. The painting was executed by Miss Mary McMaster one of Detroit's most successful artists, while on a visit to her brother Henry in this village. It was sold for a handsome figure.—Hudson Gazette.

Fred Wood went to Detroit Friday.

Remember the band reunion on the 16th of August.

M. E. Conklin is attending the Republican State convention to-day.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Russell returned from their northern trip Monday.

Mrs. Wheeler will receive portrait orders for L. F. Wheeler, and forward them to him.

No preaching at the Presbyterian church next Sunday. Sunday school at 12 as usual.

Mrs. E. C. Baird, of Dayton, O., is in town a few days, the guest of her mother, Mrs. E. B. Wood.

Wm. Totten has our thanks for a copy of The Daily Resorter, published at Petoskey during the camp meeting season.

The committee on decoration respectfully request that all business houses on Chicago st. shall be appropriately trimmed on Thursday, Aug. 16th.

Wm. Deming has closed up his blacksmith shop and is now working in a marble cutting establishment at Jackson. He has charge of sharpening the tools.

The Chicago Daily News has an agent in Tecumseh who will deliver the paper to any address for 6 cents per week. Call on or address J. Paul Brown, at the Art Gallery.

John Heesen went out to the County farm last Monday to repair a reaper which had been given up by the Adrian mechanics. In ten minutes the machine worked all right.

Died at Lansing, Aug. 3d, of cholera infantum, Eunice Ione, daughter of Will and Anna Blood, aged 8 months. The remains were brought to Tecumseh and Rev. Wm. H. Babbitt officiated at the funeral service Sunday afternoon at the residence of Geo. S. Spafford.

A gay leap year party went to Sand Lake last Friday. There were eight young ladies and it is a reasonable supposition that each one had a partner. Nell Reynolds, Ida Russell, May Hyde, Ina Blood, Adah Potter, Stella Anthony, Nell Conklin, Stella Cleveland. Who the lucky young men were no fellow can find out.

People going by Bills' residence have noticed a pet monkey usually playing on the lawn, but no more will it be noticed. A large dog of the bull species came monkeying around there last Saturday and got into a dispute with his monkeyship, which terminated in leaving the monkey in a demoralized condition, and he shuffled off this mortal coil the next day.

A handy little book for the Presidential campaign, is just out. It contains finely engraved portraits and sketches of the candidates for President and Vice President (Rep., Dem. and Pro.) electoral and popular votes in previous elections and other useful information. Copies may be had free at the druggists, or by sending a 2 cent stamp to C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Another excursion will run to Devil's Lake next Sunday, Aug. 12; the principal attraction there being the Knight's Templar encampment. Following is the schedule of rates and time table.

O. P. Bills & Co. have an elegant banking office now. The furniture and fixtures are finished in in the natural wood and was made by Wm. Peter, of Toledo. The tile floor was put in by McDonald Bros. & Co., of Detroit. The ceiling decorations were procured at Wright's and Geo. Chidister did the work. The mammoth rose geranium which serves as a screen at the window of the private office was purchased of Mrs. Starr.

Rev. Anna H. Shawe, Superintendent and Lecturer of the Franchise department of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, will give one of her popular lectures in the Opera House, Tuesday, Sept. 4. She comes to Tecumseh under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. Miss Shawe is a pleasing speaker, witty and forcible in her delivery. She is the only ordained preacher of her sex in the M. P. church. Lecture free. Collection will be taken at the close of lecture.

ANOTHER VICTORY FOR TECUMSEH.

The Tecumseh Base Ball Club Defeat the Clinton after a Close and Exciting Contest.

[illegible] since the days when Kelly and Katz occupied the points for the Tecumsehs, four years ago, has there been such a close and interesting national game as was witnessed at Bills' park last Friday. It was in '84 that the Cass club, Jackson Mutuals, Plymouth, and other equally good clubs fell an easy victim to the Tecumseh nine, and the Buffalo league team was held down pretty close.

It was an exciting contest throughout, Friday, and the interest was at fever heat. The attendance was large and showed an awakening interest in the game, which would be continued by more of such. Many from Clinton drove down or took the afternoon train, to see their pet club give the Tecumsehs a crushing defeat—which never came. Of course there was some kicking; who ever see a game played where the chronic kicker didn't get his work in, especially against the umpire, but as a general thing, the game passed off quite pleasantly, and the decisions rendered by Charles Johnson gave good satisfaction. The Clintons brought their [illegible] and Codling as the battery, and the home nine put up Palmer and Beach, the latter lately playing with the Peoria, Ill., club. He pitches a swift ball with lots of curve thrown in, and the visitors had some difficulty in hitting him safe at first. It was a slugging game however and both pitchers were hit freely. In the field the home club surpassed the visitors, and with one or two exceptions played a faultless game. Wild throwing in the eighth innings allowed the Clintons to score four times, and once in the sixth. The Tecumsehs also made the majority of their runs in the same manner. Codling's support was poor, much to that gentleman's disgust, and he changed positions with Sinclair one innings to see if he could improve it. Dixon and Palmer both held up their end of the game with credit.

BEECH'S CURVES.

The visitors went to bat first, and filled the bases, but no one reached home plate. In fact that goal was not reached by either side until the third innings with the home club at bat. Beach knocked a small grounder and was immediately fielded out at first. Holderman took first on a fumble by Codling. Chapman did the same on Sinclair's, sending Fritz to second. Keysor grasped the willow and lifted a two bagger over left that sent Fritz home but Chapman was put out just before crossing the plate. Beebe flew out.

MCCLURE MAKING FIRST.

In the fifth Beach scored after two men were out, on a wild throw by Lazelere, which made the score two to nothing.

The Clintons came in at the sixth with a determined look. Embler led out with a two bagger, and was sent home by W. Codling, who made third on a wild throw by Palmer, and came home on an error by Beebe. Muir fanned. Wade made first on Keysor's muff, Dixon struck a hot grounder to Beebe who put out Wade, and Dixon was put out at second by Chapman and the score was tie.

Beebe hit for one base, but was put out while stealing second. Ross sent a grounder to Sinclair, who threw wild to first and the ball went back of the grand stand, enabling Ross to trot home. Grimm made first on a scratch, stole second and third and came home on McClure's safe hit. Sam went to second on a pass ball, but was put out trying to steal third. Palmer flew out to Codling. Tecumseh had forged ahead two, and Clinton was consequently blue.

MUIR'S GREAT FANNING.

"I won't pitch another inning in such a rotten game," said Bobby Codling, as he came in from the field with a look of despair on his intellectual countenance. "I am doing it all, those snoozers out there don't give me any support, and I don't intend to kill myself trying to win this game. Those other fellows are making scores and the ball does'nt get knocked out of the diamond."

Soothing words were applied to Bobby and he bobbed up serenely in his box the next inning. Giving his gum a vicious chaw, he sent the ball through at his greatest speed.

Holderman and Chapman both scored in the seventh. In the eighth the home club experienced a slight touch of razzle dazzle, and allowed the Clintons to run in four scores, which again made the score tie—6 to 6. Wade and Muir both scored on Palmer's pass ball. Dixon and Sinclair scored on a wild throw and muff.

Betting was about even when the Tecumsehs came in to break the tie. McClure fanned and Palmer fouled out. Beach hit for single and went to second on Holderman's hit. Chapman knew what was wanted and made one of his old time two baggers, which sent Beach home and Fritz to third, where he died on Keysor's fan.

The visitors had one more chance to win or tie the game, and made an effort, but it was useless. W. Codling flew out, Muir fanned, Wade got first. Dixon stepped up and made a splendid hit. The ball soared up nearer the Heavens than it ever before had, been, and then it began to descend. The descent was disastrous to Clinton's chance for the game, as it landed in Grimm's outstretched hands, and when it strikes his hands, it might as well land in a bushel basket; its just as safe.

Following is the complete score.

PICKUPS.

A ball game between the north and south side is billed for this afternoon the prize being a ball and bat.

Beach is in Ypsilanti this week trying the mineral water. He played with the Kalamazoo club in 1886.

We would confidentially suggest to Manager Davidson the great convenience three or four chairs would be to the scorers and reporters.

The second nine lost a game with the Adrian high school nine last Saturday. The score stood 21 to 15. The absence of their pitcher was the main cause of their defeat. They went to Manchester and had better luck there as they defeated that nine by a score of 21 to 8.

The first nine expect to go to Manchester to-morrow to play their best team.

DIED—On Friday, July 27, '88, at her home in Tecumseh, Mrs. Phoebe E. Dingman. Thus has passed away from earth a loved mother, and one highly esteemed by a circle of appreciative friends. Mrs. Dingman had been a resident of Tecumseh in former years and had returned to it a little more than a year ago, after a residence of some years in Lansing. She was ill only a few days during which she was unconscious. Mrs. Fitz-simmons, of Lansing, and Miss Mary Dingman of Tecumseh, are daughters of Mrs. Dingman, the only survivors of a family of eight. Her husband died in 1882. She was a member of the Presbyterian church of Tecumseh and adorned, by her pure sweet life the doctrine she professed.

THE DOG WAS FOOLED.

Uncontrollable Rage Seized a Village Dog with Sad Result.

W. C. Snader of the ancient Dunker town of Fahrata, Pa., has reason to be proud of being [illegible] the demonstration of that fact has cost him special attention of [illegible]. Mr. Snader has built up an extensive business in the fashioning of the counterfeit presentments of all sorts of animals out of wood, for the use of the proprietors of the merry-go-rounds so popular with the patrons of country fairs and seaside resorts.

He recently had an order from some one to carve and mount the wooden effigy of a coach dog. He completed the dog the other day, and placed it in front of his establishment to delight the gaze of his admiring fellow townsmen. While this counterfeit dog was there on exhibition a stray but pugnacious real dog came sauntering down the street. He was apparently dogless and unimpressionable as he trotted toward the artist's workshop, but suddenly his eye fell on the wooden dog, as it stood in defiant pose at the workshop door. The real dog stopped in his career and gazed for a moment at the wooden representation of one of his kind. It then became apparent to all who happened to be witnesses of the scene that followed that this real dog did not recognize the fact that the other was but a chunk of well-dissembled wood. His bristles up, he gave one ugly growl, and rushed upon the wooden dog with a fury which none but a viciously-inclined coach dog is capable of.

He had the counterfeit dog by the throat for a few [illegible] so mixed up in the [illegible] that it was difficult to tell which was the dog of flesh and which the dog of wood. The surprised but delighted spectators "sicked" the real dog on out Artist Snader rushed out of his shop and took a hand in the fight, striving to protect the inanimate results of his genius from its able but sadly-deceived foe. His efforts were useless however, for the determination and rage of the real coach dog were so invincible that in less than two minutes the wooden dog was upon the sidewalk a dismantled and irretrievable wreck, legs, ears, and head scattered widely apart to astonish around the spot, while the shaggy-coated man was a savage and spiteful piece of wooden ivy.

It was not until the last piece of the work of art was complete that the real dog awoke to the fact that he was not right. He then sadly ceased in his wild and furious onslaught to the effigy and stood gazing at the wreck he had made. The fresh dawn on him gradually, and he slunk off his ears and his tail low, and disappeared in a lower alley that not even an active canine could follow, probably the worst fooled dog that ever tasted a cast-off tea kettle tied to his tail in this town.

MOVING LIBBY PRISON.

Chicago Men Talk of Taking the Famous Old Structure to That City.

The preliminary steps for the formation of a corporation whose object is the purchase and removal to Chicago of the famous Libby Prison in Richmond have been taken.

The gentlemen who are in the scheme include William H. Gray, Josiah Crafts, John A. Crawford and Charles K. Miller—all Chicagoans. The company will have a capital of $[illegible].

"Last November," says Mr. Gray, "when I was traveling through Virginia, I met C. A. Barnes, a former officer in the Confederate army. In the course of a conversation on the events of the war, it occurred to me that it would be a good idea to purchase Libby Prison and take it to Chicago. I took Col. Barnes into my confidence, and asked him to ascertain if the property could be purchased. Shortly after my return I received a letter from Rawins & Rose, real estate dealers in Richmond, saying that the old prison was now the property of the Southern Fertilizing Company, and that it could be purchased for $25,000. At my request Mr. J. A. Crawford, the superintendent of the Chicago Towing Company, went to Richmond and investigated the possibility of moving the building. He returned full of enthusiasm for the enterprise. Some further correspondence with the real estate firm resulted in my obtaining an option for thirty days on the property.

"The building is built of red brick, three stories high, and covered with an old-fashioned gable roof. It is as solid to-day as when erected over fifty years ago. It contains about 600,000 bricks, stone caps and sills, and is surrounded on three sides by a stone sidewalk. I have consulted with the architects, and they inform me it can be taken down, removed to this city, and rebuilt just as it now stands. We propose to number every brick, stone, and shingle. The building will be taken down in sections, the material will be boxed up, and transported by rail to Chicago. We will carefully draw every nail that has not rusted away. We will bring up the mortar and use it as far as possible in the rebuilding. Every beam, joist, door, and window will be set in place. The enterprise will cost about $250,000. We will surround it with another building 200 by 100 feet, with a glass roof, and on the wall opposite the rear of the prison we will have painted a panoramic view of the James River and the country beyond.

"It is our intention to make an elaborate collection of relics of the rebellion—in fact, to make it a perfect museum. We will have panoramic views of the engagement between the Monitor and the Merrimac, and other [illegible] events of the war.

"Will the Richmond people allow you to move the building?"

"I am informed that up to two years ago, when the property came into the possession of the Southern Fertilizing Company, the Richmond authorities had to keep a guard around it to keep off the relic hunters who would have torn it to pieces. I have been informed that some of the Richmond people may kick, but it will do them no good."

Cheap Coal.

One night recently an apparent tramp in Fent county, Cal., gave a brakeman on a coal train fifty cents to let him ride to the next station. The brakeman took his place on the caboose, and the tramp got on a coal car, and as soon as the train started began throwing off coal. He had thrown off two tons or more by the time he reached the next station, when he got off and went back to meet a wagon that was following after and picking up the coal. The tramp was a shrewd and dishonest Bent county farmer.

BASE BALL ATTRACTIONS.

CHICAGO, July 25.—The League champions and the pitcher of the Indianapolis nine put Anson's athletes in the rear yesterday, both in the won and lost columns, the day's playing resulting as follows: At Chicago—[illegible] games won, 26 lost. Chicago—14 games won, 27 lost. The scores were: At Indianapolis—Indianapolis 4, Chicago 1; at Detroit—first game Detroit 3, Pittsburg 2; second game Detroit 13, Pittsburg 5; at New York—New York 0, Boston 3—thirteen innings; at Philadelphia—Philadelphia 5, Washington 14.

CHICAGO, July 26.—The result of the League base ball playing yesterday was to put Chicago another notch lower. The Anson aggregation is now third on the list, New York taking second place. The scores below show how it happened: At Indianapolis—Indianapolis 6, Chicago 4; at New York—New York 5, Boston 1; at Philadelphia—Philadelphia 1, Washington 3. The games in this city, commencing to-day, between the home club and Detroit, will be watched with great interest, as they may settle Chicago's hash for this season.

CHICAGO, July 27.—The League scores yesterday were as follows: At Chicago—Chicago 4, Detroit 3; at Pittsburg—Pittsburg 3, Indianapolis 1; at Boston—Boston 4, Washington 5; at New York—New York 8, Philadelphia 1.

TIRED OF PUBLIC SERVICE.

Congressman Knute Nelson Will Become Attorney for a Railway.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 30.—The Globe has information that on his retirement from the office of congressman Knute Nelson will become an attorney of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba railroad. His contract with the company is for five years and his salary $15,000 a year. With the same information comes knowledge of a letter of Mr. Nelson's, written within the last ten days, in which he forbids all use of his name in connection with the Republican nomination for governor. At the same time the news is conveyed that he is in no sense a candidate for United States senator next fall. Mr. Nelson gives his reasons for all this remarkable change in this form: "My family have a right to claim my attention now. I owe something to them. I have given up a number of valuable years to public service at an expense that I can ill bear. I am justified now in seeking profitable employment outside of the political walks."

KNUTE NELSON.

CHICAGO ANARCHISTS INDICTED.

Another Arrest Made and the Four Will Have to Face a True Bill.

CHICAGO, July 26.—Another arrest in the Anarchist conspiracy case was made yesterday in the person of Rudolph Sevic, a Bohemian gunsmith. It was ascertained that he had purchased twenty-five pounds of dynamite on April 26 last, from the American Powder company. He claims that he sold ten pounds of this to a Nebraska farmer, and has forgotten to whom he sold the remainder. He purchase twenty-five pounds more on June 3, which he says he sold to a Minnesota farmer. He can not give the names in either case, and Inspector Bonfield says the stuff was disposed of to Hronek et al, and that Sevic is in the conspiracy.

Bonfield also captured a number of bombs of a decidedly dangerous pattern, but will not say where he found them.

Hronek, Chapek, Chleboun, and Sevic were all indicted yesterday afternoon by the grand jury for conspiracy to commit murder. It is not thought that the indictment against Chleboun will be pressed, in consideration of the information he has given to the police.

Cincinnati Cemeteries Desecrated.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, July 28.—A most atrocious and mysterious act of sacrilege and vandalism was perpetrated on Walnut Hills. Unknown parties entered the Calvary Catholic cemetery and the United Jewish cemetery, both on Montgomery pike, just outside the city limits, and destroyed nineteen tomb-stones in the former cemetery and five in the latter resting place of the dead. When the sextons and keepers of the burial grounds awoke in the morning a picture of desecration was presented to their astonished sight. The tomb-stones toppled over or shattered to fragments are those of some of the leading Catholic and Jewish families of the city, and no cause is known at this writing for this strange piece of vandalism.

Cowhided Her Husband on a Train.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, July 28.—A few moments before the Chicago train pulled out of the Union depot a little woman hurriedly entered the rear car and made her way to a seat wherein a man and woman were merrily laughing and talking. The little woman suddenly drew a riding whip. "I have watched you, George Martin," she exclaimed, "take that, and that, and that." And she plied the whip. She man was her husband, a leading coal dealer. He retreated from the car, followed by his wife, who kept on whipping him over the face and shoulders. On the platform a policeman stopped the irate wife. The cause of the assault was jealousy.

A One-Cent Rate to Columbus.

CHICAGO, July 30.—The action of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy in making a rate of 1 cent a mile from all points on its lines for persons attending the Grand Army encampment at Columbus, O., will be met by all western lines. Saturday Chairman Abbott issued a circular to the roads in the Western States Passenger association advising them of the Burlington's action and authorizing them to make a similar rate.

Prohibition

Of the LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

By Rev. S. M. VERNON, D.D.

The most active and aggressive period ever known in temperance work renders timely the appearance of this crisp, original and vigorous volume. It is a book quite out of the beaten track, newsy and piquant, bristling with telling points, brief, clear, sprightly, candid, earnest, convincing, fair, dispassionate, full of ringing facts and bright with sterling truths.

It popularizes the burning question of "Prohibition," brings it down to every mind and conscience, marshals its many startling facts in new and surprising forms, clarifies and invigorates its logic, paints in vivid and impressive hues the monster whose daily victims but increase its hunger, and the poison of whose breath blights whatever it touches. Cloth $1.00. Paper 30 cts. Supplied by Agents, Booksellers and News Dealers, or mailed postpaid to any address by

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT has been made in the payment of a certain indenture of mortgage bearing date the 18th day of June, A. D., 1885, made and executed by Robert N. McCollum, and Nellie E. McCollum his wife, of Franklin, Lenawee County, Michigan, to Moses Barlett, of Clinton, in said county, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, on the 18th day of June, A. D., 1885, in Liber 44 of Mortgages, on page 174, the said Robert N. McCollum and wife mortgaged to the said Moses Barlett all those certain pieces or parcels of land situate in the township of Franklin in the County of Lenawee and State of Michigan, and described as follows, to wit: The south west quarter of the southwest quarter of section twelve (12), town five (5) south, range two (2) east, containing forty acres more or less; the east half of the southeast quarter of section twelve (12), town five (5) south, range two (2) east, containing forty acres more or less. Said mortgage was on the 12th day of June, 1888, assigned by the said Moses Barlett to Anna Eccles, which assignment was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for said County of Lenawee, on the 6th day of July, A. D., 1888, in Liber 47 of Mortgages, on page 376. Default has been made in the conditions of said mortgage, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative. There is claimed to be due and unpaid on said mortgage at this date the sum of Four Thousand and Fifty nine 50-100 Dollars ($4059.50) and no suit or proceedings at law or in chancery have been instituted to collect the same or any part thereof. Notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder on the 13th day of October, A. D., 1888, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the east front door of the Court House in the city of Adrian, in said county of Lenawee, said Court House being the place of holding the circuit court for said county of Lenawee, to satisfy the amount now due, together with all legal costs and charges of this foreclosure.

Dated July 18, A. D., 1888.

MORTGAGE SALE.

ON the 15th day of December, 1881, David A. Steaner and Hannah A. Steiner mortgaged to Albert Hyde, Sr., all that parcel of land situate in the township of Cambridge, Lenawee County, Michigan, described as follows, to wit: Beginning at a stake one hundred and sixty-six feet south and thirty-three feet west of the north east corner of the east half of the southeast quarter of section twenty-eight, town five (5) south, of range two (2) east; running thence south sixteen rods to a stake; thence west sixteen rods to a stake; thence north eight rods to a stake; thence east four rods to a stake; thence north eight rods to south line of street; thence east twelve rods to place of beginning—excluding seven village lots as per plat of the village of Onsted (so called) numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 19 and 20. Excepting and reserving from the lands and premises above described two parcels thereof, which have been released from the lien of said mortgage. The one of which released parcels is described as a parcel of land forty-eight (48) feet wide north and south, by twelve rods long east and west to be taken from off the north side of the lands and premises above described, and the other of said two released parcels is described as a parcel of land three rods wide north and south, by eight rods long east and west, to be taken from out the southeast corner of the lands and premises above described, to secure the payment of six hundred dollars, which mortgage was on the 18th day of December, 1881, recorded in the Register of Deeds' office for the county of Lenawee, Michigan, in Liber 37 of mortgages on page 268, and said mortgage contains a provision that in case of non-payment of any principal or interest at the time limited therefor, then after sixty days the whole amount shall become due and payable.

Default having been made in the payment of interest and principal on said mortgage to the amount of one hundred eighty-five 73-100 dollars, and the same having remained unpaid for a period of more than sixty days and by reason of such default the whole amount of principal and interest has thereby become due, amounting at the date of this notice to the sum of Four Hundred Eighty-five and 73-100 dollars, and no proceedings at law or in equity have been commenced for recovery of said sum or any part thereof.

Notice is therefore hereby given that by virtue of the power and provisions in said mortgage contained, and of the statute of the state of Michigan, in such case made and provided, the said above described land and premises will be sold at public vendue to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House in the city of Adrian, Lenawee County, Michigan, (that being the building in which the circuit court for said county of Lenawee is holden) on Friday, the 19th day of September, 1888, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage, the costs and expense of this sale, and the attorney fee as provided by law.

Dated June 21st, 1888.

THE VICTOR FINALLY VANQUISHED.

Without Warning the Invincible Steals on His Victim and Does His Work Quickly.

Again the Ocean Beats the Requiem of the Nation's Best Beloved, as His Spirit "Goes Out with the Tide."

NONQUITT, Mass., Aug. 6.—Gen. Sheridan is dead. So ends the story of a three months' struggle for life. All through Sunday Gen. Sheridan had been in unusually good spirits, laughing and chatting with his doctors and members of the family, and seemingly in better spirits than for several days. His medical attendants were also good-natured and spent a portion of the day in calling at several cottages. At 7 o'clock Dr. Matthews said the general was doing so well that there would probably be no bulletins issued for a week. After dinner at the hotel Mrs. Sheridan carried down to the general a large slice of roast beef, which he ate with apparent relish. He dozed a bit during the afternoon, but awoke to eat supper and then went to sleep again. At 10 o'clock a messenger came breathless and breathless to the hotel and demanded the immediate presence of Col. Sheridan at the cottage. Five minutes after another messenger summoned the colonel's wife. Then came the bulletin announcing the death. Another messenger followed with a request for the appearance of B. N. Wilson, a Chicago friend of Col. Sheridan, who has been boarding at the hotel. Mr. Wilson remained at the cottage only long enough to return with instructions to summon Dr. John Mackay, an embalmer, and E. T. Wilson, an undertaker, both of New Bedford.

LITTLE PHIL SHERIDAN.

The first bulletin message was sent to the president, then to a newspaper, and afterward to the adjutant general of the army, the secretary of war and members of the staff of the late distinguished commander. With the general at the death-bed were Mrs. Sheridan, Mary, Louise, Irene and Philip, the children, Col. Sheridan, his brother, with his wife, sisters Justinia and Urban, who have faithfully and tenderly nursed the dead hero from the beginning to the end, and both Drs. Reilly and Matthews.

THE DEATH-BED SCENE.

The plaintive tolling of the tog bell on the rocks just at the entrance of Buzzard's bay falling on the stillness of midnight unconsciously expressed the grief which has overtaken his immediate summer friends of the past and place in season. The unfavorable symptoms, which were exhibited, made their appearance so unexpectly and were so rapid in development that it was but a chance that the children were aroused in time to take a last look at their dying father.

Mrs. Sheridan and the nurses were on their bended knees in prayer as the spirit departed. Mrs. Col. Kellogg, a dear friend of the family, arrived just a moment after the last breath was drawn and assisted Mrs. Sheridan to her feet when she closed the eyes of the dead hero. All was ended. The hours of suffering which commenced at midnight three months ago, brought Gen. Sheridan to death's door at Washington and at Delaware breakwater and then diminished in duration to such an extent as to baffle and deceive the eminent skill in constant attendance upon the patient, suddenly ended in death.

MRS. SHERIDAN.

Gen. Sheridan died at 10:30 this evening. The immediate cause of death was heart failure. The remote cause was disease of the mitral and aberric valves, the existence of which was known to his physicians, to himself, and to his family in November of last year. The complications which have occurred have been nervous exhaustion, pneumonia, and hemorrhages. The last day of his life was somewhat restless, but not more so than he has been several times since his arrival at Nonquitt. At about 9:30 symptoms of heart failure suddenly appeared. The remedies which had hitherto been successful were vigorously applied but proved ineffectual, and he sank rapidly, dying painlessly at the hour named.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE FUNERAL.

The Body To Be Buried in Arlington Cemetery on Saturday.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 7.—The following telegram respecting the funeral arrangements was received from Col. Sheridan at Nonquitt by the war department yesterday:
